Must Keep Data Confidential

Canadian Gov't Must Approve Any Information Given

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada today gave permission to the United States Senate internal security subcommittee to interview Igor Gouzenko.

The government said today in reply to the second U. S. request that the sub-committee be permitted to question Gouzenko that it is "willing, if Mr. Gouzenko agrees, to make arrangements for a confidential meeting, under Canadian auspices, at which any person designated by the U. S. government could be present, it being understood . . . that the evidence or information thus secured would not be made public without the approval of the Canadian government."

The reply to the U. S. request was tabled in the Commons today as External Affairs Minister Pearson gave a 2,500-word summary of the Canadian position in the controversial case.

ALL DATA GIVEN

The Canadian reply reiterated the government stand that every scrap of information supplied by Gouzenko when he bared a Russian spy ring operating in Canada in 1946 and in subsequent interviews with the RCMP had been passed to the U. S. Federal Bureau of Investigation.

"The Canadian government believes that there has already been ample opportunity for Mr. Gouzenko to give information and make known his views to the United States authorities through established channels."

Nevertheless, the government said, in view of the second U. S. request, it was willing to arrange the interview.

Canada turned down the first U. S. request, received here Oct. 29, that the sub-committee be permitted to quiz Gouzenko. The first Canadian reply was sent Nov. 4.

The second U. S. request was made Nov. 19 and the second Canadian reply was delivered in Washington today.

CAREFULLY CONSIDERED

The second Canadian reply said careful consideration had been given to the second U. S. request, taking into account the fact that the government has assumed the protection for Gouzenko and fitted him out with a new identity.

Gouzenko, former Russian clerk in the Soviet embassy here, is living in an undisclosed Ontario town under RCMP guard and under an assumed name.

The note said Gouzenko, as a Canadian citizen, is free to go anywhere or talk to anyone.

This apparently dumped the case into Gouzenko's lap. It now would be up to him to determine whether he would risk his security, even at a secret meeting, to talk to the sub-committee.

From this and Mr. Pearson's remarks, it appeared possible that Canada might agree to a secret meeting in Canada between Gouzenko and a sub-committee representative. But it would be strictly up to Gouzenko whether he wanted to jeopardize his safety through such a meeting.

Canada rejected the first U.S. request that the sub-committee be permitted to interview Gouzenko on grounds that the former spy tipster has no information to add

Jumping Contract

OTTAWA (CP) — Complaints of contract-jumping by immigrants coming to Canada for farm work were voiced today by spokesmen for several provinces at the 11th annual federal-provincial farm labor conference. Chief criticism was directed at German immigrants brought here under an assisted-passage scheme and under agreement to work at least a year on farms. Provincial farm labor directors said around 40 per cent of them have been abandoning farm work before the expiration of the 12 - month period.

No Settlement In Strike Negotiations

TORONTO (CP) — No settlement was reached in negotiations which broke off at noon today between officials representing 1,500 striking workers at Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines and the company.

The parties will meet here again next Tuesday. The talks began Tuesday in the office of Labor Minister Charles Daley between company representatives and officials of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL).

Jules Timmins, Hollinger president, was not present, but was represented by W. S. Weldon, executive vice-president.

Two of the other Hollinger representatives were C. D. Ross, assistant general superintendent of the company and E. A. Perry, mine manager.

The five-man union delegation to the talks with Mr. Daley and Louis Fine, chief conciliation officer for the labor department, was headed by Charles Millard, national director of the steel union.

Some observers feel a break in the Hollinger strike, now in its third month, may hold the key to the wage and check-off dispute in northern Ontario and northwestern Quebec. A total of 7,050 men have been on strike in that area since the walkouts began last July.

Union representatives at today's meeting were Arthur Goldberg, general counsel Washington, Elmer Maloy, director of the USW wage division, Pittsburgh; Leo Behie, Timmins area supervisor, and Mr. Millard.

Fog Over S. England Hampering Shipping

LONDON (AP) — Thick fog blanketed much of southern England today, hampering shipping along the coast. But London escaped and enjoyed warm sunshine.

The liner Mauretania was held up at Le Havre, France, on her way from New York to Southampton.

Portsmouth had one of its worst fogs of the year and visibility in Oxfordshire, Somerset and Hampshire was down to 10 yards in places.

10 Firms Named In Electrical Industry Combine

OTTAWA (CP)—Ten companies were named today as participating in a 1-year illegal price-fixing combine spread almost over the entire $124,000,000 Canadian electrical wire and cable industry. Special Commissioner H. Carl Goldenberg of Montreal named the companies—including the industry's "big four"—in a 247-page report following an 18-month investigation. The price-fixing arrangements were found to have first existed in 1912 and to have been continued for the last 41 years. The report was made public by Justice Minister Garson who said he will announce later whether the companies will be prosecuted in court.

Named in the report are:

Phillips Electrical Works Ltd. of Brockville, Ont., reported to have been controlled by Automatic Electric Co. of Chicago at the time of the inquiry, but now believed to have been purchased by British Insulated Callenders Cables Ltd. of London.

Triangle Conduit and Cable (Canada) Ltd. of Toronto. Four of its five directors are directors also of Triangle Conduit and Cable Co. Inc., a U. S. corporation. "It would appear that both companies are controlled by the same shareholders," the report said.

Boston Insulated Wire and Cable Co. Ltd. of Hamilton, Ont. Shareholders of a U. S. company of the same name hold the controlling shares of the Canadian corporation.

With the exception of Automatic Electric, all are manufacturing companies producing about 93 per cent of Canada's production of various electrical wire and cable, including telephone wire and cable, hydro cables.

The "big four," named by Mr. Goldenberg as Northern Electric, Phillips, Canada Wire and Cable and Canadian General Electric, produced 79 per cent of the entire output.

The inquiry, launched as a result of complaints by Ottawa and Winnipeg hydro commissions that they were receiving identical and non-competitive bids in response to calls for tenders on electrical equipment, found that the companies by concerted action com-

Council Peeved At Prov. Control Over County Jail

Dissatisfied with the big say that the department of reform institutions have in running the county jail, the county council have picked a four-man committee to go to Toronto and talk the problem over with the minister, Major the Hon. John W. Foote.

What irks council members in particular is that the department pay only about $1 out of every $4 of administration of justice expenses. Council, the members feel, pay the piper but the officials in Toronto call the tune.

No single item prompted council to appoint this committee and direct the members to draw up a brief. Dissatisfaction has been increasing for several years. Some points at issue: instructions from Toronto requesting expensive security measures, including new locks (now installed) and heavy cement work to foil any escape attempt (decided on after the Boyd gang escaped last year); payment of jail employees; the limits of jurisdiction between the county and the department; and the general handling and treatment of prisoners.

REPORT TO DEPARTMENT

Council members heard Tuesday both jail employees and prisoners were reporting grievances directly to the department who dispatched special inspectors to check up.

This brought a comment from Reeve Dick Stewart of Otonabee township: "I don't think prison-

Saboteurs Try Blow Up Lines

DUMFRIES, Scotland (AP) — Saboteurs have made two attempts to blow up electricity lines linking Scotland and England, police said Tuesday night.

One charge of explosive blew the concrete base off a high tension tower between Dumfries and Carlisle, but failed to interrupt the power supply. Another charge, unexploded, was found near a tower on the Carnhill-Berwick road.

A police spokesman said members of a Scottish nationalist group who seek home rule for Scotland were under suspicion.

Smiling Queen Welcomed To Jamaica

The big four-engined Stratocruiser touched down at 9:53 a. m. EST, seven minutes ahead of schedule.

Coconut palms and mountains ringing a blue bay formed a backdrop as the Queen received official welcome from dignitaries headed by Governor Sir Hugh Foot. She inspected guards of honor before entering her car for a 120-mile ceremonial drive around the island.

Gaily-clad Jamaicans thronged Montego bay, once the lair of pirates, to greet the royal visitors. Banners, flags and gaily-decorated archways lined the route of the long drive to Kingston.

Both the Queen and duke appeared well rested, showing no sign of the full day of functions Tuesday at Bermuda and their predawn start this morning. The duke's white naval uniform contrasted brightly with the sober black uniforms of the diplomatic representatives at the airport.

The drive took the Queen and her husband along picturesque stretches of coastal road connecting towns and villages where the local inhabitants have gone all-out to provide a festive welcome.

The Queen wound up the busy first day of her six-month tour, with a state dinner given Tuesday night by Bermuda"s governor Sir Alexander Hood at government house.

Gifts Replace Stolen Money

LONDON (Reuters)—Capt. Anthony Lorraine, whose £10,000 worth of possessions were stolen while he was away piloting the Queen across the Atlantic Monday night, has had the money replaced in two gifts.

"It is just like a fairy story," said Mrs. Lorraine today.

The money was made up by an anonymous donation plus a cheque for £3,000 from Britain's Canadian-born holiday king, Billy Butlin.

The Lorraines' apartment was ransacked while Mrs. Lorraine was seeing her husband off. The stolen possessions were not insured.

Military Aid Reduction To Western Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign aid director Harold Stassen has informed Congress it will be possible to make "a considerable reduction" in American military aid to Western Europe next year. He said that economic aid, with a few exceptions, can be ended.

Stassen set out these conclusions in a special report he sent to four congressional committees on Nov. 16. A summary of his letter was made public today by the foreign operations administration.

By "next year," Stassen had reference to the next government fiscal year—the 12 months beginning next July 1.

Alexander May Resign Post

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill called an emergency cabinet meeting today to consider revolts spreading within the ranks of his own Conservative party. Ministers hurried to 10 Downing street amid reports that Field Marshal Earl Alexander might resign as defence minister in the row over retirement pensions for First World War officers. The Liberal News Chronicle said in a front-page story that "unofficial" reports are circulating that the former governor-general of Canada is threatening to resign "after a row in the cabinet." Press speculation was based at least in part on the choice of the Marquess of Salisbury to make known the government's decision on retirement pensions in the House of Lords. Until Tuesday night, Lord Alexander had answered questions on the subject in the Lords, and had promised a statement this week.

Lord Alexander's absence from the upper house was commented on by several newspapers. The independent Times said the decision on pensions was no doubt "unpalatable" to the defence minister.

But Churchill said in answer to a question that his government will not authorize the increases, which would cost about £200,000 ($560,000) a year.

He said the government has carefully studied the question, and has decided it cannot provide the special increases.

In reply to cries of "shame" from both sides of the House, he said:

"I was well aware the answer I gave would not be received with satisfaction and it was for that reason I thought it ought not to be made by a departmental officer but some one speaking with the authority of the government."

Liberal Scores Upset Win In Victoria By-Election

VICTORIA (CP)—British Columbia's Social Credit government has lost its bid to gain a legislature seat for Finance Minister Einar Gunderson. Youthful George Gregory, making his first appearance in the provincial arena under the Liberal banner, eked out a 93-vote victory over Mr. Gunderson in the by-election to fill the vacant Victoria seat. With all 135 polls heard from, Mr. Gregory had rolled up 8,393 votes and Mr. Gunderson 8,300.

The three remaining candidates were never in the running in the contest that was in doubt until the last poll was heard from. Alfred Matthews, CCF, polled 2,460 votes; Progressive Conservative leader Deane Finlayson 979 and Mrs. Doris Blakey, Labor Progressive, 159.

Mr. Gunderson and Premier Bennett declined to concede defeat until some 200 votes cast in hospitals are counted Thursday. Liberal party officials said they were confident Mr. Gregory's lead would be maintained. Premier Bennett said his party would call for a recount if Thursday's count showed Mr. Gunderson still trailing.

The premier also said that Mr. Gunderson will retain his cabinet post for the time being. He said Mr. Gunderson would accompany him to Ottawa next month to discuss financial matters with federal authorities.

MANY IDEAS ATTACKED

Social Credit monetary policies were a main target of the Liberals and other opposition parties during the campaign.

The by-election was made possible by the resignation of Percy Wright, one of three Social Credit members elected in Victoria last June. Mr. Wright resigned as assistant city clerk to attend the fall session of the legislature then resigned in favor of Mr. Gunderson, who was defeated in the Oak Bay riding.

Mr. Finlayson's defeat was his third reversal at the polls in six months.

Standing in the legislature now is Social Credit 27; CCF 14; Liberals 5; Progressive Conservative 1, Independent Labor 1.

Laniel Stakes Gov't On Vote

PARIS (CP)—Premier Joseph Laniel announced today he will stake the future of his government on a vote of confidence to be taken Friday morning on the issue of France's proposed membership in the European army.

The announcement followed a threat by Foreign Minister Georges Bidault's Mouvement Republicaine Populaire that it would quit the coalition government unless Laniel accepted the party's motion for approval of the European defence project.

The decision of the government to stake its existence on the vote prompted Bidault to decide not to attend a six-nation foreign ministers meeting in The Hague which opens Thursday. Alexandre Parodi, secretary-general at the foreign office, will represent France at The Hague.

The threat of the MRP to pull out of the coalition was voiced to reporters by a party spokesman as the National Assembly reassembled. The decision to make the vote on the European Defence Community one of confidence meant an automatic 48-hour recess of the assembly.

Laniel conferred throughout the morning with parliamentary leaders in a last-ditch effort to hammer out a compromise motion.

The premier is seeking to avoid the collapse of his government before the Big Three meeting in Bermuda next week.

TNT Explosion Shakes Glasgow

BISHOPTON, Scotland (Reuters) Three men were killed and four were injured when a nitroglycerine laboratory exploded at the royal ordnance factory here early today.

The blast shook Glasgow, 10 miles away. At dawn, rescue teams moved cautiously into the crumbling underground passages in search of other victims, after danger of further explosions had subsided. But they found none.

Sections of the factory were reported damaged by debris, and tunnels linking the subterranean units caved in.

An official investigation is being conducted to determine cause of the blast.

Security Council Rebukes Israeli For Arab Killing

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Ignoring Israeli appeals, the United Nations Security Council by a 9-0 vote Tuesday night rebuked the Jewish state for the killing of 53 Arabs in Jordan's Kibya village, and called on her to see that such actions do not happen again.

The resolution—sponsored by the United States, Britain and France—brought protests from both Jordan and Israel. They do not belong to the council and have no vote there.

Israeli delegate Abba Eban charged the censure was loaded in favor of Jordan and warned that it might torpedo the direct Israeli-Jordan talks his government has demanded.

Sources close to Jordan labelled the resolution a "milk-sop" which merely chided Israel and did nothing to punish her.

Charles Malik of Lebanon, only Arab member of the 11-country Council, abstained on the vote along with Russia. Malik explained to reporters later that he felt the resolution was not nearly strong enough and did not call for compensation to families of the Kibya victims.

Israel derived some consolation, however, from the Big three's last-minute change in their resolution to take note of Eban's invoking of article 12 of the Israel-Jordan armistice agreement to summon both parties to obligatory peace talks.

Eban made a last-ditch effort to stave off the censure vote. He appealed to the council to think twice before it voted a censure which would "do nothing to advance the cause of Middle East peace" and merely took account of the "violent acts of the immediate past."

Name Robertson In Spy Row

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto Star says the "highly-placed" Canadian who is supposed to have given information on Harry Dexter White to the FBI was "simply returning information to Washington which the FBI had supplied the Canadian security authorities."

It identified the Canadian as Norman Robertson, now Canadian high commissioner to Britain, who was undersecretary of external affairs at Ottawa during the war. Mr. Robertson arrived in Ottawa Tuesday night from London on what was described as a routine visit.

The Star says that information about Mr. White "came originally from Elizabeth Bentley, the Communist espionage courier", whose disclosures touched off intensive U. S. spy investigations.

"All Mr. Robertson did was to mention to U. S. monetary authorities the fact that White was under investigation by the FBI."

No Rush To Buy American Surplus Produce

LONDON (Reuters)—Western Europe so far has refused to take more than a nibble at a United States offer of $130,000,000 worth of surplus farm produce. Britain has agreed to buy $20,000,000 worth of tobacco; West Germany has accepted an outright gift of $15,000,000 of soybeans and tobacco. That is all. Principal reasons for the lukewarm reaction are: 1. European countries cannot afford extra imports, even using their own currency. The terms of the offer stipulate that the produce must not be used to replace existing trade agreements.

2. What some Europeans term "dumping" of American surpluses in Europe might throw the entire European market out of balance and seriously hurt producing countries.

Under the offer, designed to cut down United States surpluses, non-Communist countries can pay for the produce with their own currency. The money then would be used for the U.S. foreign aid program.

SUMS UP REACTION

The general European reaction was summed up by Holland's agriculture minister, Sicco Mansholt, who said: "To accept the offer would mean either cutting down food imports from abroad or increasing home consumption. We are not prepared to do either."

Most of the European countries which have been offered surplus stocks are anxious not to harm their own contracts with other producers or their own markets.

The situation in individual countries:

Denmark: Has turned down the offer of about $5,000,000 worth of goods. All leading Danish trade organizations claimed the program might impair the entire European market.

STILL DISCUSSING

Belgium: Still is discussing the offer, which originally got a mixed reception in government circles. Belgium is worried about the condition that the purchase would be over and above existing agreements.

Britain: Still is thinking over the offer, but any purchases besides tobacco are expected to be small.

France: The French government is expected to make a decision shortly on the offer of $15,000,000 of supplies, which faces opposition from French farmers.

Dean Wants Russia Full Member In Talks

PANMUNJOM (AP) — United States envoy Arthur Dean today said "some method must be worked out" to assure the attendance of Russia as a full participant at a Korean peace conference.

The Reds want Russia to attend as a neutral. Dean charged this would mean the Soviet Union would not be bound by conference decisions.

He said Chinese and North Korean negotiators were holding Russia "as a threat over our heads."

Allied and Communist diplomats met for three hours and 45 minutes, the longest continuous session since the preliminary talks opened Oct. 26. They will meet again Friday.

Farmers Not "Hard Up" This Year Senator Says

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator W. Ross Macdonald, government leader in the Senate, Tuesday said it is important that people correct the wrong impression that farmers are hard up this year. He said during the throne speech debate that they will receive this year more than $380,000,000 in excess of the average annual income for the last eight years. Annual income in that period averaged $722,600,000 while it is estimated farmers will receive $1,104,000,000 this year.

Replying to Senator W. M. Aseltine, acting Opposition leader who spoke earlier in the debate, Senator Macdonald said the reason there is so much wheat "is due almost entirely to the phenomenal yields which gracious Providence has made possible over the last three years."

Earlier in the debate, Senator Aseltine has said the government was almost solely responsible for the shortage of storage space for this year's crop.

EXPORTS GREATER

Senator Macdonald said exports of coarse grains, oats and barley, were greater this year than last year. And in the period Aug. 1-Nov. 4, exports of wheat were 80,000,000 bushels compared with 108,000,000 bushels in a similar period last year. The decrease in exports of all grains was only about 19,000,000 bushels.

He recalled that there have been three big crops—one of them a record—in succession, an unprecedented situation.

Three Convicted Of Stealing Deer, Fined $100

Two Burleigh Falls men, and one from Toronto, were convicted on a charge of stealing a deer by Magistrate W. R. Philp, Tuesday, and each fined $100 and costs for their part in the theft.

The men were Harold Hogarth, 31, of Burleigh Falls, Fred Chahley of Brock St., Toronto, and Alfred Doughty of Burleigh Falls. They were charged with the theft of a deer from George Spencely of Burleigh Falls.

Both Hogarth and Doughty signed statements admitting their part in the theft and on that basis, Hogarth was convicted.

In Doughty's case, however, Toronto solicitor Maney Frankel questioned OPP Sgt. J. K. Smith extensively on the statement, attempting to prove it was not admissable.

WARNED ACCUSED

Sgt. Smith said he had warned the accused not to say anything if he didn't want to first thing in questioning him at a Toronto police station. According to another police office, PC John Gray, however, about an hour elapsed when the accused was with the two provincial officers and two Toronto detectives before the warning was given.

Doughty declined to say what took place in the intervening time other than "questioning." He maintained no force or threats were made in obtaining the statement, though.

Sgt. Smith accounted for the time, on re-examination, which he set closer to 45 minutes, by saying there was questioning first. "Otherwise we wouldn't know if he was involved or not."

Mr. Frankel argued the statement should not be admitted because of the insufficiently accounted for time during the questioning. "The whole set-up smells," he declared. "Is he (Doughty) withholding something . . . because of fear?"

Magistrate Philip decided he wasn't, admitted the statement, and Doughty changed his plea to guilty. Chahley then also pleaded guilty and the trio were all fined the equal amount or two months in jail.

EDMONTON (CP) — With Alberta's polio outbreak soaring daily to new record heights in both cases and deaths, the province has assumed most of the cost of polio treatment.

Best Christmas Since 1938

LONDON (AP) — Britain will have the biggest and best Christmas since 1938, food ministry officials said today.

Rationing is virtually dead and food ministry and private traders have accumulated near - record stocks.

The traditional turkey and plum pudding dinner, they said, will be the best for 15 years. The turkeys will be plumper and the plum pudding fruitier. And prices may be a bit lower.

Some 20,000 tons of turkeys and other poultry will be distributed during Christmas week.

Only butter will be the ghost at the feast. The ration is still three ounces per person a week and officials said this will remain unchanged until next summer.

ers or employees, particularly prisoners, should write directly to the department. Complaints or grievances should go through the proper channels — not over Sheriff Harstone's and Jailer Johnston's heads . . . It should be like the setup in the services: there were definite channels to go through."

A new stove is needed in the jail and an electric one has been recommended. However it was pointed out that the only activity the prisoners have at present is chopping wood. Eliminate the wood stove and that's gone too. Yet in hearings before the select committee in Toronto more activity for prisoners has been urged repeatedly.

Reeve Willard Waterman of North Monaghan said: "It strikes me as strange that men coming up for sentence ask for several months . . ."

"That's during the winter," said County Clerk Mrs. J. A. Spurway.

"Well, what are we running, a boarding home"? queried Reeve Waterman. "I thought jail was a place of punishment."

GET WHITE SHEETS

Somebody else commented that the prisoners get white sheets on their beds and each one gets a new toothbrush and tooth paste.

Reeve James Gifford of Ennismore township said that there is a lot of misunderstanding and dissatisfaction. He suggested a committee to draw up a list of the points at issue and see the minister.

James T. Brown New President Of Spring Show

James T. Brown, Newcastle, was elected president of the Central Ontario Spring Show at the annual meeting of its membership here Tuesday. He succeeds Robert Armstrong of Cavan who became past president.

Executive members are: Thomas Hensilwood, Napanee R.R. 7; Owen Sweetman, Little Britain; James Henderson, Kingston; Wesley Down, Hilton; Sam Danford, Consecon; Wellington Sutton, Otonabee, and the agricultural representatives of the Central Ontario counties.

The show will be held in Peterborough during the week of March 16 to 21. Panel discussions of farm questions will again be a feature, and the executive has the problem of drafting panel members to attain the success of the last two shows.

Subjects are being aimed more definitely at the practical phase of farming. One of them will deal with cash crops, "how the farmer of Central Ontario can supplement his income." Soy beans and grain crops will be included in the cash crops.

USE OF MACHINERY

Another panel will be devoted to the use of farm machinery, the care of farm equipment, what machinery is required by the average farmer for economic practical results. The topic of marketing will find a place in this program.

The meeting was unanimous in this choice of panel subjects, delving especially into the profit factor at the beginning of a year when farmers are facing a prospect of depleted income.

Wilson Gemmell, treasurer of the show, analysed the financial outlook. Counties are being asked again to continue their grants. Admission charges are unchanged.

The treasury has shown some encouraging improvements over last year, but in the words of Mr. Gemmell "we can't feel secure until we have a credit sufficient to tide us over an adverse year."

Stuart Brown recommended in the proposed increase in prize money that emphasis be placed on ten bushel lots of seed. A major purpose of the Spring Show is to attract producers of top quality seed and farmers interested in buying supplies. It was said that a great deal of the seed from Durham and several other counties was widely distributed last March. Peterborough and Hastings county farmers helped themselves to more of the show seed than ever, and the prices were satisfactory to the growers.

The evening concert Thursday night will be another renewed feature, and it was also decided to arrange a program Wednesday night suitable for performance in the exhibits building. More encouragement than heretofore will be given to the 4-H Club grain department.

First meeting of the executive and grain committee will be at Napanee, Friday, December 18. Durham grain growers were asked again to include their county seed show, grain and potatoes, in the March exhibition.

bined to maintain prices illegally against the public benefit.

Mr. Goldenberg said the inquiry showed a "studied effort" by the companies to "conceal" their activities and a "calculated attempt to disguise the fact that net prices in each company's book were identical."

SEVEN COMPLAINTS

Specifically, Mr. Goldenberg stated that the companies entered into arrangements or agreements to:

1. Fix common prices for their products, thus lessening competition against public benefit.

2. Compute prices in such a way as having the effect of fixing common prices.

4. Submit uniform bids on tenders.

5. Make a uniform classification of customers, or uniform trade discounts for each class of customer and uniform cash discounts.

6. Appoint and locate agents.

7. Make uniform freight charges and uniform zone prices and methods for computing freight charges, having the effect of fixing common delivered prices.

COMPANY ARGUMENTS

Mr. Goldenberg, a Montreal lawyer especially appointed to deal with this case, said that counsel for the companies had argued that in the absence of proof of binding agreements and of sanctions for their enforcement, the evidence failed to establish agreements or arrangements in violation of the law.

"This argument must be rejected," he said. "The evidence establishes the fact of agreement which, if the agreement has operated or is likely to operate to the detriment of the public, may alone constitute the offence."

The evidence had showed that the price-fixing arrangements first started in 1912 and continued for the last 41 years, he said.

to what he supplied in 1946 and in subsequent questioning by the RCMP.

Mr. Pearson, repeating a frequent government statement, said all information supplied by Gouzenko has been passed to the FBI.

But the sub-committee, which has not quarrelled with this, wants to interview Gouzenko anyway. This apparently stems from the separating powers between the executive and legislative branches of the U.S. government. The FBI, in the executive branch, has the Gouzenko information. But the sub-committee, in the legislative branch, can't get at it.

In short, Canada has become involved in a dispute which actually stems from the U.S. constitution. Whichever way Canada turns, she may annoy one branch of the U.S. government. If she accedes to the legislative branch's bid for Gouzenko, she might offend the executive branch, headed by President Eisenhower. If she refuses, she annoys the legislative branch.

Burmese Capture Tungsten Mines

RANGOON (Reuters) — Burmese government forces have reoccupied the rebel headquarters of Mawchi, where British-owned tungsten mines have been in insurgent hands since 1949, it was announced today.

The victory on Monday is considered, for reasons of morale and strategy, the greatest to date against the joint Karen rebel and Nationalist Chinese guerrilla forces.

Observers hope that without the revenue from the tungsten, relations between the Karens and the Chinese Nationalists—already reported strained—will be permanently damaged.

Trading Prices Higher At Toronto Market

TORONTO (CP)—Price groups were mostly higher in light early afternoon stock market trading today.

Papers, steels, foods, banks, refining oils, liquors and manufactures showed more gains than losses, and utilities showed the strongest front as all traded issues gained. Textiles and constructions wer balanced. Agricultures made the only drop.

All gold categories had more losses than gains but the margin was small.

Base metals dropped slightly, as seniors were almost inactive. In juniors, Cassiar lost 10 cents and United Asbestos gained the same. Uraniums had an almost equal balance with all price changes less than 10 cents. Bathurst-area issues were higher as gains ranged to New Larder U's five cents.

UK Newspapers Criticize Bermuda Dinner

LONDON (Reuters)—The newspapers Daily Mirror and Daily Herald today angrily protested against the absence of any Negro representatives at a state banquet in Bermuda Tuesday night welcoming the Queen.

The pro-Labor Mirror tells its 4,500,000 readers that officials in Bermuda had blundered and demanded "an end to blind snobbery."

The Daily Herald, newspaper of the Labor party and trade unions, said Sir Alexander Hood, governor of the colony, has insulted more than 500,000,000 people in the British Commonwealth.

REJECT EXPLANATION

Both papers flatly reject Hood's explanation that the list of 30 guests invited to the banquet was drawn up "according to precedence."

"Why weren't the top 30 knocked off the stupid list?" asks the Mirror, which points out 60 per cent of Bermuda's population is colored. "To blazes with the first families of Bermuda. Offend them for a change."

The Daily Herald editorial says: "Perhaps others may benefit from this instance of gross ill-manners. It is high time that everyone from governors downwards grasped the facts about this British Commonwealth."

Asked For Protection Passenger Missing

SUDBURY (CP) — Provincial police today started a search for Arpad Voeroes, 39, who disappeared from a CPR passenger train Tuesday after asking the porter to get him police protection.

The porter said the 200-lb. six-foot-three immigrant, "wouldn't get undressed and go to bed and seemed to be afraid of something."

A former Toronto hospital employee en route to Calgary, Voeroes refused to say why he wanted protection.

Greek Strength Grows

ATHENS (AP)—Defence Minister Panayotis Canellopoulos told Parliament Tuesday night that through American assistance Greece now has an air force of 400 planes, including 150 jets. He added that the United States has also sent Greece since last July a large number of modern artillery pieces to replace obsolete British-supplied equipment.

Ask Newspaper To Appear Before Council

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Woodstock's city council Monday night heard a report of a resolution asking the Woodstock Sentinel-Review to appear before council to answer for its news stories about council and committee meetings.

Accompaning the report from a previous meeting closed to press and public, was a letter from The Sentinel-Review declining to accede to the request on the grounds it would be an infringement of the principle of freedom of the press.

In a discussion at Monday night's open meeting, Alderman W. W. Boys charged that in his four years on council there were many misquotations in the daily newspaper's stories.

Alderman H. Collins, a candidate for mayor at the Dec. 7 municipal elections, said he was seldom misquoted in his six years in council. "I think if they make a mistake they will certainly correct it. I do not believe in the press being edited by council."

College Plans To Have New Buiding

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Work is expected to start on a new $200,000 university administration building by Feb. 1, Dr. R. A. Allen, vice-president of University of Western Ontario and dean of graduate studies, announced Tuesday.

Dr. Allen said the new building will be used to house university offices, at present situated in the arts building. Faculty and college offices, also in the art building, will remain.

He said UWO is looking forward to an expected increase in student registration in the next three or four years when the present large high school enrolment reaches university standard.

NEED MORE SPACE

"Much more space is required for students and faculty," he said. "When the university offices move into the new building, space at present occupied by them will be converted in student and academic accommodation."

Dr. Allen said the new building will be known as Stevenson hall. Its construction is made possible largely by the use of the residue of the estate of the late W. J. Stevenson, one of the great benefactors of UWO in recent years.

Confidence Is Growing Following Pact

MADRID—The remark attributed to Generalissimo Franco on the day following the anti-climactical conclusion of the United States - Spanish treaty — "We (meaning the Falange) have now won the war for Spain"—may be apocryphal. But signs are piling up that the government is riding a high crest of self-confidence, almost euphoria.

At the same time, the people of this somewhat faded, yet charming capital, quiet and subdued when compared with quick, nervous Paris or dynamic Rome, show a singular lack of interest in things political. Neither the tired, grey workmen riding trolleys near the Mediodia Station nor the wealthy upper bourgeoisie, doing their shopping on Madrid's Fifth Avenue, the historic Alcala, seem to show more than a cursory interest in anything in their daily papers beyond the sports news. Near the Prado Museum, still the top attraction for visitors from abroad with its magnificently hung masterpieces, a crowd clustered around the windows of a bookstore, a new picture album of the most popular bullfighters of the day, who in Spanish eyes enjoy a status comparable to that of the gods in pre-Periclean Greece or football players on American college campuses, had just been placed on display.

But more than bullfighting is on the minds of Spain's leaders as they face the future now with both the concordat signed with the Vatican recently and the military-naval agreement with the United States in their pockets. This new confidence is already manifest in a number of ways. First and most obvious is new emphasis on Spanish military and naval power, in what may become a series of displays to remind the Mediterranean nations that the Spanish state is to be reckoned with all decisions affecting the area.

PLAYED BY PRESS

An example of this was the large play given by the Spanish press to the recent festivities at Cadiz, where General Franco and military dignitaries reviewed the Spanish fleet from the decks of the cruiser "Canarias."

Sharing headline space with the Cadíz review was an ostentatious visit of Lt. Gen. Munoz Grandes, Spanish Minister of War, to Lisbon, where he was wined and dined by high representatives of the Portuguese government and military. Spain's relations with Portugal, who clings to her traditional friendly ties with Britain, have not always been ideal in recent years. The position of Dr. Olivira Salazar's prosperous, rather autarchical little state as an adherent of the Atlantic pact, to which the new Hispano - American agreement makes Spain a sort of de facto member, renders improved relations between the two Iberian lands almost a certainty.

An essential symptom of Franco's new euphoria is certainly the growing Spanish pressure for cession of Gibraltar. The demands made by the Falangist press in August that Britain should surrender the Rock have, instead of abating, been stepped up.

On October 15, British authorities in the Crown Colony moved to forestall one specific measure of harassment: an expected strike among the thousands of Spanish workers living in nearby Algeciras and La Linea who are employed in the perpetual process of improving Gibraltar's fortifications. A reminder was issued that the special Spanish trade union "Sindicate de Trabajadores on Gibraltar" and all other Spanish unions do not exist legally in the colony, and all British employers were asked to report any union activity to the authorities. At the same time, assurance was given the negotiations are under way between the British and Spanish governments for satisfaction of the workers' just demands. Spaniards here recall that last year, coincident with revisionist demands in the Spanish press, the "Gibraltar" union called one short strike which caused the British inconvenience.

Another area where Franco's self-confidence is showing is Morocco. When French Resident-General Guillaume "removed" the Sultan in August and replaced him with another more acceptable to the French and the Berber caids authorities in Spanish Morocco did not recognize the new sultan. Political refugees from the French zone, including leaders of the Istiqial independence movement, were reportedly given haven in the Spanish zone. Madrid papers have been quoting at length the Bolivian delegate to the United Nations who before presenting his watered - down resolution on Morocco recalled the Spanish High Commissioner's disapproval of the French coup de force in Rabat.

However the outside world may feel about Franco's retreat from political isolation, Spanish self-esteem is defintiely on the upgrade. How long it remains there may depend on the greatest question mark in this land of riddles: the extent of popular support of the Spanish people themselves for the Falange.

Suggest Taylor As Candidate

TORONTO (CP)—Eric G. Taylor, 45-year-old labor relations expert, was suggested as a possible candidate for the Ontario Liberal leadership.

Norman L. Mathews, former president of the Ontario Liberal Association, suggested the candidature when introducing Mr. Taylor at a luncheon meeting of the Toronto Liberal Business Men's Association.

A former university professor, Mr. Taylor has served on 150 boards of conciliation in labor disputes in two years.

The Ontario Liberal Association has called a convention for next April 8 and 9 to select a successor as leader to Walter C. Thomson who resigned after the 1951 election when the party won seven seats in the 90-member legislature.

Planners Welcomed

TORONTO (CP)—Planning Minister Warrender Tuesday welcomed delegates from municipal planning boards by telling them that most city councils haven't the "foggiest idea" of proper planning. He told delegates, here for a planning conference: "Most councils have no planning sense and no official plans for future development of their communities; or at best, the plans they do have are of the poorest quality."

It has reflected the growth of Canada. This year again, the facts behind the figures of the balance sheet offer new proof that The Bank of Nova Scotia is your partner in helping Canada grow.

Thousands of Canadians in all walks of life call upon The Bank of Nova Scotia to help with their personal and business affairs. Daily they use the Bank's services to save money, buy money orders, safeguard their valuables, obtain foreign exchange, transfer funds, buy travellers' cheques.

Every day the Bank makes funds available to business . . . municipalities . . . farmers and fishermen, lumbermen . . . manufacturers . . . for the hundred and one operations that go into making Canada the giant of the North.

The money which hundreds of thousands of Canadians save at The Bank of Nova Scotia goes to work in the form of investments and loans. Much of it goes to help build highways, hospitals, airports, welfare centres and schools; for hydro-electric schemes, scientific research and the development of natural resources. It also helps private industry and commerce to expand—leading to more employment and a higher standard of living.

Then there are the thousands of "little" enterprises that are the backbone of Canada's economy. Loans to all these mean increased production and prosperity. In this way savings become an investment in your own country and work to help Canada grow.

Province's Boundary Established

A Bill read for the first time in the Senate last week, though an uncontroversial departmental matter, had between its whereas's a rousing historical and frontier undertone. It is an Act to establish the "true and unalterable" boundaries between Ontario and Manitoba. Ontario became a Province in 1867, Manitoba in 1870. But from that day to this the boundary has never been fully established on the ground. So near are we still to the unpathed wilderness. In preceding decades the line has been in question, under dispute, set down on paper and some of it marked, but until Mr. John Pierce, Peterborough land surveyor acting for Ontario, and others acting for Manitoba and Ottawa, completed the actual marking in 1947 and '48, none could say definitely from rod to rod where Ontario ended and Manitoba began. It is the delimitation on the ground itself which this new Bill will make the legal and unalterable boundary between the two Provinces.

Thus comes the end of a long series of treaties, maps and geodetic surveys dating back to the work of Dr. Tiarks and David Thompson. They surveyed under the direction of comissioners appointed through the Treaty of Peace and Amity between His Britannic Majesty and the United States of America, a treaty signed at Ghent in 1814. The Ashburton Treaty of 1842 also enters into the Schedule of the Bill now before the Houses of Parliament, as do marking posts established between 1818 and 1897. In 1897 Elihu Stewart, Dominion Land Surveyor and B. J. Saunders, Ontario Land Surveyor, began the marking which John Pierce finished in 1948 at Hudson Bay. Stewart carved the line from the Winnipeg River south to Lake of the Woods; John Pierce, senior, of Peterborough, retraced it in 1932. Ten years before that the elder Mr. Pierce surveyed the line from the Winnipeg River to the "twelfth Base Line", and in 1929-30 he carried it to the east end of Island Lake; in 1937 from Island Lake to Echoing River. It was here in 1947-48 that his son followed in his footsteps and completed the line to the Bay. On the basis of these surveys, the new Act creates the "true and unalterable" boundary between Ontario and Manitoba.

The boundary has been agreed to by the two Provinces. In fact the present Bill is being put through Parliament at the request of Ontario and Manitoba whose Legislatures have already passed Acts of Consent. The amity of the arrangement is different from the quarrels of the early eighties. Three arbiters had rendered a decision on the disputed western and northern boundaries. Sir John A. MacDonald refused to accept the award, which favoured Ontario. Each province sent constables to preserve order, and they proceeded to arrest each other. The question went to the Privy Council in 1884, which confirmed the previous award. A reason for the present concord is that there would be little land in dispute anyway; both Provinces want the line definitely and legally established, in view of the mineral activity, so that each will know —as will mine owners—where Ontario's control ends and Manitoba's begins.

Our Mean Temperature

The weather this late autumn has been anything but mean. It has been far from normal and it has been pleasant. If this sort of autumn is destined to become average, we shall have to invent a term for it. Indian Summer will not do. We have that after the first frost early in the Fall. Paleskin's Winter? Well, it has given procrastinators a wonderfully long opportunity to do prewinter chores and us all a respite from winters' rigours.

A woman of our acquaintance forgot to make her dandelion wine last June; she was out gathering fresh bloom yesterday. Farmers are still at the plough and gardeners are salvaging turnips and other root crops which the flurry of snow a few weeks ago seemed to have doomed. The treads of snow tires are wearing thin on the bare pavement and car owners are wondering if they needed to bother putting the special tires on at all.

Last winter was unusually mild. This winter has been the meekest—so far—that natives remember in their own experience. Is Ontario veering towards a temperate climate? Here in Peterborough the average temperature for October was six degrees above normal. November's is likely to be as remarkably high. A difference in the mean temperature during Fall and Winter of only four degrees spells the difference between a banana belt and a buckling-in for winter.

Local people seem optimistic, anyway. Nurseries have been selling local residents more semi-tropical shrubs than ever before. Perhaps in a few years our roads will be flanked by rhododenrons and holly, rather than by cedar and snow fences. We wish to point out a distinct advantage southern Ontario would have — should the change be permanent——over England, Italy and other temperate or semi-tropical areas. They are soggy and dispiriting from November to February. Our November has been bright and clear, as well as gentle.

Is our climate changing? Only time can tell. It is well to remember that some eighty years ago this district had a winterless winter, and stories of roses blooming that year in January, come down to us. To raise the average mean temperature four or six degreees will require an upheaval as stupendous as the last Glacial Age. We have no records for Peterborough but point out that the annual mean temperature of Toronto during the last 105 years is 45.8 degrees, and of Ottawa during the last 66 years is 41.6 degrees. It seems we have a considerable rise still to make to claim kinship with Florida. However, even these means are not too bad. We shiver for a local family which left yesterday by air to take up life north of the Peace River. We do not know how mean its mean is, but report that Prince George, B. C., which is northerly, has an average temperature of 38.5 degrees, and that the last killing frost there comes as late as June 18th, and the first killing frost of winter comes as early as August 22nd.

Investigate The Franking Privilege

The privilege which Members of Parliament enjoy of franking their mail for free postal carriage has been brought once again to the attention of the public by the conduct of Mr. John Blackmore, the Social Credit member for Lethbridge, Alberta; he permitted his secretary, Miss Doris A. Moore, to send out a considerable number of pamphlets which she described as 'anti-Communist', but which other people have called anti-Semitic. It is well understood that an M.P. is supposed to use this privilege only for sending out mail which is related in some way to the business of Parliament and his own constituency. It is equally well understood that a great many MPs use the privilege for mailing anything and everything; one member used to send his laundry home, free, and another case is on record of a member who franked a bag of seed oats all the way to his farm in the West.

Did Mr. Blackmore abuse his privilege? Most certainly he did. He has no right to extend a parliamentary privilege to his secretary, and her comment that the fight against Communism is parliamentary business carries no weight. For the plain fact is that all this free mailing is done at the expense of the people of Canada.

We are quite sure that the people of Canada do not want to place petty and humiliating restrictions on their Members of Parliament. But this attitude can only be maintained if our Members of Parliament have a sufficiently developed sense of honour to use their privileges discreetly, and there is plenty of evidence that this is not the case. Unfortunately there are a great many people everywhere who cannot resist anything that is free, and whose sense of honour is weaker than their urge toward petty graft. For it is nothing less than graft to abuse the franking privilege in order to send out material which cannot, by any reasonable stretch, be considered the proper business of the country.

The case of Mr. Blackmore and his secretary is to be the subject of an investigation, and properly so. We wish that the investigation were extended to include the whole business of the franking privilege, for it seems to be getting out of hand. Members of Parliament who would be ashamed to steal stamps from somebody's till, or from a pocketbook which they found in a coat in a cloakroom, think little of stealing from every citizen by means of the franking privilege. Privileges are granted to people who are supposed to know how to use them; if they prove that they lack this knowledge, the privilege must be curtailed. As the Post Office is one of the governmental departments which loses money, it seems foolish to extend its service, without check of any kind, to a large group of people, some of whom abuse it without shame.

NOTES AND COMMENT

A doctor says that a child's bite is worse than that of a dog. And all kinds of trouble if you muzzle your child, too.

The Montreal Star wants to know what will happen if there should really prove to be such things as flying saucers? That's easy; we'll all wag our heads sagely, and pretend that nobody except a few simpletons ever really doubted it.

Finnish – A World Tongue?

By RICHARD D. LEWIS in Finlandia Pictorial

HAS THE TIME arrived for Finnish to take its place as a world language?

It is quite obvious that it is difficult to answer such a question with any convincing degree of certainty. At the moment there seem to be several factors hindering such a development. Firstly, it is spoken by only 0.06 per cent of the world's population; secondly, it cannot be learned in ten easy lessons; thirdly, there are still some Finns who can't understand it.

Furthermore, support for its use in international affairs is rather difficult to procure outside Finland's borders, since the only related languages are Hungarian, Estonian, and a few obscure dialects spoken in the middle of Siberia. Hungarians and Finns understood each other just as well as do Eskimos and Zulus, and Estonia never did wield great linguistic influence, while nobody has heard about the little brothers in Siberia for a long, long time.

IF its progress has been a little slow, however, Finns point out quite rightly that as a world language Finnish has the following advantages: —

1. It is essentially a logical language. The rules are absolutely rigid and, apart from exceptions, hold fast on all occasions.

2. It is a euphonious tongue, in other words it pleases the ear. This is by virtue of its abundance of vowels, which eliminates ugly, consonantal conglomerations. It was recently proposed to export a few vowels to Czechoslovakia, where they are getting rather short of them, and import a few Czech consonants in their place, but negotiations broke down at an early stage. The Finns decided they wanted nothing to do with a language which called ice-cream 'zmrzlina,' while the Czechs were equally distrustful of a language which called it 'jaateloa.'

3. It is a concise language. One Finnish word may express several words in English. Why waste time and energy saying, the secreterial department of the committee dealing with the negotiations for the cessation of hostilities, when you can use a simple little word like 'aseleponeuvottelutoimikunnan sihteeristo.'

(Ed. Note: We know it says this is just one word, but we couldn't get Oscar the linotype operator to do it that way. He insists that it really is two words, no matter what the author says.)

4. Learning Finnish inspires confidence in your own abilities. If you can learn Finnish you can learn anything.

5. It has bigger and better swear-words than any other language.

6. It is a rich language, in so far as one sentence may possess unlimited shades of meaning. In other words, you may say one thing and mean another. You may even mean the opposite. This device is especially useful for politicians, lawyers, witnesses, mother-in-law, doctors, accountants, fortune-tellers, commercial travellers, taxi-drivers and philosophers.

IN THE LIGHT of the facts, it will be readily agreed that the establishment of Finnish as a universal tongue would be nothing short of a blessing for humanity in general. The problem with which we are confronted, then, is that of inducing the remaining 99.94 per cent of the world's population to learn Finnish. This can only be done by drastically simplifying Finnish grammar as it appears in present-day grammar-books, and presenting to the student some system of far less fearsome aspect. This should be a combination of broad rules giving a concise but penetrating survey of the language and general hints showing all the short cuts to early success. In this respect we have resolved to give the world the benefits of our own experiences with the language, and after months of intensive (at times even desperate) research have evolved the following method of attack upon what has hitherto proved to be one of the world's most formidable linguistic hurdles:

THE EASY WAY TO FINNISH

or

Finnish in 90 years without a teacher.

Nouns and their Cases.

This is a fascinating subject. While Latin and German experiment with a paltry five or six cases, the Finns show how cute they are by nonchalantly reeling off fifteen of them. Of course, for born Finns this is not as difficult as it sounds. Let us suppose that a new-born child speaks only in the nominative till the age of one, then in the nominative and accusative till he is two, bringing in the genitive in the third year, and so on. By the time he is fifteen he knows all the cases. A foreigner, beginning to learn Finnish at say, twenty-five and using the same system has a good chance of being fairly proficient in case-usage at the age of forty, although we must remember that he still has it all to do in the plural. He should have managed this, however, by the time he is fifty-five, and if he does not take more than six years over the pronouns, a man in good health might live to master at least twelve adjectives.

REMEMBER—Confidence is the key to success. Never hesitate. When about to use a noun, you should reflect rapidly along the following lines: —

(I) What is the noun in Finnish?

(II) Singular or plural?

(III) Which gender? (N.B. This can be quickly answered, as there is no gender in Finnish.)

(IV) Which case? — Nominative, accusative, genitive, essive, partitive, translative, inessive, elative, illative, adessive, ablative, allative, abessive, comitative or instructive?

(V) Is it possible to avoid using it?

HAVING DEALT with these considerations in the proverbial fraction of a second, you then inhale deeply and articulate the first half of the noun in stentorian tones which gradually diminish to a hoarse whisper as the case-ending is pronounced. This method of demonstrating your capacities in case-usage can be recommended as quite safe, since, although you cannot prove that you were right, no Finn or anybody else can prove that you were wrong. Above all, look confident.

BASICALLY, the Finnish and English systems offer few indications of similarity at first. For example:

yksi — one kaksi — two kolme — three nelja — four viisi — five kuusi — six seitseman — seven kahdeksan — eight yhdeksan — nine kymmenen — ten

Closer examination, however, reveals the following facts which might be of considerable help to the learner:—

(a) 'kolme' and 'three' each have five letters.

(b) 'viisi' and 'five' are both constructed around the letter 'v'.

(c) 'seitseman' and 'seven' obviously are derived from a common origin (apparently a word beginning with 's').

Further hints on learning numbers.

(1) Forget the English numbers entirely. Then you will have to learn the Finnish ones in order to tell the time. If such a step causes difficulties when you later try to speak English, you can easily employ a Finnish-English dictionary, or, in the case of number up to twenty, your fingers and toes.

(2) Do not waste time learning numbers over twenty million. You are never likely to have that much money, even in Finnmarks.

Months and Days.

Say 'first days,' 'third day,' 'second month,' 'next to last month,' etc. This saves you two years learning the names and makes the person you are talking to do all the work.

The Direct Object.

Most Finnish grammars are particularly lucid about this. They read something like this: In Finnish the Direct Object, universally known as the accusative, may be in the nominative, genitive or partitive. For purposes of clarity, the nominative and genitive will be called accusative. There also exists a genuine accusative which is not called anything at all.

Considerable care is thus required when interpreting grammatical terms. If you see the word 'accusative' it may mean nominative or genitive but never accusative; the term 'nominative' might mean accusative or possibly the real nominative; 'genitive' might mean accusative or just plain genitive while the partitive is always called the partitive although it may really be the accusative.

Obviously, the two salient points arising from this analysis are:—

(I) You may call anything 'accusative' if you think it is something else. If you see a real accusative, keep your mouth shut.

(II) It is dangerous to accuse anybody of anything.

Verbs.

The best advice is: Don't use verbs at all. Occasionally you may find it rather difficult to converse at any length without using verbs, but assiduous practice in this art will make you adept. (N.B. We reduced our errors by 20 per cent when we hit upon the notion of leaving out verbs. You may cut down another 15 per cent by omitting all adjectives, adverbs and pronouns, although conversation tends to fall rather flat unless you are clever with your hands.)

Pronunciation.

A few difficult sounds: — aa — as 'a' in 'expatiatory' but longer and more vehement. Mouth open as much as possible. Ears well back.

yo — be very careful with this.

yi — never as in 'Hi-yi-yippi-yippi-yi.'

h — clear your throat lustily. That's it.

uu — as the Arabic.

b, c, f, g, q, w, x, z, — do not exist in Finnish. Pronounce very quietly.

CAUGHT

A man caught a boy in his garden stealing apples and handed him over to the police. As it was the boy's first offence, the magistrate let him off, but told him never to yield to such temptation again, adding: "You should have flown from the evil one."

"I tried to sir," replied the boy, "but he caught me before I could get through the hole in the hedge."

An American View: OUR CHANGING WORLD

The Too Common Man

(BRANTFORD EXPOSITOR)

SOME keen observers of the Canadian scene protest from time to time that our educational system is geared to turn out only average students, that the emphasis in almost every field is on what will suit the largest number. From this they see a decline into mediocrity. They point to the rarity of "characters" who dare to be different and who refuse to pattern their thoughts or conduct on the accepted lowest common denominator.

It is distressingly true in this century of the common man that commonness or averageness is thought by many people to be the truest expression of democracy. Nowhere is this belief more firmly held than in the United States where every Jack sincerely believes that he is as good as his master, if not better. It is part of the American attachment to the idea of democracy as Americans understand that word.

One American who has recently had this brought home to him in unpleasant fashion is the principal of a large Philadelphia high school. All he did was to propose a special program of studies for outstanding pupils so that their progress should not be reduced to the more humdrum pace of their less gifted fellows.

In the resultant storm the favorite adjective hurled against his plan was "undemocratic." He had dared to state the obvious truth that children differ in ability, and for his courage he was condemned by parents who, if they had been able to keep their pride and emotions out of the discussion, would have had to admit the soundness of the plan.

So another great blow for the cause of mediocrity was struck, and in the name of democracy. But not before some pretty plain speaking had been heard from the other side. One of the strongest supporters of the high school principal was Seymour St. John, a distinguished U.S. educator. He made a valiant, if vain, plea for "the Fifth Freedom—the freedom to be one's best." As he observed, without effective reply as far as can be discovered, "Michelangelo did not learn to paint by spending his time doodling, nor was Mozart an accomplished pianist at the age of eight as a result of spending his days in front of a television set."

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And now, Israel, what doth the Lord thy God require thee but to fear the Lord my God, to walk in all his ways, and to love him, and to serve the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul, to keep the commandments of the Lord, and his statutes, which I command thee this day for thy good? (Deut. 10: 12, 13.)

When thou art come into the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee, thou shalt not learn to do after the abominations of those nations.

These shall not be found among you any one that maketh his son or his daughter to pass through the fire, or that useth divination, or an observer of times, or an enchanter, or a witch, or a charmer, or a consulter with familiar spirits, or a wizard, or a necromancer. For all that do these things are an abomination unto the Lord: and because of these abominations the Lord thy God doth drive them out from before thee. (Deut. 18:9-12.)

God hath spoken once; twice have I heard this; that power belongeth unto God. (Ps. 62:11.)

Now I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment. (I Cor. 1:10.)

QUESTION ABOUT BEGONIAS

SIR: Could some kind reader tell me what is causing my double fibrous-rooted begonia to drop its buds and fully developed flowers. Even moving the pot will cause them to drop. I have never had any trouble with the single-flowered ones.

Thanking you, I am,

Making Windsor Bigger

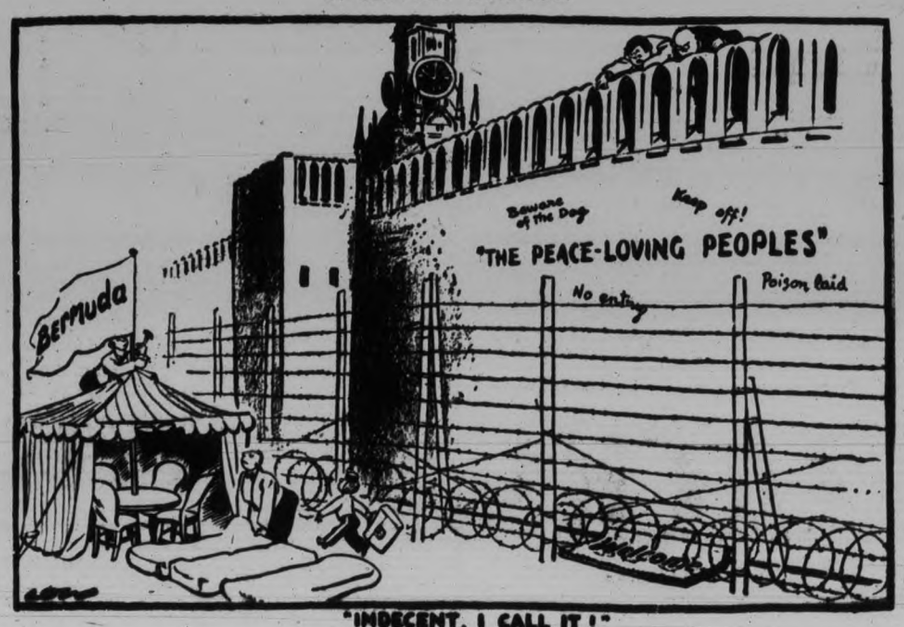
(Windsor Star)

Windsor's place as one of the greatest of Canadian industrial cities, and as the major automotive centre of the Commonwealth, is assured by the news announcement of the Chrysler Corporation of Canada, Limited. This is exactly what it means.

President E. C. Row's statement that another $21,000,000 is to be spent here by the Chrysler Corporation is added to the $20,000,000 project previously announced and now underway. With other earlier expenditures, Chrysler is spending a total of $54,000,000, a truly stupendous amount, to give it production facilities equal to the needs of the future.

The prior $20,000,000 announcement concerned mainly automotive body facilities. The new one involves a huge new engine plant. Thus all the major activities of the corporation will continue to be centered in Windsor.

Costly Glass of Water



(Manchester Guardian)

How many people know that Sir Winston Churchill once drank the most expensive glass of water in the world?

When he addressed the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1949 it was the biggest wireless "hookup" for a long time. Near the end of his speech Sir Winston took a drink of water. He is a deliberate in water-drinking as in other things and the end of his speech was delayed by almost a minute.

The broadcasting company, rather than cut him off, let him overrun his time, cancelling the "commercial" due to follow him. To compensate the advertiser and the cast of the commercial show they had to pay £7,500.

Ile d' Orleans Observes Many Ancient Customs Still

By BERTRAND THIBAULT

ST. FRANCIS, ILE d'ORLEANS, Que. (CP)—Every day in the half-light of dawn, a heavy-set man walks with ambling step, prayer book under one arm, to the little church of St. Francois.

He is Xavier Allaire, the 69-year-old "maitre-chantre" of the parish and former mayor who sings the praises of the Lord at the early-morning mass. He receives 75 cents a day.

He is also chief chronicler of folk lore about St. Francois parish, the most tradition-minded on the Ile d'Orleans five miles south of Quebec, where honeymoon trips are unknown, where an old municipal law enforces fire regulations, and wine is made from centuries-old recipes.

SINGS DAILY MASS — Xavier Allaire, 69-year-old "maitre chantre" of St. Francois parish on the Ile d'Orleans, and a former mayor, sings at high mass every day at the parish church. He also is chief chronicler of folk lore about the parish on the island, only a few miles from Quebec City, but which retains customs which date back to the 17th century. He receives 75 cents a day—increased recently from 50 cents—for his daily singing.

CALL TO WORK

Ringing of the Angelus still signals the start of the day's activities, including the walk of Mr. Allaire, for the islanders who go into the fields to work and to the beaches to place their traps for eel fishing, while the children give a final glance to the day's catechism lesson.

Much of their life centres, in the tradition of Quebec, around the parish church, built in 1734, and the Rev. Antonio Parent, parish priest since 1946.

The church was converted temporarily into a military hospital by General Wolfe in 1759 during the siege of Quebec.

On week-days during the winter, Mr. Allaire sings in the sacristy where mass is celebrated to save fuel. On Sundays, the faithful are insulated against the cold by a stove pipe which meanders around the church's interior, sharing the heat of a large wood-stove which squats in front of the choir loft.

From the choir, Mr. Allaire peers from under his thick, greying eyebrows and chants in a deep voice the "Kyrie Eleison" and "Gloria" of the Gregorian mass. Daily high masses are not unusual in the province of Quebec.

For Mr. Allaire to be "maitre-chantre" of St. Francois now is a tradition: His father and grandfather both held the position.

LIVING COSTS UP

But even his job has its problems, one of which—inflation—was recognized recently.

"Since last March I have received 75 cents a mass for singing," Mr. Allaire said. "Before that I received 50 cents and when there were two of us singing we split the money."

For the most part his former job as mayor affected his singing little. However, after some of the stormier council meetings, he found that "sometimes at requiem masses I would emphasize somewhat the 'Dies Irae' (Day of Wrath)."

Nor is his singing confined solely to the liturgical. The oldtime "chanteur" is in constant demand for parties and weddings.

The latter are always followed by a day of feasting on pig's knuckle stew, "tourtieres"—a pork meat-pie—and home-made wine. Favorite song at these affairs is "Beaudoin's Lament," which starts

"Oh Christian people, hear this lament
Of an honest man so recently wed,
On the eve of his marriage, a Sunday fine,
He went to high mass to take the Lord's bread."

ENDED IN TRAGEDY

A folk-song, it tells of the marriage in 1787 of Louis Beaudoin, a young St. Francois farmer, to Agnes Pare, who lived at Beaupre opposite the St. Lawrence river from the Ile d'Orleans.

After a day of celebration in the bride's town, the young couple and 13 of their relatives and friends boarded a boat for St. Francois. A gust of wind overturned the boat and, of the 15 persons aboard, 13 were drowned, including the bridal couple.

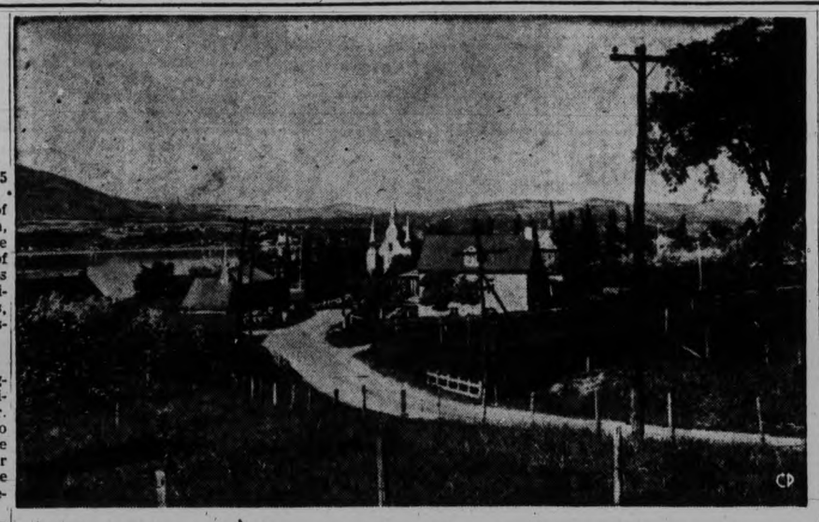
The tragic end of the short voyage perhaps indicates why the inhabitants of St. Francois to this day shy away from honeymoon trips.

The 550 parishioners of St. Francois, comprising 80 families, pay for the support of Father Parent with a tithe—a custom started in 1633 by Msgr. Montmorency de Laval, the first bishop of New France—in strawberries and produce or the equivalent in money.

Potatoes and grain also serve as a tithe, but recent recognition of the succulence of the island's berries have made these the favored contribution towards the priest's living expenses.

ISLE OF BACCHUS

Wild grapes, too, grow in abundance as they have since the discovery of the island. Jacques Cartier, who visited the Ile d'Orleans in 1535, called it the Isle of Bacchus after the Greek god of wine.



The villagers of St. Francois make a wine from the red, pear-shaped fruit of the service tree (mountain ash). Fermented slowly it acquires the taste of cognac. Each family stocks a small amount for special occasions. It may also be used to "floor" an opponent in a drinking bout, since it is rumored that the wine's potency is devastating.

The 27-square-mile parish of St. Francois, of which Mr. Allaire was mayor from 1942 to 1916, has no water system. Each home has a well.

FIRE REGULATIONS

It probably was this fact which brought town authorities to adopt the law long ago to protect residents against fire. All property-owners are obliged to give two 30-foot lengths of wood, eight inches square, and two days' work whenever one of their co-parishioners is burned out.

To shirk this duty is to court ostracism of sorts. Names of all property-owners are on file at the Town Hall and those who fail to co-operate have their names stricken from the list. Thereafter no one may help these persons if fire strikes their homes.

OLD WORLD CHARM — The Ile d'Orleans, a few miles from Quebec City, retains much of its Old World simplicity and charm. This is a view of Ste. Famille, whose 292 years make it the oldest parish on the 70-square-mile island. Family wealth here is passed from father to son and while New World civilization is making some inroads, old customs still are retained. This is a Quebec government photo.

Queen Half Hour In Plane's Cockpit

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP) — Queen Elizabeth spent a half hour in the cockpit of the huge Stratocruiser that carried her and her husband from London on the first lap of a globe-circling royal tour. The plane arrived here at 8:55 a.m. EST.

The Queen entered the cockpit after the plane left Gander, Nfld., following a refuelling stop.

The Duke of Edinburgh spent longer periods in the cockpit but did not take over the controls.

Capt. A. G. Loraine, pilot of the royal plane, said the flight was smooth all the way. The plane travelled at about 18,000 feet.

Laniel Asks Truce Offer

PARIS (Reuters) — Premier Joseph Laniel Tuesday invited the Communist-led rebels in Indo-China to offer "reasonable propositions" for an armistice.

He issued the invitation during a major foreign policy address to the National Assembly in the closing stages of a debate on France's attitude toward the European Defence army.

Laniel said his government is not seeking "unconditional capitulation" of the Vietminh forces which have been fighting French troops in Indo-China for the last seven years.

"We should be ready tomorrow, in agreement with the associated states (Cambodia, Laos and Viet Nam) to examine reasonable propositions for cease-fire should they be transmitted to us by the adversary," he said.

Laniel said he will put forward his government's attitude on Indo-China at the Bermuda Big Three meeting next month.

Drop Two Charges Against Bob Kesten

TORONTO (CP)—Two charges of theft against Bob Kesten, Toronto radio and television personality, were withdrawn today. Some $1,136 was involved in the charges.

Assistant crown attorney H. H. Bull said the charges were withdrawn because Kesten had made restitution and the persons involved failed to appear to give evidence.

Kesten was charged with taking two separate amounts, totalling $1,136, from a Chicago advertising agency while he was their Canadian representative.

Kesten was not available when the charges were laid and warrants were issued for his arrest. Later he returned from a trip to England and gave himself up to police.

Ross Dobbin Bought Stockings For MP

CHATHAM (CP)—A Canadian member of Parliament wore a London chambermaid's silk stockings at the Coronation in Westminster Abbey last June, the president of the Engineering Institute of Canada said Monday night.

Ross Dobbin told the Kent County Engineering Society that on Coronation morning a government member telephoned his London hotel room to ask for the loan of black silk stockings, required dress for the abbey gathering.

Mr. Dobbin, a bachelor, had none himself. But he found a hotel chambermaid wearing a pair. He bought them from her and delivered them.

The government member's name was not disclosed.

Expect 5,000,000 People Watch Or Listen To Game

By JIM BASTABLE

TORONTO (CP) — Nearly one-third of Canada's population of nearly 15,000,000 will watch or listen to the Grey Cup game Saturday. Newspaper coverage possibly will run into more than 200,000 words.

For one Grey Cup day—even in the Maritimes which in the last few years has begun to take an interest in Upper Canada's football madness—people remain glued to their radio and television sets.

About 27,000 lucky fans will be in Varsity Stadium itself Saturday to see Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Winnipeg Blue Bombers kick off at 1 p.m. in the country's greatest grid classic.

More than 80 Canadian and American sports writers will overflow the stadium's press box. The Canadian Press, Canada's co-operative news - gathering agency, will have a six-man team covering the game.

Thousands of Canadian servicemen in England and Germany will listen to play-by-play descriptions of the game by short-wave radio. Recordings of the broadcast will be flown to the Far East.

FIVE TV OUTLETS

A potential audience of 5,500,000 will receive on-the-spot broadcasts from 70 radio stations covering all provinces except Newfoundland. The CBC-TV network will link Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal.

A kinescope of the televised spectacle will be rushed to CFPL London, Ont., which formally opens its station Saturday, and to CKSO, Sudbury, which has had television for only a few weeks.

The radio coverage will be on the largest network ever to carry a Canadian sports event. Sixty-four stations carried last year's Grey Cup.

Last year an audience of between 3,000,000 and 3,500,000 listened in. This year 2,782,000 radios —serving an estimated 4,000,000 persons—will be in the range.

In the television field there are about 2,175,000 viewers within range of the Toronto-Ottawa-Montreal network.

Three Considered To Coach Royals

BROOKLYN (CP) — A spokesman for Brooklyn Dodgers said that one of last year's three Dodger coaches is under serious consideration to succeed Wally Alston as manager of Montreal Royals, the Dodgers' International League farm club.

"Guess if you want to," the spokesman said, "but don't guess Lavagetto because you'd be wrong."

Earlier Tuesday, the New York World — Telegram said it had learned that Harry (Cookie) Lavagetto had been chosen to take over at Montreal when Alston was promoted to manage the Dodgers.

All three were given their release, to enable Alston to make his own choice of a coaching staff. Dodger president Walter O'Malley said any of the coaches whom Alston does not wish to retain will be given other jobs in the Brooklyn organization.

In the consolation event, R. A. Murphy, who skipped his Galt rink to a 9-8 victory over H. McGee of Toronto, and W. H Meyer, also of Galt, advanced to the finals in afternoon play. Meyer's rink defeated N. P. Bond's St. Catharines rink 9-3.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Johnny Mitchell, chief scout for Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, dropped us a few lines the other day. We had asked to be informed how four local lads shaped up at the Wings' tryout camp in Hamilton this fall. Seems they all showed up well but lacked experience, which is not surprising in view of their age and short time in organized hockey. They're playing OHA junior "B" here now under Red Creighton, who also scouts this district for the Detroit club. Incidentally, Port Perry and junior Petes tangle here his eve in schedule play, the locals having won 5-3 in Port Perry their last meeting. Peterborough goes to Lindsay Saturday.

* * * * * *

Returning to Mitchell, who says he will be over here sometime this winter, he wrote in part: "Larry Ball gave everything he had but we were fortunate in having seven outstanding defencemen. Bob Gardner went good as a forward, and so did Jack Kane and Bud McDougall. In fact, Kane and McDougall attended school in Hamilton for several weeks. We bought books for them and they did not loose any schooling. When we returned them to Peterborough, we had them take their school books with them. They just lacked a little in experience but we thought perhaps if they had another season at home, we would bring them back to our camp next year. We were happy with their showing." That sounds encouraging for the boys.

* * * * * *

This Trio Still Tops

Some of the Civic railbirds remarked after Monday's workout of oldtimers: "That Kingdon-Heal-Tompkins' line is good enough to play senior "'B" yet!" Yeah, Bun, Honey and Art were sure dangling in the drill, as were many other former local puck aces. They were prepping for the Oldtimers vs. Junior Petes' exhibition at eight p.m. this Thursday at Civic as part of the PMHA booster night program, which includes firemen vs. police at broomball, draws, etc. Besides this trio, Dick Ouimet hopes to have such oldtimers out as Red Creighton, Bob Thorpe, Ross Nicholls, the Vitarellis, Ed Foley, Jim Ellis, Bert McLeod, Dit Clapper, Johnny Godfrey, Jack Gardner, Don Coughlin, Mucker Legros, Bob McCabe, Pat Calladine, Les Burton, the Joplings, Joe Blewett, Doug Mortimer, Archie Weir and several more.

* * * * * *

A lot of former puck talent there, eh? Some of them can still step right lively on the ice. We might add some names which come readily to mind of chaps who should get into this game just for the fun of it. There's Kenny Kane, Scotty Maudsley, Gamey Jarvis, Ira Dundas Jack and Ted Lebarr, Jim Gillespie, Charlie Clarke, Jerry Coughlin, Bill Cripps, Ragnar Johnson, and quite a few more. No doubt all these would be welcomed if they'd don skates and give it a whirl for a few minutes in this interesting hockey exhibition in aid of the minors. Seeing all these fellows out there again should bring back happy hockey memories to many veteran fans.

* * * * * *

Could Use This Pair

Some talk going around that the senior "B" Petes are hoping to get the names of Bob Thorpe and Don Bark on the dotted line shortly as the race grows hotter. Bob is a former AHL-er (and lacrosse coach here in the summers) while Don is reported to have led THL scorers a few season back ere coming here to open a law office. He did Orfuns' kicking the past grid season. Petes play Orillia Pontiacs here on Friday and that won't be a soft touch, either, as the bolstered Pontiacs whipped Belleville 8-3 on Quinte ice last Saturday eve. Oshawa sets the pace with 14 points, Kingston have 10, Petes five, Belleville four and Orillia three. Last scoring list had Don Murray of K's atop with 18 points. Gus Leonard was leading Petes with nine.

* * * * * *

Our congrats to Lakeshore Flyers of Montreal on capturing the Canadian intermediate "A" football title. They downed Fort William Redskins 23-8 before 3,500 Montreal fans on Saturday, the Redskins having ousted St. Boniface of Winnipeg for the western crown while Montreal erased Peterborough in the eastern final. The fact that Flyers beat Fort William by a heftier count than they took Orfun's speaks well for the Kotowski crew and also shows the power of the Montreal grid machine. Starry back Wilf O'Hagen, a large thorn in Orfuns' sides the previous week, romped to two touchdowns against the westerners. Flyers' line shone again in a strong ground attack.

Lindsay Takes Win

LINDSAY (ENS)—Goalie Clare O'Connell returned to the nets Tuesday night and led the Lindsay Muskies to a 7-0 win over the Cobourg Comets. The win lifted the Muskies back into a tie with Lakefield and Port Hope at the top of the Lakeshore League standings.

Stew Hicks led the offense for the winners with goal and two assists. Muskies went ahead 4-0 in the first as Cobourg experienced a loss of support and some bad breaks. Goals were by Weddup, O'Donoghue, Parker and Hennessy. Somerville held the Muskies out in the second but they came back with three in the final period by Hicks, Corley and Sinclair. The goalie worked hardest for his shutout in the final period, turning aside a determined offensive led by Reeves, Casey, Seagram, Campbell and Stevenson.

Dodger Fans Unhappy At Alston Choice

By ED SIMON

NEW YORK (CP) — In a Flatbush bar a long-time Brooklyn Dodger fan digested the news.

"Dis guy is going to manage the Dodguhs?" He slammed a fish against his forehead.

"Who is Alston?"

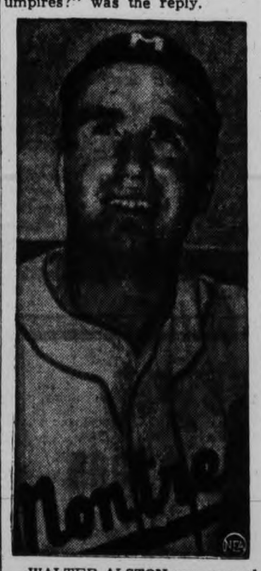
Wally Alston, 42-year-old manager of Montreal Royals, the Dodgers' pennant - winning International League farm club, was picked to succeed Chuck Dressen in the job Brooklyn regards as on an approximate par with the presidency of the United States. And nobody had every heard of him.

QUICK TO FILL GAP

The newspapers were quick to fill the gap. Even when he piloted the Royals to a little world series victory Alston never saw himself spread around the front pages with a fraction of the thoroughness that marked his succession to the Dodger post.

The New York Times, confronted with a day full of pregnant political developments, saw fit to announce his appointment on the front page and bade him welcome in its editorial columns.

The Herald Tribune splashed the story, complete with grinning photograph, in the prominence of the top left corner. Other papers, more accustomed to playing up sports coverage, featured the story accordingly.



MOST KIND

The World-Telegram struck an ignominious note. It reproduced the box score of the game in which first-baseman Alston made his only major league appearance. Playing for St. Louis Cardinals in 1936, he went in for two innings, struck out in his only turn at bat, made one put-out and committed one error.

Other writers were kinder.

Reporters found Alston a quiet, reserved type, in marked contrast to the effervescent Dressen. But there are indications that he'll get along in Brooklyn. Someone asked him what he thinks of umpires.

"What does anybody think of umpires?" was the reply.

WALTER ALSTON was named to manage the 1954 Brooklyn Dodgers Tuesday succeeding Charlie Dressen who resigned after the 1953 world series. Alston is well-known in Canada for his years with the Montreal Royals who have captured the International League pennant twice since he took over there.

REDHEAD ON TOP—George (Red) Sullivan has climbed to the top of the scoring race in the American Hockey League with Hershey, an eight-point scoring splurge during the past week giving him nine goals and 19 assists for 28 points in 20 games played. The Peterborough puckchaser is making a determined bid to return to NHL company with Boston Bruins.

Jacobs Ready To Lift A Few Scalps

WINNIPEG (CP)—A few scalps may be lifted in Toronto Saturday if Jack Jacobs has his way.

The tall Indian from Oklahoma is going back to the Grey Cup final with a personal grudge when Winnipeg Blue Bombers take on the eastern champion Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

It's not against the Tiger-Cats, but against everybody who dubbed him "the goat" in the 1950 "mud-bowl" when Bombers took a 13-0 shellacking from Toronto Argonauts.

Jacobs has two sore sports: The 1950 Grey Cup and the '52 western finals.

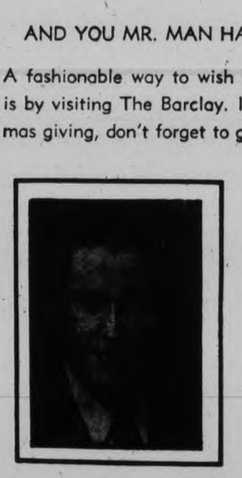
"A lot of people blamed me for last year's loss in the western finals.

HE'S SHOWN THEM

"They said I've never come through in the clutch," said Jacobs, taking off for the east.

"I think our win in the final game against the Eskimos this year takes care of that."

Few will disagree, for he fired two long touchdown passes as Winnipeg wiped out an 18-6 third-quarter deficit and went on to win 30-24.



Jake, as he is known to his teammates, now is out to prove to easterners in particular that he has what it takes in the Grey Cup.

Bruins And Rangers Meet "Walking Wounded" Will See Limited Action

By The Canadian Press

The walking wounded will be in action tonight as Boston Bruins face New York Rangers in their third meeting of the National Hockey League season. The fifth-place Rangers will ice a full team for the first game of a home-and-home series, but three players are expected to see limited action. Rookie defenceman Bob Chrystal, out for 10 days with a bruised kidney, started skating Tuesday. Centre Paul Ronty, with a 10-stitch cut over the eye and an injured thumb, probably will be spelled off by rookie Camile Henry who, incidentally, has a bruised heel.

The fourth-place Bruins are still without their defenceman Bill Chevrefils who suffered broken legs in Toronto Nov. 14.

In their last twp meetings the two teams split victories, both on their respective home ice.

BUSY THURSDAY

All six teams in the league see action Thursday night. Boston and New York switch to Boston, Toronto plays Detroit and Montreal is at Chicago.

The Leafs will be using Howie Meeker in place of the injured George Armstrong again. Meeker was called out of semi-retirement (he's coaching Stratford Indians of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series this season) last weekend and scored a goal in Chicago Sunday.

Hawks Tripped By Greenshirts In 4-2 Tussle

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If Galt Black Hawks could get rid of Kitchener - Waterloo Greenshirts they would undoubtedly have little trouble giving St. Catharines TeePees a real battle for first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A race.

While the TeePees were drawing farther away from the rest of the pack by defeating Quebec Citadelles 6-2 in Quebec Tuesday night the Hawks lost their second meeting with the Greenshirts 4-2 in Kitchener. The Hawks have not had as much trouble with any other team. They have dropped two to St. Michael's College of Toronto but have also gained a tie with the Collegians. In their only meeting with Hamilton Tigers, the Hawks also lost.

On the other hand Kitchener has the most trouble with the league-leading TeePees who have defeated them twice. The Greenshirts have also lost a pair to the last-place Citadelles but have beaten the Quebec entry once.

CULLEN LEADS WAY

Meanwhile St. Catharines showed that while they have forward Brian Cullen they aren't likely to be displaced from the top rung.

Cullen, the league's top scorer increased his goal output to 26 by clocking twice against the Citadelles.

Claude Boileau, Grieg Hicks, Garry Collins and Buddy Horne were the Kitchener marksmen. Ron Halstead and Hugh Lalonde tallied for the Hawks.

St. Michael's have a chance to grab third place from Kitchener tonight when they meet the Flyers in Barrie while Toronto Marlboros are at Hamilton.

Parade Plans For Cup Game

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Winnipeg rugby football club ran out of Grey Cup tickets Tuesday night as one of the biggest western invasions in Canadian football history began mustering to move east for the Saturday final in Toronto.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers flew east Tuesday to complete training for the clash with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, and Karl Slocomb, club president, estimated that at least 2,500 fans would follow them.

Getting up steam after Toronto criticism of Winnipeg's modest parade plans, a Winnipeg official said he thought a Toronto spokesman "shot off" prematurely.

PARADE PLANS DEVELOPING

Evan McCormick, managing director of the Winnipeg Chamber of Commerce, said Winnipeg's plans still are developing.

"After all, we've only had since Saturday," he said. "In other years there have been two weeks between the western final and the Grey Cup game.

"I think we'll have a fairly good show."

Heading six floats already lined up will be the Chamber of Commerce display featuring a map of Manitoba and "Winnipeg, distribution centre for the West." An oil company float will feature three miniature exhibition trains and thousands of cardboard helmets for the parade crowd.

The 21-man police pipe band will travel to Toronto Thursday night on one of five special trains being run this week.

Cullen Top Scorer In Junior League

TORONTO (CP)—Brian Cullen, flying high for St. Catharines TeePees, overtook Bob Attersley for the individual scoring leadership of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, official figures including last Sunday's games show.

Cullen has bagged 24 goals and 22 assists for 46 points—two more than Attersley of Guelph Biltmores. Bill McCreary of the Biltmores is third with 34 points.

HATCHET OUT EARLY

BROOKLYN (AP) — The name of the new Brooklyn Dodgers manager, Walter Alston, is pronounced "all-stun."

One Dodger fan said it will be pronounced "all-done" unless the Brooks win the pennant and beat the Yankees in the '54 world series.

Says Alouettes Not For Sale

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouette officials said Tuesday night the local Big Four football club is "definitely not for sale."

The statement followed rumors there would be a change in the club's ownership.

In a statement, the four principal stock holders of the Als—Roy Robertson, Charlie Stone, Fred Skelcher and Lew Hayman—said: "We are very happy with conditions as they presently exist. In view of the tremendous interest in football shown by the Montreal fans, it was felt that this statement would settle once and for all, all of these unfounded rumors."

DE MARCO BOWS OUT

BROOKLYN (AP) — Veteran Freddie (Babe) Herman of Los Angeles will sub for Paddy de Marco against Brian Kelly of Niagara Falls, Ont. in a lightweight 10-rounder at Eastern Parkway Arena Monday night.

De Marco withdrew from the bout because of the death of his manager, Jimmy Dixon, Saturday. The funeral is today.

De Marco, who had asked for a week's postponement, will meet a "suitable opponent" instead Dec. 7.

French Remove Iron Chains From Condemned Men

PARIS (Reuters)—French prisoners sentenced to have their heads cut off by the guillotine will no longer be shackled in their cells at night.

The iron chains which bound the condemned men's wrists and ankles have been abolished for "humanitarian reasons," the justice ministry has announced.

Twenty-six prisoners are at present awaiting death in French jails. Some have been there for two or three years. Some have been shackled during the day as well as at night.

The government actions arises at least partly from a strong movement for penal reform in France. The movement reached a peak recently with a motion picture entitled "We Are all Killers."

The film dealt with four men condemned to death, their long wait under continual electric light, and finally the sudden arrival of the executioners, padding silently down the corridors to seize their victim who knew not when he was to die.

The guillotine itself, France's standard means of execution since 1792, was described recently by Prof. Rene Piedlievre as an instrument of "murderous vivisection" which leaves the hearts of its victims still beating after decapitation.

"HUMANITARIAN" METHOD

The guillotine was introduced in France as a humanitarian method to provide a swift and easy death. Its use was first suggested in modern times during the revolutionary period.

Some say it was first used by the Persians. At any rate, it was in use in England and Scotland and much of continental Europe during the Middle Ages.

In 13th-century Italy, nobles had the privilege of being executed by a similar device. In Edinburgh, a "Maiden," as it was known, is still on display at a museum.

ALLEYS REPAIRED

Approaches to the four bowling alleys at the YMCA have been re-conditioned. The floor has been sanded and treated to provide the necessary slipperiness, and bowling averages are expected to go up.

ROLLING POLICE STATION — Police officers in Emmen, Holland, are proud of their mobile police station which has been put into service after months of research. Atop the vehicle is a revolving mast equipped with a powerful beam which can be used at the scene of an accident. When the van wants to halt another vehicle it overtakes it and the words "Halt, Police" are illuminated on the van's rear end. Interior fittings include a fitted desk for questioning, a stretcher, first-aid equipment, lifebelt and tools. It will transport nine people.

Canadian Actresses Get 15 Curtain Calls

LONDON (CP) — Fifteen first-night curtain calls were reward enough for Canadian actresses Jane Carling and Carolyn Souter, who donated their services for the first production of Cambridge University's new Musical Comedy Club.

The club is considered unique among British universities and Miss Carling and Miss Souter were the only "outside" actresses.

The club's first performance was "Lady at the Wheel," a musical with an Anglo-American theme based on the Monte Carlo car rally. One of two undergraduate shows staged each year at the Arts Theatre, Cambridge, it got good notices from the Daily Telegraph and other publications.

BRIGHT AND WITTY

The lyrics by Leslie Bricusse, very much in the Noel Coward manner, are extremely bright and occasionally witty, said the review. The critic added: "Carolyn Souter attacked her two comedy numbers with both zest and skill."

Her stage success was something of a surprise for 21-year-old, Toronto-born Miss Souter. She is primarily a set designer and later this year will start work with Murray and Donald Davis as assistant set designer for their new repertory venture at Toronto's Crest Theatre.

The Cambridge Daily News called dark-haired, 19-year-old Jane Carling "Ontario's Navessa Lee." Hamilton-born Jane, known back home as Rose Oslender, was described a soprano "of promise." She studied singing and piano at the Toronto Conservatory of Music, and won awards in both.

It was in Canada earlier this year that Jane and Carolyn got the idea of making their first trip to Britain for the university show. Bricusse, in search of North American "flavor," spent his summer vacation with the Muskoka Straw Hat Players—and wrote some of the lyrics in Canada in his spare time.

WORKED IN HAMILTON

Undergraduate composer Richard Beaumont, who wrote the music for "Lady at the Wheel," went to Canada with Bricusse and got a job writing theatre and film reviews for the Hamilton Spectator. The girls learned about the show and decided it was worth coming to Britain at their own expense to help put it over.

"It seemed a wonderful idea," said Jane. "And we really enjoyed it."

The girls now are seeing London before returning to Canada, possibly early in December.

HOPES FOR OFFER

Jane, however, is hoping that a good British stage offer may arise from the Cambridge show. She'd like to stay awhile and gain experience here.

Beavers Troublesome

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE, Alta. (CP)—Farmers are demanding that something be done about the beavers here. Growing numbers of beavers are said to be causing more damage to roads, grain fields, pastures and hay fields than any other animals in the foothills.

World Is Not Cut And Dried Place Long Period Neither War Or Peace

LONDON—No one did more for the West in showing the way to stand up to Moscow, and the way to put the whole Russian problem into perspective, than the courageous, untiring Mayor of beseiged Berlin, Ernst Reuter. He died, calamitously, just a few weeks ago; but had he lived, he would have seen in the Western reaction to Moscow's reply to the invitation to hold a Foreign Ministers' meeting at Lugano the signs of a new spirit which would have pleased him greatly, writes Edward Crankshaw in the Montreal Star.

For the really important and striking thing is that in effect there has been no reaction at all. At last the West seems to be reaching the state in which, like Reuter in Berlin for so many years, it can move calmly on with its own plans, treating the Kremlin neither submissively nor with blustering provocation, treating the Communist menace like one more unfortunate fact of life.

If the Russians will not join in a meeting about Germany — the United States Secretary of State, Mr. John Foster Dulles, said in effect—then we shall have to have a meeting without them. It sounds very simple; but we have taken a long time to reach that point, and there will doubtless be backslidings and further periods of waiting on the Kremlin's initiative, and then of reacting in anger or fear. But at least it is a beginning.

AN IMPORTANT MAN

I have chosen Mr. Dulles as the hero of this hour because he is a very important man in a very strong nation which likes things to be cut and dried — which likes either war or peace, either crusading fury or disinterest. But the world is not a cut and dried place. We are in for a long period of neither war nor peace.

It is perhaps easier for the British, long used to living in a highly vulnerable position, and fresh from their mistakes over Hitler, than it is for the Americans, to go quietly ahead in a difficult world, surmounting what can be surmounted, avoiding what cannot be surmounted, and spending a great deal of money, as a sort of insurance premium, on arms which everyone hopes will never be used.

Nobody who remembers the nineteen-thirties will ever forget the shameful way in which the statesmen, and the people of England and France—and of the United States—hung on every word of Hitler's; and how, instead of getting on with their own business, they simply waited to see what he was going to do next.

It demoralized the whole generation. And since the war there has been too much of this mood in the Western attitude towards Russia. It has lost us a great deal. And one of Ernst Reuter's favorite jibes was directed at those people who hung on every word in "Pravda," the Russian newspaper, and allowed themselves to be hypnotized by Stalin.

Reuter was less fair in attacking those who saw hidden meanings in obscure Soviet utterances. Certainly it is shameful to be intimidated by the veiled threats of foreign statesmen who are known to have no use for us. But it is not shameful to try to discover what in fact they are saying—provided we do not pay too much attention to it when we find out. And in order to understand what the Kremlin is saying, a cryptographic approach is all too necessary, for the simple reason that the Russians are incapable of explaining themselves straightforwardly.

This drives them to use a sort of totemistic code of significant or symbolic actions—like a tramp's chalk signs—to which no one possesses the key. This is true of all Russian Governments, whether or not they are Communists.

In the past few days there have been a number of such chalk signs. There has been the Lugano refusal itself, with its strangely explicit empasis on non-cooperation; Marshal Voroshilov's speech on the thirty-sixth anniversary of the Revolution, with its comparative brevity, its lack of bluster, its cold re-statement of the non-co-operation thesis, of the Lugano refusal, and its strong emphasis on internal betterment; there were the peculiarities of the Red Square demonstration next day, in which the military side was drastically curtailed to make way for a vast demonstration of civilian workers marching towards a better life: and, finally, there was Mr. Molotov's get-together with the British, French and United States ambassadors the next evening.

The important thing about these signs when they are viewed collectively and seen against the background of the new three-year plan to raise the Soviet standard of living, is that they indicate that the new Western attitude, already projected by Sir Winston Churchill, and confirmed by Mr. Dulles, is not only respectable and admirable, but also correct.

There was a tendency among the innocent to think that perhaps Mr. Molotov's drinking party with the envoys of the West meant a sudden thawing—in spite of all that has just been happeing. Actually the little scene in the Spiridonovka Palace was symbolic of something quite differ-

It is wrong to say it meant nothing. It meant that having defined his position—standing on the defensive without compromise for an indefinite period, and getting on with the business at home—Mr. Molotov was saying: "Very well, we understand one another. All will be well provided we respect one another's existing position. You get on with the European Defence Community and and North Atlantic Treaty Organization—if you can. It's no good pretending we trust one another. We don't. We shall keep our powder dry; we have no doubt you will do the same. But at least we can relax the paralysing tension, which is costing us as much as it costs you. And later on we can think again. Meanwhile, may the best man win.."

The virtue of this attitude lies in its freedom from hysteria. With Mr. Dulles we could do worse than make it our own. Ernst Reuter of Berlin had no doubt who the best man would prove to be. Have we?

Defence Program Comes Under Study

MONTREAL (CP)—Sections of Canada's defence program came under the scrutiny today of 50 members of the Commons and Senate today when they visited establishments in the Montreal area.

The group, headed by Defence Minister Claxton, flew from Ottawa to the RCAF station at St. Hubert and saw a 15-minute display of aeronatics and formation flying by two flights of CF-100 fighters.

A visit to the Canadian Vickers shipbuilding plant followed.

Three Medicos In Ranks Of Blue Bombers

By ART BRYDON

AU... (CP)—Canada's medical men may be pardoned this year if they take a clinical interest in operations of Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the Grey Cup final.

The Bombers list on their roster three football specialists with a first-hand interest in the medical profession plus a chiropractor.

Harpley is a defensive end with two years experience and a Grey Cup behind him as a Toronto Argo. Hill whose famous "sleeper" play helped Calgary Stampeders win the Grey Cup in 1948 is another defensive end and McPherson thumps the oposition from the guard slot.

FOOTBALL ENTHUSIASTS

All are enthusiastic about what football has done for their careers but their major interest is medicine. Casey came to the Bombers because he could go to medical school at the University of Manitoba. Hamilton, where he first played after his arrival from Ohio, had no medical school.

Harpley played for Balmy Beach of the ORFU and Argonauts while he went to chiropractic school but settle back home in Winnipeg when a good offer from a clinic came his way.

Hill says football money has allowed him two years of research in neurology which he couldn't ordinarily have had.

Bomber pay put McPherson through college and he hopes it will give him a start when he sets up practice. Both Hill and McPherson live in residence and get colleagues to take their duty calls when the Bombers travel. This is not much of a problem in this football-mad town.

Cataracts Tie Mercurys 6-6 In Overtime

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Niagara Falls Cataracts are beginning to show that they're not ready to play dead for the rest of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A season.

The Cataracts, in the league cellar most of the season, Tuesday night came from behind three times to earn a 6-6 overtime tie with the fourth-place Owen Sound Mercurys in Niagara Falls. The tie pulled Niagara Falls to within one point of the seventh-place Sarnia Sailors.

In the league's other game Windsor Bulldogs moved into a first-place tie with Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen by defeating Stratford Indians 4-1 in Windsor.

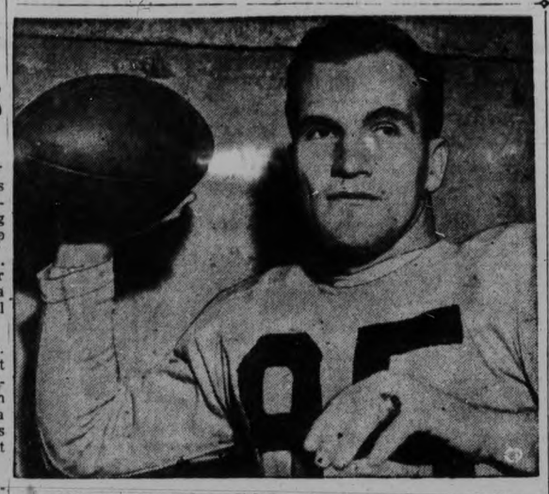
UNGER SCORES TWICE

Eric Unger scored twice for the Cataracts, his second forcing the game into overtime. In the extra session Jerry Reid's second tally of the game gave Owen Sound the edge until Nick Dubick knotted the count a little more than a minute later.



Other Niagara Falls scorers were Ed Plate, Bill Kodasky and Sandy Air. Bob Lickie, Tommy Burlington, Herb Carnegie and Buck Forslund also scored for Owen Sound.

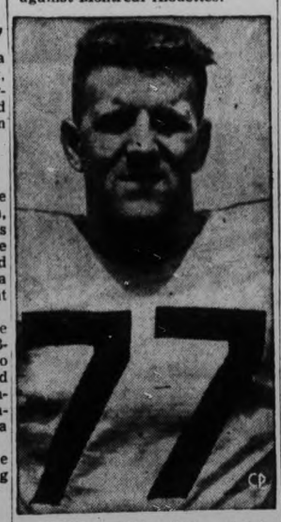
Carl Evon, Lyle Wiseman, Frank Bathgate and Gord Haidy shared scoring for the Bulldogs. George Aitken robbed Windsor goaltender Nick Pidsodny of a shutout.

ROWE STARS

Ron Rowe, recently released by Sault Ste. Marie (Mich.) Indians, scored three goals and assisting on two for North Bay. Bo Elik notched two markers and three assists. Ab Demarco, the league's leading scorer, scored one and Don Hogan and Gord Pankhurst scored the Hounds counter.

Tonight Niagara Falls is at Stratford, Kitchener at Sarnia and Hamilton at Chatham. In the northern league Sudbury meets the Wolves in Sault Ste Marie, Mich.

QUARTERBACK — Ed Songin, former Boston College quarterback, is the fifth man the Hamilton Tiger-Cats have used this season in the pivot spot. He came to Hamilton after being cut by the professional Baltimore Colts. In the last quarter of the Big Four regular schedule his accurate passing and brilliant play calling was the turning point in the Tiger-Cats' drive for a playoff berth.



DEFENSIVE END—Vito Ragazzo, 26, six feet, three inch, 210-pound end is one of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats defensive mainstays against the long pass. He played with William and Mary college, Williamsburg, Va., in 1949 and 1950 and was a member of the All-Southern Conference team in 1949.

TIGER-CAT GUARD — Vince Scott, 28-year-old import with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, is regarded as one of their best defensive linemen. The five feet, 11 inch, 215-pound guard played with the Buffalo Bills in 1947 and 1948 befroe joining the Hamilton team in 1950. He is expected to play a leading role in the Grey Cup game Saturday, Nov. 28 at Toronto against Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

TIGER-CAT HALFBACK—Lou Kusserow, 25, 200-pound right halfback with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, is from Yonkers, N.Y. In the United States he played with Columbia University and service football with Fort Bragg. He was the sparkplug of the halfline in the Big Four playoff against Montreal Alouettes.

TIGER - CAT END — Ralph Toohy, 27, came to the Hamilton Tiger-Cats in 1952 after a few seasons with Montreal Alouettes. He plays flying wing in the Tiger-Cats offensive backfield. He lives in Montreal and played hockey last year with the hockey Tiger-Cats.

Young Criminals Need Whipping Magistrate Says

TORONTO (CP) — Magistrate Frederic Watt of Guelph said in a letter Tuesday that whipping is the best treatment for youthful criminals.

The letter, read to the Ontario legislature's select committee on reform institutions, said the magistrate could not too strongly support the committee's position that more corporal punishment should be used.

He suggested that six strokes of the strap be maximum punishment for juveniles. He said it wasn't much use lecturing a young boy about suspended punishment when he knows nothing about it.

BOY KNOWS WHY

"If he is whipped he knows he is being punished for what he did. I am strongly in favor of whipping as a punishment for juveniles."

Support for the strap also came from Professor G. E. Reaman, head of the English department of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph. He said it was "about time common sense was used in dealing with juveniles."

"The juvenile court, as now constituted, encourages criminality because it takes away any fear of the law. Nothing unpleasant happens."

Find Roast Intact After 4,000 Years

LONDON (CP)—A roast of meat, still intact after 4,000 years' exposure, was uncovered during a recent archaeological expedition to Jericho.

Dr. Kathleen Kenyon, director of the British school of archaeology in Jerusalem, reported the find when she returned here with 12 large packing cases containing objects recovered from an ancient tomb.

She said the meat, found with clothing, rush mats and wooden objects in the tomb 20 feet below ground surace, was "only spongy."

Grey Cup Teams Lower Curtain On Pre-Match Workouts

By CRAIG SWAYZE

TORONTO (CP) — Trespassers may not be prosecuted but they may suffer the wrath of George Trafton and Carl Voyles should the unwanted visitors dare to gain entrance to the Grey Cup training grounds.

The "no entry" sign was hung outside of Hamilton's Athletic Grounds Tuesday night as coach Voyles put his Tiger-Cats through a stiff 90-minute work-out.

In Aurora, 25 miles north of here, coach Trafton herded his Blue Bombers into training quarters following a plane trip from Winnipeg and promptly announced that "workouts will be closed to everyone, including the press."

PASS DEFENCE

Tiger-Cats, still bruised from their gruelling two-game Big Four final against Montreal Alouettes, will concentrate mainly on pass defence and offensive manoeuvres in tonight's practice. No heavy scrimmages are scheduled and players won't wear pads.

Voyles admitted his club will go into Saturday's game knowing little about the Blue Bombers.

Tiger-Cats have only 1952 films of the Winnipegers in action and reports from assistant coach Ralph Sazio about the Ottawa-Winnipeg pre-season game this year.

Trafton wouldn't give reporters much to work on when asked how he planned to work his team in preparation for Saturday's big game.

IMPRESSED WITH HAMILTON

His only hint was that he wasn't going to "run them to death Thursday or Friday."

Trafton admitted he was impressed with Hamilton's line play Sunday when Tiger-Cats defeated Montreal 22-11 for the Big Four championship. He flew east Saturday night to scout the game.

When someone asked him how the Montreal or Hamilton line compared to Edmonton, he quickly replied, "How can we tell until we meet them?"

WEATHERMAN ON LIMB

TORONTO (CP) — The weather man came out Tuesday with a forthright prediction of an afternoon temperature of about 45 degrees, light winds and partly cloudy skies with a trace of rain or snow for Grey Cup day next Saturday.

With the East - West football game between Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Hamilton Tiger-Cats five days away, Fred Turnbull of the Toronto public weather office said also there is no serious snow in sight. There is a chance of rain or snow flurries late Wednesday or Thursday but nothing that the tarpaulin at Toronto's Varsity Stadium can't handle.

Turnbull, Ontario chief of the weather service, looks for a Pacific air mass to drift over Toronto Friday and Saturday and boost the temperature over the 38 degrees indicated by the long-term average for Nov. 28.

With high pressure likely, Turnbull says the day should be bright. But the odds are 7 to 12 against a sunny day at this time of year so he is calling it partly cloudy, with no precipitation.

Coach Bud Poile disclosed from Toronto where he conferred with Jack Adams, general manager of the parent Detroit Red Wings, that Edmonton has acquired Neil Strain and Marcel Bonin, left wingers with major league experience, and Frank Kubasek, a centre.

Strain, 27, was purchased from New York Rangers for an undisclosed sum. Bonin, 21, was acquired from Sherbrooke of the Quebec Hockey League, also a Detroit farm club, and Kubasek, a 24-year-old Alberta product formerly with Flyers was purchased from Cleveland of the American Hockey League.

KING MEETS CHAVEZ

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Canadian lightweight champion, Li'l Arthur King of Toronto, trades punches here tonight with Eddie Chavez of San Jose in a 10-round fight each hopes will lead to a chance at the world lightweight championship.

The 26-year-old King has an edge in experience over Chavez, 23-year-old California Mexican who scored a decision over world champion Jimmy Carter in a non-title affair earlier this year. Chavez will go into the rings as a mile favorite.

Chavez is rated fifth among the world's 135-pounders and King ranks ninth.

INKERMAN DROPS OUT

OTTAWA (CP) — Inkerman Rockets have withdrawn from the six-team New York-Ontario Hockey League and Ray Miron, league president, said he has drawn up a new schedule.

The Rockets played their final game Saturday night, losing 7-3 to Clinton, N.Y., for their sixth loss in eight starts.

Miron said the other teams in the league—Clinton, Gananoque, Brockville, Smiths Falls and Cornwall—are all in sound financial shape. All games in which Inkerman played were "thrown out" and the league will play the remainder of the season under the new schedule.

All Stadia Will Be Completed Year Before Olympics Begin

By KEN MOSES

MELBOURNE (AP)—Now that all the disputes have been settled, the organizing committee for the 1956 Olympic Games in Melbourne is aiming to have all stadia completed about a year before the big sports meet is due to start.

Work on the reconstruction of the Melbourne Cricket Ground stadium, scene of the opening and closing ceremonies as well as the track and field events, is to start immediately after the Queen's visit in March.

Work on the Olympic swimming pool has been contracted to be finished by the end of 1955.

The site of the swimming and diving pools and the financing and construction of housing for the athletes were two thorny problems. At one time the disputes, with political factions involved, became so heated that the International Olympic Committee considered shifting the 1956 Games from Melbourne to another site.

Alterations to the cricket ground are scheduled to be completed by September, 1955. They include increasing the seating capacity from 85,000 to 120,000.

GOVERNMENT AID

The Australian government has agreed to advance a £2,000,000 ($4,480,000) interest-free loan for construction of the Olympic village at Heidelberg, eight miles from the city and the main stadium.

At the annual meeting of the organizing committee Nov. 7, Les Duff of the New South Wales Olympic Council said:

"For the first time since we got the games we can see where we are going. We have no worries. And I can speak with the utmost confidence that I have the support of all 30 delegates in this room when I say that we know those in charge are doing a good job for Australia."

Plans also are well ahead to stage international carnivals in all states of Australia before and after the games. New Zealand also is planning a series of meets to get the benefit of appearance ... athletes returning from th...

Accommodation for overseas visitors also has taken a brighter turn, It is likely that at least four new hotels will be completed in Melbourne by 1956. Travel agencies estimate at least 15,000 will come from overseas for the games. Many will be accommodated on tourist ships in Port Phillips bay, the port of Melbourne.

THE WAR MEMOIRS OF WINSTON CHURCHILL

POTSDAM—THE ATOMIC BOMB

President Truman arrived in Berlin the same day as I did (July 15, 1945). I was eager to meet a potentate with whom my cordial relations, in spite of differences, had been established by the correspondence included in this volume. I called on him on the afternoon of our arrival, and was impressed with his gay, precise sparkling manner and obvious power of decision.

Next day both the President and I made separate tours of Berlin. The city was nothing but a chaos of ruins. No notice had of course been given of our visit and the streets had only the ordinary passers-by. In the square in front of the Chancellery there was, however, a considerable crowd. When I got out of the car and walked among them, except for one old man who shook his head disapprovingly, they all began to cheer. My hate had died with their surrender, and I was much moved by their demonstration, and also by their haggard looks and threadbare clothes. Then we entered the Chancellery, and for quite a long time walked through its shattered galleries and halls. Our Russian guides then took us to Hitler's air-raid shelter. I went down to the bottom and saw the room in which he and his mistress had committed suicide and when we came up again they showed us the place where his body had been burned. We were given the best first-hand accounts available at that time of what had happened in these final scenes.

The course Hitler had taken was much more convenient for us than the one I had feared. At any time in the last few months of the war he could have flown to England and surrendered himself, saying, "Do what you like with me, but spare my misguided people." I have no doubt that he would have shared the fate of the Nuremberg criminals. The moral principles of modern civilization seem to prescribe that the leaders of a nation defeated in war shall be put to death by the victors. This will certainly stir them to fight to the bitter end in any future war, and no matter how many lives are needlessly sacrificed, it costs them no more. It is the masses of the people who have so little to say about the starting or ending of wars who pay the additional cost. Julius Caesar followed the opposite principle, and his conquests were due almost as much to his clemency as to his prowess.

On July 18 I lunched alone with the President, and we touched on many topics. I spoke of the melancholy position of Great Britain, who had spent more than half her foreign investments for the common cause when we were all alone, and now emerged from the war with a great external debt of three thousand million pounds. This had grown up through buying supplies from India, Egypt and elsewhere, with no Lend-Lease arrangement, and would impose upon us an annual exportation without any compensatory import to nourish the wages fund. He followed this attentively and with sympathy, and declared that the United States owed Great Britain an immense debt for having held the fort at the beginning. "If you had gone down like France," he said, "we might be fighting the Germans on the American coast at the present time. This justifies us in regarding these matters as above the purely financial plane." I said I had told the election crowds that we were living to a large extent upon American imported food, for which we could not pay, but we had no intention of being kept by any country, however near to us in friendship. We should have to ask for help to become a going concern again, and until we got our wheels turning properly we could be of little use to world security or any of the high purposes of San Francisco. The President said he would do his very utmost; but of course I knew all the difficulties he might have in his own country.

The President raised the subject of air and communication. He had great difficulties to face about airfields in British territory, especially in Africa, and arrange a fair plan for common use. I assured him that if I continued to be responsible I would reopen the question with him personally. It would be a great pity if the Americans got worked up about bases and air traffic and set themselves to make a win of it at all costs. We must come to the best arrangement in our common interest. President Roosevelt knew well that I wished to go much further on this matter of airfields and other bases, and would have liked to have a reciprocal arrangement between our two countries all over the world. Britain was a smaller Power than the United States, but she had much to give. Why should not an American battleship calling at Gibraltar be able to get the torpedoes to fit her tubes and the shells to fit her guns? Why should we not share facilities for defence all over the world? We could add 50 per cent to the mobility of the American Fleet.

Mr. Truman replied that all these sentiments were very near his own heart. Any plan would have to be fitted in, in some way, with the policy of the United Nations. I said that was all right so long as the facilities were shared between Britain and the United States. There was nothing in it if they were made common to everybody. A man might propose marriage to a young lady, but it was not much use if he were told that she would always be a sister to him. I wanted, under whatever form or cloak, a continuation of the existing wartime system of reciprocal facilities between Britain and the United States about bases and fuelling points.

The President seemed in full accord with this, if it could be presented in a suitable fashion, and did not appear to take crudely the form of a military alliance a deux. These last were not his words, but give the impression I got of his mind. Encouraged by this, I went on with my long-cherished idea of keeping the organization of the Combined Chiefs of Staff in being, at any rate until the world calmed down after the great storm and until there was a world structure of such proved strength and capacity that we could safely confide ourselves to it.

The President was replying to this in an encouraging way when were were interrupted by his officers reminding him that he must now start off to see Marshal Stalin. He was good enough to say that this had been the most enjoyable luncheon he had had for many years, and how earnestly he hoped the relations I had had with Prsident Roosevelt would be continued between him and me. He invited personal friendship and comradeship, and used many expressions at intervals in our discussion which I could not easily hear unmoved. I felt that here was a man of exceptional character and ability, with an outlook exactly along the lines of Anglo-American relations as they had developed, simple and direct methods of speech, and a great deal of self-confidence and resolution.

That night, July 18, I dined with Stalin. We were alone except for Birse and Pavlov. We conversed agreeably from half-past eight in the evening to half-past one next morning without reaching any crucial topic. My host seemed indeed to be physically rather oppressed, but his easy friendliness was most agreeable. About the British election, he said that all his information from Communist and other sources confirmed his belief that I should be returned by a majority of about eighty. He thought the Labor Party would obtain between 220 and 230 seats. I did not attempt to prophesy, but I said I was not sure how the soldiers had voted. He said that the Army preferred a strong government and would therefore vote for Conservatives. It seemed plain that he hoped that his contacts with me and Eden would not be broken.

He asked why the King was not coming to Berlin, and I said it was because his visit would complicate our security problems. He then affirmed that no country needed a monarchy so much as Great Britain, because the Crown was the unifying force throughout the Empire, and no one who was a friend of Britain would do anything to weaken the respect shown to the Monarchy.

Staling said that in all the countries liberated by the Red Army the Russian policy was to see a strong, independent, sovereign States. He was against Sovietisation of any of those countries. They would have free elections, and all except Fascist parties would participate.

I then spoke of the difficulties in Yugoslavia, where we had no material ambitions, but there had been the fifty-fifty arrangement. It was now ninety-nine to one against Britain. Stalin protested that the proportions were 90 per cent. British, 10 per cent. Yugoslav, and 0 per cent. Russian interests. The Soviet Government often did not know what Tito was about to do.

I then said how anxious people were about Russia's intentions. I drew a line from the North Cape to Albania, and named the capitals east of that line which were in Russian hands. It looked as if Russia were rolling on westwards. Stalin said he had no such intention. On the contrary, he was withdrawing troops from the West.

On July 17 world-shaking news arrived. In the afternoon Stimson called at my abode and laid before me a sheet of paper on which was written, "Babies satisfactorily born." By his manner I saw something extraordinary had happened. "It means," he said, "that the experiment in the Mexican desert has come off. The atomic bomb is a reality." Although we had followed this dire quest with every scrap of information imparted to us, we had not been told beforehand, or at any rate, I did not know, the date of the decisive trial. No responsible scientist would predict what would happen when the first full-scale atomic explosion was tried. Were these bombs useless or were they annihilating? Now we knew. The "babies" had been "satisfactorily born." No one could yet measure the immediate military consequences of the discovery, and no one has yet measured anything else about it.

Next morning a plane arrived with a full description of this tremendous event in the human story. Stimson brought me the report. I tell the tale as I recall it. The bomb, or its equivalent, had been detonated at the top of a tower 100 feet high. Everyone had been cleared away for ten miles round, and the scientists and their staffs crouched behind massive concrete shields and shelters at about that distance. The blast had been terrific. An enormous column of flame and smoke shot up to the fringe of the atmosphere of our poor earth. Devastation inside a one-mile circle was absolute. Here then was a speedy end to the Second World War, and perhaps to much else besides.

The President invited me to confer with him forthwith. He had with him General Marshall and Admiral Leahy. Up to this moment we had shaped our ideas towards an assault upon the homeland of Japan by terrific air bombing and by the invasion of very large armies. We had contemplated the desperate resistance of the Japanese fighting to the death with Samurai devotion, not only in pitched battles, but in every cave and dug-out. I had in my mind the spectacle of Okinawa island, where many thousands of Japanese, rather than surrender, had drawn up in line and destroyed themselves by hand-grenades after their leaders had solemnly performed the rite of hara-kiri. To quell the Japanese resistance man by man and conquer the country yard by yard might well require the loss of a million American lives and half that number of British—or more if we could get them there: for we were resolved to share the agony. Now all this nightmare picture had vanished. In its place was the vision—fair and bright indeed it seemed—of the end of the whole war in one or two violent shocks. I thought immediately myself of how the Japanese people, whose courage I had always admired, might find in the apparition of this almost supernatural weapon an excuse which would save their honour and release them from their obligation of being killed to the last fighting man.

Moreover, we should not need the Russians. The end of the Japanese war no longer depended upon the pouring in of their armies for the final and perhaps protracted slaughter. We had no need to ask favors of them. The array of European problems could be faced on their merits and according to the broad principles of the United Nations. We seemed suddenly to have become possessed of a merciful abridgement of the slaughter in the East and of a far happier prospect in Europe. I have no doubt that these thoughts were present in the minds of my American friends. At any rate, there never was a moment's discussion as to whether the atomic bomb could be used or not. To avert a vast, indefinite butchery, to bring the war to an end, to give peace to the world, to lay healing hands upon its tortured peoples by a manifestation of overwhelming power at the cost of a few explosions, seemed, after all our toils and perils, a miracle of deliverance.

British consent in principle to the use of the weapon had been given on July 4, before the test had taken place. The final decision now lay in the main with President Truman, who had the weapon; but I never doubted what it would be, nor have I ever doubted since that he was right. The historic fact remains, and must be judged in the after-time, that the decision whether or not to use the atomic bomb to compel the surrender of Japan was never even an issue. There was unanimous, automatic, unquestioned agreement around our table; nor did I ever hear the slightest suggestion that we should do otherwise.

A more intricate question was what to tell Stalin. The President and I no longer felt that we needed his aid to conquer Japan. His word had been given at Teheran and Yalta that Soviet Russia would attack Japan as soon as the German Army was defeated, and in fulfilment of this a continuous movement of Russian troops to the Far East had been in progress over the Siberian railway since the beginning of May. In our opinion they were not likely to be needed, and Stalin's bargaining power, which he had used with such effect upon the Americans at Yalta, was therefore gone. Still, he had been a magnificent ally in the war against Hitler, and we both felt that he must be informed of the great New Fact which now dominated the scene, but not of any particulars. How should this news be imparted to him? Should it be in writing or by word of mouth? Should it be at a formal and special meeting, or in the course of our daily conferences, or after one of them? The conclusion which the President came to was the last of these alternatives. "I think," he said, "I had best just tell him after one of our meetings that we have an entirely novel form of bomb, something quite out of the ordinary, which we think will have decisive effects upon the Japanese will to continue the war." I agreed to this procedure.

On July 24, after one of our plenary meetings had ended and we all got from the round table and stood about in twos and threes before dispersing, I saw the President go up to Stalin, and the two conversed alone. I was perhaps five yards away, and I watched with the closest attention the momentous talk. I knew what the President was going to do. What was vital to measure was its effect on Stalin. I can see it all as if it were yesterday. He seemed to be delighted. A new bomb! Of extraordinary power! Probably decisive on the whole Japanese war! What a bit of luck! This was my impression at the moment; and I was sure that he had no idea of the significance of what he was being told. Evidently in his intense toils and stresses the atomic bomb had played no part. If he had had the slightest idea of the revolution in world affairs which was in progress his reactions would have been obvious. Nothing would have been easier than for him to say, "Thank you so much for telling me about your new bomb. I of course have no technical knowledge. May I send my expert in these nuclear sciences to see your expert to-morrow morning?" But his face remained gay and genial. He never asked a question, and the talk between these two potentates soon came to an end. As we were waiting for our cars I found myself near Truman. "How did it go?" I asked. "He never asked a question," he replied. I was certain that at that date Stalin had no special knowledge of the vast process of research upon which the United States and Britain had been engaged for so long, and of the production for which the United States had spent over four hundred million pounds in an heroic gamble.

This was the end of the story so far as the Potsdam Conference was concerned. No further reference to the matter was made by the Soviet delegation.

In several lengthy talks with the President alone, or with his advisers present, I discussed what to do. Earlier in the week Stalin had told me privately that as his party was leaving Moscow an unaddressed message had been delivered to him through the Japanese Ambassador. It was presumably meant for either himself or President Kalinin or other members of the Soviet Government, and was from the Japanese Emperor. It stated that Japan could not accept "unconditional surrender" but might be prepared to compromise on other terms. Stalin had replied that as the message contained no definite proposals the Soviet Government could take no action. I explained to the President that Stalin had not wished to tell him direct lest he might think the Russians were trying to influence him towards peace. In the same way I would abstain from saying anything which would make us seem at all reluctant to go on with the war against Japan for as long as the United States thought fit. However, I dwelt upon the tremendous cost in American and to a smaller extent in British life if we enforced "unconditional surrender" upon the Japanese. It was for him to consider whether this might not be expressed in some other way, so that we got all the essentials for future peace and security and yet left them some show of saving their military honor and some assurance of their national existence, after they had complied with all safeguards necessary for the conqueror. The President replied bluntly that he did not think the Japanese had any military honor after Pearl Harbour. I contented myself with saying that at any rate they had something for which they were ready to face certain death in very large numbers, and this might not be so important to us as it was to them. He then became quite sympathetic, and spoke as had Mr. Stimson, of the terrible responsibilities that rested upon him for the unlimited effusion of American blood.

Eventually it was decided to send an ultimatum calling for an immediate unconditional surrender of the armed forces of Japan. This document was published on July 26.

These terms were rejected by the military rulers of Japan, and the United States Air Force made its plans accordingly to cast one atomic bomb on Hiroshima and one on Nagasaki.

We agreed to give every chance to the inhabitants. The procedure was developed in detail. In order to minimise the loss of life eleven Japanese cities were warned by leaflets on July 27 that they would be subjected to intensive air bombardment. Next day six of them were attacked. Twelve more were warned on July 31, and four were bombed on August 1. The last warning was given on August 5. The first atomic bomb was not cast until August 6.

It would be a mistake to suppose that the fate of Japan was settled by the atomic bomb. Her defeat was certain before the first bomb fell, and was brought about by overwhelming maritime power. We, an island power, equally dependent on the sea, can read the lesson and understand our own fate had we failed to master the U-boats.

Council Refuses Allow Canopy For Store

A request for a building permit to erect a canopy in front of Percival's furniture store was turned down by city council Monday night.

Ald. P. J Anglesey opposed granting the permit on the grounds that "we may have a condition on the street as unsightly as the condition in the air caused by television aerials".

It seemed to Ald. A. B. Burrows that a permit had been granted to the Empress hotel "and they still have it unless they have taken it down". But Ald. T. D. Miller pointed out that hotels have no-parking areas in front of them and, if there were a canopy in front of a store it wouldn't give access to a no-parking area.

"I see no necessity for having a canopy over a business entrance," Ald. Syd Black said. "The first thing you know they'll want a no-parking space".

U.S. President Says Code Of West Good

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower, starting a Thanksgiving holiday today, says no one can "assassinate your character from behind without suffering the penalties an outraged citizenry will impose.

That was the code of the old west where he grew up and it is a code Americans still cherish, the president declared Monday night in accepting the B'nai B'rith Anti-defamation League's annual democratic legacy award, the silver medallion.

In a brief informal address, the president noted he was reared "in the west" in Abilene, Kan.

"Now that town had a code, and I was raised as a boy to prize that code.

"It was: Meet anyone face to face with whom you disagree. You could not sneak up on him from behind or do any damage to him without suffering the penalty of an outraged citizenry. If you met face to face and took the same risks he did, you could get away with almost anything, as long as the bullet was in the front."

If Eisenhower had any individuals in mind in talking about such penalties, he named no names.

Thousands Go To W. Berlin For Free Food

BERLIN (AP) — Thousands of aged East Berliners crossed into the Allied sector for a second day today to get free butter, and the Communists complained of a "new low provocation by American warmongers."

The Communist party newspaper, Neues Deutschland, called the distribution of American-donated butter a "crime against old people." The butter is being handed out to Germans over 60 through the Mayor Ernst Reuter Foundation and the International Rescue Committee.

CHARGE INCITEMENT

Neues Deutschland said: "These American warmongers. . . . want to incite hatred among our aged and needy against the government of the (East) German democratic republic and to harness these old people before their war carriage."

On Monday 17,500 pounds of butter were handed out.

The distribution is the second phase of a large-scale program to give a pound of butter to each of the aged in all sectors of the divided city.

Price Support Loss Reaches $42,400,000

OTTAWA (CP)—The agriculture department reported today that losses through price-support operations in the last seven years have reached $42,400,000 and said "substantial addition costs" are anticipated.

Biggest loss—$32,000,000 — Resulted from price support for hogs and cattle during last year's outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease, the annual federal-provincial agricultural conference was told.

This more than tripled the $10,000,000 loss from price props to bolster markets for apples, potatoes, dried white beans, dry skimmed milk, extracted honey, cheddar cheese, butter and shell eggs since 1946.

The government, on March 31 last, still held stocks of 1952 butter, canned pork, 1952-53 dry skimmed milk and cattle and beef products for disposal.

ANTI-RIDGWAY RIOT — Were "worker priests" the leaders?

Taint Of Communism Disbands Valiant French Religious Group

By LEON DENNEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

PARIS—For more than 10 years France's valiant band of "worker-priests" ministered to the poor, winning back souls to the Sacraments among traditionally anti-clerical French workingmen.

Though there was never more than 100 of these pretres-ouvriers at one time, they left their mark on the spiritual life of wartime and post-war France and gained the admiration of men and women of all persuasions.

The recent decision of the Vatican to disband the worker-priests thus brings to a close one of the most noteworthy religious experiments since the last war. It also throws new light on the frantic Communist efforts to infiltrate religious institutions in the West and exploit them for Moscow's sinister ends.

Early in 1943, Abbe Godin, a young French priest of humble origin, sent a long letter to then Archbishop of Paris, Cardinal Suhard, describing the state of the Christian faith among the French proletariat.

SEPARATED FROM MASSES

No less than eight million French men and women, living in cities and consisting largely of working people, were pagans observing no religious practice whatsoever, the Abbe wrote. "A wall separates the Church from the masses."

The young priest urged in his letter to the Cardinal that a new approach be found to the problem of bringing Christianity back to the "de-Christianized" masses.

Cardinal Suhard sat up all night reading the letter. "I could not sleep," he said the next morning. "I was overcome by the Abbe's revelation and the problems it sets forth."

In January, 1944, the Abbe Godin, going to bed one night exhausted by the energies involved in ministering to the men and women working in France's plants and factories, forgot to turn off his gas stove. He was found dead next morning. He was 38.

But before he died, the zealous Abbe, largely with the help of Cardinal Suhard, had seen his vision become a reality.

By the end of 1943, when French resistance against the Nazi occupation reached its peak, a seminary was opened in the monastery of Liseux for the preparation of priests who could devote their life to the Christianization of the working class." Another seminary was established in Paris by the specially - created "Mission de Paris."

Both religious schools attracted about 100 young priests who—to share the life of the ordinary worker and identify themselves with the people—took paid jobs in factories, on construction projects, as truck drivers and ordinary laborers.

The pretres-ouvriers had no politics and no easy blue-print to achieve salvation or the Christian City to come. Their long-range aim was to be near to French workmen, who have been notoriously easy prey for communism. They spent the whole day doing physical labor, saying Mass, hearing confessions and carrying on their pastorial duties in their spare time.

ACHIEVED RESULTS

In the 10 years of their existence the worker-priests achieved many encouraging results. They particularly distinguished themselves toward the end of the war when they took active part in the anti-Nazi resistance movement.

But not all the young priests, unfortunately, were experienced enough to resist the blandishments of Red propaganda. In the end some of them became converts to communism rather than converters to Christianity.

No one challenged the good faith of the young priests. However the Church could not ignore the fact that some of them became victims of Red demagogy.

This became clear when worker-priests solicited signatures on behalf of the French Communist Party protesting against "America's germ warfare in Korea."

Two of them were greeted as ring-leaders in the great Communist riots against the arrival in Paris of Gen. Matthew Ridgway, in May, 1952.

After the strikes of last August, five worker-priests printed a statement which sharply criticized the Christian Trade Union Federation (CFTC) for urging the strikers to return to work. They said openly that the Communist-dominated CGT was the only union "true to the real interests of the proletariat."

This time the Vatican decided to act, however, reluctantly. The Cardinal-Prefect of Seminaries sent a circular letter from Rome to the bishops and archbishops of France forbidding students for the priesthood to spend their training period as workers.

"The Sacred Congregation absolutely forbids all seminary students of France to engage in any kind of temporary work," the Cardinal-Prefect wrote. The facts had shown that such activities were missing their objectives They were "producing negative results in the training of young priests."

The whole question of the pretres-ouvriers has now become a major topic of heated discussion in the French press. The young priests find many enthusiastic defenders, including the great Catholic writer and Nobel prize-winner Francois Maurac.

As the present distinguished Archbishop of Paris, Cardinal Feltin, said recently: "These priests are faced with grave dangers. They have need of our prayers and our affection rather than our criticisms."

Narcotic Habit Is Legal Among Arabians

By A. R. GIRGRAH

ADEN, Southern Arabia (AP)—Americans chew gum. Southeastern Asians chew betel. Southern Arabians chew kat, usually known as qat.

Qat is not as innocuous as chewing gum. It is far more harmful than betel. It is called "the lawful narcotic of southern Arabia."

A Yemenite or a southern Arabian would rather starve than go without chewing qat. To him qat is almost as necessary as air.

Botanists call it catha-edulis or cleastrus. It is a plant often 18 feet high, with sweet leaves.

Doctors and scientists contend qat contains an alkaloid resembling cocain. They assert it strains the nervous sytem, causes physical emaciation, affects sexual virility, spoils the enamel of the teeth, corrodes the walls of the stomach and reduces the appetite for food.

Arabians do not seem to care. The former ruler of Yemen, the Imam Yehia, wrote a long poem praising its effects on man.

The British protectorate of Yemen, whose Arab population is about 100,000, imports from three to five tons of qat daily. There are 79 registered qat importers in Aden. It is one of the most expensive affairs in Arabia. The wholesale price is about 98 cents a pound.

Annual Meeting Plans Central Ont. Spring Show

Planning for the 1954 Central Ontario Spring Show, in Peterborough next March was begun at the annual meeting of its members today at the office of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. The attendance was more than 30, with Robert Armstrong of Ida, president for the last two years, in the chair.

Mr. Armstrong was congratulated on winning the Ontario 50 Bushel Wheat Club this season, as recently announced. Similar compliment was paid to W. W. Dawson of Otonabee on placing fourth in that competition, and to Wesley Wilson of Emily township as reserve hay champion at the Royal Winter Fair.

M. H. Johnston said it was encouraging to see in the Royal results the names of Central Ontario farm producers who are also active in the Spring Show and other exhibitions in their own districts.

NOMINATING COMMITTEE

For the election of officers, Mr. Armstrong was authorized to appoint a nominating committee to report in the afternoon. He named the agricultural representatives of the Central Ontario counties with Stuart Bowman of Peterborough, eastern Ontario seed inspector for the federal department of Agriculture, and Ken Fallis, Toronto, of the seeds department of the provincial government.

Mr. Bowman said the show last March indicated increasing support from the seed growers and buyers. There was improvement both in quality and quantity of grain. He suggested that further promotion be given to the Junior Farmers department, and that entries of their grain clubs be encouraged. Mr. Bowman also recommended that an effort be made to secure quantity exhibits of seed potatoes up to five bag lots.

Although the show executive has not been required to implement the price support policy that was adopted last year, it was decided to revoke that provision of subsidy guarantee at the seed sale next March.

FOR ADVERTISING

George McLaughlin said that the money which might be involved in that practice could be spent on a broader advertising effort to attract seed buyers.

"We sold some 500 bushels of seed grain last March, but I wish we could increase that quantity to at least 1,000 bushels," F. C. Paterson said. "What we are aiming at is to be able to get more distribution of good seed, and that can be done, through the agency of the show by attracting more buyers."

Ed Summers, Bowmanville, agricultural representative in Durham, said his county produced more top quality seed grain than two or three of the others in the district.

"When you see all the care it takes to prepare seed for exhibits, you realize that probably the producers might not keep coming to the show if the prices at the concluding auction were not worth while," Mr. Summers said.

The drift of discussion was not favorable to the price subsidy plan, and it was felt that developing attendance of buyers would have greater effect of attaining the purpose of the Spring Show.

Finally Mr. Summers and George McLaughlin of Oshawa moved that the subsidy provision be dropped.

A. O. Dalrymple, Stirling, secretary treasurer, reported a bank balance of $1,360. Grants from Peterborough and Victoria county councils have been approved, and cheques are expected before the end of the year. Mr. Dalrymple is Hastings county agricultural representative.

Canada Buying 30 New Jets

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Navy is "completing arrangements" for the purchase of F2H3 Banshee all-weather jet fighter aircraft, the defence department said Monday.

Though the department declined for security reasons to give the number of planes to be purchased, it was believed some 30 will be bought for $10,000,000.

The planes will be used to re-equip the navy's fighter-borne carrier squadrons. There now are two squadrons of about 12 planes each, one of them in reserve. Other Banshees would be required as trainers. The Banshees will be purchased from the United States Navy.

The twin-engined jets, which will replace the present propeller-driven Sea Furies, will not fly from the carrier Magnificent but from the new carrier Bonaventure, now under construction at Belfast. The bonaventure is not expected to be ready for sea duty until 1956. The Bonaventure is not expected ped with a catapult which will enable the jets to be launched down or cross-wind, if necessary. The Magnificent has a catapult but can launch planes only into the wind.

TWO-STOREY BRICK house of recent construction was previously assessed at $3,750. When re-assessed, its replacement cost was set at $4,320 but this was raised to an assessment of $4,550 by the revenue-producing factor.

TYPICAL OF MANY post-war houses constructed in Peterborough is this 1½-storey brick with shiplap gable ends. Its previous assessment of $2,800 was raised to $3,330 by the re-assessment. The replacement cost of $3,096 was increased substantially by the revenue-producing factor.

MODERN BUNGALOW of brick construction was previously assessed at $1,645. When it was re-assessed it was given a replacement cost of $1,883 but the revenue-producing factor raised this to $1,920, the total new assessment.

POOR LOCATION abutting against its neighbor lowered the revnue-producing factor in the re-assessment of this 1½-storey frame houe. Previously assessed at $1,100, it was re-assessed at $1,940, well below its replacement cost of $2,023.

THE ACCOMPANYING PHOTOS from the files of the city's assessment department illustrate some instances of the effects of the re-assessment of residential property in the city. In each case, both old and new assessments are given, as well as the influence of the revenue-producing factor on the replacement cost of the building to produce the final assessment, which is established by adding the revenue-producing factor to the sum of the value of the land and the replacement cost. All figures are based on 1940 values.

FRAME BUNGALOW of pre-war construction was barely affected by revenue-producing factor. With a previous assessment of $1,195, it was re-assessed at $1,550, slightly below its replacement cost of $1,571.

Wilson Withdraws Statement About Subs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A defence department spokesman says commenting on a story in the Secretary Wilson didn't mean it literally when he said that, after the Second World War, "We were dumb enough to turn over the whole German submarine fleet to the Russians."

The spokesman said Monday, in commenting on a story in the Washington Star, that Wilson meant giving some submarines to Russia supplied the Reds with technical data vital to building their present formidable fleet.

The Star said Wilson's recent statement was disputed by government records which show that, of 483 U-boats, 225 were scuttled and 213 destroyed by the Allies, with the remainder going 10 each to the United States, Britain and Russia. It said Russia may have gotten hold of 15 or so more on its own.

Greenland Goes From Seals To Sheep And Catching Cod

Because their climate is growing steadily warmer, Greenlanders are turning from hunting to sheep-herding and fishing for their livelihood.

Twenty thousand sheep now graze on Greenland's south coast, says the National Geographic Society. The mixed Eskimo-European Greenlanders today are expert catchers of cod appearing off the coast in substantial numbers.

New packking houses and freezing plants have been built. Some 10,000 lambs are processed each year, thus far entirely for local consumption.

It is a drastic change for the 22,000 Greenlanders, most of whom live in the southwest of the Danish island. Once these people lived entirely by the harpoon and spear, killing walrus, narwhals, whales, polar bears and above all, seals.

The seal kill alone amounted to 50 per person annually. Now the seal herds have followed the cold water northward, and the kill is down to two for each inhabitant.

The raising of livestock is nothing new in Greenland, recently proclaimed an integral part of the Danish kingdom. More than 1,000 years ago, during another warm period, Viking settlers raised cattle and even tilled the ground.

Some farms of 1953 are built on long-abandoned Viking homesteads. Other pastures originally cropped by Viking herds await Greenlanders, willing to abandon traditional seaside homes for sites farter inland.

CAME IN 1915

Greenland sheep raising dates from 1915, when a flock of 175 was imported from Iceland, and young Greenlanders were trained to care for them. Present flocks are in part descended from these Icelandic ancestors. Excellent tweed is produced from the wool.

More than climate has caused changes on the earth's largest island. Airplanes have taught the world that the shortest route from the Western Hemisphere to Europe and Asia lies over the icy Arctic, and Greenland now is a strategic place. The United States has built a huge air force base at Thule.

Another drastic change is the introduction of a money economy, strange to a people who once traded only by barter. Now for their fish and mutton and wool Greenlanders receive cash.

In Dragoons 25 Years Soldier Hopes Go To Korea

CAMP PETAWAWA, Ont. (CP)—A soldier who enlisted in the Royal Canadian Dragoons in the cavalry days a quarter-century ago is looking forward to another trip overseas.

Winner of the Military Medal in northwest Europe during the Second World War, Sgt.-Maj. E. W. Douglass, 42, now hopes to see service in Korea. His squadron of the Royal Canadian Dragoons (1st Armored Regiment) is scheduled for a tour of duty in the Far East beginning early next year.

Since he enlisted in the Dragoons at Toronto as a youth of 17, Sgt.-Maj. Douglass has served under 10 commanding officers.

GREATEST CHANGE

He says the greatest change was the switch from cavalry to armor. The unit first converted to motorcycles in 1940 and then was reorganized as an armored car regiment. It served throughout the Sicily, Italy and northwest Europe campaigns in a reconnaissance role. The regiment now is equipped with Sherman and Centurion tanks.

In 1939, the Dragoons supplied mounted escorts for the King and Queen at Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara Falls. They were also famous for their musical ride, staged in full dress—scarlet tunics, brass helmets with black plumes, white gauntlets, high jackboots and lances with red and white pennants.

In addition to his M.M. and Long Service Medal, Sgt.-Maj. Douglass wears eight campaign stars.

A SPECIAL MESSAGE to CUSTOMERS of the B of M

Figures SPEAK LOUDER THAN words

Words are hard put to tell the full story of Canadian achievement in 1953. During this past year, Canada took new strides forward in almost every field of endeavor. These strides toward the future were made possible through an investment — by Canadians in all walks of life — of time, talent . . . and money.

How important a part your money played in Canada's progress in 1953 can be seen from the following highlights taken from the B of M's Annual Report for this year. Printed here, these figures — as they did all through 1953 — speak louder than words.

DEPOSITS: At the end of the Bank's year, October 31st, 1953, over two million Canadians had $2,226,960,333 in deposits with the B of M — money which has been kept hard at work with Canadian enterprise of every description and size. Although much of this money belongs to institutions and business firms, well over half of these deposits represent the savings of everyday Canadians — savings that, day by day, are working for you . . . and for Canada.

LOANS: Your bank is playing an important role in our expanding economy by means of loans to Canadians of every calling — farmers, miners, fishermen, oil men, lumbermen, ranchers — to individual and business enterprises and to Provincial and Municipal Governments. As of October 31st, B of M loans totalled $857,762,561 — the highest figure in the history of the Bank. In a thousand ways, these dollars played their part in maintaining full employment and in sustaining — or bettering — our standard of living.

INVESTMENTS: At the close of the year the B of M had $864,057,948 invested in high-grade government bonds and other public securities which have a ready market. This money is helping to finance government projects for the betterment of the country and the welfare of Canadians at large. Other securities held by the Bank — mainly short-term credits to industry — bring total investments to $982,490,826.

The message these figures express is a confident and encouraging one. Actually, it is your message...for it is made possible by your savings.

RATEPAYERS MEETING

Ratepayers of the south end of the city are holding a meeting tonight in Confederation School at 8 p.m. to try to organize a Ratepayers' Association.

PARKING TICKETS

The city clerk's office received payment for a higher number of parking tickets last month than for the same month in any of the previous three years. Receipts last month were $884, compared with $375 during the same month last year, $652 during October, 1951, and $375 in October, 1950.

CANDIDATES' MEETING

The Women's Study Group on Civic Affairs is again sponsoring a public candidates' meeting where candidates for all elective offices will appear to state their policies and answer questions. The meeting will be held in the committee room of the City Hall Tuesday, December 1, at eight o'clock.

WON FOOTBALL TITLE

Peterborough won its first rugby title 54 years ago today when they defeated Westmount of Montreal by 4-2 for the intermediate championship of Canada. The game was played at Nicholls Oval on November 25, 1899. In that year F. D. Kerr, QC, was the Peterborough tennis champion. The net game was far more generally played then than it is today.

DAMAGED FIREPLACE

Cracks in the cement of a fireplace at Robert H. McClellan's home, 433 Hillcrest Ave., caused a charred beam and did some damage Tuesday afternoon. Firemen used a handpump on the smouldering beam. Two flooded oil heaters were reported Tuesday: one at 384½ George St. in R. Clair's apartment; the other at C. J. McColl's home, 635 Oxford St.

LIFE AND DEATH

A drop in the city's birth rate so far this year has been balanced by an equivalent drop in the death rate. There were 154 births and 44 deaths recorded during October, compared with 167 births and 55 deaths during the same month last year. The number of briths registered to the end of October this year was 1,539 and the number of deaths 424, compared with 1,548 births and 444 deaths during the same period in 1952. Of the 154 births recorded during October, 92 were to city residents, and of the 44 deaths registered, 27 were city residents.

MRS. MAURICE HOLT

Lady Candidate Enters Aldermanic Race

Mrs. Maurice E. Holt today confirmed an earlier report that she intended to seek election to city council.

If she is elected on December 7, Mrs. Holt will be the first woman councillor in Peterborough's history. Dr. Lorna Cotten made an unsuccessful bid for a council seat before the Second World War.

Mrs. Holt is the 10th person to make a public announcement of her intention to seek one of the five aldermanic seats at stake in this year's election. The others are: Ald. Syd Black, Ald. Pat Anglesey, George W. Carphin, Stanley A. McBride, Gordon Powell, Glenn Price, Jack C. Smith, William Triggs and Fred T. Tuggey.

"Public opinion points to the fact that we should have a woman on council," Mrs. Holt said today. "I have weighed the pros and cons of this matter and made my decision carefully. Whether or not I am fortunate enough to succeed in being elected this time, I feel I am making the first step in the right direction.

WOMAN'S VIEW POINT

"We should have a woman's viewpoint and understanding to bring about the proper co-operation of all concerned," she said. "Whether or not a woman is wanted on council will be determined by the voters on December 7."

Since her arrival in Peterborough in 1940, Mrs. Holt has been active in several local organizations. During the Second World War, she was a member of the Women's Voluntary Service. As secretary to the public relations organizer, she wrote human interest stories and interviews with distinguished guests brought to the city on behalf of the Peterborough county Victory Loan drives.

She was also first president of the Kinettes (Kinsmen's wives). In both Niagara Falls and Peterborough, she has been a director of the international sorority, Beta Sigma Phi. She is a member of the Central school Home and School club and a well-known fashion commentator.

CANCER SOCIETY

For the past two years she has been the active president of the Peterborough unit of the Canadian Cancer Society, which she has been instrumental in making one of the most active units in the province. In the Ontario division of the society, she is a member of the board of directors and of the executive, organization and campaign committees.

Mrs. Holt has been successful in forming two sub-units of the Canadian Cancer Society in Madoc and Lakefield. She has been promised assistance from members of the local executive and other members of the unit, if she is elected to council, so that the amount of work done by the society in this district will not diminish.

She is vice-president of the local Progressive - Conservative Association and a member of the board of directors of the Community Chest.

She was born in Stratford, the former Alene Cooper, daughter of Ernest Cooper and the late Mrs. Cooper, and received her early education in Stratford, Chalk River and Windsor.

INTEREST IN MUSIC

She has had a life-long interest in music and has been trained as both a pianist and vocalist. She tried examinations in both subjects through the Toronto Conservatory of Music and has her vocal solo performer's ATCM certificate. She won first prize gold medal in the mezzo-soprano class in the Niagara Falls music festival for both 1936 and 1937.

In Windsor, Mrs. Holt was soprano soloist at the Church of the Ascension and on one occasion was guest soloist of the Windsor Symphony Orchestra. She was also a member of the Border Scottish Choir which sang annually with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

She married Mr. Holt in Windsor in 1935 and they have one son, Cooper. Following her marriage, she moved to London, Ont., and then to Niagara Falls, Ont. While in the latter city, she had her own program of music and song over radio station CKTB, St. Catharines, and was a member of the Radio Players in connection with this station.

At Niagara Falls, Mrs. Holt was president of the Little Theatre Guild, resigning when her husband was transferred to Peterborough as manager of the local office of the Household Finance Corporation. Mrs. Holt has worked as a secretary in Detroit, Mich., Windsor, London and Peterborough.

She is a member and skip in the Peterborough Curling Club and a member of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club. She is an adherent of the Anglican church.

Norwood Asks County For Grant

Community Building Should Get $500 Delegation Feels

Norwood Village is asking County Council for a $500 grant toward the cost of their $18,000 community building, now completed.

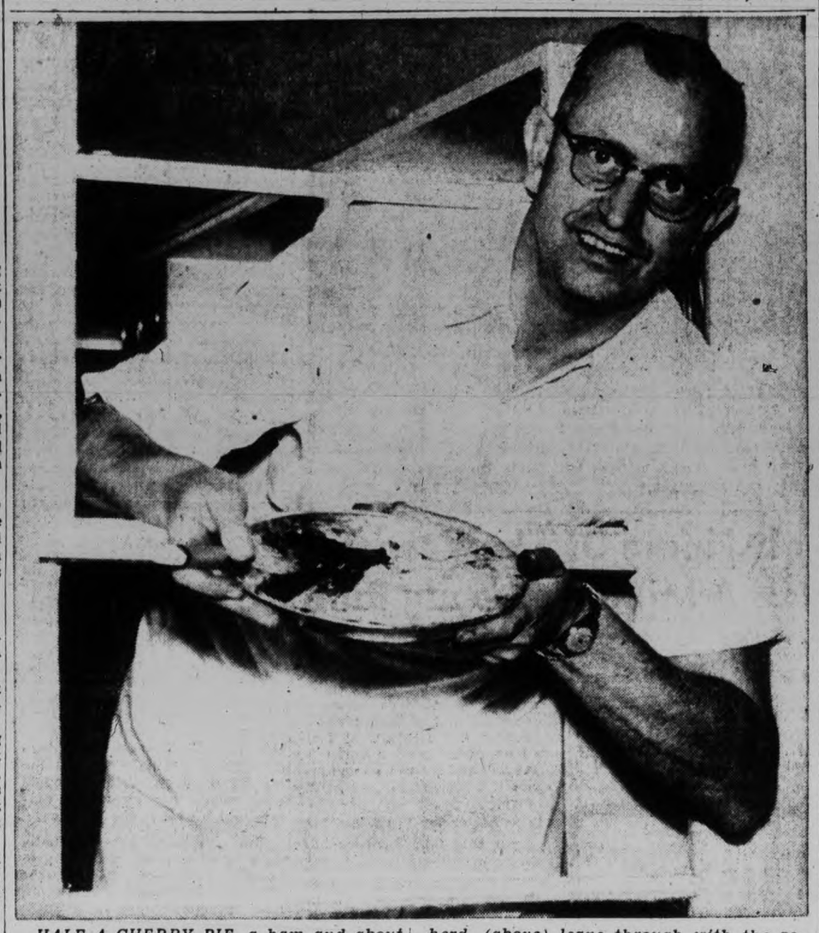
Today three spokesmen for Norwood—Reeve Rork Ferguson and two officials of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society, G. A. Brethen, president, and David O'Neil, secretary—occupied most of the morning session in asking for financial help.

Council referred the request to the finance committee. But the likelihood was that there would be some sort of recommendation go from the 1953 council to its successor in 1954.

NO HELP FOR RINK

Reeve Ferguson said that Norwood built a skating rink for $12,000 some years ago. It has been used not only by villagers but also by nearby residents in Asphodel and Dummer townships. Norwood has also a swimming pool that is used by district people. Yet, said Reeve Ferguson, on neither of these two previous projects has there been any grant from the provincial government or the county council.

The county council gave grants to Lakefield, Havelock, Keene, Warsaw and Apsley on their rinks or community centres; so Norwood wants similar treatment.



"Now we have this building costing $18,000," said Reeve Ferguson, "and I think it's only fair and just that we get a grant like these other municipalities."

The community building is owned by the "fair board," but is available to any local group, Mr. Brethen explained. It was built 150 feet by 50 feet so that it would be regulation length for curling; it has 7,500 square feet of hard-surface cement flooring; and is of timber-rib construction with sheet metal covering.

The old arena will continue to be used for hockey and skating.

DAIRY HERD PROTECTION

Frank C. Paterson, provincial agriculture representative, today reminded members of the county council of some of the provisions of the Brucellosis Control Act. The Act, put through this year, permits cattle owners to circulate a petition in their municipality and if they get a 66 per cent response, direct their council to pass a bylaw making innoculation against brucellosis compulsory. The disease causes undulant fever. Already there has been extensive voluntary innoculation of female calves in several sections of the county.

HALF A CHERRY PIE, a ham and about $20 in small bills and change was the loot taken in three breakins in the district early today. The pie, the ham and the money were all taken from Shep's Grill on Highway 7. The grill was entered through a back window which the proprietor, G. W. Shepherd, (above) leans through with the remainder of the pie. The adjoining garage, operated by Bill Dorrington, was also entered by a back window, but nothing was taken. The Trade Winds, operated by Fred Stenson, was broken into, through a basement window, but again nothing was taken.——(Examiner Staff Photos)

Two Garages, Grill Robbed Of $20, Ham, Cherry Pie

Half a large ham, half a cherry pie and $20 in small bills and change were the spoils for burglars who broke into two gasoline stations and an adjoining restaurant today in the Peterborough district. Sometime between 4 a.m. and 7:30 a.m. Bill Dorrington's new service station on Highway 7, three miles east of the city, and Shep's Grill, in the same building, were entered. Then on Highway 28 the Trade Winds' gas station, just outside the city limits, was broken into, sometime between 10 p.m. Tuesday and 7:30 today.

G. W. Shepherd, proprietor of the grill, suspected a breakin when he arrived at work at 7:30 a.m. He entered by the back door which was ajar and then saw a cherry pie half eaten on the kitchen table.

WINDOW BROKEN

Investigating further Mr. Shepherd found a window, near the back door, had been broken, and all the glass cleared away. Then he noticed some jimmy marks on the frame and door. Unable to open the door the burglars had turned to the window, about 20 by 14 inches.

Inside the kitchen, Mr. Shepherd found a half ham, the largest of two in the refrigerator, had been taken besides the half pie and a quantity of buns.

The thieves had also entered the adjoining restaurant. There they opened the till which contained only a few coppers. Searching for more money they opened a cabinet under the till and found cash ready for today's business in a small bag, hidden under several towels.

The bag contained quarters, dimes and nickels and a few small bills, amounting to $20.

The burglars then opened a cigarette machine which had just been placed in the restaurant Tuesday. It is not known just how many packages of cigarettes were taken.

Jim McMillan, mechanic in Dorrington's garage arrived at work about 7:30 and didn't notice anything unusual. In fact he worked about 15 minutes before Mrs. Shepherd told him the restaurant had been opened.

Going to the back of the garage McMillan found the back door open and a pane taken out of the window. There, too, entry had been attempted through the door as shown by jimmy marks around the handle and lock.

FINGERPRINTS

They had apparently abandoned the door in favor of the window. The putty was neatly cleared away, the pane taken out and dropped on the ground. The investigating officer, OPP Constable Gordon Gray, took the glass away for finger-printing.

Nothing was touched in the service station. The till had been emptied when the garage closed at 4 a.m. and the money for the morning operators hidden. The burglars didn't find the money.

The service station was opened only a week ago Sunday while the restaurant had opened a week ago today.

Entry into the Trade Winds, owned by Fred Stenson, was also made through a window, located in the repair shop under the station.

Cec Montgomery, the garage mechanic, entered the garage through the front door. He first saw the door leading to the downstairs was open and that it had been forced.

Thinking that perhaps some other workers had forced the door, Montgomery went downstairs to work. While repairing a car, he felt a cold draught, looking around he found a pane broken out of the south window.

TIGHT SQUEEZE

The burglars had squeezed through a space about 17 inches by 14 inches into the repair shop. Footmarks could be clearly seen outside around the window. When they forced the door at the top of the stairway to the garage the thieves had pressed against the sloping ceiling, leaving numerous fingerprints.

Mr. Stenson said that as far as they know nothing was taken or disturbed. No money is left in the till or garage overnight.

Water Cooler For Courthouse

Prodded frequently by grand juries and a thirsty public, the county council have decided to instal a water cooler in the county courthouse.

The property committee were instructed Tuesday afternoon to call for tenders and get the best possible price for an electric cooler to replace the fountain in the main hall. At present it is difficult to get a cold drink of water at the fountain because the hot and cold water pipes, underneath the floor, run side by side.

Unless a thirsty person is willing to stand and run the water for 10 or 15 minutes he invariably got a drink of lukewarm water. Complaints have been persisting for years.

The cooler will probably cost about $400.

County Councillors Resist Attempt To Oust Dispenser

As the county council saw it, Tuesday afternoon, it was officialdom trying to push the elected representatives around. And they decided to stand firm. The issue wasn't one likely to raise another John Hampden. It was simply whether or not the shiny, automatic Coke machine should remain in the hall of Peterborough's county courthouse.

It's been no secret that Judge John de N. Kennedy, Sheriff John A. Harstone, and Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, QC, have been strongly opposed to the soft drink machine since it was installed, on the main floor in the hall, earlier this year. County council put it in as a convenience to the public and on the offchance they might make a dollar or so.

PREVIOUS ATTEMPTS

Previous attempts have been made— diplomatically, of course —to have the machine removed. But the county councillors hadn't heard any complaint from the public—just from officials — so they let it remain.

The criticism is that a soft drink machine detracts from the dignity of British justice as it is interpreted in Peterborough.

Tuesday afternoon Sheriff Harstone and Mr. Bradsahw arranged for a meeting with the county's property committee. They were understood to be speaking for Judge Kennedy as well.

Both sheriff and crown attorney explained how the dignity of the court was being harmed by this product of 100 per cent American culture. A member of the bar had been seen in the courtroom with a bottle of Coke. The crown attorney was overwhelmed to see that some jurors, while considering their verdict, had sucked away at soft drinks and left the bottles. Moreover, there was danger of the jury and rival witnesses mingling downstairs at the machine during court recess.

The committee members didn't like the tone of the interview with the sheriff and crown attorney. And they said so when they reported later to the whole council who pay for the furnishings and equipment in the courthouse.

VERY INSISTENT

"They were very insistent," said Deputy-Reeve Dave McIntyre of Otonabee township, chairman of property. "There's a definite request that we get rid of these vending machines." (The other machine vends chocolate bars.)

"I think we've been pushed around enough," said Reeve Roland Tedford of Douro township. "It's not for the judge and crown attorney to tell us what to do . . . The vending machine was put in for the convenience of the public."

"Are the general public not satisfied?" queried Reeve William C. Griffith, of Belmont-Methuen, a man who hates to pass up an argument.

"No, I haven't heard any complaints from the public," said Mrs. J. A. Spurway, county clerk and treasurer.

"Then why should these men dictate to county council what we're going to do?" said Reeve Griffith.

"What's the next order of business," asked Reeve James Gifford of Ennismore. And that was that.

PS—The Coke machine is still there.

County Ledger To Close In Black

Warden Ernest J. Leeson indicated today that the county may end up in the black-ink side of the ledger this year.

"I fele that we have had a very successful year and I trust that we will be able to finish the year with a balance on the right side of the ledger," he said. "I wish to thank members of the various committees for their attention in keeping a close check on the expenditures during the year."

Warden Leeson was delivering the anpual warden's address at the windup session of the year for county council.

"One of the major projects undertaken this year was the paving of the Buckhorn road, under the supervision of the suburban-area road commission. This road is in excellent condition, and I feel that the commission will now be able to reduce maintenance costs on same; and they will be in a position to spend this money for maintenance of other roads.

"We are now certain of a causeway at Gannon's Narrows, replacing the old floating bridge which had become obsolete. This new causeway will be completed during 1954, and should be a great improvement."

Warden Leeson also said that the county home is being operated satisfactorily under the management of the new superintendent and matron, Mr. and Mrs. McConnell. He remarked that the painting of the barn and outbuildings has greatly improved the farm's appearance. Two deeper wells are being dug to give an ample water supply.

Mrs. R. M. Dennistoun Dies In Vancouver

Mrs. Robert Maxwell Dennistoun, widow of the late Mr. Justice Dennistoun, of Winnipeg, died Tuesday evening, November 24, in hospital in Vancouver.

Mrs. Dennistoun's death resulted from a motor car accident early in October.

Mrs. Dennistoun was the daughter of the late Rev. Canon Beck of St. John's church, Peterborough, being the last surviving member of his family, her sister, Mrs. Arthur Stevenson, dying in July, 1952.

Mrs. Dennistoun leaves two daughters, Mrs. Sandford Holland, of Winnipeg, and Mrs. Oscar McBain, of Winnipeg, and one son, Peel, attorney-at-law, Los Angeles, Calif.

Goose Silly? Not So, The Farmer Says

WASHINGTON—How silly is a goose? Not silly at all, say farmers and sportsmen, who should know.

At least two farmers, living at widely separated places in the United States, have ganders they claim tend sheep, says the National Geographic Society. In each case, the big bird leads the flock to water, then returns it to pasture.

The talents of geese as sentries are well known. Excited gabbling of Rome's sacred geese from their home in the Temple of Juno atop Capitoline Hill roused the Eternal City's defenders in time to rout the barbarian Gauls who invaded Italy in 390 B.C.

USED IN KENYA

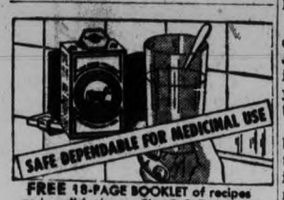
"Watchdog" geese were sent last summer from Suffolk, England, to Nairobi, capital of British Kenya in East Africa. They were bought by a settler to give the alarm in case of Mau Mau attack.

Across the world in Malaya, the British high command early in 1953 announced that goose sentries were being stationed in pens around villages threatened by Communist guerrilla raiders.

Like their domesticated brothers, the free, high-flying wild geese that go honking down the sky at season's turn rate high in intelligence. Canada geese, snow geese, blue geese, brants all carefully inspect the ground for possible danger before landing, and while feeding, post sentinels.

Most American barnyard geese are descendants of the European and Asiatic graylag. The best for watchdog duty is the big and powerful Chinese goose, suspicious of strangers and possessed of a voice rivaling a Parisian taxicab horn in penetrating resonance.

WEED CROPS



Because they are finicky and selective about their food, geese are excellent at weeding crops. Hundreds of thousands of them tend cotton fields, nurseries and blueberry patches from Texas to New Jersey.

Their employers claim they eat crab grass and even saw-edged Johnson grass without ever touching the cotton plants, berries or young trees. For lawns, however, they are not recommended.

A farm goose is still a valuable bird when prowlers do not threaten and the harvest season is over. Feathers and down are marketable, and roast goose for Thanksgiving or Christmas rivals the turkey as a Canadian table tradition.

VITAL EXPORT

Virtually the whole economy of Ceylon depends on export of tea, rubber and coconuts.

Italy Home Of The Vespas Half A Million Already Built

By JOHN CAIRNCROSS

PONTEDERA, Italy — (OFNS) — In Europe and in other continents the word "Vespa" is synonymous with the light motor-bicycle, or motor-scooter as it is called in Italy, the country of its origin. The literal meaning of the word is "wasp", and that name could not be more apt. To the more deafening noises of the European city street, the Vespa adds its impertinent and tenacious buzz. A silencer for it has been produced at Pavia; but Italians, at least, are inclined toc onsider tranquility unnatural, and it will be some time before it is in general use in this country.

Demand for the Vespa has been so great that four factories have been set up outside Italy—in Britain, France, Spain and Germany —planned to have a total production of more than eight-thousand machines a month by early 1954. The British Vespa is made at Bristol, and was among exhibits at the Motor-cycle Show in London on November 14.

But the home of the Vespa is here at Pontedera, a little town between Pisa and Florence. It was here, precisely at 11:30 one morning recently that the five hundred thousandth Vespa—the figure includes the output of all the factories—adorned in a neat little blue bow, rolled off the assembly line.

WHEN IDEA BORN

The owner, manager and guiding spirit of the concern which makes the Vespa is a gentleman called Dr. Piaggio. Legend has it that during the last war, Signor Piaggio noticed, amid the wreckage of an aircraft, two landing wheels and a small motor. Inspiration descended, and the idea of the Vespa was born. The truth, however, is more prosaic. Near the end of the war the Pontedera factory and two of the other works belonging to the firm were almost razed to the ground. The technical staff put its enforced idleness to good use by working out plans for the production of peace-time articles. And the Vespa project won the day.

Starting from nothing, and without a penny of Government aid, yet succeeding in retaining personal control of the enterprise, Signor Piaggio gradually rebuilt the factory, acquired the necessary machine tools, and was rewarded with steadily increasing output. In 1946 the factory built 2,484 Vespas; the next year the figure was 10,535; in 1948 it was 19,822; and today more than ten thousand of the machines come off the production lines each month. The factory now has more than four thousand employees, one thousand five fundred machine tools of the most modern construction (some of them specially made for the Vespa) and covers forty acres.

GIVEN ROUSING CHEER

It was hardly surprising that, as the Archbishop of Pisa blessed the beribboned Vespa, tears were to be seen on a few cheeks. Like so many Italian prelates, the Archbishop combines a kindly and natural humanity with the polish of a man of the world. His audience, as is usually the case in North Italian factories, was seventy per cent. Communist; but it gave him a rousing cheer when, after invoking the blessing of the "divine worker of Nazareth," he called on God to guide the Vespa with his strong right hand, and presented the historical machine offered to him by the management to the poorest priest in his diocese.

At the banquet held to celebrate the event, Signor Piaggio was showered wtih compliments from his fellow industrialists, from the foreign and Italian press (who, he recalled, had been the first to arouse interest in the new venture) and by the head foreman.

The same friendly atmosphere pervaded the scenes at the model village where the firm has built low-rent houses, shops, a kindergarten, and a recreation centre for the staff. Throughout the tour, Signor Piaggio was followed by a cheering, laughing crowd. It is not hard to believe that labor troubles are practically unknown here.

Flying High Birds Can Reach 29,000 Feet

WASHINGTON — When Sir Edmund Hillary and Tensing Norkey were nearing the top of Mount Everest earlier this year, they were astonished to see a bird flying at the 27,000-foot level.

But that particular avian high flyer failed by some 2,000 feet of beating what is generally regarded as the world altitude record for birds.

Scientist photographing the sun over India once sighted a flock of geese at 29,000 feet, the approximate height of Mount Everest. In migration across the lofty Himalayas, these geese set the record.

Ornithologists for several reasons do not stress altitude records of birds. They point out that the birds themselves do not strive for marks, flying high only to clear obstacles or storms, or to find tastier insects. The record-holding geese probably could have gone higher had they wished.

HEAD START

Again, a robin summering in Denver has a good start skywards over a robin nesting in Washington, even though neither bird may ever venture more than a few hundred feet above the ground.

Neither Sir Edmund, who will address the National Georgraphic Society in Washington next February 12, nor Tensing identified the bird they saw during the ascent which finally conquered the highest point on earth. It could have been a lammergeier, a vulture which lives in the Himalayas.

The lammergeier habitually lives in high places, and had previously been identified in the Mount Everest area at 24-25,000 feet. But two types of lowland birds, godwits and curlews, have been seen migrating past the flanks of the same great mountain at 20,000 feet.

HIGH COLLISION

Another dweller on heights is the world's largest flying bird, the Andean condor. One collided with a plane at about 20,000 feet above sea level. Another was sighted 6,700 feet in the thin air above a 12,958-foot peak.

Generally, birds of the lowlands fly higher during migrations than at other times. Migrating sandpipers, yellow-legs and black bellied plovers have been seen at 10-12,000 feet; pelicans, cranes and ducks from 3,000 to 8,000. Lapwings have been sighted at 6,500 and larks at 6,175 feet above sea level.

Once it was thought that migrating plovers, curlews and godwits went as high as 40,000 feet, seeking thin air in which they might reach speeds of 200 miles an hour. The assertion is no longer credited.

As for speed, only one bird has ever been clocked at as much as 200 miles an hour. It was a swift, which set the record in a brief sprint not at great height, but in normally dense air of a moderate altitude.

Busy Airman

"SMAZE" SHROUDS MANHATTAN—Manhattan skyscrapers look like misty dream-castles as a combination of smoke and haze drifts around them. Draining Holy Land Swamp Causes Trouble With Arabs

High up in Galilee close to the troubled Israeli-Syrian border a swamp is breeding not only malaria, but the threat of a new Arab-Jewish war, Leonard Whartman writes in The New York Herald Tribune. The Huleh, as the swamp is known, has been the scene of a number of "incidents" and tempers on both sides of the Jordan are at the snapping point as dredgers and bulldozers grind through the mire under the muzzles of guns.

On the one side armed Israeli police keep a watchful eye on the operations, and on the other Syrian troops look down menacingly from mountain strongholds.

POWER PROJECT

Focal point of the trouble is the proposed Israeli plan to widen and deepen the Jordan River bed so as to allow for the eventual drainage of the swamp and the erection of a hydro-electric power plant.

Unlike most of the other cases of land spoilation in the Holy Land, which were caused by man, the Huleh swamp is an unpleasant heritage from nature. Thousands of years ago a violent upheaval in the area poured great streams of lava into the bed of the Jordan, thus blocking the rush of water from the river sources down to the Sea of Galilee. As a result, each year during the rainy season the Jordan overlows its banks and spills out into the Huleh plain, creating a vast swamp which spreads out over 20,000 acres of potentially rich farmland.

Hard-pressed to find good soil for its rapidly increasing population, Israel in the spring of 1951 commenced a three-year plan to drain the Huleh. To effect a run-off of the stagnant water, Israeli engineers began to broaden and deepen the Jordan bed so that it would hold the swollen floods racing down from the Lebanese and Syrian hills. This drainage would not only salvage the peat-rich farmland, but would tremendously increase the flow of water coursing down the river which falls from a height of 220 feet above sea level to 1,300 feet below sea level over a distance of less than 180 miles.

PRODUCE POWER

At the same time Israeli engineers drew up a plan to utilize the sharp drop by erecting a hydro-electric plant. It suggested to the United Nations that such a development would be to the mutual advantage of Syria, Jordan and Israel, the three nations bordering the river. Although the UN went along with the plan, Syria and Jordan turned it down and Israel, therefore, went ahead on her own.

She began by deepening the existing channel and started construction of a supplementary canal which would siphon off part of the flow to allow for the erection of a dam and power plant on Israel soil.

It is this latest move to build a supplementary canal and hydro-electric plant which has drawn the ire of the Syrians. The Arabs object that under the terms of the armistice agreements signed with Israel after the Israel-Arab war, no alterations are to be permitted in the demilitarized zones which would provide a military advantage to either side. The Arabs maintain that the erection by Israel of a dam which could regulate the flow of the Jordan would give a clear advantage to Israel by nullifying what would otherwise be a natural obstacle to manoeuvrability. This objection was overruled in 1951 by the head of the Israel-Syrian Mixed Armistice Commission, the UN instrument for maintaining peace on the Israel-Arab borders.

Israel at that time launched the work on the Jordan bed which continued until recently, when the UN Security Council requested that the work be suspended to prevent any outbreak of violence.

ANOTHER OBJECTION

Lately, a second Syrian objection has been aired: According to the Syrians the secondary canal under construction by Israel would deprive Syria of water needed for irrigation. Israeli and American engineers studied the question, and after checking their blueprints assured Syria that the proposed canal would not divert enough water to endanger irrigation on the east bank of the river. Actually, no water will be permanently lost as it will be returned to the Jordan at the Sea of Galilee after it has been utilized by the detour to provide power.

On September 23, at the request of the head of the M.A.C., Danish General Vagn Bennike, who labeled the construction as a breach of the armistice agreement, Israel agreed to suspend operations while the Security Council studied the matter. However, the general insisted that Israel suspend operations until the Jews worked out an agreement with Syria, a condition overruled by the Security Council.

Britain Moves Towards Commercial Television

BY W. MACLANACHAN

LONDON (OFNS)— The British Government's plan for commercial television is based on the principles applied to radio advertising in other countries, including Italy, Germany and Canada. There is also a close parallel with advertising methods in newspapers and journals all over the world.

Instead of the direct sponsoring of programmes as generally practised in the United States, short periods of four or five minutes are to be allotted to advertising matter. These advertisements will have no connection with the particular programmes which precede or follow the announcement. (In Italy and Canada they last for about four minutes, while in Germany various periods have been tried).

The British set-up as planned by the Government is that a corporation—which it is hoped will be established by June, 1954—will operate the stations; competing companies will bid for contracts to provide the programmes, while the latter will sell the periods to advertisers in exactly the same way as advertising space is sold in a newspaper. Although the new corporation which will be the real competitor with the existing British Broadcasting Corporation is to be partly financed by the Government, the "programme companies," as they are called, will obtain their income solely from the advertisements.

The first transmissions are to be in London, where even a low-power station will reach some twelve million people. Later two more stations may be built for Birmingham and Manchester. In about two years it will be possible to have permanent high-power stations covering the country on the same scale as the present B.B.C. network of five main stations.

Contrary to the practice in other European countries of using the whole of Band 3, which has been internationally agreed as a television section of the very high frequency (V.H.F.) wavebands, transmissions will be limited to two television channels, as the remaining possible channels have been given over to VHF "business radio" and to radar and air navigation. The British cannot, without expense, clear those channels, and will have to leave further progress for Bands 4 and 5, which are in the ultra high frequencies. Band 4 equipment will be ready in between twelve and eighteen months.

60 ON ONE BAND

In the United States, where keen competition has already caused the VHF band to be overcrowded, sixty transmitters are now operating in Band 4; but in Europe technical development is behind, and equipment is not so readily available for operation on Band 4 frequencies. It is also much more expensive. In Germany, Holland, Belgium and France the problem is likely to be solved by increasing the number of television channels in Band 3—this would be done by widening the band to allow two additional channels to be used. Development of Band 4 would come later, as its use is not so urgent as in the USA and Britain.

General opinion, in both engineering and business circles, is that the Government plan, although appearing somewhat innocuous and unlikely to offend the antagonists of sponsored television, is only an experimental stage — after which greater expansion perhaps along American lines, can follow.

Dairymen Say Poor Butter Given Consumer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some United States diarymen are complaining that their government is buying the good butter and leaving low quality and undergrade butter for consumers. This practice, they say, is causing housewives to turn to substitutes.

These complaints come at a time when the secretary of agriculture, Ezra Benson, is pressing the dairy industry to develop a self-help program that would permit the government to stop buying butter to bolster milk prices.

Under the dairy support program the department buys butter, cheese and dried skim milk when prices fall below a specified level. The government's holdings now include 254,000,000 pounds of butter, 258,000,000 pounds of cheese and 416,000,000 pounds of dried milk.

The government buys only the better grades—A and —B—leaving lower grade butter without buyers except in the consumer market. Naturally a creamery having more butter than it can sell to the consumer trade will offer its better grades to the government and push the other into commercial markets.

Some dairymen are suggesting that the government change its buying program to take in the undergrade butter. They would have the government convert the low quality butter into butter oil and sell it, at cut-rate prices, to industrial food processors, who now use vegetable oils almost exclusively.

Another dairy suggestion is that butter be divided into two general classes—table use and cooking. The latter would be priced lower.

Before the Second World War, Americans consumed an anoualu average of about 16 pounds of butter. It now is down to about eight pounds. Margarine averaged less than three pounds before the war, but it now is up even with butter.

In a recent tour, the House of Representatives agriculture committee found dairymen generally agreed that the United States should not engage in "dumping" surplus butter supplies abroad. Such a practice, dairy spokesmen said, would hurt the economy of other butter-exporting nations and lead to trade retaliation against other U.S. farm products.

EXPELLED FROM CHINA—Sister Rose Ilma, left, of Ham Nord, Que., and Sister Jean Dionne, of Coaticook, Que., arrived at Hong Kong recently, after serving three years in a Red China prison for allegedly "causing the death of 2,000 orphans by their bad treatment." They were arrested in September, 1951, and brought to trial on charges of "being spies for America." When their prison terms expired they were escorted to the border from their mission in Kweiyang by two guards.

Blood Donations Have Saved Patients $41,320

Final meeting of the Red Cross Society, Peterborough Branch except in a case of emergency, was held Tuesday evening in the Red Cross rooms at corner of Brock and George Streets. President Mrs. W. R. L. Blackwell presided.

Miss Helen Gerrard again issued an appeal for sewers. Women interested in this form of public service should contact her.

Mrs. C. J. Ray reported that 2,066 donors have given blood, to the end of October, 1953, this total naturally to increase before the end of the year. Each bottle of blood costs $20 in cities where no such blood donor service exists. Therefore, citizens of Peterborough and district who have required blood transfusion have been saved a total of $41,320 through the willingness of their fellows to give their blood.

Seventeen women have already registered for the home nursing course which begins next week under supervision of Mrs. S. O. Shields, assisted by Mrs. D. Kerneghan, Mrs. D. Praskey, Mrs. G. Carson and Mrs. O. L. Smith.

Mrs. J. Watts, who attended a swimming and water safety group meeting in Toronto recently, reported that Peterborough is considered to be extremely fortunate in the number of pools and swimming areas that are available to the people, and that the chairman of the meeting had been favourably impressed with the work done here.

Plans were laid for the annual meeting of the Peterborough Branch on the evening of January 26. A speaker prominent in Red Cross work in Ontario is to address the gathering and reports of all committees will be presented.

It was announced the annual Red Cross Council meeting will be held in Windsor next March 25 and 26.

The Study Group on Civic Affairs, meeting Tuesday evening in the committee room at City Hall, heard a brief report by Mrs. J. A. Williams on the preparation for the candidates' meeting to be held next Tuesday evening, December 1st, also in the City Hall committee room.

Reports on City Council meetings were read by Miss Kathleen McCarthy and Mrs. D. Rostocky and on Board of Education by Mrs. R. B. McWilliams.

As this was the annual meeting president Mrs. T. J. Carley asked for brief reports from all officers and conveners.

National President Speaks At Council Of Women Conf.

The first meeting of its kind here, and believed to be unique in the programs of all Local Councils of Women, was the day-long conference held Tuesday by Peterborough Council. The program was planned to interest and stimulate all representatives to Council in the work that can be done.

Idea for the conference came from a conference of all committee chairmen held more than a year ago, which had pleasing results.

The National president, Mrs. Allan Turner-Bone of Montreal, was here Tuesday and gave helpful advice to Council women, as well as addressing them following the noon luncheon. She announced her topic as "Women of Goodwill," saying she felt this typified council women.

"I like to think of women like the natural resources of water-power in Canada—when they are organized together their power is really felt," said Mrs. Turner-Bone.

FOUR PROJECTS

She repeated the four projects set out by National Council, now going into their second year: (1) services for children; (2) newcomers and their current needs; (3) problems of the older worker; (4) problems of the older folk.

(It might be noted that Peterborough Council is engaged in work on the first and fourth project. On the first they have achieved their goal with the establishment of the School for Retarded Children, and a report on this, stating also signs of learning ability brought out in the children, was given by the Council convener in charge, Mrs. E. Chambers. After more than a year's work, the Council has made very little progress toward promoting housing for the aged in Peterborough. It was announced that a third meeting on this is to take place in January.)

Mrs. Turner Bone spoke of some of the Councils she has visited as national president and particularly mentioned the enthusiasm of women in the west in planning recreation for older folk, with some help from women's service clubs, and of arranging for homes for older people.

GO TO GOVERNMENT

"Highlight of the National Council work is when we go to the government with resolutions passed at the annual meeting," Mrs. Turner Bone said. "In this way we can also help affiliated federated bodies" and she gave several instances.

"We have now the problem of selling to private enterprise the idea of keeping older women in employment," she said, and this matter was thoroughly taken up by the speaker at the morning conference session, Miss Ruth A. Hamilton, advisor on women's employment to the Unemployment Insurance Commission at Otatwa.

Mrs. Turner Bone also spoke of the general consternation over "unpleasant printed matter" and advised the women that the onus is on them to keep a "watching brief." She said the thing to do is to purchase any literature which appears to be "salacious," read it carefuly, and then send it with a written protest to the Attorney General of the province. "He is obliged by law to do something about your protest," she said. "This is the only way in which you can be sure that action is taken against the distributor of such literature."

Motto of the Council of Women — The Golden Rule— was given by Mrs. Turner Bone as a working motto for members, as she closed. Women have to be prepared too, "to protect the spiritual resources— the Christian virtues of our forefathers —and let us not be carried away by prosperity so that our country deterioriates as Greece and Rome did," she said.

The national president addressed a luncheon gathering of 85 persons, including Mayor Hugh Waddell and Mrs. Waddell and wives of members of the Board of Education, who were special guests, and five ladies from the newly organized Council of Women in Orillia.

She was introduced by Mrs. H. Tremain, and thanked by Mrs. G. K. Fraser, both life members of the National Council.

Peterborough Council president Mrs. A. W. Nelson, who presided, was at this time presented with a life membership in National Council by local members, presentation of the certificate and pin being made by Mrs. Turner Bone.

Closer Commonwealth Ties Stressed By St. Laurent

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent says the Liberal party believes that the more national autonomy Canada has, the stronger the Commonwealth will be.

The prime minister made the statement Tuesday night at a closing dinner of the National Federation of Liberal Women's two-day meeting.

"I hope particularly that a means may be found to amend our own constitution in all respects here in Canada when amendments are required," he said.

He was referring to an impasse that has developed over the way to change the constitution on matters of joint federal-provincial interest.

The federal and provincial governments now can amend their constitutions on matters of individual interest, but still must go to the British Parliament on matters of joint interest.

STRENGTHEN TIES

Progressive removal of limitations on Canada's national status, Mr. St. Laurent said, has "in no way weakened our relationship with the crown and with the Commonwealth."

"The historic position of the Liberal party is that the more complete our national autonomy is, the stronger the Commonwealth will be."

Earlier in the day, the federation accepted several resolutions to be presented to the cabinet minister concerned. They decided among other things:

1. To ask Health Minister Martin to extend present federal grants and support of special nurses' training schemes, in co-operation with the provinces;

2. To ask Mr. Martin to set up a central pool of iron lungs for emergency se in polio outbreaks;

3. Provision in the labor code for equal pay to women for equal work.

Mr. St. Laurent said that he hopes more women candidates will enter the next federal election and that there will be more Liberal women elected to the Commons.

One Liberal and three Progressive Conservative women were elected to the House in the Aug. 10 voting.

Pointed Advice To Women In Office

The National president of the Council of Women had some good advice for women holding executive positions in any organization when she spoke at the afternoon session of the conference of women held in Peterborough Tuesday.

"Women are spreading themselves too thinly in very many cases," said Mrs. Allan Turner Bone. "They are president of one organization, or two, and also hold office in several others. They do not seem to do as good work as they should in any one, or to make progress when this state exists," she declared.

"Do not stay in office too long," she went on to advise. "No one is irreplaceable and others have a contribution to make too."

Thirdly, she cautioned: "Don't let older folk hold the top places in your organization to the exclusion of younger women." She explained that the younger women, whose interest is most desirable, will quickly lose interest if the older women continue to be in all the executive positions.

Her final challenge was not directed solely to the council women. She urged letting the young people take over the duties in church, such as ushering and taking up the collection. "No matter what else they want to do on Sunday, they will get to church if they have a duty to perform," she added.

Mrs. Potts Hostess To Marmora Club

MARMORA (ENS)—The St. Andrew's Glee club met at the home of Mrs. T. E. Potts on Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Annie Lowery presiding. Following the transaction of business, the members sang carols. Readings were given by Mrs. A. Gano and Mrs. L. B. Nichol. Mrs. W. H. Litt followed with the reading of an old Christmas carol, peculiar to the district of Cheddar, England. A social half-hour followed with the serving of refreshments. The meeting closed with Auld Lang Syne and prayer by the president.

2 Special Speakers Heard At Conference Sessions

Morning and afternoon sessions of the conference of the Peterborough Council of Women, held on Tuesday at the YWCA, were attended by 22 local members and representatives of affiliated organizations, and five members of the newest Council of Women at Orillia.

Registrations, commencing at 9.30 o'clock, were taken by Mrs. C. Murkar, Mrs. W. McGee, Mrs. M. Drysdale and Mrs. E. Chambers. Luncheon tickets were issued to 85 persons, including guests, by treasurer Mrs. P. A. Martyn.

An excellent address by the Rev. M. P. Poole, president of the Ministerial Association, on "Status of Women in Religions of the World," was given in the opening service of worship.

Highlights of the semi-annual meeting of Provincial Council of Women at Toronto last week were told by corresponding secretary Mrs. W. T. Fanjoy.

President Mrs. A. W. Nelson dealt with some matters of business at the morning session, including the decision to have an evening dinner preceding the annual meeting of council in January.

Topic of the address by Miss Ruth A. Hamilton of Ottawa was "The Problem of Women in Employment and the Older Woman Worker." She described in detail the work of the women's division of the National Employment Service, to which she is advisor, and some of the special problems of wage-earning women.

"I welcome this opportunity to speak because of the need for women to know more about the government of Canada and what it is doing for women," said Miss Hamilton. She stated, "Housing units for the older aged would elevate to some extent the matter of employment."

This speaker has been actively engaged, since 1947, in Canada's immigration program, dealing with the problems of women entering Canada for placement as domestics. Early this year she was appointed Canadian delegate to a meeting of the International Labor Organization at Geneva, Switzerland, at which the special problems of women in the textile industry were the subject of special study.

The afternoon session topic was "Radio and the Future of Television." Miss Elizabeth D. Long of Toronto, advisor on women's interests to the CBC, is also convener of the standing committee on radio and television of the International Council of Women and is chairman for this council of the committee in the National Council.

She remarked that television is now 17 years old, but the war years must be eliminated in calculating its development. It was pioneered in Great Britain and is now in 24 countries with 15 others studying it. "Radio was started in 1922, but was not an established thing until '36," she added.

"Television is not there yet," Miss Long agreed. "In 1951 they got the first coast to coast network going in United States, but they are still exerimenting with it." She explained that the expense of producing is very high, firstly because studios must be very large to accomodate the cameras which must be pulled back and forth to get close-up and full-length pictures.

"Radio is now a "respectable" thing, and television is considered just a bit risque, and therefore everybody wants it," said Miss Long laughingly. In support of radio, and she said: "Radio has improved the public's taste in music, and it has given opportunity to young musicians that they could not otherwise have gotten. Also, taste in news has been improved." She also remarked that teachers believe that it is the radio that has made school children more vocal and able to stand up and speak without shyness.

The president of National Council of Women, special speaker at this conference, discussed council work briefly just at the close. She suggested a meeting of presidents of the affiliated organizations so that the executive of the Council of Women might ask them just what they expect the council to do.

"Have you surveyed the needs of your city," she also asked.

Mrs. Turner Bone also discussed the matter of financing the National Council of Women, suggesting a donation of 10c a year from each of the 600,000 members in Canada which would supply ample funds for all the work necessary.

DOROTHY DIX

Wife Insists Marriage A Partnership

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband has always felt that a man should be complete boss, while I think marriage should be an equal partnership. Perhaps I'm prejudiced because of early training My father was the undisputed head of the household, and though we respected him, no one loved him. We had to beg for every cent we got, and often went without necessary clothing because we could not bear the scenes that followed a request for money.

My husband has the same money complex. He's kind and considerate in most ways, but believes I should ask for every cent spent on the house or on myself. Then I'm supposed to be profusely grateful for a pair of hose. I'm worried about our future, since I know I can never be the soft creature my mother was.

PEARL M.

MAN AND HIS IMPORTANCE.

ANSWER: Marriage should, of course, be an equal partnership with no squabbles over who's boss. But the unalterable fact remains that a man does like to feel his importance, and if some measure of extra consideration isn't forthcoming, he's likely to grab at the first means of asserting it. This is usually a tight hold on the family purse strings, and a more incurable problem you couldn't have. You might try listing your jobs in the house—cook, laundress, nurse, secretary, etc.—and ask for at least a minimum pay for each. Every woman should be given a personal allowance for which she does not need to give an acocunting. Personal dignity and economic expediency demand this. How to get it? Ah, there's the rub, but you might try a sit-down strike on at least one of your jobs. Hitting his pride might help, too. Point out the difference between your own shabby wardrobe, and the nice apparel of Mrs. B. across the street. A well-dressed wife advertises her husband's success; does your man like to broadcast that he is a failure?

As for the profuse thanks he expects for each nickel he parts with—does he give you wholehearted appreciation for a well-kept house or a delicious meal? Probably not, since he expects them as his just due; so should you expect adequate household and personal allowances.

DEAR MISS DIX: Since I was 13, I have had a very stubborn ailment that has resulted in my being very shy. Now, at 24, the skin condition has improved, but I can't say as much for my self-confidence. I'm having a two-week vacation right after Christmas, and I wonder if I could put it to use meeting people.

STELLA R.

ANSWER: The very best thing I can suggest is a cruise. Go to a travel agency and let them suggest a trip within your means. You are bound to meet friendly people on a cruise, whether or not they become permanent friends isn't too important. Just meeting people will give you a new lease on life, and the trip itself will provide bright conversational material to use on your old pals, and will give you an opportunity for healthy exercise.

DEAR MISS DIX: I plan on giving a party during the holidays, but don't know how to go about it; neither does my mother. Can you help us? Also, is a chaperon required? My friends say they can't be at ease with one around.

POPPY

ANSWER: For help on your party, I suggest that you go to that good, reliable source of all information, your librarian. There are scores of books, newly published, with wonderful ideas for you. As to the chaperon, one must be present, even at the risk of annoying your friends. No teenage party should ever be held without an older person in the house. The chaperon needn't be present at the actual festivities, but she should be available. Believe me, the parents of all the guests will be much happier knowing that your party is conducted properly.

Bringing Up Baby

Hints Collected by Mrs. Dan Gerber (Mother of 5)

With wintery winds nipping at us, certainly a few cold-weather precautions are in order. Baby should have his daily constitutional (except in freezing weather) but these suggestions should be kept in mind.

1. Check weather reports before venturing out. (And a good thermometer is a sound investment).
2. Baby should be cosily but comfortably dressed. (Tight bundling restricts circulation).
3. A length of sheet plastic is a sensible carriage accessory. Will shield baby if you're caught in a storm.

Plastic P. S. That plastic carriage cover does double-duty indoors too, use as a play pen liner or under baby's high chair to catch spills

A "solid" start. Cereal is often the first solid food recommended for baby. For the nourishment your baby needs, and for downright goodness try Gerber's Cereals. They're richly reinforced with iron, minerals and essential B-Vitamins so necessary for little growing babies. Creamy, smooth-to-the-tongue texture makes them easy for baby to adjust to. Easy for you, too, because they're pre-cooked, ready-to-serve.

Solids for a little citizen. Gerber's Strained Fruits, Vegetables, Meat-Soups and Desserts. Made by the specialists who make "babies their business . . . their only business", these fine foods are famous for flavor, true-color and the creamy-smooth texture that suits small fry to a T.

"Bib 'n' Tucker" Special! Here's a cute little apron for the wardrobe of your pride and joy—made of clear vinylite plastic, edged in pink and blue, with a handy "catch-all". It's yours, just by sending either 3 Gerber's Cereal labels or 6 Gerber's can labels to me, Mrs. Dan Gerber, Box 17, Toronto 18.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Baked Pot Roast Of Beef On Special-Purpose Menu

In your community you may be able to take advantage of "specials" in the grocery-butcher stores just as I did.

Red Brand blade roasts of beef with blade bone removed were selling at 35 cents per lb. and looked ideal to me for a pot roast, so I bought a 4-lb. one for $1.39.

We had it for dinner on Friday night when my whole family was home.

Laugh if you like but Mary is taking singing lessons and 3:30 every Friday finds me warbling at the Conservatory. So—if dinner is to be ready on time something has to be brewing in the oven while I'm away trilling scales.

SAVORY POT ROAST (baked)

Come 2:30 P.M. I turned on the oven at 300 deg. Fahr. I trimmed about 2 tablespoons of fat from the edges of the roast and put them in the hot frying pan to render out. I mixed together in a little bowl 1 tablespoon flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon each celery salt, paprika, curry powder, pepper and marjoram. This I rubbed thoroughly into both cut surfaces of the meat and around the sides too. When the pan and fat were quite hot, I seared all of the surfaces of the meat, using strong spoons to turn it. (A fork would have punctured the surfaces and let the juices out.) Meanwhile in a deep medium-sized roasting pan I sliced a carrot and onion thinly and ½ a green pepper. Evenly over these I sprinkled ¾ cup long-grain raw rice. Over them I poured 1¾ cups boiling water. When the surfaces of the seared meat were dark gold I transferred the meat to the prepared roasting pan, placing it squarely on top of the rice, sprinkled a little more salt around the edges, covered it tightly, and at 3 P.M. I put it in the oven at 300 deg. Fahr. and left the house for my lesson.

On my return at 4:45 P.M. I added a washed squash—one of those bulb-bottomed yellow ones—cut in halves and placed cut side down in a buttered pan—to the oven. A little later I prepared green beans, and the salad and a fruit cup.

By 6:15 my hungry gang had assembled and Pete carved the roast with many flourishes. (He misses his little homely duties living in a fraternity house.) The beef was as tender as spring chicken, but remember if you try this to ask for Red Brand beef. The bed of vegetables underneath were full of pot roast flavor subtly suggestive of the herbs. They were a delicious texture too, as an accompaniment to the beef cooked in this way, making potatoes and gravy unnecessary.

DESSERT

I had a prickly pear that my sister had bought in an Italian fruit shop, but I didn't know what to do with the thing, so I cut it into the fruit cup. I wouldn't do it again for it was a little mushy and colored the grapefruit and bananas. So don't try that trick.

CHOCOLATE STRATA PIE

This is a bit of a mystery, for it settles into layers as it bakes, but the ingredients are all mixed together at first.

Line an 8-inch pie plate with pastry and chill it. Heat together over low heat, 1 cup each milk and sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon vanilla, until just warm. Whip the yolks of 4 eggs, and gradually stir the warm milk mixture into them. Stir in 2 squares (2 oz.) grated unsweetened chocolate. Pour into the chilled pastry shell (unbaked) and bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 375 deg. Fahr. and bake 35 to 40 minutes longer. Beat the 4 remaining egg whites until foamy, then start adding to them while you beat, 6 or 8 tablespoons sugar, beating until meringue will stand in soft peaks. Heap on the hot baked pie, return to slow oven of 325 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes or until lightly browned. Serve warm or cold.

Ladies' Auxiliary To Girl Guides

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—Mrs. Alex Rosborough, president of the ladies' auxiliary to the Girl Guides and Brownies, was hostess to members at her home.

Plans were made to raffle a doll and a complete wardrobe for it, at a Christmas party to be held in Memorial Hall in mid-December. A Chinese auction will aso be held for a Christmas cake, made and donated by Mrs. Roy Farrow.

Mrs. Rosborough was appointed representative for the local association.

A discussion period was held concerning the Brownie organization, with Mrs. Reg. Doubt and Mrs. T. E. M. Last as leaders.

The hostess served refreshments at the close of the meeting and was assisted by Mrs. Clarence Foster.

The next Auxiliary meeting will be held January 4, with the place of meeting to be announced later.

Square Dancing Favorite In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—Square dancing has become a favorite pastime of Montrealers, who can swing their partners and turn corners with the best of them.

More than 1,200 persons turned out for one night of rollicking square dancing with such enthusiasm that an authority on the subject was amazed.

"It's incredible," said Professor Richard Kraus of Columbia University, New York. Kraus, who instructs in recreation as an assistant professor at Teachers' College at Columbia, called many of the "sets."

MUST BE SPONTANEOUS

"Square dancing must have spontaneity," he said in an interview. "If it becomes ornate or exclusive or snobbish, as it has in some parts of the United States, it falls flat. People think it's the dancing that fascinates them, but it isn't.

"I believe it's the fellowship the easy acceptance, the security. I think that is the explanation of the incredible increase in the popularity of square dancing."

Professor Kraus noted that square dancing has been popular in many rural areas since pioneer days but "it has been only in recent years that city people have taken to it all over North America."

Irish Radio Is Under Fire Programs Safe And Dull

DUBLIN—Up to a year or two ago the Irish States radio network, Radio Eireann, was the subject of much public criticism — but little controversy writes Garret Fitzgerald in Montreal Star. By eschewing controversial topics in all its programmes, it earned for itself a formidable reputation for being safe—and dull. This was not the fault of the able and hard-working staff, who in many spheres achieved remarkably high standards with hardly any money and even less studio space, but of government policy which dictated that the system should not alone by State-owned, but also managed on civil service lines as a branch of a Government Department!

No breath of political or social controversy was allowed to sully its microphones—and even talks on international affairs were banned, apparently because the appropriate civil servant had not registered the fact that the War was over, and that comment on international topics no longer ran the risk of offending against Irish neutrality! The depths of this policy were plumbed when news of the controversy over the sub-postmistress-ship of the village of Baltinglass, widely reported by press and radio in every other part of the world, was omitted from Irish radio bulletins despite its high news value and political importance, presumably because the popular agitation was directed against the Minister responsible for the radio network!

A POPULAR STEP

Perhaps the only universally popular action of the Fianna Fail Government which returned to power in June 1951, has been the reversal of this cautious policy, the establishment of Radio Eireann as a semi-independent organization, and the introduction, even though on a limited scale at first, of controversy into radio programmes. A serious endeavour is also being made to build up a first-class orchestra,—which Ireland has hitherto lacked,—as well as encouraging Irish talent in various branches of the arts. Curious anomalies still continue, however,—such as the odd rule that forbids Dail Deputies to speak on the air on any subject,—but these, it is hoped, will soon disappear.

Certain disadvantages of State control will remain, however, — for example in a recent Dail Debate on the radio station the Minister announced that he could not agree to discussions on Partition in which both points of view are represented,—all contributions on this subject must continue to be developed exclusively from a Southern viewpoint! This extraordinary attitude seems designed to perpetuate Partition by ensuring that the people of the Republic shall remain in complete ignorance of the Northern viewpoint which it is the national aim to modify by argument and persuasion, and it is difficult to see what lies at the back of it, for it is the firm conviction of every Southerner that the case for national unity is an unanswerable one, and it might, therefore, be expected that discussions of this kind could only benefit the Southern case. Certainly they would be unlikely to shake the convictions of people in the Republic on this issue!

It is only fair to add that the BBC Regional station in Belfast shows an even more obscurantist outlook in this matter—for despite the bitter opposition of almost 40% of the Northern population to union with Great Britain no hint of any such disloyal sentiment on the part of anyone in Northern Ireland is ever allowed to disturb the imperturbable atmosphere of the BBC's Belfast broadcasts! The South at least can argue with some truth that the proportion of the population of the Republic in disagreement with national independence and the national aim of a united Ireland, is infinitesimal—though that does not make the Government's policy any less short-sighted.

An even more remarkable example of this short-sightedness is the recent refusal of the Government of the Republic to agree to a Northern proposal that a joint television station for the whole of Ireland should be established on the Border. Here at last was a unique and never-to-be-repeated opportunity for penetrating every Northern home with a true picture of life in the Republic, and of the Southern viewpoint. The prices to be paid was infinitesimal—for once again the likelihood of one Southerner in a thousand being converted to loyalty to Britain through Northern propaganda, direct or indirect, is negligible, and nothing but good could come to a project which would show those in the South that the Northern Unionists are not ogres or monstrs, but fellow-Irishmen with a common tradition sundered only in one particular field. Direct political propaganda on behalf of either side would, no doubt, have been barred under such a scheme—but this would have been no loss to the cause of national unity!

Returning to Radio Eireann, however, it may be mentioned that another disadvantage of State ownership and control is the danger that individual views expressed by speakers on controversial subjects may be taken as reflecting State policy. A recent remarkable example of this was a controversial discussion on the danger of Ireland becoming 'Americanized'—was the American cultural influence an undesirable element in Irish life? Unfortunately this discussion became entirely one-sided because the American speaker was fair-minded, willing to concede the validity of much of the criticism of the American way of life, and whole-heartedly opposed to Americanism. The result was neither very illuminating for the listener, nor very entertaining—but the interesting thing was that it provoked the American Embassy in Dublin to protest to the Department of External Affairs While the American action was more than understandable in those unfortunate circumstances, it betrayed an odd lack of appreciation of the principle of free speech about which Americans are frequently so vocal, for it suggested that it was the duty of the Irish Government to control controversial radio discussions, "planting" suitable speakers in the program, whose views would reflect Government policy!

Radio Eireann's troubles are not limited to diplomatic protests, however. Two current controversies concern broadcasting personalities whose services have recently been dispensed with. One of these, Eric Boden, is the compere of a radio Question Time-cum Variety Show, who quarrelled with the broadcasting authorities over the presentation of his program and was replaced by another well-known broadcasting personality, associated with an earlier version of Question Time. Eric Boden's presentation of the program was extremely popular with many of the public, especially in country areas, and the radio station's action provoked very widespread criticism throughout the country—criticism which took no account of the merits of Radio Eireann's case in the matter.

IN HOT WATER

Now the broadcasting authorities are in hot water again, this time for sacking a temporary announcer whose 'Oxford' accent has been the wonder of the country since his appointment last year. Most Radio Eireann announcers speak with a slight Irish accent,—the speech of middle-class Dublin people,—although some have a more pronounced brogue. This particular announcer's voice contrasts sharply with the 'norm',—and, indeed, is even more English than the standard BBC accent. Nevertheless having decided to employ him (presumably after testing his accent!) it seems rather hard that he should be sacked because of a few letters to the paper and remarks by Dail Deputies. The volume of letters regretting his dismissal far exceeds the number provoked by his accent during his brief term at the microphone, and the broadcasting authorities must now be wondering if the 'proper opinion' to which they deferred in dismissing him is really the popular opinion at all!

Several correspondents have remarked that both the Minister (the son of an Englishman who played a prominent part on the Irish side in the struggle against Britain) and the Broadcasting Director, Mr. Maurice Gorham of BBC renown who has spent most of his life in Britain, have English accents!—but whatever about their troubles with embassies, comperes and announcers, these two men between them have in a very short period improved Radio Eireann out of all recognition,—and are apparently fully determined to continue this process, in particular by introducing an alternative Program on somewhat similar lines to the BBC's famous 'Third.'

Farmers Reluctant To Have Cut In Grain Production

OTTAWA (CP)—Most Western Canada agriculture ministers and spokesmen for farm groups do not want a cut in grain production just because there is a heavy grain surplus this year.

And as the two-day federal-provincial agriculture conference concluded Tuesday night, Agriculture Minister Gardiner joined the expanding ranks of those opposing suggested crop controls as a means of preventing over-supply of production and declining prices. He advised farmers to keep on producing food as they have always done.

Canada has not "many" surpluses, Mr. Gardiner said, and most of her surplus wheat still will go to Britain. Some might argue that Canada no longer has a large market in Britain, "but you can say that we have the biggest market we ever had in Britain," Mr. Gardiner said.

FUTURE NOT SO GLOOMY

The future is not so gloomy as some provincial farm spokesmen have tried to make out, he added.

Roy Marler, president of the Alberta Federation of Agriculture, suggested Monday grain production be cut 30 per cent through compulsory federal legislation. He proposed the extra acreage be sown to legumes and grass, farmers getting bonuses for the acreage shift.

In discussions that ranged from east to west Tuesday, Wesley Ball, vice-president of the Saskatchewan Wheat Poll, said Canadians are "wrong when they complain of good production." He opposed Mr. Marler's plan.

Agriculture Ministers Ure of Alberta and Nollet of Saskatchewan agreed with Mr. Ball that the emphasis should be placed on finding markets rather than on reducing acreage.

Mr. Gardiner said the best answer to questions raised at the conference "is to go out and produce what you are best able to produce."

Cutting their own future wheat production, in fact, was the "biggest thing" Americans have done for Canadian wheat growers, he said. "It will provide a better chance for Canada to sell her wheat."

H. Scott Says Scenery Adjunct Only To Play

TORONTO (CP) — Scenery is an adjunct to a play. It should never detract from the actors and the play itself, says Hutchinson Scott, currently one of London's most-sought-after set designers.

If settings remain in the mind of a playgoer, the designer has failed to do his job properly, he says.

"Actors and the acting are the thing. Costumes should be designed to feel the period, and after dress rehearsal the actors should be able to forget all about them."

Mr. Scott is in Toronto to design scenery for a new, permanent repertory theatre which Murray and Donald Davis are opening early in January. He leaves behind him four plays running in London's west end for which he designed the decor: T. S. Eliot's "The Confidential Clerk," "Escapade," "Dear Charles," and "Birthday Honors."

WON APPROVAL

His first design, when he was an art student, won the approval of Alex Clunes of the Arts Theatre of London.

He followed Tanya Moiseiwitsch into Oxford, later was with Bristol's Old Vic and did the "Two Gentlemen of Verona" for London's Old Vic. He also did the decor for "The Merchant of Venice" which opened the Stratford (England) festival this summer and now is on tour.

Peers Planning To Revolt On TV Scheme

By FRASER WIGHTON

LONDON (Reuters)—A powerful House of Lords group has made final plans to rebel against a government scheme for commercial television.

Staunt Conservative peers are linked with the Labor Opposition in the TV debate, scheduled to begin this afternoon in the upper house.

The peers were marshalled by Lord Halifax, normally a true-blue Tory, who proposed the motion of criticism. The many Conservative notables who lined up with him included the Archbishop of Canterbury.

The "horrible example" of American television has been one of the major arguments used against the government scheme. The critics fear commercial telecasts would lower the standard of TV taste because, they say, advertisers would pander to the public.

RUN BY BBC

At present, all British television is run on a single channel by the state-owned British Broadcasting Corporation. No commercials are used to finance the single service offered.

The Halifax motion made it clear that the rebel peers do not oppose some sort of alternative to the present system. But they do object to the government plan, announced recently, which sets up a new corporation, publicly owned but in competition with the BBC. This new organization would run TV stations, renting TV time to a limited number of private companies which would prepare programs and sell advertising.

Another argument advanced against the scheme is its limited scope. At present, only three commercial stations are planned—in London, Birmingham and Manchester.

The government did not think the situation serious enough to send out its most imperative call—a notice, three times underlined, warning the faithful to be in their places and ready to vote.

Blame Russia For Hold-up

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Western powers told Russia today the only thing standing in the way of resumption of work on an Austrian peace treaty is "the attitude of the Soviet government."

In almost identical notes delivered at Moscow the three powers challenged the Soviets to make some kind of proposal through diplomatic channels or at a meeting of foreign ministers or deputies. They promised to give "prompt and careful consideration" to the Soviet ideas.

The U.S. note was released by the state department. An official said the British and French governments had presented the Soviets with virtually identical statements.

Many proposals have been made in recent years for concluding a treaty to give Austria political and economic independence. The country is now under occupation by the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union.

Stock Racketeers Infiltrating Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—The Herald in a newspage story today says share - pushing stock racketeers from Toronto are quietly infiltrating into Montreal because of tightened Ontario regulations resulting largely from complaints from New York investors.

The ex-Toronto operators ply their trade by telephone from plush mid-town apartments, says The Herald, using shareholders' lists, the McGill University directory of graduates and "outright sucker lists."

The newspaper says the head office of the securities commission in Quebec and the branch here know of the new arrivals and are subjecting licence applicants to a severe screening.

Manchurian Peasants Resist New Church

HONG KONG (AP)—Three Canadian missionaries reported today that the peasants of Manchuria are resisting the Communists' "independent church" with vigor.

Rev. Laurence Pilon, 41, of St. Polycarp, Que., and Brothers Emile Bourgault, 43, of St. Maxime, Que., and Gustav Pineault, 63, of Montreal, arrived by ship Sunday.

Their mission in Tzepingkai was used as a fortress in the Chinese civil war and was destroyed by Communist batteries. When the Reds took over, all the missionaries were put in prison.

Six Roman Catholics were put in prison for refusing to accuse the fathers of crimes and are still there, the missionaries said.

Ont. Hotel Managers Meeting In Sarnia

SARNIA (CP) — Owners and managers of some 200 western Ontario hotels arrived here today for the annual meeting of their zones of the Hotel Association of Ontario.

Delegates from London, St. Thomas, Point Edward, Thetford, Courtright and other centres will elect directors and hear discussions on various aspects of the hotel industry.

England Beaten

OBITUARY

MRS. NAGLE PHALEN

Mrs. Nagle Phelan, 264 Hunter St., died at her home early this morning after a lengthy illness. Her husband was for years a member of the city council, finally contesting a mayoralty election which returned the late Roland Denne.

Mrs. Phelan was born in Peterborough, daughter of the late Patrick DeLaire and his wife, Delma Archambault. She had lived here all her life. Prior to her marriage Mrs. Phelan was interested in singing and amateur theatricals, and was a member of the cast of the local group trained by the late Richard J. Devey, former organist and director of the choir of St. John's Anglican Church. She was a member of his company which competed in the Earl Grey trophy productions in Toronto.

She was a member of the Catholic Women's League of St. Peter's parish. Mrs. Phelan leaves her son, Basil Phelan of Peterborough, and sisters, Mrs. Camile LaCombe (Eadie), Buffalo; Mrs. Garaldine Loftis, Syracuse, N.Y., and Miss Corine DeLaire of this city.

The body is resting at the Lane funeral home, Hunter St., until 8.50 a.m. Friday when the funeral will take place to St. Peter's Cathedral for requiem mass at 9 o'clock. Burial will be at St. Peter's cemetery.

Spy System Counters Reckless Drivers

KITCHENER (CP) — A traffic-checking scheme that is reported to have cut traffic fatalities in Sudbury by 85 per cent has been recommended for Kitchener.

The Chamber of Commerce said today it will ask the police commission to organize a secret squad of "T-men" to check on careless and reckless drivers.

Under the plan 75 citizens are asked to list the numbers of all cars seen breaking traffic regulations. The violators' names, licence numbers are placed on cards. The motorists concerned receive letters signed by the chief of police warning of the offences.

Four violations bring a summons.

Justice Ignores State Dismissal

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—Chief Justice William Clark of the United States Court of Appeals in Germany today said he has been fired by the Washington state department for "failing to take orders." However, the jurist declared he will ignore the dismissal notice and continue to hold court.

Clark was recently named head of a three-man group assigned by the American Association of Lawyers in Germany to investigate reports that telephones in the headquarters of U.S. high commissioner James B. Conant were equipped with recording devices.

At a press conference today, Clark said he received a cable Monday from the state department declaring him "surplus" and advising that he will not be reappointed when his regular term ends Jan. 8.

"They ordered me back to the United tates for 'consultations' within the next 10 days," he said. "But I am not going to go."

Electors To Choose 14 Of 30 Candidates

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — London electors will vote Dec. 7 to decide the fate of 30 candidates who have qualified to contest 14 municipal offices.

Elections are assured for the mayoralty, city council, public utilities commission, board of education and Victoria hospital trust.

Leave Peiping

TOKYO (AP)—The North Korean delegation headed by Marshal Kim Il Sung left Peiping for home today, Peiping Radio reported. Kim signed an agreement for "economic and cultural co-operation" between Communist China and North Korea Monday. The pact possibly had military codicils, but if so, they were not revealed.

It was a trial flight, preparatory to the start in early February of twice-weekly service between Tokyo and San Francisco by Japan Air Lines.

Prepare Civil Aircraft For Canada's Defence

ARNPRIOR, Ont. (CP) — R. N. Redmayne, manager of the Air Industries and Transport Association, today outlined a plan for mobilization of Canada's 2,000-odd light aircraft for civil defence purposes in case of war.

In a speech prepared for delivery to civil defence transportation officers at the civil defence school here, he said now is the time to make plans and spend money to efficiently utilize these civil aircraft, "not after the first atomic bomb has fallen."

He estimated the initial cost of his proposed plan would be about $25,000—"a minor sum in comparison to other expenditures for civil defence."

CAN RUSH AID

Some of the civil defence roles light aircraft could play were:

1. Trained observers could locate from the air and direct mobile assistance units to damaged areas;

2. Medical aid could be flown into these areas and the critically injured flown out to hospitals in undamaged areas;

3. Police could quickly untangle traffic jams on main highways from loud-speaker-equipped aircraft and firemen could direct fire fighting from such planes;

4. In the event of an atomic blast, aircraft could rapidly locate areas contaminated by radioactivity.

WOULD LIST PILOTS

The names, addresses and experience of pilots to man these light aircraft—as well as a list of available planes—should be gathered by civil defence authorities and this information should be kept up to date, Mr. Redmayne said.

Hundreds of retired air force fliers and civilian pilots in categories not required for military service, are available to fly the planes. There are also more than 225 women fliers in Canada qualified for such service, he said.

New Prosperity In Rich Limestone Area

EMBRO (CP)—A long-term development of rich limestone deposits in West Zorra township, with nest eggs for more than a dozen farmers and possible increased prosperity for Port Burwell on Lake Erie, was announced Tuesday by one of the largest steel companies in the United States.

Republic Steel Corporation announced its Canadian subsidiary, Union Drawn Steel Co., Ltd., has acquired a deposit of open hearth quality limestone near Embro.

C. M. White, president of both firms, said the 1,100 acres of land contain a deposit of high quality stone sufficient to supply Republic's open hearth furnace for several generations.

Geologists told one farmer limestone in the West Zorra area was believed to be "the best in the world."

14 SELL LAND

About 14 farmers have sold land for prices ranging between $130 and $200 an acre. Farmers said they have one year from the date of sale, completed about two weeks ago, to vacate the land.

The limestone will be shipped through Port Burwell where a railway car ferry loads about 30 open coal cars a day. The coal is shipped mainly to Ingersoll and Woodstock and the cars are shipped back empty.

The cars will now return with a pay load which will mean increased activity at Port Burwell which Woodstock has long considered as its Lake Erie port.

Bootlegger Suffers Stomach Complaint

JERSEY CITY, N. J. (AP)—James (Niggy) Rutkin, prohibition bootlegger convicted of evading $250,000 in income taxes, was in fair condition today after a serious stomach operation.

Rutkin was taken to Jersey City medical centre Tuesday night from Hudson county jail. Federal authorities said he is suffering from a serious ulcer ailment.

His suit against some of his rum-running partners, including Joseph H. Reinfeld, went to trial Oct. 5 but ended in a mistrial three weeks later when jurors received letters affecting the case.

Kinmount Girls' Club Elects Joyce Simmonds

KINMOUNT — Joyce Simmonds has been elected president of the Kinmount Girls' Working-with-Wool club. The organization meeting took the form of a supper with 21 girls present. The leaders are Mrs. Anna Hill and Mrs. Thelma Crego.

Other officers are: Vice president, Beryl Anderson; secretary, Joan Phillips and reporters, Pat Gilleland, Mary Kylie and Marilyn J. Hill.—In charge of the supper were Beryl Anderson, Ferne Anderson, Mary Kylie, Rose Allen and the leader.

A study was made of the properties of wool, the fibre and the fabric. Demonstrations were given of the properties of woollen materials and chemical tests to determine the percentage of wool in the garment.

At the First Sign of a COLD

and feel better FAST!

Here's sound and effective advice about colds.

No matter how you try to stop or shorten a cold, the first thing to do—before you do anything else—is to take Aspirin.

You should do this because a cold is almost invariably accompanied by muscular aches and pains—and a headachy, feverish feeling. And for your own good, you need a medication that will relieve these distressing symptoms,—relieve them quickly.

One reason Aspirin tablets bring this relief is that they're ready to go to work with amazing speed . . . actually start disintegrating almost instantly.

So don't experiment with a cold. Use Aspirin. And for sore throats due to colds, gargle 3 times daily with 3 Aspirin tablets dissolved in ⅓ of a glass of water.

To Relieve Aches and Pains of Colds, Take ASPIRIN

Do All Your Christmas Shopping In Peterborough

Far away fields sometimes look green . . . but when it comes to shopping you can't do any better or as well as when you patronize our own merchants. Big City shopping may hold a slight thrill to it . . . but the thrill disappears when you have to walk miles and be pushed and jostled in tremendous crowds . . . Some people think price is an attraction, too—but when you actually compare values, you'll find you are money in pocket when you shop at home.

SHOP EARLY-HERE'S WHY!

★ YOU'LL FIND A MORE COMPLETE SELECTION

By shopping early you are assured of a complete choice of merchandise in all stores . . . and no rush . . . no pushing . . . no bustle.

★ YOU'LL HAVE TIME TO COMPARE VALUES – SAVE MONEY

Hasty gift buying often brings regret and disappointment. It is much better to shop leisurely when you have time to thoroughly inspect gifts you are buying. If you buy early you'll have time to compare values.

★ CLERKS CAN GIVE YOU MORE ATTENTION

Peterborough salespeople are prepared for the Christmas Season. They are eager, alert and ready to serve you. They have more time to serve you now than when the last-minute rush is on.

★ PRICES ARE RIGHT IN PETERBOROUGH

If you have thought of going out of town to "Christmas Shop" check the prices and selections at home first. You'll find that in most cases you'll save money and also the inconvenience of big city shopping, by patronizing our own merchants.

★ YOU'LL HAVE TIME FOR CHRISTMAS PREPARATION

For maximum enjoyment of Christmas, we must create the atmosphere. We need to decorate, clean-up, brighten up, decorate the Christmas tree and place lights in the windows. You can really enjoy all this . . . if you start now.

$100 GIFT to the Community Nursing Registry was made Tuesday by president Joe Brown on behalf of the Lions' Club of Peterborough. Representing the nursing registry is Mrs. Eva Brackenridge, chairman of the board. Mr. Brown said the Lions' Club felt that the registry offered a community service that should be given support. He pointed out that besides being able to contact doctors and nurses through the registry, citizens can get immediate help and advice in emergencies from one of the trained nurses who make up the registry staff. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

McCarthy Says Truman Gov't 'Crawled With Communists'

In his formal rebuttal to former president Truman, McCarthy charged Tuesday night that Truman, while a United States senator and vice-presidential candidate, intervened against the dismissal from government service of George Shaw Wheeler, who later deserted to communism.

McCarthy said that after Truman became president, Wheeler was reinstated, although he had been dismissed as a Communist.

DEFINES "TRUMANISM"

The senator gave this description on what he calls "Trumanism":

"The placing of your political party above the interest of the country, regardless of how much the country is damaged thereby."

The Wisconsin Republican addressed a coast-to-coast television and radio audience Tuesday night in answer to Truman, who had assailed "McCarthyism" in a TV-radio speech a week ago in connection with the Harry Dexter White controversy.

Truman was asleep in bed at his Independence, Mo., home an hour before McCarthy went on the air. Nor was there any immediate comment on McCarthy's speech from President Eisenhower, who is at Augusta, Ga., for the Thanksgiving holiday.

FEARS FOR GOPB

In his reference to the handling of Communists in government, McCarthy said in his speech that he is somewhat concerned that the Republican party "might also fall victim to the same evil which beset the Democrat party and did so much toward destroying this nation."

McCarthy also took the Republican administration to task because there has been no accounting of 900 Americans who are known to have been taken prisoner in the Korean war and who never returned.

Peterborough Mentioned In Story About Ontario

Peterborough gets a paragraph in a richly illustrated article entitled "Ontario, Pivot of Canada's Power", in the December issue of the National Geographic Magazine. Many of the pictures are in color.

This travelogue of the province was written by Andrew H. Brown, staff man of the magazine, who was through the Kawarthas some months ago.

There is no particular merit or significance in the Peterborough reference. It merely mentions a port of call in the Kawarthas, but the whole story is remarkably comprehensive, and reflects Ontario's new developmnts.

The title is "Ontario, Pivot of Canada's Power," and the subhead, "Cities burgeon, pastures sprout, factories, forests and mines give up their wealth in the great midland province."

"Peterborough has given to canoes and boats built there a name as familiar to Canadians as is Old Town to Americans. The pleasant city stands on the Trent Canal where it overcomes the Otonabee River rapids by a series of locks that include a 65-foot hydraulic lift, the world's highest, with a lock chamber that rises and drops. Peterborough welcomes vacationists and fishermen to the Kawartha Lakes."

Outstanding of the picture are those of Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton. Mr. Brown has gone far afield in Ontario, and he did not overlook the Shakespearian festival at Stratford this year.

Winter Storage

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP)—The grain carrier Algocen has tied up at her winter berth here with a storage cargo because of shortage of space in grain elevators. Normally grain vessels do not tie up for the winter until the end of November.

Counties Lawyers Demand Improved Accommodation

COBOURG (ENS)—J. C. M. German, QC, spokesman for the Northumberland and Durham Bar Association, delivered an ultimatum to counties council Tuesday, in regard to the complaint of the lawyers that accommodation for the administration of justice here is inadequate.

In effect, Mr. German said the members of the bar were not concerned how the improvements were made. In fact, if there was to be a squabble between the town of Cobourg and the counties as to whose responsibility it was, the bar association desired to keep out of it. All they wanted was to see that something was accomplished.

As an extra prod, Mr. German reminded the counties council that there was a judgment of Mr. Justice Logie which made it mandatory for the county of Brant to provide adequate court accommodation. The town of Cobourg rents the court office to the counties.

TO RETURN

"This is something for you to think over," Mr. German told the counties council. "'At the January session of next year"s council we will be here to get definite action.

"Section 371 of the Municipal Act, Chaper 246, provides that every county council should furnish all necessary and proper accommodations for the provincial courts. We submit that the accommodation here is entirely inadequate.

"I am president of the district bar assocation, which takes in eight counties and I have looked into the court accommodation in all the places concerned. I am sorry to say that Cobourg is the worst of the lot," said Mr. German.

"'We don't suggest," he continued, "what the counties council should tell the town of Cobourg in securing the necessary improvements, because we do not want to get into any squabble between the town of Cobourg and the counties.

"'We have the best law library in Ontario for the size of the town but we need more room to accommodate additional books. The library is overflowing into the judge's chambers, which are also inadequate. There is so little room in the judge's chambers that interested parties in a case have to crowd out into the adjoining library room to get a seat.

WOMEN JURORS

"There is no robing room for members of the bar. They have to use the library for this purpose. We have four jury sittings a year. We now have women jurors, accommodations for them are also badly lacking," he added.

"There is no room where a lawyer can talk over a case with his client. There is no place to put witnesses during their exclusion from court.

"As members of the bar we are interested in the administration of justice and the public requires that facilities for the administration of justice are proper and adequate. How or where this is accomplished is not our concern. It is your duty as county councillors to carry out our recommendations whether you like it or not. Next year we are going to bring it up again in the shape of a formal demand for action.

H. R. S. Ryan of Port Hope, another spokesman for the bar association, said that it might be a good suggestion to house all the needed court expansion in a wing and that it be built at the rear of the town hall.

Mayor John D. Burnett of Cobourg, on hand for the words of the legal delegation, urged the council to deal with the proposal very carefully. He commented that there was nothing permanent about Mr. Justice Logie's judgment until it was ruled on by the court of appeal.

"What is meant by 'adequate' and who is to determine when that state of affairs has been reached?" he asked. "We are getting near the end of the year and we have no money for the proposed changes. Our present debenture debt is getting dangerously high."

Japanese Seined

Starts Maiden Voyage

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP) — Sweden's new luxury liner, the 22,000-ton Kungsholm of the Swedish-American line, sailed Tuesday night on her maiden trip to New York. Built at a cost of $12,000,000, she can carry 802 passengers, but only 600 were aboard for the maiden trip.

78 Years Married

SAGLE, Idaho (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Hartley, who were married in Tennessee when both were 16, celebrated their 78th wedding anniversary Tuesday. The family—there are 98 descendants including 31 great-great grandchildren—claims the 94-year-old Hartleys have been married longer than any other couple in the country, except for a Texas couple who have been wed 80 years.

BRING BOOK PRICES DOWN—Some 20,000 sign-carrying high school and college students jam the streets of Bandung in West Java, Indonesia, protesting the high price of books. A few of the signs they paraded before the governor's mansion read, "Protect Us from High Book Prices" and "High Book Prices Condemn the Spirit of Study."

Driving Into North African Desert

By PHILIP DEANE

LONDON (OFNS — Tired of the plot and counterplot in Tunis, surfeited with political talk and calumny, exhausted by eager nationalist youths who chose unearthly hours to tell me why they had become political assassins, I drove into the North African desert, under the scalding sun to Kairouan: the holy city of the hundred mosques. For three hours I drove along the Tarmac that cuts into the desert, while the wind of the car's passage stirred a further rust on to the anaemic gorses lining the road. Then, over a hill, the oasis appeared—a small green patch in the dirty cream-colored desert, with at its centre the dazzling whiteness of Kairouan.

The companion of Mohamed, Ogba Ben Nafi, who was said to have carried in his turban a piece of the Prophet's beard, founded this city in the seventh century, when he led the all conquering nomads of Arabia westwards to spread Islam. The legend says that on reaching Kairouan, the Arab conquerors were near destruction. Harassed by Berber mountaineers on his left and by Byzantine galleys on his right, Ogba Ben Nafi had been forced to advance along the desert belt which in Tunisia divides the coastal plain from the mountains. On the site of Kairouan, the companion of the Prophet was wondering where he would find water when he noticed a desert hare digging furiously. And as he watched, water sprang from the burrow of the hare.

WELL OF THE HARE

The well was named Bir Barouta, the Well of the Hare, and it is shown today as proof of the legend. A building surrounds it now, and on the first floor a blindfolded camel spends its life turning the wheel which brings up water from the well to quench the thirst of the faithful.

The camel that I watched at the Bir Barouta was new at its job. Its predecessor had just died of old age, after spending its whole life blindfolded, marching around the well, and its body was sold for meat at fancy prices: for although admittedly tough, was it not a holy camel?

My guide, the French local Governor, piloted me through the market, past the water melons, the pimentos, the slippers, the carpets, the aphrodisiacs and the semolina stands. He exchanged elaborate greetings with the carpet merchants, and let a small boy hang jasmin wreaths around our necks. Then he led me to the Grand Mosque of Kairouan, which was begun by Ogba Ben Nafi.

STONES OF PAGAN TEMPLES

They will tell you in Kairouan that when it was rumoured in the land that there was building in honor of the true faith, the stones of the pagan temples left of their own accord and came to be included in the wall of Ogba Ben Nafi's mosque. And, indeed, these stones there are to be seen, covered with Roman inscriptions. There are walls of them, and whole columns of them to support the roof of the mosque, each column different — doric, ionian, corinthian and Karnatic, the styles mixed naively for the glory of Islam. It is a lovely mosque.

That night my guide took me to see an Arab film. We were late, and the show was delayed to give us time to reach the Governor's box. Then the film began.

A few minutes later, women came in escorted by their men. The jealous Arab husbands of Kairouan, said my companion, never bring their wives to the cinama before the lights go out lest some male glance be cast on them.

Later, five minutes before the end of the film, the jealous husbands led out their wives under cover of darkness. What kind of a world can it be: the world of these women who never see the beginning nor the end of a film?

Three Planes Lost In Area Within Year

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) Disappearance Monday night of an F-89 interceptor plane is the third in the Lake Huron-Superior area within one year.

A single-engined plane carrying fans to the Grey Cup game from Edmonton vanished last Nov. 28 in the Georgian bay region and no trace of it was ever found.

Two Detroiters flying to Wawa, 160 miles north of here, last Aug. 18 were also lost without trace in the Lake Superior region.

June In November

With mid-November temperatures soaring around the unseasonable sixties it seems that Mother Nature is maybe a little befuddled in the seasons. There must be a feeling of real spring in the air because even the willow has become confused. Visiting Chemong lake, Miss Eileen Armstrong, of Peterborough, discovered a willow out in full bud. A specimen branch would indicate that the tree will burgeon into leaf if the warm spell lasts another two weeks. Reports from other areas show that quite a few varieties of trees are similarly affected.

Son Born To Steward As Royal Tour Starts

LONDON (AP)—Raymond Dunkley, chief steward on the royal Stratocruiser Canopus, became the father of a son just five hours before the plane took off Monday night on the first leg of Queen Elizabeth's world tour.

Dunkley told reporters at London airport that he had asked his wife, Norah, whether he should beg off from the trip to be with her. He said she exclaimed:

"Don't do anything of the sort. You have your job to do. Let me get on with mine."

Brantford Hospital Contract Awarded

HAMILTON (CP)—The contract for the Sisters of St. Joseph's Hospital, Brantford, was awarded to the Piggott Construction Company, Limited, of Hamilton, it was announced Tuesday by the Sisters of St. Joseph's through the Brantford committee for the new hospital. The committee was formed by representatives of civic and social service clubs in Brantford.

Construction for the 100-bed hospital will start immediately. It is expected that the job will be completed within 18 months.

Surinam Trade Glory Of Gloucester

WASHINGTON—One of the unlikeliest foreign trades ever known flourished for many years between the quiet fishing port of Gloucester, Massachusetts, and jungled Surinam in northeast South America.

It probably began accidentally when a Gloucester shipmaster, beyond reach of his shipowners on a regular West Indies run—salt codfish for rum—took off on his own little adventure down beyond the Caribbean. The time was between the Revolution and the War of 1812. The captain's name is unknown today, says the National Geographic Society.

Cruising up the steamy Surinam River, the skipper came to Paramaribo, capital of what is now Surinam or Dutch Guiana. There he loaded his ship with such exotic tropical products that the fascinated men of Gloucester were to keep returning for more at least until American Civil War days.

Once they acquired the trade, Gloucester's captains needed all their native Yankee shrewdness to keep it. In the politically unsettled Guianas, the master of a "Surinamer" never knew whether he would be dealing with the Dutch, British, or French when he called. Competitors appeared, the way was long from Cape Ann to the warm seas, and pirates were everywhere.

But for the accident of Surinam, Gloucester might never have had a major foreign commerce of her own. Starting in 1623, Gloucestermen long traded salt cod to Spain and the other Latin countries of southern Europe for fruits and wine. It was not a steady business and brought little profit.

The West Indies runs were shared with the Nova Scotians, and with the pineapple-carrying "pungies" and schooners of the Chesapeake. Such of Gloucester's fishing captains as did not fancy winters on the Banks ran to the Chesapeake for oysters.

The town's halibut fishermen ranged the coasts of Greenland, Labrador and Iceland, but called ashore only for bait and supplies. One famous halibut schooner went to the Pacific Northwest via the Straits of Magellan. There captain and crew taught Pacific fishermen how to catch halibut—and got themselves into trouble by poaching sealskins.

A strange facet of the Surinam was the single-mindedness with whi h Gloucestermen pursued it. One reason was the money in the trade, enough at least for poor fishermen who knew only the hard life on Georges and the Grand Banks. But more compelling yet were the sights and smells on old Gloucester docks piled with redolent cacao, coffee, tropic fruits and precious woods.

Wandering starry-eyed among these treasures, boys of the town grew into young men who believed that Paramaribo was the world. Manning the Surinamers, they kept swinging south until the storms of Hatteras and the ills of old ships claimed the last vessel.

FIGHT TUBERCULOSIS

U.S. Paper Charges Pearson Communist Sympathizer

CHICAGO (CP) — The Chicago Tribune says in an editorial today:

The least that can be said against Lester Pearson and his followers in the Canadian pinko set is that they are dangerous and untruthful. Elements of this tribe in the Dominion Parliament at Ottawa are now trying to turn the facts inside out and are implying that it is the United States, and not Canada, which is guilty of invidious behaviour in the Igor Gouzenko affair. . . .

In an interview last month with the Tribune, Gouzenko said that if he could talk to Sen. Jenner's internal security subcommittee or Sen. McCarthys investigating committee, he felt that the results would be worthwhile. He said that the two senators were doing important and patriotic work. Mr. Jenner then transmitted a request to Canada through the state department that his investigators be permitted access to Gouzenko.

Not only was this request curtly rejected by Mr. Pearson, the Canadian minister of external affairs, but Pearson charged that Gouzenko has been misquoted by the Tribune . . .

The Trubune correspondent then sought out Gouzenko again and took the precaution of getting a signed and witnessed statement from him. Gouzenko attested that there had been no misquotation in the original Tribune interview. He again expressed belief that he could offer advice to Senate investigators and present "good chances of bringing exposure of present Soviet spy rings in the United States in a comparatively short time. . . ."

(In New York Tuesday Pearson said his statement was based on a report from RCMP officers who talked with Gouzenko shortly after publication of the Tribune's interview. The RCMP said Gouzenko told them that the Tribune story was inaccurate.)

As a consequence the Canadian minister of justice, Mr. Stuart Garson, acknowledged that "the Chicago Tribune is right when it says it did not misquote Gouzenko. There has been a little bit of misunderstanding about this."

Coincident with these developments, a second request from Sen. Jenner to interview Gouzenko reached Ottawa through the state department. Mr. Pearson's followers, instead of retiring in confusion, set up a diversionary clamor in Parliament that Mr. Eisenhower owed him an apology for "reflections" cast upon him. The only reflections upon Pearson that are apparent are those he has brought upon himself. The charge was made in Parliament that the United States was trying "to export mccarthyism to Canada." This in the view of the Canadian pinkos is a sufficient rebuttal to the well-founded suspicion that Canadian pearsonism is both untruthful and obstructive.

It was the Canadian pinkos who first crossed the international boundary and attacked Americans in official life. Sen. Taft was given shameful treatment in these circles for presuming to contest Gen. Eisenhower's lordly desire for the presidency. Senators McCarthy and Jenner and Rep. Velde of the House Committee on un-American activities are subject to constant pinko attack in Canada.

The state-controlled Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is a frequent vehicle for smears of this sort. Its representatives and other Canadian correspondents even impugned the fighting qualities of American soldiers who carried the burden of the Korean war. One of these gentlemen said that the feeling of Canada's handful of troops toward Americans in Korea was less that of "hate" than of "contempt."

Mr. Pearson, having been caught in a deliberate falsehood, appropriately appeared before the English-Speaking Union in New York seeking sympathy. He said traitors do less harm than "suspicion and lack of trust" between Allies. The English-Speaking Union is devoted to subordinating America to the British Commonwealth and Dominions, so the sentiment was well received by these fashionable foreign agents.

Just how bad and dangerous the Pearson pinko set may prove to be is something that Americans do not know. But the more the matter is agitated the more it will come to life.

In Ottawa, Mr. Pearson's only comment was:

"I read the editorial and it's completely false and misleading."

LOYALTY IN THE JUNGLE—Carrying a Chinese Nationalist flag and a huge portrait of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, these loyal Nationalist troops leave the Burma jungles and cross into Thailand. In Burma since China fell to the Reds in 1949, they had taken devious routes to avoid the Burmese army on the way home. Later they were taken to Lampang Airport where special planes flew them to Formosa.

Blames Defeat On Supporters

TORONTO (CP) — John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Prince Albert, said Monday night that responsibility for his party's defeat in the last federal election lies with the bottom of the party organization—not the top.

"The responsibility for defeat does not rest on leadership, it rests on us," the Saskatchewan member told a party gathering here.

"We must organize in every part of Canada and enlist young men and women in our ranks. Only with the assistance of business and professional men, labor and agriculture will we rebuild our party."

Mr. Diefenbaker said Progressive Conservative principles, under the leadership of George Drew, will be acceptable to Canadians in years ahead.

Timber Structures Appoints New Executives

Executive and vice-president of Timber Structures of Canada Limited Ralph H. Fullbright announced two important executive appointments today.

John Hockridge, 41, former manager of the company's Toronto sales office for the past year, is to be general sales manager for Canada. Born in Cedarville, Ont., and educated in Vancouver, Mr. Hockridge was first employed with the Dominion Bank for seven years on the West Coast. He joined the plywood division of H. R. McMillan Sales Company of Vancouver and later was transferred to their Ontario branch.

During his residence in the east, Mr. Hockridge and his wife, the former Margaret Paddock of Regina, lived in Norwood; they have two young children. He is a veteran of the second World War, having spent four years with the RCA, and demobilizing with the rank of lieutenant.

ASSOCIATE ENGINEER

The second appointment promotes Robert F. Degrace, 35, from general sales manager of Eastern Canada to associate engineer for the Canadian company. Born in England, he went to Seattle at an early age, received his education there and graduated in civil engineering from the University of Washington. Mr. Degrace came to Peterborough with Timber Structures in 1951 as divisional engineer. His new position will take him to New Westminster shortly.

Mr. Degrace was with the RCAF as Squadron Leader and was a navigator serving at various North American bases during the Second World War. He is married to the former Margaret Macauchlin and has four children. Mr. Degrace is a Kiwanian and member of St. George's Anglican church.

OTHER KEY

Other key men of the Peterborough plant are Russell Williamson, general superintendent; William Cooper, in charge of technical control; Russel C. Darling, outside erection superintendent; Ted Mercer, Eastern division engineer and K. W. Bolan, assistant secretary-treasurer and comptroller.

Asked to comment on a recent mass lay-off at the Peterborough plant, vice-president Fulbright said it was due to the West Coast strikes that caused a ten-day lag in Timber deliveries to this city.

"Things are very bright for us indeed," said Mr. Fulbright. "Right now we have more than a quarter of a million dollars' worth of unfilled orders on our books. Future plans for the Peterborough plant will make it a very busy place."

Left China To Attend Son's Wedding

NIPAWIN, Sask. (CP) — Frank Choy of Nipawin manoeuvred his mother out of Communist China by the simple device of sending her an invitation to attend his wedding.

Frank's father, Joe Choy, came to Canada 24 years ago, leaving his wife and son behind. Frank arrived here four years ago.

When the Communists took over China, Mrs. Choy, 63, owned a quarter-section of land in a village near Canton where she raised a small rice crop. Because she was a landlord, her land was taken from her and she was punished by being assigned to a road gang.

She worked a year before being released from pick and shovel detail, receiving no wages, clothes and the poorest of food. Mr. Choy sent her money from Nipawin at intervals.

Dedicated to the task of getting his wife out of China, Mr. Choy saw an opportunity when his son went to Hong Kong to marry a girl he met there in 1948, Yvonne Loui. Frank wrote to his mother asking her to attend the wedding and Mrs. Choy used it to get permission to leave Canton for three months. She never returned.

It took five months to get permission from the Canadian government to bring Mrs. Choy to Canada. The trip cost the family about $6,000.

Seals Take Toll Of Game Fish

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Seals are taking a large toll of fish in Labrador, and there may be a species of trout in the little-known territory that anglers have never seen.

These interesting reports were made by a federal survey team that visited Labrador's salmon rivers to learn what protective and conservation measures are necessary for the fishery.

The party found that harbor or bay seals—not the fur-bearing species—were eating a large number of small and large game fish. Other predators were mergansers, kingfishers and ospreys.

There now is a $10 bounty on seals.

Eskimos and white trappers in the Lake Melville area of central Labrador told about a fairly large fish called "kokamich" that lives in some far-inland lakes.

Although their description didn't fit any fish known to the biologists, they believe it is some species of lake trout. Angling was good in every district except in the Lake Melville area.

Canada May Eventually Break Japan's Seed Oyster Monopoly

VANCOUVER (CP)—In Pendrill sound, near Bute inlet, 130 miles northeast of here, are myriads of baby oysters, successful result of an experiment which may ultimately break the Japanese monopoly of seed oysters.

The bivalves are only slightly larger than a grain of sand, but next spring they will be taken to a Pacific coast oyster bed, there to thrive and eventually land in stew-pot or frying pan.

Water and temperature must be exactly right before oysters will spawn. So every year about 60,000 cases of seed have had to be imported from Japan to meet British Columbia and Puget sound demands.

Last spring a group of fishermen formed the Pacific Oyster Seed Company to take advantage of the natural seeding advantages of the sound.

Thirty thousand strings of old oyster shells had to be prepared. At one time 70 adults and children were kept busy at Ladysmith, Fannybay, Crescent and other oyster grounds, poking holes into old shells and stringing them on wires.

The heavy strings were then taken to Pendrill sound where they were suspended into the water over log rafts.

LONG WAIT

Then came the long wait to see if adult oysters already growing on the shores would spawn and if their spat would settle on the shell strings.

In mid-September a successful set was achieved. An average of about 25 oyster larvae settled on each shell. Next spring the shells will be taken from the water and delivered to growers for planting in their beds. The yield will be about 5,000 cases compared with Japanese imports of 60,000 cases.

SHARE FOR EVERYONE—These nine perky terrier pups seem to have all they can handle as they size up a four-foot mastodon bone. The litter of five males and four females was the first for Pixie and Sparkey, both owned by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph S. Stutsman, of Goshen, Ind. The bone was found behind the Stutsman's home.

French Soldier, A Missionary To Berber Tribes In Morocco

By PHILIP DEANE

LONDON (OFNS) — Whatever complaints one may hear against the French in Morocco, one will never hear a Moroccan nationalist speak against the "Officiers des Affaires Indigenes."

These are the army officers who deal with the tribes in the wild Atlas mountains. Their territory is called a "circle," and their headquarters is known as the "bureau." In just such a bureau, in a small town among the mountains, lives a young French captain. He has a crew hair-cut, blue eyes, and the expression one associates with a priest rather than a fighter; yet the medals on his chest were not won by teaching Sunday school—although, in fact, he does now teach it one. At least, he teaches a school on Sundays. Every Sunday, when he should be resting, he helps out the overworked teaching staff, giving courses in science, mathematics and French to the little Berber children who come to the school from the mountain villages nearby.

TEACHES ON DAY OFF

He teaches on his day of rest; on the other six days he roams about his territory. He is a whole cabinet of ministers rolled into one, and he is everything else: doctor, architect, judge. I watched him, in a small village, inspecting children's eyes for trachoma. Then he guided the work of a group of natives who were digging a sewer. He wiped his brow with the back of his arm, rubbed his hands to get rid of the earth that clung to them. "Isn't it wonderful, our sewer?" he asked me earnestly. And it was.

Then there was a case to try. Mohamed had repudiated his wife, and he would not pay her any maintenance. The Caid (local Moroccan official) was going to try the case the next day; but the captain knew Mohamed and his wife. They were a good couple, unusually fond of one another, even though they were quarrelsome. Mohamed had the right to divorce his wife, paying her maintenance for three months. Legally, the case was already decided.

The captain, however, wanted to do something about it.

"Mohamed," he said offering a cigarette to the majestic, white-haired man who sat opposite him, "you know I have always esteemed you. Did I not come to your son's wedding? Have I not treated you as a friend and asked you to honour my house?"

"You have no daughters to look after you. You are too old to have a young wife. The young men will make jokes about you if you marry a young wife and she gives you no son.

"Your wife Lailah has been a good wife to you. Have not the sons she bore you earned medals for their bravery? She cooks better than any other woman in the tribe. She honours you by pleasing your guests. Go away now, I have work to do; and do not disappoint me."

Then the captain turned to me and said: "Let's go to inspect an experiment. A friend of mine in the agricultural department in Rabat sent a plane out here and sprayed the fields with weed killer. The tribesmen were suspicious. They cannot believe that plant poison will kill the weeds and leave the wheat standing.

"They say weeds are much stronger than wheat. How could they die first?

"Do you know about weed killers? I only hope this has worked. These people are like great children. They look up to us. If this has gone wrong they will be terribly hurt."

There was a large gathering of tribesmen, on their horses, blocking our view of the field. They sat on their mounts in unusual silence. A way was made for us.

WITHERING WEED

Among the straight, fine stalks of the wheat we could see the withering weeds turning into brittle corkscrews.

"Aren't they wonderful, these corkscrews?" said the captain, a sound of relief in his voice.

A tall, elderly man approached. "We want to say that you Frenchmen are powerful people. You have made a medicine that thinks like a farmer. It kills the bad weeds and leaves the good wheat alone. We did not believe you. We were wrong."

"Aren't they wonderful people?" the captain said earnestly, his face shining with missionary fervour. And he added as an afterthought: "Don't print my name, will you? My superiors dislike that. We are not individuals, you know, we are a corps with a mission."

REVERSING THE ORDER—It's somewhat unusual, but Charles Macklin makes the rounds with his 1,200-gallon tank truck, putting water into wells on farms near Adel, Iowa. The measure was necessitated by prolonged drought throughout the midwest.

Saar Would Be Centre Of Federation

WASHINGTON. — Europe's most densely populated region—the coal-rich Saar on the Franco-German border—is bidding to become the centre of the proposed European Federation.

The Saar, a 990-square-mile section of the Moselle river basin, might acquire a status similar to the District of Columbia if nations of Western Europe unite. Both German and French officials favor the change-over.

Once part of Germany, the area has been a semi-independent state since 1947, linked economically and politically with France.

Levelled by wartime bombing and shelling, Saar industry is again operating at capacity. More than 16,000,000 tons of coal were mined last year. Reserves are estimated at more than five billion tons, enough for three centuries. Its huge steel mills produce 3,000,000 tons of steel annually. Total production in 1952 was valued at $538 million, one-third higher than in 1938, the previous peak.

Some 70,000 workers, a fourth of the total Saar labor force, produce seven per cent of the steel of "Little Europe," the six-nation group that pools its output under the Schuman Plan. Minimum wage is $60 a month, not much below the average wage in neighboring Germany. Unemployment is less than one percent.

All the Saar's iron ore for steel comes from the nearby French province of Lorraine. Most of its food also comes from France. The Saar could live only 50 to 60 days on its own agricultural output.

Other leading Saarland industries include chemicals, ceramics, foodstuffs, glassware and building materials. Its goods are marketed in 88 countries, with France accounting for 87 percent of its wholesale trade.

The Saar, an area only half the size of Long Island, is almost solidly German. There is not even a French minority of permanent residents. Language, culture, traditions ,and educational system are all German. Native Saarlanders, however, are often smaller and darker in coloring than Germans, suggesting traces of early pre-German peoples.

France occupied the territory following both World Wars. In 1935 a plebiscite returned it to Germany by a nine-to-one vote. During the Second World War, 65,000 Saar dwellings were demolished, leaving more than a fourth of the 960,000 inhabitants homeless. One house in fifteen was destroyed, compared to one out of 22 in France and one out of 65 in Great Britain.

In postwar years the Saar has been a member of the French customs union and shares in revenues. It uses the franc as currency. France operates the region's 18 coal mines under a 50-year lease and is responsible for its military protection and foreign relations.

Nova Scotia Harnessed Almost All Water Resources

HALIFAX (CP) — Nova Scotia has harnessed almost all its water power resources.

J. D. Mackeen, president of the Nova Scotia Light and Power Co., says al economically feasible hydro-electric power sites have been developed. From now on the increasing demands of power users will be met by additional steam plants.

Both the company and the government-financed Nova Scotia Power Commission have turned to steam turbines to supply electricity. The two organizations generate the bulk of Nova Scotia's power requirements.

NSLP generates 55 per cent of its power by coal-fired steam turbines. The proportion is jumping yearly. By 1954 it probably will be two-thirds.

NEW GENERATOR

This month the company got up steam in a new 30,000-horsepower generator on the Halifax waterfront.

Nova Scotia Light and Power pays $12 a ton for Cape Breton slack coal delivered direct to the power plant by boat.

Mr. Hayes said coal is 50 per cent of the operating cost and he hopes to get a lower price.

Coal mine owners look to electric-power plants as a great potential market that will help revitalize their ailing industry in the next 10 or 15 years.

Former King Sent Army Strike Ended In Oil Field

By THOMAS LITTLE

CAIRO (OFNS)—The King of Saudi-Arabia, Abdel Aziz Ibn Abdel Rahman El-Saud, was dead and buried within three hours. That was on November 9. The news rippled through the Middle Eastern Press for three days; and now one might imagine he was already forgotten, or that he had never changed the political map of the Middle East.

But he is not and cannot be forgotten. For what will happen in the Arabian desert now that he is gone? Can the new King, Saud, lead the desert delicately forward on the road of progress, as his father did before him, without bringing protests down from puritanical Islam.

To the Arabian-American Company (Aramco) which is exploiting the Hasa oilfields, these questions are of great importance. For a long time Aramco has enjoyed relative peace, free from the political turmoil in which other Middle Eastern oil companies have found themselves involved. That peace was the King's law, which kept tribes quiet and workers at work. When, a few weeks before the King died, the Arabic workers at the Aramco installations at Dharan went on strike for pay and conditions equal to those of the American staff, the King sent down the Army, and the strike ended.

CANNOT BE NICE

It was not, perhaps in the best traditions of United States democracy; but an oil company, working with tens of thousands of people in the wilderness, cannot afford to be nice about such things. It was sufficient that the old King kept the country safe and able to produce oil. The company will be obliged if the new King does likewise.

The Aramco strike, brief though it was, demonstrated the difficulty of handling people in the oil fields. There is no doubt that Aramco has provided the Arabs with better living conditions than any except some of the Palestinian importees have ever known or dreamed of. But the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company did the same in Persia. Material well-being can stimulate discontent as well as make life more comfortable.

Aramco has, in actual fact, done its utmost to encourage material progress in the Saudi Arabian kingdom as a whole. It has given advice, technical aid, loans gifts—almost all thing within its power—to quicken the rate of progress.

Presumably it hopes to forestall nationalist antagonisms at a later day by identifying itself with progressive trends. Radical forces do exist in Saudi Arabia, murmuring against the waste of the nation's wealth by the Royal Family and its satellites. Aramco sympathises to some extent with such murmurings, and rightly considers it a pity that more is not done for the country with the immense wealth gained from its oil.

But Aramco is realist enough to know that the desert tribes have been pacified only by the strong arm and the money of King Ibn Saud. The future conditions under which Aramco will work depend, to a great extent, on the King. It is his game, and none but he can play it.

FOR THE PEOPLE

An Iraqi politician, asked over the dinner-table what he thought of votes for women, replied promptly: "In my opinion, the fewer people who vote the better it is."

In his case the remark was in character, but it is, nevertheless, a view-point stated more frequently in the Middle East in recent months than in all the years since the democratic system began to be introduced.

There is no question that the Middle East remains welded to the idea of democracy. But there is a growing belief among certain sections of the educated population in Arab countries that too close a parallel with Western methods is not sucessful. They want something to replace these methods, but are not yet sure what that something should be.

A pamphlet produced by the National Unionist Party in the Sudan election campaign which is now taking place expresses the idea. In its own inimitable English it says:

"We shall create for our country a real 'Sudanese' democracy created from reality and factual circumstances, conditions and potentialities of the country, by no means brought or imported from abroad, for it has become evident that the relapse which the Middle East and other countries are suffmering was the natural result of importations from Europe comprising democratic theories and principles for the art and philosophy of rule imposed and adopted by force in the countries and on their peoples."

IDEA IMPORTED

It is posible that the idea was itself imported, in this case, from the Egyptian leaders with whom the National Unity Party is connected. What it means in the Sudan is anybody's buess, for at present the Sudan appears to be working towards a simple type of parliamentary democracy based on the Party system.

In Egypt and in Syria, however, it has a meaning. There is no doubt that the Egyptian (military) Council of Revolution, and President Sheshekly of Syria, are trying to evolve a new system of democracy in which considerable power will remain at the centre. The ideal seems to be modification of the United States system, with an elected President who would, during his term of office, have a large measure of authority.

At the recent opening of the new Syrian Parliament, President Sheshekly invited political opposition and a healthy competition for the national good. No one in Syria was deceived into supposing that he was inviting the old form of political opposition, with Parliaments and Governments coming and going at regular intervals. Political opposition was to be no more than a stimulant to the Government which would remain in power under President Sheshekly's benevolent rule.

The Egyptian leaders have a constitutional committee elaborating a new Constitution; but the significant development is probably the Liberation Rally, formed by the Council of Revolution. It seems to point towards one-Party Government when the transitional period is completed. There has certainly never been any suggestion that the leadership of Egypt is likely to change very much when parliamentary government is restored.

Capture Rhine's Grandeur In Colored Film

Curtis Nagel, a pioneer in technical color photography, presented a film at the PCVS auditorium, Tuesday night, which portrayed all the grandeur that the Rhine river, Europe's central waterway, has ever passed.

Filming the birth of the river in the Swiss Alps, Mr. Nagel has followed its course to the sea. Accompanying the film is a sound track of Wagnerian music, which, adequately interprets the physical beauty, and surmounted by his dramatic commentary, the film thrilled the audience.

Pictures of the Alps are colored by the native folk, their costume, and their dances.

Bavaria, with its medieval atmosphere, is captured in the candid views of its, people and its alpine countryside. Men and women dancing in native costume, and to native music of the 16th century, completely unaware of the modern machine that is recording them, is an achievement which few photographers may boast of.

INTO MIDDLE AGES

As the film progresses, the audience found themselves tensely slipping by the fortresses of old, giant, grey structures of stone and concrete, medieval castles which inspired musicians such as Wagner and Beethoven, peer gloomily down upon the modern intruder.

The peace of the Rhine, as it flows through the Rhur valley, is like a pensive interlude.

But instead of entering into a more somber area, the Rhine switches into Holland where gaiety and lightness overshadow the previous atmosphere. The Black Forest, the medieval stones are forgotten. Laughter, wine and color dispell the majestic gloom, and the horizon is crowded with views of the bobbing fields of tulips.

Eventually the Rhine passes Amsterdam and opens its mouth to the sea, and the past joins the present in quiet fusion.

The third presentation in the Kiwanian Travel and Adventure Club series, Mr. Nagel's film was a work of beauty, well received.

Few Toppers Being Worn Had Their Day Of Glory

A sartorial die-hard will read, today, with qualified rapture that no less than 26 stationmasters are officially privileged to wear top hats and that several stations have recently been added to the smart set, relates The Times of London.

But his first hope of a nationalized industry keeping the flag of elegance flying in a utility age must be dashed by the postscript that, when some present wearers retire, their successors will be shorn of the glory.

LAST STRONGHOLDS

One by one the strongholds of a proud, masculine ornament have been stormed. Reference, two years ago, in the House of Commons to the shining array of top hats which used to adorn the benches was greeted with laughter. Worse, a solitary survivor was thrown across the floor of the House as though it had been a Rugby football.

Yet a man does not need to be more than middle-aged to remember the suburban stations at eight o'clock in the morning crowded with top-hatted season-ticket holders. Earlier than that—but still within living memory—bank holiday groups of fishermen were to be seen among the high reeds on the Broads complete with top hats. Post office linemen wire the inevitable badge of dignity, and so did Thames pilots, which, in their case, was called a "storm drum," after the signal hoisted at coastguard stations.

WORN BY BOYS

Schoolboys from the age of 12 or less went to church in top hats, even if they did not all submit them to the rough-and-tumble ordeals of weekdays. Chairmen at Quarter Sessions and sportsmen on the river or the cricket field followed the fashion.

Now, except for weddings and occasional ceremonies, the silk topper is in retreat. Its reign was less long than is sometimes thought, for it only usurped the throne of the beaver-skinned topper in the last century. As late as the Eighties, a social observer might still — though only very occasionally perhaps — find a beaver outside a museum. As early as that, too, the rebels were beginning to mutter their treason.

DISLIKED BY AUTHOR

"How I do hate a top hat," Jerome K. Jerome, of Three Men in a Boat fame, confessed about that date. "Another top-hat Ascot," Robert Hichens protested at the turn of the century. "I wish the Prince of Wales would set the fashion of billycocks." Such weakness made easy the winning of popularity by what was once disapprovingly described as the "vagabond hat" and it, in later years, has been charged by the hatless brigade.

Men have ceased to care what, if anything, they wear on their heads. Soon it will be impossible to revive that hardest of perennial jokes about top hats. "Do you see anything ridiculous in my hat, sir?" "Nothing but your head, sir." That needs the swagger given in the old drawings to "well-dressed gent"—and he, poor man, top hat in hand, is bowing his way out.

Near East Said A Military Vacuum

NEW YORK—Although the Near East is one of the most strategic areas in the East-West cold war, it is practically a military vacuum.

The whole area contains only one army really worthy of the name —the Defence Army of Israel. Although small, when compared with the armed forces of the great powers, it is, nevertheless, the only dependable ally the United States has in that critically important part of the world.

The Israel Defence Army — which derives its name from its forerunner, Haganah, which means "defence" has come a long way since 1948, when unequipped and partly outnumbered, it fought off the invading armies of seven Arab states.

When the war ended in December of that year, Israel had about 150,000 men under arms, with about 355,000 serving at the front. Today, the Defence Army numbers about 355,000 but in event of an emergency, it could be expanded almost overnight to 100,000.

Within two or three months, it could reach an overall figure of 200,000 which would make it not only the largest army in the area, but almost as large as all the armed forces of all the Arab states combined.

This is so because although Israel is outnumbered by its Arab neighmors by 40-to-1, the Arabs labor under a staggering high rate of malnutrition, disease and illiteracy, coupled with a lack of military training and equipment. It is improbably that the Arabs could muster more than 15 divisions in a crisis.

Israel's defence system is composed of four major elements: the regular army; the national service conscripts; the reserves; and the frontier settlements.

Its small but highly mobile regular army is the nucleus of the armed forces. Organizzed in 1950, the army is commanded by young officers (its Chief of Staff is 33) who received their initial training in the British Army while serving in the Jewish Brigade during World War II.

National conscription brings all young men and unmarried women between the ages of 18 and 26 into the army, the men serving for two and one-half years, the women for two. In an effort to transform a heterogeneous mass of native-born Israelis and recent arrivals into a homogenous group, Israel has embarkked on a course of training unique in military history.

Each conscript receives an intensive three-month course in basic training and is then sent for a mine-month period to a frontier settlement where he spends half the day in training and half in agriculture. At the end of the year he has the choice of remaining in the settlement or learning a military specialty.

The third factor in Israel's army is the reserve. Numerically it is by far the most important element of the army, for it includes all men up to the age of 49 and women without children up to the age of 34.

The fourth element in Israel's military set-up is the chain of frontier settlements which are all highly armed and trained to stave off aggression until the army can come up and deal with the enemy.

These settlements were reponsible in 1948 for stopping the Syrian and Lebanese forces in the north, the Egyptians in the south, and slowing down the Arab Legion in the east.

Anti-British 'Incidents' Prevalent In Suez

LONDON (AP) — Britain has complained to Egypt that the number of anti-British incidents in the Suez canal zone is mounting, the foreign office said Tuesday.

A spokesman, citing a report issued by British army authorities in the disputed zone, told a press conference 44 incidents took place in the two weeks ending Nov. 21. Attacks on British personnel and thefts from military depots formed the major number of these, he charged.

Laminated Bat What Will It Do To Baseball?

NEW YORK (AP) — When the rules committee of professional baseball voted to permit the use of laminated bats during the 1954 season, it was the first big change in the specifications of the baseball bat since the first rule was passed in 1876. And it left a lot of fans wondering just what is a laminated bat and what effect it will have on baseball next season.

Instead of being made from a solid piece of ash wood, a laminated bat is composed of four strips of ash and one of hickory, glued together under pressure and then turned and sanded into shape like any other bat. That's where it gets the name—from the strips, or laminae.

It's more durable than solid wood, a bit more resilient and capable of absorbing shocks, usually better balanced and has a better "feel."

But so far as producing baseballs, the only difference will be that a hitter isn't as likely to break a favorite stick and have to use one in which he has less confidence. Even so, some pitchers have begun to growl that the manufacturers do everything to help the hitters and nothing for the hurlers.

Asked Loan To Start Revolution

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Some years ago a mild, professional looking man came into banker Garry Stolzberg's office and said he wished to borrow $5,000.

Asked the purpose of the loan, the visitor leaned forward and said with candid modesty:

"I want to start a revolution, and I can't do it for a penny less than $5,000."

"Although the government he wanted to overturn was somewhere in middle Europe, he had to leave without the money. But he appeared completely satisfied with Stolzberg's answer that a bank can't legally lend money to finance a revolution.

"That's the oddest request I've had in 33 years of banking," Stolzberg recalled. In that time Stolzberg, vice-president of the Commercial State Bank and Trust Company, has checked on 300,000 loan applications involving $400,000,000.

HIGH FINANCE

Personal loans to the working man and the small business man have become high finance in the last quarter-century. United States banks in 1952 made 100,000,000 such loans totalling $13,000,000,000. And this doesn't include the people still loyal to the pawn shops.

The mushrooming of the personal loan field has made the banker a student of human nature, and, as Stolzberg puts it amiably, "bankers no longer bleed when they have to smile."

"Sometimes I don't know whether I'm a banker or a football referee. Many customers come to me with family arguments and want me to settle them on the spot."

One such customers insisted that Stolzberg have a long chat alone with his fiancee in the bank office. Later the man anxiously inquired what he thought of her. Stolzberg said he thought she was very nice, and the fellow replied:

"Good. We've made arrangement to be married tomorrow, I just wanted to be sure you thought she was a good risk."

RISK FACTORS

What factors influence a banker in considering personal loans?

"Character comes first," said Stolzberg. "When a man doesn't know exactly how much he needs, what he wants it for, or how he can pay it back—well, you have to be dubious.

"The best piece of advice I can give a young married man is never to have financial secrets from his wife. If he will tell her the full truth about their situation, no matter how limited her mentality is she will know what she can afford and what she can't."

Norwegians Lead Antarctic Whaling Expeditions

LONDON (AP)—Fourteen whaling expeditions are heading out of European ports for the Antarctic in the annual big money hunt for the sea monsters.

Most of the elaborate factory ships—accompanied by their convoys of catching vessels—have already begun the long voyage to the south polar waters. The season for fin whales opens Jan. 2 and for blue whales Jan. 16.

The sea-faring Norwegians again lead the field with nine whaling expeditions and one each are from Russia and the Netherlands. They will be joined by two from Japan and one from South Africa.

About 210 catching vessels will accompany the 17 floating factories, which are completely equipped to process the giants. It costs more than $2,000,000 to finance an expedition for one season.

MOST VALUABLE PRODUCT

When the factory ships come back in the early spring, the most valuable product in their holds will be whale oil, used to make margarine and cooking fats. Choice whale meat, stringy and fishy tasting, will be aboard for humans in countries such as Britain and Japan. Here and in North America, it is also fed to pets.

COMPETE FOR CATCH

There will also be whale bone—destined to keep milady's corset in shape. And from the harder-to-find sperm whales will come sperm oil for machinery and the rare, precious ambergris, used as a fixative in perfume.

With the season's catch of fin and blue whales limited by the International Whaling Commission, the expeditions will be scrambling for the biggest share of the overall permissible catch.

RADIO IN REPORTS

The expeditions are required to radio in reports on the size of their catch. When the joint total approaches the limit, the commission calls off the hunt.

The commission, formed to prevent extinction of the whales by modern equipped hunters, is reported ready to cut down the total catch this season by 500 blue whale units to 15,500. One blue whale equals two fin whales. The regulations don't apply to sperm whales.

The price of whale oil has been slipping steadily in post-war years. This season's Norwegian output, bought in advance, went for $191.10 a ton compared to last season's $200.20.

East Germany Builds Up Its Forces

By RICHARD LOWENTHAL

BERLIN—(OFNS) — Efforts to expand and stiffen the East German (military) People's Police into a regular satellite army have received a new impetus in the last two months, parallel with the new hardening of Russia's German policy.

The rooting-out of unreliable elements and the release of agricultural workers, which began in June as part of the new economic policy, ended in September with a total reduction of only ten thousand men, stabilising the total land and sea forces at about 125,000. The district registration offices have since been reopened for the recruitment of youngsters.

The main effort, however is now aimed at overcoming the dangerous shortage of cadres by the recruitment of technical specialists and former Wehrmacht (armed forces) officers, preferably with wartime experience on the Western Front. Both the return to East Germany of Field-Marshal Paulus from Russian captivity, and the publicity given to the capture of former Wehrmacht officers said to have worked for Western intelligence, are part of a campaign to persuade reluctant ex-officers that their prospects are better on the Eastern side.

ILL-HEALTH

Whether Paulus has really been given the job of "military adviser" to the national armed forces to be is not yet clear. But it is a fact that the former Chief of Staff and Deputy Minister of the Interior, General Vincentz Mueller, has retired because of ill-health. The joint command of all three Services is now in the hands of a former Communist Youth leader, Lieut.-General Heinz Hoffmann, to whom his naval and air colleagues have been subordinated.

The reorganization of the Army units into homogeneous divisions, which began last spring with the formation of three such divisions in the "Army Group North," is now being speeded up in other parts of the Eastern Zone, and a parallel "Army Group South" has been formed. At the same time, fresh efforts are being made to hide the military character of the formations: for instance, by dropping unit names such as "division" and "regiment" in favour of the formerly-used name of "police unit". Preparations are also far advanced for introducing, early in 1954, military courts for the maintenance of discipline.

The so-called "Air Police" has now reached the strength of one so-called "Air Division" and one ground-support division. In addition to the Soviet planes hitherto used for training, the introduction of the first MiG-15 planes has been promised for this autumn. One reason for the nervousness shown by the East German authorities during recent incidents in the Kottbus area appears to be that the headquarters of the new Air Force is situated there.

If, said the council, it were withdrawn from collective bargaining, "there was no reason why other questions should not also be withdrawn with the result that free collective bargaining would be a thing of the past."

Under a check-off union dues are deducted by the employer from an employee's cheque.

Reporting on other labor matters, the council said the Ontario division of the CMA has made several proposals to the Ontario minister of labor.

ASK NEW DEFINITION

One was that the definition of "strike" should be amended to include the "secondary boycott". Another asked for steps "to put more responsibility on trade unions for unlawful strikes and unlawful picketing."

The Ontario division also asked for inclusion in the list of unfair practices under the Labor Relations Act, "picketing where a strike is declared unlawful and also picketing where there is no dispute between the employer and employees in the plant which is being picketed."

Tug Lost

LONDON (Reuters)—The British tug Gespa sank Tuesday night in the Thames after colliding with the 1,779-ton British freighter Malmo. All five crew members were taken off safely by another tug.

Campbellford Couple To Visit Homeland

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Morgan were surprised on Monday night as about 20 friends gathered at their home to say farewell before Mr. and Mrs. Morgan leave for England.

Mr. and Mrs. Morgan were presented with a sum of money and the good wishes of all. The presentation was made by Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Davidson. The evening was spent in games.

Mr. and Mrs. Morgan will leave tonight and sail for England from Montreal on Friday. It is 33 years since they visited their homeland.

Hastings News

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Brooks have returned from Toronto where they attended the Royal Winter Fair and visited with friends.

Sunday visitors wtih Mr. and Mrs. Percy Beavis were Mr. and Mrs. Loyal Chrysler and son, Larry of Campbellford, and Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Beavis of Peterborough.

British Ship Stopped

HONG KONG (AP)—The British freighter Inchwells radioed that a Chinese Nationalist warship intercepted her in Formosa strait today but released her two hours later after a check of ship's papers. The 2,750-ton vessel was en route to the Red port of Foochow in ballast from Shanghai.

Rotary Club Celebrates 25th Birthday

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — A beautiful birthday cake with silver decorations topped by a silver Rotary wheel graced the head table at the Rotary club luncheon on Monday as Rotarians observed the 25th anniversary of the founding of the club.

Past President Art Loucks, chief speaker, reviewed briefly the history of the club and read the names of the charter members and past presidents.

The club was formed in Campbellford with Belleville as sponsors. He outlined the highlights of the club's progress through the past 25 years.

CHARTER MEMBERS

Of the charter members, there were four present: H. N. Carr, A. D. Bennett, Eli Brunelle and Alex MacColl. Rotarian Mack Robertson, who was president of the parent Belleville club at the time of institution, was the honored guest.

Mr. Robertson spoke briefly, saying that the success of the Campbellford club was entirely due to the efforts of its members and not anything that had been done by the sponsors.

Harold Carr, Dwight Bennett, Alex MacColl and Elie Brunelle spoke briefly, recalling some of the interesting things which occurred in the early days of the club.

United Nations And Communist China

By PETER STURSBERG

UNITED NATIONS—(OFNS) — Some United Nations delegates believe that one of the matters which is certain to be considered at the the Big Three meeting in Bermuda next month, between President Eisenhower of the United States, Sir Winston Churchill, British Prime Minister, and M. Joseph Laniel, Premier of France, is the question of Chinese representation at the United Nations. A leading Asian representative here feels sure that Sir Winston will bring up this subject at the first available opportunity.

American representatives have frankly admitted that one of the purposes of the Bermuda conference is to try to restore the old unanimity of the Western Powers in dealing with the Communist world; they have even said that this is the actual reason for the meeting. Among the disagreements between the United Kingdom and the United States is this same question of Chinese representation; this was revealed at the opening of the present Assembly, when the Americans wanted to put off the whole issue for a year, while the British would only agree to shelving it for three months, till the beginning of next year. The Assembly accepted the shorter postponement, and thus the question will come up again in January and is a matter of urgency for the Bermuda conference.

BRITISH HAVE HEDGED

So far, the British have given no sign that they would be in favor of the admission of the Chinese Communists next year, and they have hedged any comments on this with all kinds of conditions which would have to be met beforehand.

About the only direct vote there has been on this issue—the other votes were on postponement —occurred at the beginning of the fifth General Assembly in 1950. At that time, sixteen countries, including the United Kingdom, all of whom had recognised the Peking regime, voted to seat the Chinese Communists. Although not many more countries have recognized the Government of Mao-Tse-tung, and although the United States could whip up enough votes to defeat any move to admit the Chinese Communists in the foreseeable future, the Americans are nevertheless resigned to eventually having to give way on this issue.

Just recently, Mr. John Foster Dulles, the Secretary of State, said that the United States did not rule out the possibility of recognizing Communist China, and could not prevent Peking representatives being seated in the United Nations. His statement has been hailed by some as a preparation of American public opinion for the inevitable; but Mr. Dulle's ifs and buts seemed to the Asian supporters of Communist China to be considerable, and they are not so sanguine.

On occasions, the Americans have said that they would veto the entry of the Chinese Communists into the United Nations; at other times, they have admitted that they could not do this, and Mr. Dulles now seems to have come round to this opinion, which is generally held here. This is not a question of admitting a new State, which would be subject to the veto, but merely a matter of credentials which could be decided by a simple majority vote.

Apparently, the Americans would not be so much opposed to the seating of the Chinese Communists if it were not for two factors: firstly, they are concerned about them taking over one of the permanent seats on the Security Council and thus acquiring the right of veto; and, secondly, they are worried about the fate of the Chinese Nationalists and of Formosa, for which they feel responsible.

CHARTER REVISION

As far as the first point is concerned, there is some talk here that they might solve this by a U.N. Charter revision, whereby India would be given China's seat as a permanent member of the Security Council; however, the Indians have already announced the opposition to such a move. Furthermore, any Charter revision is subject to the veto and must be ratified by the great Powers. In fact, the chances of any agreed change of the Charter are so slim that part of the American Press has come to the conclusion that there is no point in doing anything about it.

With regard to the second point, if the Assembly votes in favour of the Chinese Communists, then there is no chance that the Chinese Nationalists would simply move to another seat, change their coats, and become the representatives of Formosa. They could return to the United Nations only if Formosa applied and was admitted as a new member State; but such a move would be subject to the veto. Therefore the only way in which the Americans could maintain the Chinese Nationalists in the United Nations, if the Chinese Communists were seated, would be by an agreement with the Soviet Union to admit Formosa, perhaps as part of its "package" membership deal (wholesale admission of the nominees of East and West).

Such a move would have to be discussed at a Big Three meeting; it might also mean that the Bermuda conference would be the forerunner of a Big Four or Big Five conference.

Urges Action Taken To Regain Markets

OTTAWA (CP) — Hayden Stanton (PC—Leeds) said in the Commons Tuesday that the problems of dairy farmers should be met by action to regain markets in Britain.

The price of Ontario cheese had dropped to $1.81 a hundredweight this year from $2.80 in 1951 and the United States market for dairy cattle was half what it was in 1951.

Mr. Stanton estimated that the average dairy farmer in Ontario has suffered a 40-per-cent drop in income this year from 1951. Many farm implement factories were working only half time because of the loss of revenue by farmers.

Mr. Stanton, who represents part of eastern Ontario's rich dairy area, was one of 12 members who spoke during the throne speech debate.

Find Being Bald No Barrier In Filmland

By BOB THOMAS

Phil Silvers, the funnyman, is one. He started getting bald 12 years ago, when he was a mere lad of 29. For many years he has had a lovely head of skin. But he doesn't mind any more.

"Oh, I used to let it worry me," he says. "I would sit around and brood about it. It got to be a big thing with me. But then I snapped out of it. What the heck—I've been doing well in my chosen profession, and there are one or two girls who like me. I should worry."

Silvers has become so accustomed to his barren scalp that he balked at the suggestion that he wear a rug (hair piece) in "Lucky Me" with Doris Day and Robert Cummings.

"At first I didn't go for the idea. I couldn't see that it made any difference. But they said that a man with hair on his head standing beside a pretty girl is better than a bald man. So who can argue?"

He still argues that his scalp dolly—which is a distinguished, high-off-the - forehead number—makes not a whit of difference. He proves this with a story of what happened when Jean Simmons visited the set.

Silvers, an intimate of Miss Simmons and Stewart Granger, asked if she noticed something different.

"That's a lovely new tie," she replied. He finally had to point out the new toupee.

Silvers remarked that the hirsute public has a mistaken notion about baldness, associating it with oncoming age. Such is not always the case, he said. Like many other men, he began going bald in his 20s.

"And take a guy like Bobo Olson," the comedian continued. "He's plenty bald, but no one ever told him that meant he was getting old. He went ahead and knocked the bejeepers out of Randy Turpin, who has all the hair he needs."

BLASTED ACCIDENT—Taking spiteful vengeance on the Rock Island Railroad, this unused coal chute has its supporting columns blasted away, and settles right on the main line. Engineers had set their explosive charges to throw it clear of the tracks, but the outmoded structure wouldn't co-operate. The big boom occurred at Morris, Ill.

Light Truck, Car Collide At Corner

LINDSAY—(ENS)— A light panel delivery truck was completely wrecked, a late model car was damaged to the extent of $600, and a hydro pole was snapped in an accident at a Lindsay intersection Monday night.

According to police Donald Hendry, of Bowmanville, driving a late model car, was proceeding south on Lindsay St. south of highway 7, with a passenger, Jerold KeKane.

At the intersection of Melbourne St., his car was in collision with a light truck, driven by Ray Piche, of Lindsay which was preceeding west. There were two passengers in the truck, Homer Courriere 24, and Lillian Jeffry, 16, both of Lindsay.

The truck rolled over from the force of the impact, according to the investigating officer, skidded on its side down the boulevard at the side of the street and crashed into a hydro pole on the corner, smashing it from the base to just below the light standard.

Damage to the car was estimated at $600 by Sgt. Gord Eberts, the investigating officer. The truck was a total wreck but there were no injuries. Charges are reported pending.

Says Pipeline Needed In W. Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — A western oilman Tuesday said in the Senate that an all-Canadian pipeline must be built first to provide natural gas for western Canadian and United States centres and extended later to serve eastern Canada.

Senator T. H. Wood (L—Saskatchewan) said during the throne speech debate that "if something is not done in this regard there is reason to fear that oil development in western Canada will be seriously retarded."

He recalled that there is agitation to bar import of natural gas from the United States to serve eastern Canadian cities. However, he made no reference to a bill now before Parliament which would make it possible to bar such imports.

The government-sponsored legislation would require pipeline companies to obtain incorporation by Parliament if they planned to carry gas or oil across international or provincial boundaries.

CHEAPER GAS

The legislation was introduced following opposition by the federal and Ontario governments to import of natural gas into eastern Canada from the United States. Such a plan was suggested by Consumer Gas Company to supply Toronto.

Present gas surpluses should be disposed of where there is an immediate need. The first stage should be a line to serve Regina and Winnipeg in Canada and Minneapolis and St. Paul in the U.S.

Spend $100,000 Year To Keep Up Traplines

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario spends almost $100,000 a year to keep up traplines for Indians north of the Canadian National Railways transcontinental line, the chief of the province's fish and wildlife division said Tuesday.

Dr. W. J. K. Harkness told the Indian affairs committee of the Ontario legislature that 94 per cent of the lines are held by Indians, the rest by whites.

Traplines are registered on a family basis, he said.

Pilot Find $40 For Operating Without Licence

In a rarely-seen magistrate's court charge against Harold Oakman, Peterborough pilot, of operating a commercial airline without a licence, the accused was fined $40 and $17.75 costs by Magistrate W. R. Philp Tuesday.

Oakman pleaded not guilty to the charge, pressed by the RCMP as a result of Coronation pictures transported from Toronto by Oakman for the June 2 edition of the Examiner.

While no defence witnesses were called by Robert Carley, defence counsel, two members, and one former member, of the Examiner staff, and the manager of the south-end Royal Bank of Canada, appeared as witnesses against the accused.

G. W. Craw, Examiner managing editor, told the court he had arranged with Oakman to transport pictures and a reporter, John Wynne-Jones, from Toronto to Peterborough the morning of June 2, Coronation Day, and pictures from Malton airport June 3. At no time had he discussed financial arrangements with the pilot, the witness said.

SET-UP PICTURE

When A. L. Elliott, QC, acting for the prosecution, asked for identification of a picture showing the reporter taking an envelope from the accused in an airplane, with an Examiner truck in the background, Mr. Craw said the picture had been "set up" in advance. The photo, run June 2, illustrated how Coronation pictures had been rushed to the newspaper.

As a result, Magistrate Philp ruled that it was "not relevant" to the case.

The managing editor also identified an invoice from Oakman to the amount of $69.50 covering expenses for "two trips" and sundry items pertaining to the pictures' transportation.

Miss Margaret Rodney, Examiner secretary - treasurer, also identified the invoice and stated she had written out a cheque, subsequently identified, covering Oakman's account.

Harvey Weigner, south - end Royal Bank manager, also identified the cheque and said a like amount, $69.50, had been deposited in Oakman's account the same day it was cashed. Although he identified the endorsement as the accused's signature the bank manager "actually can't tell whether the pilot had endorsed it himself.

Wynne-Jones, the reporter who had accompanied Oakman on his flight, said he had received instructions to pick up pictures at Canadian Press and The Telegram in Toronto and meet Oakman at the foot of Yonge St. where he would board an aircraft and fly here.

The instructions were followed and he landed in Little Lake where he took a taxicab to the newspaper office.

The former reporter didn't pay Oakman any money himself, he told Defence Counsel Carley.

NO LICENCE

After a certificate from the Air Transport Board's secretary, indicating no commercial licence had been issued to Oakman, was filed as an exhibit the prosecution rested.

Mr. Carley then argued there had been no evidence that Oakman was paid specifically for the two flights prosecution witnesses testified he had made. Even the invoice, he pointed out, made no mention of flights, only trips to Peterborough from Toronto, and no date was mentioned on the bill.

Under ATB regulations, no person shall operate, for hire, an aircraft in Canada, but Mr. Carley argued there was nothing to link payment with the transportation of pictures.

Magistrate Philp said, however, he couldn't agree with the defence counsel, and convicted Oakman on the count, fining him a minimum $40.

Use Sea Grass To Insulate 100 Houses In Halifax

HALIFAX (CP — Until a few years ago, only the geese were unhappy when a mysterious disease destroyed zostera marina in Canada's Atlantic coastal waters. Zostera marina is commonly known as eelgrass, a marine plant that grows like alfalfa in shallow, muddy-bottomed waters. It is the curse of boatmen and bathers.

The geese, particularly brant, ate the tender roots. When it began to disappear in the early 30s geese died by the thousands.

Now the grass is being used as an insulating material and is the basis of a growing industry.

Last year 100 houses in Halifax and 88 in Saint John, N. B. were insulated with the sea grass. It is also being used in schools. One Halifax firm is shipping it to central Canada.

OLD METHOD

Eelgrass is one of the oldest insulation materials. It is highly resistant to decay, fire-proof and is unaffected by insects, vermin and has no odor.

It has been used for centuries by fishermen and coastal farmers to back the stone foundations of their homes, as a fertilizer and as bedding for cattle.

Newly-gathered eelgrass must be put through a long drying process before it can be used for insulation. As each of the flat, green elastic blades dry, tiny cells lock in air. These air cells give the weed its insulating qualities.

The silica, which the dried grass contains, makes it fire-proof, and the iodine in it makes it impervious to animal and insect pests. When used as insulation, the grass is placed between a covering stitched into a quilted mat. The blacker the cured grass, the better the quality.

Says Wheat Surplus Aids Elevators

OTTAWA (CP) — A CCF member of Parliament from the Prairies charged Tuesday that changes in grain marketing regulations have provided "tens of thousands of dollars" in profits for elevator companies but have not solved a "huge" wheat surplus.

Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) said in the throne speech debate that only one cabinet member, Agriculture Minister Gardiner, is attending the current conference in Ottawa of federal and provincial agriculture officials and farm organizations.

The entire cabinet should meet farm representatives and hear their suggestions for averting "a drastic recession for the agriculture industry."

ELEVATORS PLUGGED

Mr. Argue said that the lifting of grain delivery quotas before last summer's election had plugged nearly every grain elevator in the West and was a "great boon" for line elevator companies who filled storage space that would not have been filled otherwise.

However, when this year's crop was harvested, the majority of grain producers could market none of their grain.

Mr. Argue said removal of the order book system under which farmers could order railway cars for shipment placed control of car allocation in the hands of railway companies, who favored the line elevator companies. This gave the elevator companies "tens of thousands of dollars" in profits.

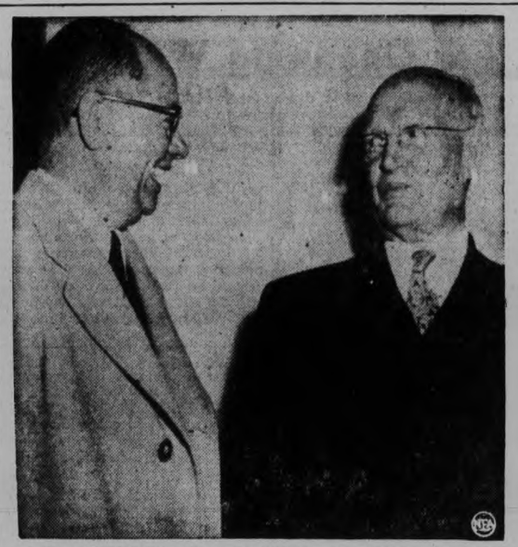
Says Loophole In Agreement Allows Jumping

OTTAWA (CP) — Robert Cauchon (L — Beauharnois-Salaberry) said Tuesday night that a loophole in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade is permitting "dumping" of United States textiles on the Canadian market.

He said Canada has a right to protect her textile industry and workers from "unfair competition."

Mr. Cauchon, speaking in the throne speech debate, said that in 1950 Canada imposed a tariff of 17 per cent on a certain grade of fabrics. The United States tariff was 30 per cent and the United Kingdom tariff 27 per cent.

IMPORTS INCREASED



By 1952, Canadian textile imports increased by 45,000,000 yards and her production dropped about 86,000,000 yards.

"Though we are not strongly protectionist it is, in the light of the present situation and the possibility of quotas and restrictions on our primary products entering the United States, our right to protect our industry and workers from unfair competition."

The "loophole" in GATT permitted textiles to enter Canada at sacrifice prices because American manufacturers had a surplus stock.

MEDICAL PIONEER

NON SUPPORT—Rep. Carl T. Curtis, of Nebraska (left), chairman of the Social Security Subcommittee, and Rep. Daniel A. The two Congressmen announced that they would not support Ike's effort to postpone indefinitely the scheduled social security tax boost.

Calls Stratford Festival Greatest Cultural Gain

OTTAWA (CP) — The Stratford Shakespearean Festival was described in the Commons Tuesday by J. Waldo Monteith (PC—Perth) as the "greatest cultural achievement Canada has ever experienced."

Mr. Monteith said the festival was originated by Tom Patterson of Stratford.

"He dreamed of such an undertaking for some time and finally convinced a number of citizens of Stratford that he had something," he said.

ASSURES FUTURE

Mr. Monteith said last summer's performance assured the future of the festival.

"I feel that all culturally-minded people in Canada are grateful to those few in Stratford who had the foresight and initiative to make it possible."

A total of 68,800 tickets for the festival were sold, of which 38.1 per cent went to residents of the United States. Cars in the festival parking lot came from nine provinces and 35 states south of the border.

Sarnia Rink Downs Hamilton Thistles

HAMILTON (CP)—B. C. Phippen's Sarnia rink defeated G. W. Wigle of Hamilton Thistles 10-4 today in the Centennial bonspiel at the Thistle Curling Club.

A former Canadian champion, Tom Ramsay of Kirkland Lake, coasted to a 16-5 win over Pete Ella, Brampton.

Other first-round games saw Dr. A. C. Baillie of Orillia win 8-6 over M. Aylsworth, London, and S. Meredith's Barrie rink down Sam Rothschild of Sudbury, 12-4.

60,000 Descendants Of 103 Settlers

MONTREAL (CP) — There are 60,000 descendants of the 103 settlers who arrived at the Montreal colony in 1653. Recently, several hundred of these celebrated in Notre Dame Cathedral the tri-centenary of their ancestors' landing.

A pontifical mass was conducted by Msgr. Edouard Jette of Joliette, himself a descendant of the 48 families who made up the early settlement. Assisting him were priests who also claimed the same distinction.

Following the mass, Roland Auger, secretary of the Genealogical Society of French-Canadians, read the names of the original settlers, speaking at the Maisonneuve monument at Victoria Square.

Senate Abolition Best, Argue Tells House Of Commons

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons has heard two suggestions on the future of the Senate: Abolition, or reforms to give the Opposition a stronger voice there.

Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) said Tuesday that "the best reform that can be brought about is abolition." Harry O. White (PC—Middlesex East) said the Opposition should have at least one-quarter of the Senate's 102 seats.

Mr. Argue described the Senate as "famous only for delaying progressive legislation sent to it by the Commons."

He withdrew the remark at the request of Speaker Rene Buaudoin, who said it was "exaggerated." The CCF member said later, however, that in 1926, the Senate had held up passage of old age pensions legislation.

LIBERAL MAJORITY

Mr. White said the Senate, with its predominance of Liberal members, is not properly protecting minority rights, and suggested that regional political trends be reflected by permitting provincial governments to appoint some senators.

The Opposition should have at least one-quarter of the Senate seats and preferably one-third or one-half.

Liberals hold 81 seats in the upper chamber and Progressive Conservatives eight, with 13 vacancies.

Mr. White said the Senate's original purpose was to serve as a balance against "radical" legislation. Now with the growth of centralized powers in the federal government, individual rights seemed to be forgotten.

THRONE SPEECH DEBATE

The two members spoke during the throne speech debate in the Commons while the Senate continued its own throne speech debate.

Turning to other subjects, Mr. White said Veterans Minister Lapointe had "refused" in the House to define the governments's interpretation of casual earnings in respect to war veterans' allowances. Such "refusal" could apply to other departments of government as well.

He said Maritime Liberal candidates in August had decalred that conditions were never so good. Now in the Commons Liberal members were complaining that conditions were never so bad.

Mr. White suggested that the spread in fish prices between what the fisherman gets and consumer pays be investigated under the Combines Act.

GREATER CONTRIBUTION

He urged greater Canadian contributions for United Nations technical assistance and complained that disaster relief for western Ontario, hit by a tornado last spring, was "too little and too late." The government should lay down a definite formula for disaster relief so that stricken areas would know what they could expect from the federal government.

He also said "dumping" of American textiles in Canada is "robbing" Canadian workmen of jobs and pay.

"What about suggesting to the U. S. that they honor their Geneva and other trade agreements?"

He said that though President Eisenhower in his Nov. 14 speech to Parliament had stressed friendly Canada-U. S. relations, the U. S. was not living up to its promises contained in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

The Canadian textile industry was being forced to lay off men because the U. S. was "dumping" textiles in Canada and threatening the livelihood of Canadian workers.

Staff Of 1,400 Operate Pioneer Airport

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton municipal airport has grown from a field which handled a few flights a day in 1919 to a $13,500,000 investment with a staff of 1,400.

Covering 750 acres in the heart of the city, the airport serves airplanes operating on international services linked with the United States, Europe and the Orient and also provides facilities for Canadian services.

The first flights of a local nature were carried out in 1919 on the same site the airport now occupies. In 1927 the airport was licensed by the federal government, making it the first licensed airport in Canada.

Early facilities consisted of a small wooden frame building housing two planes, three employees and a couple of unpaid apprentices. Today the airport is a base for 148 planes and three helicopters. This year a record total of 200,000 aircraft arrivals and departures is expected.

During the Second World War the airport became a vital base in the defence of the Alaskan coast for the United States Air Force. Both the Canadian and U.S. governments spent millions of dollars on improvements during the war. The airport was returned to the city in 1945.

The airport has furthered the progress of Edmonton's growth by 30 to 40 years, opening up Alberta's mineral wealth by exploration and survey.

US Bought Land 34 Cents An Acre 100 Years Ago

WASHINGTON —Arizona and New Mexico next month will celebrate the 100th anniversary of the Gadsden Purchase, a productive 30-million-acre tract acquired as an afterthought of the Mexican War.

Purchased for $10 million — a fraction over 34 cents an acre—the area holds mines which already have yielded more than $4 billion in copper and other minerals. Irrigation has converted desert wastes into agricultural oases of cotton, citrus fruits, dates, pecans, barley and alfalfa.

POPULOUS SECTOR

The Gadsden Purchase includes all or part of seven southern Arizona counties and four counties in New Mexico. The territory is almost as large as Pennsylvania. Within its 45,535 square miles live more than 350,000 people.

Tucson, the area's largest city, was an adobe-walled village a century ago. Today it is a resort centre with a metropolitan population of 170,000.

Bisbee, Douglas and Benson are important mining centres; Lordsburg and Deming are headquarters for a thriving livestock industry; rapidly expanding Yuma and Nogales attract many vacationists.

Named for James Gadsden, United States minister to Mexico who negotiated the purchase, the strip of land south of the Gila River became a sort of no-man's land at the close of the Mexican War in 1848. Mexico claimed $15 million for damages caused by Indians raiding the country from the United States side of the border.

When President Franklin Pierce proposed buying the arid area, many Government officials and prominent private citizens assailed the acquisition of "worthless land". Railroad interests were anxious to secure the strip, however.

Earlier surveys showed it to be a direct and practicable southern route for a transcontinental railway. American railroads were then engaged in a race to link the newly discovered gold fields of California with eastern supply centres.

TREATY CONCLUDED

Gadsden and General Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna, the Mexican leader, signed a treaty on December 30, 1853. The agreement simultaneously settled Mexico's damage claims and provided an easily traveled transcontinental rail right-of-way wholly within the borders of the United States.

The treaty met strong opposition in the Senate. Anti-slavery senators opposed further acquisition of slave territory. Lobbying by speculators gave the treaty a bad reputation. There were objections to furnishing financial assistance to Santa Anna. But, by a narrow margin, the treaty was ratified on April 25, 1854.

Twenty years passed before the projected railroad—the Southern Pacific—was constructed. With access to the mountain passes northwest of El Paso, its right of way is the lowest rail crossing of the Continental Divide. Its highest pass is at Lordsburg, New Mexico, at an elevation of 4,237 feet.

Calm View

WINNIPEG (CP)—The children of today are just about the same as the children of a generation ago, says school principal Orville Holmes. He said they get into the limelight more because of modern youth projects such as community clubs and teen-age canteens.

Lays Whopper

PORT COLBORNE, Ont. (CP)—An egg weighing 5½ ounces was turned in by Harold Cross as the product of one of his chickens to show the results that can be achieved by ambitious poultry. The egg was proudly displayed at the local feed plant.

Visitor Impressed

LONDON (CP)—Tufton Beamish Conservative member of Parliament for Lewes, Sussex, returned from a visit to Canada and the United States to say he is greatly impressed by the industrial potential of British Columbia.

US Unwilling For Secret Investigation

Canadian Stipulations Dissatisfy Senate Committee

WASHINGTON — (CP) — Some elements in the United States capital have expressed dissatistfaction with Canada's insistance that she keep control over publicity of any evidence resulting from U.S. questioning of Igor Gouzenko .

Attorney - general Herbert Brownell and J. Edgar Hoover, FBI chief, declined comment on the Ottawa announcement Wednesday regarding the former Russian embassy clerk, but Senator William E. Jenner, head of the U.S. Senate internal security sub-committee immediately balked.

He said he feels his investigating group "could not receive evidence vital to the security of the United States, and the United States alone, and commit itself not to make it available to Congress if necessary."

Senator John M. Butler, a member of Jenner's sub-committee also protested the Canadian conditions, saying "our sub-committee will have to meet and decide whether to accept that."

NO EISENHOWER COMMENT

There was no comment on the Canadian stand from President Eisenhower.

(The New York Times says today informed Washington quarters believe the sub-committee wishes to prevent duplication of the unsatisfactory e x perience encountered some years back by investigators for the Senate judiciary sub-committee on immigration which went to Canada to question Gouzenko.

("It has been said that (the) transcript of the talks conducted at that time with Mr. Gouzenko by Frank Schroeder and Otto Dekom was 'cut to pieces' by the Canadian government before being cleared," the Times says. "The deletions were so numerous, according to informed sources, as to make the visit virtually useless."

("Inasmuch as Jenner sub-committee investigators will concentrate on unearthing clues to atomic espionage in this country in the prospective interview, it is said that Mr. Jenner wants to be certain that any evidence obtained can be used to fullest effect.")

Jenner made his comment in a letter sent Wednesday night to State Secretary Dulles for relay to Ottawa. However, the letter was regarded as leaving the door open to further Canadian-American negotiations for a compromise.

REPORTS TO HOUSE — The Secretary of State for External Affairs Lester B. Pearson, reviewed the Gouzenko case in the Commons Wednesday and outlined Canada's reply to U.S. demands.

Eight Inches Of Snow In Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — Parts of Ontario got up to eight inches of snow today, while some centres in the Maritimes were chalking up the warmest Nov. 26 in history.

At Welland, eight-inch drifts tied up traffic and weather officials said another five inches could be expected before the end of the day. At St. Catharines, six inches fell overnight and communications were disrupted in some parts of the Niagara peninsula.

A belt of warm air from the southern United States shot temperatures at Chatham, N. B. to 64 and at Yarmouth and Moncton to 62 during the night—highest for the date in history.

Cold air from the west was expected to hit the eastern provinces Friday, when temperatures would drop to about 35.

NARROW SNOW BELT

Southern Ontario's snow belt, caused by winds off Lake Erie, was only 10 or 15 miles wide. Hamilton, 25 miles from St. Catharines, had bare streets.

Snow and rain hit parts of northern Ontario overnight, adding to some already heavy falls. North Bay got two inches, Kapuskasing added six inches in the last 24 hours for a total of 10 inches, and Sioux Lookout in northwestern Ontario now has 13 inches.

Vancouver was colder than usual today, with a high about 45 expected. Prairie temperatures varied from 39 at Edmonton to 30 at Winnipeg.

Beat Rebels On TV Vote 157 To 87

Eden; Butler To Face Back-Benchers At Leader's Request

LONDON—(CP) —Government supporters tonight defeated by a vote of 157 to 87 an attempt by "rebel" Conservative peers in the House of Lords to condemn plans for introducing commercial television in Britain.

The vote followed a spirited two-day debate in which a powerful group of Tory lords urged Prime Minister Churchill's government to drop its scheme to set up a public corporation which would operate TV stations in rivalry with the state-owned BBC.

With the support of some Liberals and Labor peers, the "rebels" had objected to the plan to provide time on the new stations for advertising. They agreed that a second TV network was desirable but urged that it be run by the BBC.

PENSION ROW SPREADS

Meanwhile, a Conservative rebellion against Churchill's war pension policy spread in the Commons despite government efforts to head it off.

Nineteen more Conservative legislators signed a motion criticizing the government's refusal to boost pensions for 336 First World War officers, raising the number of Conservative rebels to 55. In addition, 81 Labor members have signed.

Churchill has dispatched his two top deputies—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Chancellor of the Exchequer Richard Butler—to face the rebels tonight at a meeting of Conservative back-benchers.

In the pensions rift some of the Conservative rebels have threatened to vote against the government's military budget when it goes to Commons early next year unless the war pension boosts are granted.

FORCE NEW ELECTION

A government defeat on the budget—major issue—would force Churchill's resignation and a new election.

Churchill is believed anxious to end the Conservative rebellions before he leaves next Tuesday for the Western Big Three conference in Bermuda.

West Doesn't Have Everything In A-Field – Soviet

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y.—(AP)—Russia's Andrei Vishinsky said today the "West doesn't have everything in the field of atomic weapons that the Soviet Union has". Vishinsky told the UN's 60-nation political committee that both the United States and the Soviet Union have atomic and hydrogen bombs and then went on to claim possession of other weapons. He did not specify what they were, but said Western government authorities should ask their scientific experts for reports on the progress of Soviet science and especially in the practical realm of applied science. That field deals with building the weapons whose theory was brought out by pure reasoning.

Vishinsky was replying to a statement made last week by British Minister of State Selwyn Lloyd. Lloyd told the committee that the Soviet Union plugged for an unconditional prohibition o f the atomic and hydrogen bombs because that was a field where it was weaker than the West.

"SOVIET HAS IT TOO"

Vishinsky said the West claimed the atomic bomb was a "key weapon" in its hands and said it is "likewise a key weapon in the hands of the Soviet Union."

It is "nothing but a myth," Vishinsky claimed, to say that the Soviet Union is weaker in the field of nuclear weapons than the Western powers.

Vishinsky was speaking in support of Russia's 1953-model "peace plan" which, among other things, calls for the unconditional prohibition of nuclear weapons.

A STERN WARNING

Vishinsky spoke just after the Netherlands delegate had told him to his face that, if the Soviet Union tries to force its system on the West, "our peace-loving world will handle them in the way it has handled the Kaiser and Hitler."

M. J. de Kadt, a member of the Dutch Parliament, said he wanted to tell Andrei Vishinky personally that there is no force strong enough "to make us accept systems and ways of living which we consider to be below human dignity and to represent abominable despotism."

De Kadt said Russia had proved by its refusal to accept Western disarmament proposals that it had "intentions which are neither generous nor peace-loving."

Netherlands representatives are known here for the moderation of their speeches and de Kadt's attack on Russia took delegates by surprise.

Big U.K. Firms Will Bid On Seaway Plan

LONDON (CP)—Eight of Britain's biggest contracting and engineering firms have joined forces to bid on the St. Lawrence seaway project, it was learned today.

Sir Albert Braithwaite, Conservative member of Parliament and chairman of a British organization known as the seaway group, said he expects the combine to get £2,000,000 worth of orders.

He added:

"This is our last chance to invest in Canada. We missed the Alberta oil and the Labrador ore fields.

"Canada is our best prospect for engineering exports and the seaway should take £2,000,000 off our bread bill, due to lower freight charges on the wheat we buy from Canada."

ONE HAS SUBSIDIARY

The firms in the new group are Richard Costain, Dorman Long, Peter Lind, John Howard, Sir Lindsay Parkinson, Taylor Woodrow, Matthew Hall and Caffin and Company. Taylor Woodrow has already established a Canadian subsidiary to cash in on Canadian building.

It is understood that the British treasury might allow the group to accept part payment in Canada's special seaway bonds, which Canada will issue to finance the project. The treasury has refused permission so far, but may revoke its decision in line with its policy of easing dollar-control restrictions to allow increased Canadian investment.

Queen Faces Crowded Day With Subjects

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)—The Queen today reviewed a military parade and greeted 2,000 school children in colorful ceremonies marking the second day of the royal visit to this British rum and sugar colony.

The children waited four abreast in 16 rows on the length of the cricket field at Kingston's Sabina Park for the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh.

Proudest youngster of them all was Barbara le Wars, 15, who thanked the Queen "for the great delight you have given the children of Jamaica." She presented an array of Jamaican handicraft products to the royal couple.

The Queen met the island's top military figures and their wives.

VISIT LEGISLATURE

A tour of Kingston and a formal welcome from the legislature at Government House were also on the program.

Police in white uniforms and white helmets struggled to keep roads clear for official traffic.

The royal couple saw detachments of the Royal Navy with the 1st battalion, Royal Welch Fusiliers—of which the Queen is colonel-in-chief—the Jamaica battalion, auxiliary services of the army, the Women's Royal Army Corps, the British Legion and others.

The Queen and the duke stood up in an open car as it drove around the parade grounds. Elizabeth wore a short-sleeved green dress with an emerald green hat, white gloves and white shoes.

Blizzard Hits 'Quake Victims

ATHENS (AP) — New disaster hit the victims of the recent Greek earthquakes today when a blizzard swept away the tents in which they had sought temporary shelter.

Reports from the Dodecanese and Ionian islands said a howling gale had carried away many of their tents and others were half-buried in snow. All communications in the Ionian sea were reported suspended.

The 1,845-ton Swedish freighter Argo was reported to have run aground at Rhodes.

Canadian Embarrasses Reds At Conference

VIENNA (AP)—The audience of the Communist - sponsored World Peace Council appeared somewhat embarrassed Wednesday when a Canadian delegate warmly praised President Eisenhower's peace efforts.

James D. Endicott of Toronto, chairman of the Canadian Peace Council and a well-known figure at Communist peace meetings, cited almost in full a speech in which Eisenhower said that every gun made, every warship launched and every rocket fired was in the final sense a theft from those who hunger and are not fed.

Endicott added: "President Eisenhower's statement on the desirability of disarmament was excellent and everybody agrees with that and the important deed which must follow from these fine words is a meeting of the leading powers to discuss disarmament."

Report Enemy Aircraft Causing Frequent Alerts

SEOUL——(AP)—A highly reliable Allied source said tonight that enemy aircraft have caused frequent night alerts at an Allied airfield on Paenyong island off the west cost of South Korea. The information came from a man who had been stationed on the island. He identified the aircraft as Russian-built MiG jets.

He said the MiGs had been sweeping near the United Nations island and "have been causing frequent night alerts."

The United States Air force had no comment.

The island is northwest of Inchon and just a few miles off the coast, well within sight of land. During the war it was an important Allied base.

Never during the Korean war was it confirmed that MiGs—the sleek, swift opponents of Allied Sabre jets—had ventured south of the 38th parallel. Some other Red planes were spotted over South Korea, however.

Pounding attacks by Allied fighter-bombers prevented the Communists from basing MiGs south of the Yalu river. MiG bases were in Manchuria.

Since the armistice July 27, however, many MiGs have been reported at bases in North Korea.

The source who reported the frequent alerts at Paengyong asked that his name not be disclosed.

Toronto Youths Held For Barrie Murder

BARRIE (CP) — Two Toronto youths, Ian Robertson, 21, and William Stephen Kingsley, 17, were formally charged here today with the murder of Fred (Scotty) Cameron whose bullet-ridden body was found in this district Oct. 30.

The two, arrested in Toronto Wednesday night, were remanded for one week by Magistrate G. R. Foster who was called to court early this morning for their appearance.

Arrest of the pair was made in Toronto by Inspector Alex McLeod and detective sergeant Bernard Simmons of the Toronto police who have been working on the case.

Cameron, 60, was a Toronto man. His body, shot through the head and chest, was found propped against a fence near Barrie, 50 miles north of Toronto. He had been employed by a Toronto financial house.

(In Toronto police said Robertson and Kinglsey were acquainted with Cameron and had been under surveillance for some time. It is believed that a wallet found near Cameron's body was a key clue which led to the arrests.)

Czechoslovakia Home To Rose

OTTAWA (CP) — An official source confirmed today that Fred Rose, former member of Parliament who served six years for espionage, has gone behind the Iron Curtain.

The source said Rose travelled on a Canadian passport and held a visa for Czechoslovakia. The forms he filled out in connection with his trip said he was going to Czechoslovakia for reasons of health.

Says Conciliator Not Qualified

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — George Burt, Canadian UAW-CIO director, said today he was convinced that Eric Taylor, well known Ontario labor conciliator and consultant was no longer qualified to sit as an impartial judge on such matters.

The Canadian auto workers' leader said he would ask Labor Minister Daley to revoke the appointment of Mr. Taylor as chairman of a conciliation board about to deal with a disagreement between the UAW-CIO and the Cockshutt Plow Company of Brantford.

Mr. Burt said he based his judgment of Mr. Taylor on reports in several newspapers of a speech made recently by Mr. Taylor to the Canadian Automotive Transport Association.

Mr. Burt asked how Mr. Taylor could "have the nerve to sit on a conciliation board dealing with opposing arguments for management and labor, when he stated in a Toronto newspaper 'that management has nearly reached the end of the concessions it can make to labor'. He is in no position to make such a statement, especially when he deals with management in general terms, and labor

Car Plunges Over Gorge

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. (AP)—Two persons were injured critically today when their automobile plunged over the edge of the Niagara river gorge and dropped about 100 feet to a railroad right-of-way.

State police identified the two as Irene Gamble, 20, of Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., and Robert F. Murdock, 25, of nearby Lewiston, N. Y. They were taken to Memorial Hospital here.

The accident was discovered about 3:45 a. m. by Carmen Johnson, a city fireman, driving along the highway at the top of the 300-foot deep gorge. He said he noticed wheel marks in a light fall of snow leading to the edge. He looked over the edge and saw the car.

A rescue crew directed by state police took three hours to bring the couple to the top.

Three Ships Damaged In Fog Accidents

PARIS (Reuters) — Thick fog brought disaster early today to two freighters, one British and the other French, and forced a Soviet vessel to run aground.

The 7,200-ton French freighter Equator broke up after running aground near Calais. Her crew was removed safely. The Equator was on her way from the Gulf of Mexico to Le Havre with a cargo of cotton and gasoline.

The 519-ton British ship Marsworth sank following a collision with the Larrivet, a 3,700-ton French ship. Three crew members were landed at Great Yarmouth. The others are believed to be safely aboard the Larrivet.

Truce Officer Wounds Himself

INCHON, Korea (AP) — A Communist Czech truce inspection officer was shot and seriously wounded today a few hours before his scheduled departure for North Korea or another South Korean port of entry.

The UN command said Lt.-Col. Vojtech Bagda apparently shot and wounded himself.

One American officer said he understood the shooting might have been accidental. He said another Czech colonel was in Bagda's room as he packed a suitcase.

"I understand the gun went off accidentally while he was packing a bag," the officer said.

American authorities were unable to explain why Bagda had a loaded gun in South Korea since members of neutral inspection teams are forbidden to carry guns.

There was some speculation that the colonel might have tried to commit suicide rather than go back to North Korea and the Communists.

$60,000 Blaze Leaves 10 Homeless

Calvin Brockbank said he discovered the blaze when aroused by cries of his three-weeks-old daughter Caroline. He took his child and wife from the building and returned to the next apartment to help his sister, Mrs. Jean Claremont and her two sons. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ursano their son, Joseph, 8, and Ursano's brother Vincent also escaped.

The fire was believed to have started in an oil burner in the basement of Silverwood's Dairy in this town 45 miles northeast of Orillia.

Apprenticeship To Be Discussed

The minister said the one-day conference will be mainly to facilitate an exchange of ideas about apprenticeship training in the various provinces.

It is expected that most provincial labor ministers will attend in person and Labor Minister Gregg or his deputy will come from Ottawa.

49,500 Tourists Visit Britain In October

LONDON (Reuters) — Tourist traffic to Britain in the fall of Coronation year has broken all records.

There were more than 49,500 overseas visitors last month, the highest October total ever reached, the British Travel and Holidays Association said today.

Of the October total, nearly 28,000 were visitors from Europe, 10,000 from the United States and about 8,500 from the Commonwealth. American arrivals exceeded those of October, 1952, by eight per cent.

Groom's Effigy Burnt

Wedding Celebration Ends After Two Weeks' Party

MONCTON, N. B. (CP) — The wedding celebration that has been shattering the quiet of peaceful Memramcook valley for the last two weeks ended Wednesday night.

Hundreds of spectators watched outside the home of newlyweds Mr. and Mrs Alphee LeBlanc as an effigy of the groom was burned and the remains tossed into Memramcook river, 16 miles from here. Then the party ended.

All the while, a blaring public address system kept spectators posted on the goings-on. RCMP officers were busy unsnarling traffic.

Residents say the bride and groom brought it on themselves. When they returned from their honeymoon 14 days ago, neighbors began making a racket outside the house, waiting to be invited in for a house-warming. The charivari, as it is called, is an old custom in the valley.

No invitation c a m e. Word spread, more neighbors arrived and the din grew each night for two weeks.

Three merrymakers waxed so enthusiastic they were taken to jail. Raymond LeBlanc, Alfred Belliveau and Edward Bourgeois were warned by police, then arrested on charges of disturbing the peace.

No reason was given for the couple's failure to give the usual invitation.

Standing Room Only For Gouzenko Report

OTTAWA (CP)—Igor Gouzenko and the late Harry Dexter White Wednesday outdrew just about everything in Parliament but the annual spectacles of the opening and the government's budget presentation.

The rarity of virtually - filled Commons galleries greeted External Affairs Minister Pearson when he got up to make a statement on Gouzenko and White, a former United States official suspected of being a Red agent.

There was standing room only in the public galleries, and government employees loaded the official galleries.

Banks Increase Interest Rate

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto paper said in a newspage story today that Canada's chartered banks will increase their interest rates on savings to 2 per cent from 1½ per cent effective next month.

The one half of one per cent increase, the newspaper said, will restore the savings interest rate to the level of June 1, 1936, when interest paid by the banks was reduced to 1½ per cent. Prior to April, 1933, the banks had paid 3 per cent interest but subsequent cuts reduced it to 1½ per cent.

The paper said that trust companies are expected to follow the lead of the banks and increase interest on deposits to 2½ per cent from 2 per cent.

Second Biggest Robbery In U.S.

Family Arrested In $681,000 Theft

BOSTON (AP)—A former convict, his wife and their college student son are under arrest in connection with the second largest cash robbery in American history—the $681,000 theft from a parked armored car in March, 1952.

The FBI identified them as George D. O'Brien, 43, his wife, Margaret, 42, and George Jr., 20, a third-year student at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The father was charged with the theft of property belonging to a Federal Reserve Bank. His wife and son were charged with receiving stolen property.

FBI agents arrested the mother and father Wednesday night in their house in a middle-class neighborhood of Wollaston, Mass., a community on Boston's south shore. The son was arrested on the college campus in Cambridge, Mass.

The armored car, belonging to the United States Trucking Co., was robbed while parked in broad daylight on a busy square in Danvers, Mass., a residential town 20 miles north of here.

RIFLED ARMORED CAR

An unknown number of men drove up and rifled the armored car while its three guards were having coffee in a nearby drug store.

The robbery was topped only by the $1,219,000 Boston Brink's hold-up of January, 1950.

Police chief Raymond Kerwin of Danvers said an FBI agent told him that agents had recovered some bills whose serial numbers matched numbers of the stolen currency.

A next-door neighbor of the O'Briens, Arthur L. McGilvray, said the FBI had asked him to keep an eye on their activities since the O'Briens moved into their new one-family home from a tenement district last Ja[illegible]

Canada Insistent Statements Be Kept Secret

OTTAWA—(CP)—The Gouzenko controversy, apparently resolved Wednesday was higher in the air than ever today. Canada, after insistent United States requests, said it is willing to arrange a secret meeting between Igor Gouzenko and "any person" designated by the U.S. government. There were three "ifs": Gouzenko must agree, the meeting must be under Canadian auspices — that is, in Canada—and the Canadian government must give its approval before any Gouzenko testimony could be made public.

The last stipulation stuck in the craw of Senator William Jenner, chairman of the U.S. Senate internal security sub-committee which wants to quiz Gouzenko.

Jenner said his committee could not pledge to keep the Gouzenko testimony secret.

In a letter to State Secretary Dulles asking that negotiations be continued with Canada, Jenner added: "At the same time, if there is reason to keep the evidence secret, the . . . sub-committee will use the discretion it always has used in these matters affecting security and comity between nations."

CAREFUL CONSIDERATION

External Affairs Minister Pearson, who outlined Canada's position in the case Wednesday in the Commons and tabled the reply to the second U.S. request to question Gouzenko, said of the Jenner statement: "We came to our decision after careful consideration. We will look carefully at any new proposal that may come from the state department."

He declined further comment, but other government sources said Canada is extremely unlikely to back down on the conditions. The government had given the matter a lot of thought and its stand had been approved by all sections of the opposition.

There was no indication here whether Dulles would pass on the latest Jenner request, the fourth to the Canadian government. If he did not, it was assumed Jenner would have to agree to the Canadian stipulation that Canada first approve any testimony to be made public, or not interview Gouzenko at all.

LIMIT NUMBER

If the interview does take place, it was understood that though the Canadian reply mentioned "any person," a U. S. delegation of two or three would be acceptable to Canada. A large number of investigators might destroy Gouzenko's security and anonymity.

In any case, the government made it clear Wednesday it thinks any such meeting would be fruitless.

NO NEW INFORMATION

It revealed that such a meeting was held here in 1949 between Gouzenko and a U. S. Senate immigration sub-committee, but that it turned up no new information. The U. S. sub-committee at that time agreed that the meeting be held in Canada and that Canada must approve any testimony made public. There apparently were no complaints at these stipulations and no testimony was ever made public.

The Canadian reply, delivered Wednesday in Washington, stressed that "competent" U.S. authorities possessed every scrap of information given by Gouzenko in 1949 and since.

The FBI had visited Gouzenko on several occasions, the last in August, 1950.

The government also reiterated that any information not made public in the royal commission on espionage had been passed on to U. S. authorities. Some information relating to other countries had not been recorded in the royal commission report because it would be improper for Canada to make public testimony referring to other nations.

PEARSON EMPHASIZES

Mr. Pearson said he wanted to emphasize this point because Jenner had claimed his sub-committee had some information which was not included in the royal commission report.

Gouzenko, who lives in an undisclosed Ontario town under an RCMP security cloak and an assumed name, said for the third time he is ready to be interviewed by the sub-committee. His first statement along these lines, given to a Chicago Tribune reporter, led to the affair.

Mr. Pearson has said that if Gouzenko wants to risk his safety to talk to U. S. investigators, that is his business. But the government couldn't guarantee his security under such circumstances.

Mr. Pearson said Wednesday Gouzenko has never supplied any information on the late Harry Dexter White and the RCMP quoted Gouzenko Oct. 27 as saying he had no new information on espionage. Gouzenko has claimed, however, that he can supply useful advice on spy-hunting to U.S. Communists-in-government investigators.

POLITELY RAPPED

Mr. Pearson also politely rapped FBI director J. Edgar Hoover for saying it was a "high-placed" Canadian source which in 1946 had sought assurance of White's loyalty.

Mr. Pearson said the source was a security liaison officer of a friendly third power in Ottawa at that time. He did not identify this officer or the power. He said the information suggesting that White might be a Soviet agent had originated with the FBI. The FBI apparently had not recognized the information as its own when it was returned from Ottawa by the third power's security officer.

Canada Owes U.S. Gratitude

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Gardiner said Wednesday that Canada owes the United States a debt of gratitude because that country has decided to reduce its wheat acreage.

The U.S. decision to cut wheat production by 16,000,000 acres, to 62,000,000 from 78,000,000, in 1954, is probably the greatest assistance ever given to Canadian wheat growers, he said in the Commons. It will make it that much easier for Canadians to sell wheat.

Mr. Gardiner, speaking in the debate on the speech from the throne, said there has been a lot of talk about the "plight" of the western farmer. That did not conform with the facts.

The big wheat stockpile in the West was not a handicap, but a good thing. There have been crop failures in the past and there likely will be others in the future. The stocks will help the farmer in times of scarcity.

Witness Mobbed Leaving Courthouse

EDINBURGH (Reuters) — A crowd of 500 Wednesday mobbed a police reservist whose evidence helped convict four young nationalists on a charge of illegally possessing explosives.

The crowd shouted "judas iscariot," "traitor" and "police stooge" and surged towards John Cullen as he left the courthouse after the trial.

Twenty policemen guarding Cullen pushed their way through the mob and hustled him to safety. Other police were called to keep the crowd at bay.

4 MEN INNOCENT

Earlier, a Scottish jury found the four men innocent of conspiring against the government, but guilty of possessing dynamite. The four—Robert Duncan Watt, 22, Malcolm MacAlister, 24, Owen Gillan, 27, and Raymond Forbes, 23—were each sentenced to one year in jail.

Cullen, principal state witness, claimed to have won the confidence of the quartet and pretended to share in a plot to blow up Saint Andrew's House, government headquarters in Scotland.

The four men claimed they knew all along that Cullen was a police agent and led him on in an effort to expose "Gestapo-like" police methods of curbing Scottish nationalism.

Vancouver Has Smoke Problem

VANCOUVER (CP)—One of Vancouver's top experts on air pollution terms the smoke situation here "deplorable and of some urgency."

Dennis Critoph, chairman of the smoke committee of the Community Planning Association, said that in 1950 about 330 tons of solid matter per square mile was deposited in Vancouver—"and anything over 280 tons is bad."

Mr. Critoph said approximately 35 to 50 per cent of Vancouver's smoke is domestic due to the burning of volatile bituminous coal in haphazard fashion by householders.

Sawmills account for a considerable amount, largely due to disposal of so-called waste which in Sweden is of economic value. Other sources are shipping in the harbor, factories, hospitals and other buildings.

He said the problem should be attacked at the grate, by regulating fire-burning equipment in all places where smoke emanates.

MORE ABOUT—
Queen Faces

The sunlit, wooded slopes of the blue mountains formed a background to the colorful military pageantry.

The mansion of the governor, Sir Hugh Foot, is set in 185 acres of park land. The royal suite overlooks rolling grass land where horses run in paddocks, and formal gardens ablaze with flowers. One of the horses in the paddock will be a mount for the duke Friday when he turns out for a polo game.

EXHAUSTING DAY

The Queen and the duke slept well after an exhausting day in which they flew here from Bermuda and drove through Jamaican countryside.

Their 120-mile ride to Kingston from Montego Bay, where they landed Wednesday, was a triumphal progress along the coast, through sugar - cane fields and across mountains gorgeous with scarlet bougainvillea flowers.

Villagers turned out to see and cheer the royal couple as they rode in an open car, sheltering against the blazing sun under a cream-colored parasol. The procession ran into a torrential 15-minute downpour of tropical rain toward the end of the trip.

For lunch the royal car turned off the main road for a rest at a luxurious seaside club where the duke splashed in the warm Caribbean waters.

DUKE POPULAR

The duke became popular with Jamaicans, who like himself are great cricket-lovers, by pointing out to the Queen the preparations being made to get village pitches ready for the new season.

The last visit of the day was to Spanish Town, former capital of the colony, where the royal visitors were shown around the Anglican cathedral.

The royal party dined quietly with the governor and his wife Wednesday night. No guests were invited.

Drew Supports Pearson Calls For Some Restraint

OTTAWA—(CP)—Opposition Leader Drew Wednesday called for "self-discipline and restraint" in criticisms tossed across international boundaries. Speaking in the Commons after External Affairs Minister Pearson had made his statements on Igor Gouzenko and Harry Dexter White, Mr. Drew said the Gouzenko affair could do no good for Canada-United States relations and added:

"If there could be this much disturbance over such a relatively minor occurrence, I shudder to think what might happen if the almost incredible event occurred that we were to have some real misunderstanding with the U.S."

Both he and M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, criticized a suggestion by an American speaker that Mr. Pearson might have Communist sympathies.

BACK UP GOVERNMENT

Mr. Coldwell said the Commons should "back up" the government on the issue and make it clear that it has confidence in Mr. Pearson. The Canadian reply should meet with the approval of the House and the people of Canada.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader said he fully supports the conditions laid down by the government under which Gouzenko would be interviewed. Methods used in the U.S. to conduct inquiries were not Canada's business.

Believes Canada Will Cash In On Gas Supply

LONDON (CP)—Sir Denys Lowson, London's lord mayor in 1951, says Canada will cash in when United States natural gas reserves run dry in another 25 years.

Sir Denys, recently returned from a tour of Canada and the U.S., said in an interview that he estimates U.S. supplies cannot last beyond another quarter century.

"There will be derelict pipelines," he said, "and then Canada can come into her own with the great supplies she is carefully hoarding."

NEED BETTER METHODS

He said, however, that Canada should consider better methods of marketing her natural gas.

"You cannot economically pipe gas across Canada, and I have showed that to Canadians.

"It would be much better and much more naturally correct, if now she should sell her gas to the western and middle-western United States while Texas pipes hers up to the eastern states and western Canada."

Sir Denys is chairman of a number of leading British firms and is associated with several Canadian companies.

OPPOSES GOVERNMENT

Most Rev. Geoffrey Fisher, who sits in the Lords as archbishop of Canterbury, threw his weight behind the group opposing the government. He urged that the Conservative party should not discipline its members until attempts at agreement had failed.

The archbishop said a great deal of Christian and educational opinion is opposed to the government plans or is "extremely uneasy about it." More television, meaning an increase in "mediocre and trivial if not bad television," is not wanted, he contended.

The attack was spearheaded by Lord Hailsham, who condemned any plan for a network "which derives its revenue solely from advertisement."

He moved a powerfully-backed motion opposing the government's two-week-old proposal to set up a state corporation to run new TV stations, selling commercial time to advertisers. At present, British television is confined to the single-channel broadcasts of the government-owned BBC.

WOULD LOWER STANDARDS

Hailsham claimed commercial interests in television will force the standard of programs down in an effort to build up mass audiences.

He suggested that combined television-radio licences be increased from the present £2 a year to enable the BBC to run an alternative program. Alternatively, he urged BBC control over any system of sponsored TV.

In reply, Postmaster - general Earl de la Warr said: "British traders and industrialists are not all unscrupulous and irresponsible, nor are British advertisers."

"We are an adult nation and have our self-discipline. Surely we can trust the British public to choose between one ITV program and another."

Canadian Immigration Draws New York Shipping

NEW YORK (CP)—The major emigration movement from Europe to Canada in the last few years has lured a large number of passenger ships to Canadian ports and drawn a significant amount of ocean passenger business from the port of New York, the New York Times says today following a survey.

The Times story followed announcement in London that two new Cunard liners, to be named the Saxonia and Ivernia, are being built for service to Quebec and Montreal. A third liner, as yet unnamed, is planned for the near future.

Steamship companies that diverted some or all of their vessels to the Canadian trade to cash in on the emigration business were forced to build up trade eastbound or return empty ships to Europe, the Times found, adding:

"Their promotion programs have drawn many Canadians and Americans of the Great Lakes area, who ordinarily might have sailed from New York, to Canada's ports, and have stimulated the urge among successful immigrants to visit their homelands."

The Times survey shows that in the peak travel season this year at least 36 passenger ships, owned by 10 companies, were serving Canada from Europe. Twenty of the vessels were in regular service and the remainder touched regularly at Halifax on the way to or from New York.

Eliminating 25 Level Crossings Doucett Says

TORONTO (CP) — Twenty-five level crossings on Ontario highways will be eliminated in a program announced Wednesday by Highways Minister Doucett.

Cost of grade separation now under way or scheduled to be authorized in the elimination of level crossings is estimated at some $4,700,000.

In some cases, elimination of crossings awaits only orders from the board of transport commissioners. Twelve of the projects are linked with four-lane by-passes near urban communities.

Mr. Doucett said a recent survey of accident rates on Ontario highways showed that the stretch of highway 401 from Oshawa to Highland Creek, east of Toronto, has a greater death toll than any other provincial highway.

Projects include:

Highway 11—CPR crossing north of Orillia; CNR at Washago; CNR near Novar; CNR near Scotia.

London-Woodstock bypass, Highway 401—London and Port Stanley Railway near London; CPR in Dorchester township; CNR in East Oxford Township; CPR in West Oxford Township.

Kingston bypass, Highway 401—CNR east of Kingston.

Highway 17—CPR west of Copper Cliff; CPR in Nairn township.

Highway 35—CPR near Newcastle.

Changing Assessments Cause Municipalities Debenture Problems

COBOURG—(ENS)—A number of requests are in from district collegiate boards for counties council approval of debenture issues covering extensions to schools in Cobourg, Port Hope and Bowmanville. One difficulty facing both the municipalities involved and the boards is the flexible nature of the equalized assessments on which proportionate payments are made.

The boards are asking the counties of Northumberland and Durham to issue the debentures, but the actual outlay of money will be made by the municipalities participating in the high school districts. Port Hope plans a debenture issue of $610,000; Bowmanville $430,000 and Cobourg district collegiate $175,000.

Reeve Roy Nichols of Darlington township raised the point in counties council of how any fixed percentage could be agreed to when the amount was based, by the act, on the prevailing equalized assessment. Some municipalities, Cobourg for instance, has had a new assessment in operation for some time the counties-wide re-assessment would not be completed for some years yet and the debentures would be spread out on a 20-year basis.

OVERCROWDING

A deputation from the Cobourg district collegiate board pointed out to counties council than an eight-room addition was needed as the present accommodation was designed only for 340 but 540 were crowded into it and overflowed into accommodation secured in a building next door. The participating municipalities, Haldimand, Hamilton and Alnwick townships and the town of Cobourg had agreed on the amounts for which each would be responsible.

A. R. Willmott, one of the board members, emphasized that it was necessary that council declare itself at this session as to whether or not it would approve the debentures, as early action was necessary in order to architects' plans and department approval.

H. R. S. Ryan, Port Hope, speaking on behalf of the Durham district high school, said that it was planned to build a new school at Port Hope and an addition at Bowmanville. The municipalities concerned had been contacted and had given their consent.

Mr. Ryan said that the new assessment would not enter into the picture until 1957. Just what variation would occur with the change of the equalized assessment was something which could not be established ahead of time, he said,

Mr. Willmott pointed out that actual extent of the effect of the Act was not known at the time the various municipalities in the Cobourg district collegate were approached and the percentages agreed upon had been the result of negotiations undertaken in all innocence, although, in effect, it was somewhat misleading.

The amounts paid would be bound to vary in accordance with the flexible assessment from year to year until the entire counties re-assessment had been completed. There would have to be, and he expected that it would be given freely, a certain amount of give-and-take in the apportionment of the share borne by each of the municipalities.

Reeves Charlie Burrison of Hamilton township asked if his township could, should they desire, pay their portion right away, which amounts to $25,000.

"I see no reason why you couldn't. You must expect that it would turn out to be a better bargain handling it that way," replied Mr. Willmott with a smile.

The finance committee will report on the request of the high school districts at the close of the session.

TO PAVE ROAD

Council yesterday approved the recommendation of the road commission that the Hampton-Kirby road be taken over by the province as a development road. Two years after it reverts to the counties, it is to be paved, as is the custom under such arrangements.

The road is about eight miles long and it will cost $40,000 to pave it. But it was pointed out that it will be cheaper in the long run than keeping it maintained without it being paved.

Council passed a resolution approving Warden J. H. Lowery's recent letters to county papers replying to editorials which had criticized the council because it had failed to increase salaries and thereby lost two counties officials.

Road Superintendent G. L. Totten came in for some praise from the Department Engineer, E. F. Marsten, and from the warden.

The report on road expenditure to the end of October showed that the total spent on maintenance was $158,927.69 and on construction $103,188.57. Total spent for construction, maintenance and other items was $368,569.66. Total for subsidy was $287,268.46.

Use Fishermen Guard Coast

OSLO (Reuters) — Struggling with the problem of defending her tremendously long coastline, Norway is recruiting fishermen and their boats for coast guard duty in case of an emergency.

The men are being enrolled in the naval branch of the home guard and for all operative purposes they are under naval command. They do their training in slack periods between the various fishing seasons and, in the event of war or any emergency, will be ready to play an important part in coastal patrols and other duties, each boat's crew serves in an area it knows well.

Norway's coastline stretches roughly 2,125 miles, not counting all the deep fjords, inlets and islands. If these are included, the total length of coastline to be watched is almost 12,500 miles. The total population is just over 3,000,000.

Coastal fishing constitutes one of Norway's biggest industries, employing some 116,000 men and a fleet of about 32,000 motor-driven boats.

GC FORECAST UNCHANGED

TORONTO (CP)—Fred Turnbull, Ontario's chief weather forecaster, Wednesday held doggedly to his long range prediction of the weather outlook for Grey Cup day Saturday: "Partly cloudy, afternoon temperature 45, light winds, no rain or snow."

Turnbull's faith in the outlook for the East-West football classic between Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Winnipeg Blue Bombers wasn't shaken by an overnight rainfall of ¼ inches or a forecast of snowflurries in the Toronto area for today.

In making his prediction Tuesday, Turnbull had his eye on a Pacific air mass making a strong bid to reach Toronto. Tuesday night it left the coast and moved as far east as Salt Lake City, Utah.

However, he conceded that falling pressures in the Edmonton area could upset his calculations. Alberta foothills are the breeding ground of many Ontario storms and falling pressures are the first sign of such developments.

University of Toronto officials put the Canadian Rugby Union tarpaulin on Varsity Stadium Tuesday night, protecting the turf from rain.

Discipline For Young Criminals

The committee of the Ontario Legislature which investigates reform institutions has hinted that more discipline might be used in dealing with young criminals, meaning boys and girls under twenty-one who have committed a sufficiently serious offence to be sent to Bowmanville or Guelph. This recommendation has received support from the Guelph magistrate, and also from Professor G. E. Reaman, who organized the Bowmanville School. Both of these men, who may be assumed to have wide experience in dealing with young offenders, feel that the imposition of suspended sentences in Juvenile Courts is a mistake, because the young offender very often does not understand what a suspended sentence is, and understands very clearly that nothing has happened to him. We think that the opinions of Magistrate Watt and Prof. Reaman deserve serious thought.

The difficulty in dealing with young offenders is that they vary widely in their grasp of court proceedings and legal action. What appears to be merciful in adult eyes does not impress them because they do not understand it. The concept of a suspended sentence is not easy for all adults to grasp, and it is fair to say that it is beyond virtually all children. What is more, children do not respond well to prolonged moral disapproval; they do a bad action, they are caught, and they want to know what the outcome will be at once. To sentence them to a strapping is far more in tune with their ideas of justice than to give them a suspended sentence—which is a form of moral probation. The strapping teaches them a sharp lesson; they have then paid for their offence, and can start afresh. To those who object that the strap is cruel, we say that there is more than one form of cruelty; a strapping is less cruel than prolonged disapproval, to the child mind, and a failure to meet the problem of a delinquent child in a way that the child itself understands is very real cruelty, for it may incline the child to think that the adult world is soft, and that it is possible to escape the consequences of wrong actions.

In court cases involving children it is important to bear in mind that it is the child who must be impressed, even if this involves a type of punishment which adults do not approve for themselves. Children do not understand complex legal concepts such as the suspended sentence; they do understand that, except for a serious talk from the juvenile court judge, they have escaped without punishment. Sensitive children may be reformed by a scolding, but most of the children who find themselves in juvenile court are not notably sensitive, and do not come from homes where discipline is intelligently enforced. Nobody likes beating a child, but it is better that a child should be beaten than that a court should fail to impress a child with the seriousness of breaking the law.

Firmly On Guard Against McCarthy

Across the entire country and whatever their political complexion, newspapers of Canada have rallied to the defence of Mr. Pearson and unanimously condemned any spread of McCarthy tactics into Canada. This is heartening, and, we think, representative of the Canadian people as a whole, who trust the men whom they confirm in high office and will certainly not stoop to slandering them for the honest performance of their public duty. Canadians will not be bamboozled into neo-Nazi suspicions and rabble-rousing tactics. A selection of editorial comment on the affair is printed elsewhere on this page.

There can be—and are—differences of opinion on whether Gouzenko should be allowed to testify in a matter which, from our point of view, is American domestic politics and outside the province of a private Canadian or a Gouzenko living under the protection of the Canadian governmental system. We regret that Mr. Pearson and the Government have given in to the U.S. senatorial inquisition and are willing to allow the internal security sub-committee to interview Igor Gouzenko, provided he is willing.

Our reasons for regretting this permission are these. There is no need for it. The Canadian Government long ago passed to the U.S. authorities "every scrap of information" which Gouzenko had. If Gouzenko had more to reveal, he could have done it through the usual Canadian governmental channels, and our Government would have passed it on to the U.S., on request. Secondly, by this permission, Ottawa is acquiescing in the witch-hunt tactics and hysteria of certain sections of the American populace, instead of showing its disapproval of them by withholding the permission.

There is, of course, a matter of personal liberty. Under the friendly relationship existing between the two countries, a Canadian is perfectly free to tell the U.S. Government or anybody in the U.S. what he thinks about any subject, provided his talk or revelation is not treasonable. As a private Canadian citizen, Gouzenko would be at liberty to make his deposition. But Gouzenko is not a private citizen; he is a ward of the state. If he wishes to forego the bounty and protection of the Canadian Government, let him; then let him go as a private individual to the U.S. and speak his piece and remain there to add fuel to the dreadful fire McCarthy is fanning. But to give him the right to go, and the Senate committee the right to question him while he remains in the status of a ward of the state is to give tacit Canadian official approval to the whole disreputable affair.

Slippery When Wet

This week the sun has been setting shortly after 4:30 in the afternoon. half an hour later the pedestrian and motor traffic in Peterborough and on roads leading out of the city is the heaviest of the day. It is dark. The chances are that the atmosphere is heavy, the sky overcast. Visibility is thus further hampered. And on such evenings, the pavement is likely to be greasy, from fog, from rain, from sleet or snow. We remind walkers as well as drivers of these conditions. The utmost care should be exercised if accidents are to be avoided.

It is tea-time of course. Late shoppers are hurrying home to get supper ready. Office and factory workers are anxious to get out of the gloom and into the calm security of their own homes as fast as they can. But under the traffic and weather conditions at five o'clock, haste must be made with care. The woman with her head down, arms full of parcels, barging across a main intersection against the red light, is a menace to herself and to everybody else on the street. The car driver who fails to come to a full stop at a stop sign, but slides around the corner impatiently into the traffic is heading for a crash—and a legal penalty. The commuting car ripping out of town at a speed reprehensible even under the best driving conditions is risking life and property—his own as well as that of others.

Most dangerous is not the darkness of the hour but the slippery pavement. "Slippery When Wet" is a common highway warning. Most paving is slippery when it is wet. But it is more slippery at dusk of a late November day when the water congeals into a grease; and when the wetness is frozen into ice, or snow pounded by cars into a sheet of ice. So, drivers beware; and pedestrian, use your head instead of your feet. Stay on the sidewalk until you get the green light. Trying to jump the caution light is as foolish as a driver doing it, and more dangerous. His car weighs a ton or two; your frame a hundredweight or two.

False Economy

Several newspapers have already deplored the proposal to abandon the Musical Ride, which is carefully cherished and performed by the R.C.M.P. It is said that it costs money to train the men and the horses to carry out this manoeuvre, and that it takes time which is needed for other training of the R.C.M.P. The people who say these things have not, we feel, thought realistically enough about the R.C.M.P.

This body of men may be divided into two groups. There are the men in plain clothes, of whose presence we are usually unconscious, and who perform the tasks of a Dominion secret police, at which, we have reason to believe, they are extremely adept. And there are the men in uniform, who perform routine duties and who signify Canada to visitors from all parts of the globe. The latter group have their place, just as much as the former. Canada needs symbols and good publicity, and the Mountie in his scarlet coat provides just what we need.

The Musical Ride is a great spectacle. Of course it costs money, but do not all great military spectacles—the British Guards regiments, the Papal Swiss Guard, the U.S. Marines—cost money? And are they not all of them worth every penny they cost in the pride and prestige which they provide?

If the R.C.M.P. is short of money, let us give them more of it, and keep the Musical Ride. A considerable sum could by raised simply by denying MPs the franking privilege which they seem to use so freely, or by putting a time limit on the Debate in Reply to the Speech from the Throne.

A California woman is suing a department store because it sold her a bathing suit which became transparent in the water, exposing her, she says, "to public gaze and ridicule". If her figure was fit to put into a bathing suit in the first place, a trifling transparency should not have this unfortunate effect.

LONDON LETTER

Noble Lords

By ROBERT MILLER

THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT has still not produced its proposals for reforming the House of Lords; and the opinion is growing either that they will never see the light of day or that they will be so modest that they will not radically change the powers of the Peers.

There is one good reason for believing that the Prime Minister, Sir Winston Churchill, would hesitate to embark on any radical measure of reform: the Government has only a small majority, and so is hardly in a position to propose any serious alteration to the Constitution. Indeed, I agree with a collegue who said the other day if the Government did carry out any radical change, the Labour Party might promise to abolish the Lords on its return to power.

THE ONLY WAY the Conservatives could alter the Constitution would be by agreement with the other Parties; but Labour has already turned down the Prime Minister's invitation to a meeting on the subject. In these circumstances one would expect Sir Winston to go no further than the laying-down of certain broad principles in the hope that the Opposition would then change its mind and be prepared to talk.

My own feeling is that the Labour Party will turn down any proposal of this kind, no matter how broad Sir Winston's principles may turn out to be. Mr. Clement Attlee, leader of the Opposition, might be prepared to negotiate; but there is a substantial number of Labour Members who would certainly oppose any idea of all-Party talks. And Mr. Attlee would hardly dare ignore them.

THE OTHER DAY I went to watch the preparation for the by-election—on November 19—that were going on in Holborn and St. Pancras South in London. The constituency is one of the most fascinating in England. Holborn itself is largely a business quarter; but the city workers leave early in the evening, and at night, streets which are so busy during the day become empty and silent—a place of the dead. Not far away are some of the loveliest squares in London—Bedford Square, for instance, where Sir Johnston Forbes Robertson, the famous actor, and Mr. Asquith, a former British Prime Minister, used to live. Round the corner is Gordon Square, where Lord Keynes had a house, and a little further on Russell Square, once so aristocratic that every house had its own carriage and pair.

WHEN I KNEW this part of London well, it was still largely unspoiled, and was associated in the public mind with "'Bloomsburyism," a highbrow cult led by Virginia Woolf and Lytton Strachey.

The area has greatly changed since those days. For one thing, places like Bedford Square have ceased to be residential: practically every house has been turned into offices. Perhaps the greatest change of all is the giant and hideous building that has been built by London University. Its ugliness is not the only thing I object to. The university, so thronged during the day and so empty at night, gives one the feeling that Bloomsbury is no longer inhabited.

WHAT MAKES Holborn and St. Pancras so difficult a constituency to fight is that it has such a huge "floating population." The students, among them many Indians, Pakistanis, Ceylonese and so on, are always making way for newcomers. There is a large number of Irish folk in Somers Town—and the Irish are often nomads. Some of the biggest railroad stations in London are in the area—Euston, for instance, and St. Pancras and King's Cross—and the railway workers who live in the constituency may be away on polling day. Then there are the nurses in the big hospitals, and a large number of catering employees who work in the cafes and restaurants of Soho and waiters and chefs are often on the move.

READING MR. LEONARD Woolf's new book "Principia Politica," I could not help reflecting how much the Labour Party has changed since the early days. Mr. Woolf is now seventy-three years old, and his mind is still riddled with the ideas and intolerances of the early Socialist intellectuals.

The Roman Catholic Church still makes him foam at the mouth. "Catholic doctrine," he tells us, "has incorporated nearly all the major fantasies and delusions which have had a wide appeal to the irrational in human beings during the last two thousand years." Mr. Woolf may or may not be right; but surely it is a little odd, a little tiresome, to find a man, in the year 1953, showering so much abuse on religion in a book supposed to be concerned with the politics of our time.

HIS VIOLENT reaction to religion also leads him into some serious misjudgements. That Mr. Woolf should admire Periclean Athens because of its "scepticism and rationalism" we cannot understand; but what are we to make of a Socialist intellectual who, in his transports over the Periclean age, does not mention his adored society was founded on slave labour.

His attitude to Russia is also interesting. Mr. Woolf says some grand thing about the evil of Soviet authoritarianism; but he still believes that in some respects Russia has "an economic freedom and equality unknown in the West." And he does not mention that right to strike, the establishment of independent trades unions, and indeed nearly all the liberties which Socialist pioneers demanded in the early days, are denied in Russia.

Bluebottle to Canada

The Royal Dragon class yacht "Bluebottle" will enter Canadian races at Toronto and Montreal next summer. It will be shipped to Canada early in June and will be at each city for about two weeks. It has not yet been decided whether a British crew will go with the yacht or whether a Canadian crew will join her. In any event, Lt. Cmdr. R. Hewitt, "Bluebottle's" sailing master, will be at the helm.

The Duke of Edinburgh recently presented a cup to the Canadian Yachting Association for the annual competition by Dragon class yachts. First winner of the trophy was Sonny Hanna with his yacht "Dandelion."

AN AMERICAN OPINION: "ABOUT FACE!—WHAT ELSE?"

Press Opinion On Gouzenko Flare

Montreal Star

Those of us who value the strength and warmth of Canadian-American relations have become deeply disturbed over the present storm of controversy aroused by the Gouzenko and Harry White incident and the vicious smear on Mr. L. B. Pearson publicly delivered in New York by an irresponsible speaker. The area of irresponsibility is widening in the United States, and each new criticism, each new attack, each new smear is rousing a usually self-controlled public opinion in Canada to higher and higher temperatures.

The Star shares this feeling of resentment . . . .

Montreal La Presse

Our neighbours are free to act as they like. But they would compromise the union that has existed for so long between the two countries by attempting to have the Canadian government adopt their methods. To act thus would undermine the co-operation that the two have so frequently shown they wish to practise.

Brantford Expositor

Unmannerly hysteria that seems to have overtaken some public men in the United States does not justify similarly juvenile performance in Canada. Taking so-called McCarthyism at its worst, one may seriously ask whether this supposed antidote for communism is not as bad as the Red disease itself.

Ottawa Citizen

The Jenner committee persisted in maintining pressure on Ottawa, as if Canada were the 49th state, or the Canadian government were not to be trusted in the fight against communism. Whatever happens now, wholly unecessary harm has been done to Canadian-American harmony....

Ottawa Journal

In this robust politicking, an old North American custom, Canadians have no right to be smug and a duty to be neutral... Whatever happens, let's not here in Canada get too excited nor enraged.

Kitchener Record

Some irresponsible and ridiculous utterances are being made by the McCarthy stooges... Mr. Pearson is pictured as being soft toward the Red. Such silly statements take on the semblance of blackmail in efforts to have Gouzenko made available for the circus staged the McCarthyites...

St. Catharines Standard

Pressure to have the government of Canada consent to the appearance of Gouzenko... can be firmly resisted on the level of high diplomacy, all rabblerousers not withstanding ... It is a strange spectacle when two enlightened nations like Canada and the U.S. start playing the game in the manner that Soviet Russia appreciates best and its greatest advantage.

Timmins Daily Press

The accusation against M. Pearson is so fantastic that it is not worthy of passing consideration by thinking Canadians and Americans. Mr. Pearson has been Canada's voice against communism at world conferences.

Calgary Albertan

Mr. Pearson would be well advised to soften his attitude toward those U.S. senators who want to question Igor Gouzenko... To keep Gouzenko back might play into McCarthy's hands more than to let him be questioned. The questioning should be done in Canada, however....

Vancouver Province

The refusal of the Canadian government to allow Gouzenko to testify has been used as a basis for insinuating that the government is afraid of what he might say. The Chicago Tribune has fastened on this as a weapon in its continuing effort to "get" Hon. Lester Pearson... From this distance, it looks like a pretty messy affair. And it looks as unnecessary as it is messy...

Letter To The Editor

ARCHAIC MUNICIPAL TAX SYSTEM

SIR: This week the citizens of Peterborough (or that foolish section who are naive enough to own property) have received their new assessment notices. They were tendered to them with the utmost of diplomacy, philosophical and soothing press releases on the problems that face our City Fathers—the great disparity and inequality of the old assessments—how actually it would be better for all (or nearly all) because the lower mill rate on the higher assessments would make little difference. Anyway most of the burden was going to be put on the large industries, those mighty, nebulous, impersonal giants who apparently can absorb almost any kind of a raid and still make money.

But my notice arrived! My assessment was up over $1100 or about 30% In eight years my assessment has risen about 20%, my taxes from $96.00 to $235.00. My assessment being 30% greater I hardly think the anticipated drop in the mill rate will be sufficient to keep my taxes much below $300. This is on a house which cost only $4,200 eight years ago. A total of $1,500 has been spent on the house in decorating, restoring the heating plant and other minor improvements.

I am in dire need of additional philosophy and public relations, please—some more press releases!

But this is going on all over the country. The municipal tailors are hard pressed to make a suit fit the cloth provided from our municipal tax forms. Why? Because of the archaic and unrealistic municipal tax system. It is a warped and twisted application of the old Doomsday Book of the Middle Ages to our complicated and vastly changed Twentieth Century economy. Taxes and services were apportioned amongst the Estate owners according to their holdings. Large estates had to supply more goods and services to the King than smaller estates. It was based on the relative income or productivity of the estate—not on the type of roofs, number of rooms, areas of floors, etc., in the castle, cottage or hut. It was a type of income tax.

My arguments are based on the promise that the tax burden is distributed according to the ability of the citizen to pay. That is, he gives in proportion to what he receives.

Our municipal tax is, as nearly all taxes are, an income tax. We pay it out of our incomes. They don't take it off our houses. I would gladly let them have a couple of chimneys or a verandah, but it is my income they want. But here is the joker—they base the cut they take at my income not according to how much I earn but the area of my living room floor, or some other highly scientific gauge. There is no thought taken as to how many bedrooms I need for my family, or even if I have a family.

Under our present municipal tax system the very foundation of our Western Democracy is undermined—the happy family unit in a comfortable home. How will a man spend that portion of his income which is above the basic minimum required for his family? If he provides his wife and children with a better home, a larger play yard, a more comfortable heating system, a modern bathroom, a recreation room, the municipality penalizes him. If he spends it on club fees, parties, expensive vacation or any other good or bad way the municipal fathers charge him nothing. What choice will he make?

What will the long term effect of our municipal policy be? Smaller and meaner housing! The large investment interests have long learned that slum properties are the most remunerative. Low taxes are a deciding factor with the burden so great.

What remedy do I suggest? I suggest that our municipal "income" tax be based on income rather than on the number of toilets in one's house. The Federal Government already collects the provincial taxes, why not the municipal taxes? All incomes would be taxed—not just home owners or renters. Women workers would then share municipal responsibilities as well as privileges. If all those now employed in our assessment and tax offices were added to the Federal Income Tax department a very complete income tax would be collected. Very few would be able to escape.

How can it be accomplished? Not overnight. A society for municipal Tax Reform should be organized to study the problem and bring pressure to bear on our municipal government to start action for reform.

Nominations and elections are at hand—this is our first step—elect councillors who recognize the weakness of our present system and are prepared to act. Many difficulties are in the way—the overstressed sanctity of the Provincial and Federal Tax fields. But this is a Democracy. If the pressure of Public Opinion is brought to bear, a way will be found.

I am only sketching the problem here. Many more pages could be written. I only hope to stir up thought and discussion which might lead to action.

Dear sir, I hope others will write and you will be kind enough to print.

To keep this discussion free from personalities, I prefer to sign myself:-

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And Solomon stood before the altar of the Lord in the presence of all the congregation of Israel, and spread forth his hands toward heaven:

And he said, Lord God of Israel, there is no God like Thee, in heaven above, or on earth beneath, who keepest covenant and mercy with thy servants that walk before thee with all their heart . . .

And now, O God of Israel, let thy word, I pray thee, be verified, which thou spakest unto thy servant David my father.

But will God indeed dwell on the earth? behold, the heaven and heaven of heavens cannot contain thee: how much less this house that I have builded? (1 Kings 8:22, 23, 26, 27.)

Hear my cry, O God; attend unto my prayer.

From the end of the earth will I cry unto thee, when my heart is overwhelmed; lead me to the rock that is higher than I . . .

I will abide in thy tabernacle for evert I will trust in the covert of thy wings. Selah. (Ps. 61:1, 2, 4.)

Truly my soul waiteth upon God. (Ps. 62:1.)

A BRITISH OPINION

"Stanley, wake up and tell Santa Claus here we've lost our way, and the last thing we're thinking of at the moment is stealing his chickens."

French Sought To Give Jews Better Life In North Africa

By PHILIP DEANE

LONDON (OFNS)—On the morning of August 21, 1953, I was being driven in a taxi to the big palace in Fez where the Moroccan religious dignitaries had to sing the enthronement Act for the new Sultan, Ben Arafa. This new sovereign was not popular with the religious dignitaries, who deeply resented the deposition, on the previous day, of the nationalist Sultan Sid Mohamed Ben Youssef.

"You are a photographer?" asked my taxi driver.

Yes."

"You have come to see what is happening, why a Sultan changes? Perhaps you think the French are interfering in what is not their business? Perhaps you think badly of the French? Well, I don't. Because I am a Jew." And then my Jewish taxi-driver told me his story.

"There are 250,000 of us in Morocco," he said, "and five hundred thousand in the whole of North Africa—five-eighths of all the Jews living in Muslim countries. Without the French our life would be hell.

"You know, before the French came, we were not like other human beings. As best we were only left alone. We had to pay a head tax for the right to live. We had to wear special clothes, and we could only do special kinds of jobs. And we had to live in mellahs—ghettos they call them in your countries.

"Wherever there was trouble—if the finances went wrong, if the harvest failed, if a Minister felt bad in the morning—the Muslims would rush into our Mellah and do what they liked with us. We could be killed—and our womenfolk could always be raped.

"Then we had to pay the officials so that they would not punish us for no reason. For many, many years we did not even have nationality. We were not even worthy to be subjects of the Sultan.

"Then the French arrived, and we became human beings. We had the right to run our communities without interference now. We have our own social services. Our communities have a small voice in the Government. It doesn't mean much, but its better than nothing. And for all cases to do with our religion we can go to our own courts. The French have reorganized these courts, and we can appeal.

"Now 35,000 Jewish children go to school, and we can build more schools. We can leave our mellahs too. The French are building blocks of flats for us. Not many, but better than nothing.

"We do not say anything about Moroccan politics. We are few and we have to be careful. But if the French go, we will be lost. The Muslims have learned nothing. The are still fanatical.

"If you do not think so, remember 1948; after what happened in Palestine, they massacred us in the towns of Oujda and Djerda. My father was killed, and I will be killed too, if the French go."

There was no doubt that my taxi-driver meant what he said; and I checked his facts. Among the complex dilemma of North Africa one must include this one: the problem of the Jews—who fear the Muslims and thank the French.

Hope For Deaf Children Early Use Of Hearing Aid

By ALISON SETTLE

LONDON (OFNS)—A notable advance in the speech education of deaf infants has been made at a residential hostel in Ealing, London, run in conjunction with the Royal National Throat, Nose and Ear Hospital and the Grays Inn Road Audiology Unit.

At the hostel I saw children—the oldest of them three years old—wearing hearing aids, with the earpiece in place and the aid itself clipped on to the back of their belts. After about a week's use they ignored the aids. And it was necessary only to call out the children's names to realise that they were hearing—for the first time in their lives.

Early use of a hearing aid means that the child learns to cope with speech at a time when speech is beginning. Older deaf children are not able to recognie their own voices: these babies listen entranced to themselves as they shout and speak or merely babble; and they quickly grasp that the sound is of their own making.

LIVES WITH MOTHER

In this experimental hostel opened only in September this year, the deaf child lives with its mother for a fortnight at a time, returning for a check-up and further training of mother and [illegible] in a few months. In that fortnight the mother watches the officer in charge teaching the child to listen and to speak, and is able to take over this education at home. Where children are totally deaf, the hostel uses lipreading; but it teaches speech before the child realises the difficulties that face him.

In a group of children with hearing aids I saw one child who had been there three weeks, because he was returning to Malaya and would not be able to make the return visit. Half Danish and half Malayan by birth, Peter, who was accompanied by his beautiful Malayan mother, spent a year in a hospital bed in Denmark, where he was mistaken for a mentally-backward child. Now he has turned into an engaging two-year-old.

VICTIM OF MEASLES

Another two-year-old child, from Berkshire, in England, was the victim of German measles suffered by his mother during pregnancy.

Still in her twenties, slim and pretty, the mother (who had at home three older children and one younger baby) was, in the opinion of the hostel, an ideal parent. The parent guidance, which is a feature of the stay there, was in her case hardly necessary; she knew the need for the deep affection and reassurance which any handicapped child requires. The child was gay and self-reliant, and had already developed a pretty voice.

Each mother has her own bedroom for herself and child, but at meals the two have separate tables. There is a big lounge; and, more important, the playroom, provided with a sandpit, low play tables, brightly coloured toys, puzzles and pictures, with facilities for painting and modelling. Here hearing and speech training takes place while the children play.

Children stay free at the hostel, but mothers pay £5 a week or less, according to their means. And psychologists and doctors unite to make the fortnight's stay productive of the fullest possible results.

The Grey Cup madness sweeps in from the west this week as the grid'ron classic of the year is unfolded at Varsity Stadium this Saturday aft. It's always a sellout, being the most publicized sports' event in Canada year after year. Eastern betting gen'ry are laying their lose lettuce on Hamilton Ti-Cats to take the Winnipeg Bombers, some odds being as high as two to one, though that's really an overlay. A six-five wager sounds more reasonable to us. In Indian Jack Jacobs the Bombers have a great passer when he is right, but don't forget the Ti-Cats had the best pass defence in the Big Four this year. They should win. We'll take this one in via radio.

Bruno Favero, a point of contention between Orillia and Owen Sound of the senior "A" puck loop, is back with the Orillia Pontiacs and he turned in a starry showing in their 8-3 win o'er Belleville last Saturday. Playing coach Vic Grigg has been building Pontiacs up after some early losses, and the 7-7 draw with Petes in their only meeting so far. He has a strong squad now from Goalie Bob Shropshire out, a hard-hitting club which will move up the loop ladder as the schedule progresses. They tackle the TPT Petes here tomorrow night and it'll be a dogfight as the Redmond men try to hang onto third spot in a hot race. Petes play Oshawa away next night.

Oldsters vs. Youngsters

While our junior Petes have a big advantage over the oldtimers in their PMHA booster night puck exhibition here this eve—they have youth, condition and speed to burn—it must be remembered that experience is also very important. That's where the oldsters have it on the kids. Which should make for an interesting tussle at eight in Civic Arena. Broomball betwixt the firemen and police during the intermissions and a draw for Ed Riley's door prize of $250 in a clothing ensemble for a lady or man present. All proceeds to aid minor hockey here, and we hope the place is jammed with fans.

* * * * * *

Fond memories of many a hectic hockey night hereabouts will be recalled when these oldtimers—many of them not so old at all—skate out there for charity's sake. Real veteran fans will recall the feats years ago of such aces at Bert McLeod, Mucker Legros, Dit Clapper, Jim Ellis, Pat Calladine, Jack Gardner, Scotty Maudsley and many more. And in more recent years they thrilled to the sparkling play of fellows like Art Heal, Honey Tompkins, Bun Kingdon, Red Creighton, Ross Nicholls, the Vitarellis and Joplings, Johnny Godfrey, Les Burton, Archie Weir, Joe Blewett, Doug Mortimer and others. We don't know how many of these and other veterans will be on deck but have been assured by PMHA Prexy Dick Ouimet that a lot of the oldtimers would perform, and that fans will have a thoroughly enjoyable puck exhibition tonight. It starts at eight.

The Chuck Kearns Trophy

The Recreation Commission has taken over the Charles Kearns Memorial Trophy to be awarded annually to the outstanding Peterborough athlete. It will be presented in January at the city's championship banquet for teams winning a provincial crown or better. A committee has been named to vote on the first winner of the Kearns Trophy, the members being Bev Goulding, Bill Bennett, Cec. Perdue, Bud LaBlanche, George Ludgate and the director of recreation, Alex Sinclair. The championship dinner will be for the senior lacrosse club the grid Orfuns, UEW soccer team, juvenile lacrosse winners, Shamrock' hockey club, Peterborough Ornamental Swimming Club, and Badminton winners Mrs. Maurice Charlton and Verna Rose. All these in the past two years have won an Ontario title or better.

Chunky Bert Maxwell, a house dick at the Royal York Hotel, had a good workout here last night in preparation for a wild Grey Cup weekend at the big Toronto hotel when the Winnipeg hordes arrive for the football final. Bert was referee at the pro mat matches and he was banged about plenty trying to keep some semblance of order in the main bout. It wound up with all four out of the ring and swinging mightily. So the brawl was called a draw between the mean Mills' brothers on the one mitt and Tim Geohagen and Ilio DiPaolo on the other. Hi Lee won the semi-final o'er Alan Garfield, while the prelim went the limit to a draw betwixt Reyes Nacho and Firpo Szybsko.

TENSE MOMENTS FOR JOE — Junior Petes' goalie, Joe O'Brien, shared game stardom with Port Perry goalie, Ross Hawe, Wednesday night at Civic Arena. Both goalies turned in stellar performances despite the high score, 8-6 for the Flyers. O'Brien, given little protection by his defence, had many tense moments such as in the top photo where he meets Gary Copeland with the puck between them or as in the lower photo where he kicks out a shot by Bill Cochrane.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Port Perry Takes OHA Win Over The Young Petes In Overtime Junior Tussle

Penalties turned victory into defeat Wednesday night for Red Creighton's junior Petes. They were headed towards a 6-4 victory over Port Perry Flyers midway through the third period of Wednesday's game at Civic arena, but a charging penalty to Kevin Heffernan helped the fast-stepping Flyers to tally twice to tie the score. Then in the overtime period Murray Byrne sat out another charging penalty and once more the Flyers took full advantage of the odd man, taking the lead on a goal by Gary Copeland. To assure a win the Flyers added another to take an 8-6 victory over the Petes.

Even though Flyers are reported loaded with good junior "A" material (all from Oshawa), they met their equals in the young Petes. But the penalties hurt.

Both teams concentrated on fast breaking hockey, giving very little though to defence. In fact the only defence either team had was the goaltending as play shifted quickly back and forth.

AN EARLY LEAD

The Flyers with a last-minute spurt in the first period grabbed a 2-1 lead. But in a wide open second period the Creighton-coached lads cashed in on several breaks to take the lead 5-3. They kept ahead until Heffernan's penalty when the Ports scored twice to tie it and send the game into overtime.

Fourteen goals is a good many for one game, but there could have been a dozen more; only the sensational play of both goalies, Joe O'Brien for the Petes and Ross Hawe for the Flyers, kept the total down.

Given little protection by his defence (only Murray Byrne gave him steady help), O'Brien came through with a stellar performance. Time after time he outguessed Dunc Brodie, Tom O'Connor and other Flyer stars.

Meanwhile Hawe was giving the hawhaw to the Petes. He batted, caught, golfed and smothered the puck, particularly in the second and third periods. His protection was extra weak in the second and even helped to score two for the Creighton-coached lads.

WENT IN SPURTS

Up front the forwards went in spurts, first Doris (he performed the hat trick) in the early stages, then Bill Twist, then Gary Kearns and finally Bud McDougall late in the game.

Dunc Brodie who has seen junior "A" play and Tom O'Connor spear-headed the Flyers' attack. Even after the Flyers had taken the lead, O'Connor was still driving to pile up the score and to kill penalties.

Doris started the scoring off midway through the first period when on a three-man break he worked into the clear, beating Hawe with a short shot. The Flyers replied eight minutes later when Copeland passed out to O'Connor at the centre red line and O'Connor breezed in to score. A minute later Attersly flipped in a loose puck from a scramble in front of the Petes' goal.

With the Flyers' Neil Davis off for interference in the second, the Petes pressed. Byrne started off a rink-length dash, passing to Bob Gardner who passed to Doris in front for the tying goal.

BREAK FOR PETES

Then came a break for the Petes. Larry Ball shot from the blue line. Al Myles attempted to block the shot but it glanced off his stick into the net to put the Petes ahead 3-2. Brodie on a three-man attack tied the score at three-all a minute later.

Doris, picked up at centre by Gardner and McDougall, broke past the Flyers' defence, took McDougall's passout and easily beat Hawe to put the Petes ahead a second time. Then Twist followed up with a minute fight for the puck in the corner, finally getting it to the edge of the Flyers' goal where he flicked it into the open corner, putting the Petes ahead by two.

Attersly set O'Connor up after the third period faceoff and with a slap-shot from the side O'Connor whittled the lead to one goal. Heffernan put the Petes ahead two once more on an identical play, set up by Twist.

Then Hefefrnan was penalized for charging. Ed Romnuk poked in a Brodie pass in a scramble in front of the Petes' net and just before the penalty was up, Master ended a rush with Copeland and Brodie, to tie the score at six-all.

In the overtime period Ken Fisher clipped Byrne on the head with his stick but the incident went unnoticed by Referee Doug Calhoun. Byrne retaliated by charging Fisher. This Calhoun didn't miss and Byrne was sent off.

Copeland promptly scored the winning goal batting in a loose puck as Flyers pressed tightly around O'Brien. John Chasczewski later combined with Masters for the assurance goal with 10 seconds left in the overtime.

Vic Obeck To Speak To St. Peter's

St. Peter's High school football teams will be honored tonight when the Catholic High School Athletic Advisory Club hold the annual football dinner at Assumption Hall.

Heighlight of the evening will be the guest speaker, Vic Obeck, well-known coach of McGill University Redmen. In having Obeck address the players, the club follows a pattern designed to bring a top name in football to speak to the boys. Last year Larry Sullivan of Hamilton Cathedral High told the teams about his playing experiences while with Notre Dame.

Director of the department of Athletics, a member of the McGill University senate and head football coach, Obeck is by far the best known speaker to address the teams in recent years. His reputation, is built around coaching the Redmen.

Before coming to Canada, Obeck developed a good reputation in the United States both as a player and as a coach. He attended Springfield College and Columbia University, graduating from college football to professional with the Chicago Cardinals and Brooklyn Dodgers.

Obeck's first coaching assignment was with University of Akron, Ohio, and his second was with Columbia University as assistant to Lou Little.

A second highlight will be the presentation of championship trophies and jackets. The junior Saints romped to the COSSA junior "B" title this season in easy fashion while the senior Saints again won the McKinney trophy, emplematic of football supremacy in senior "B" in the Ontario Catholic Conference.

Irisher And Italian Draw With Mills' Brothers In Main Pro Grapple Bout

Tim Goehagen and Ilio DiPaola drew with the horrible Mills' brothers, Al and Tiny, in the main pro wrestling bout at the Brock Arena before a big crowd last night. Actually, all four were counted out of the ring by Referee Bert Maxwell as the grapplers mixed furiously before the ringside pewholders. Extra police and the prelim wrestlers were johnny-on-the-spot to escort the unpopular Mills' giants through the hostile crowd and, for a change, they were not pelted with chairs by the fans enroute to their dressing room. Perhaps a warning by the Ontario Athletic Commission that the mat franchise here would be suspended if this chair-throwing wasn't stopped helped Al and Tiny escape unhurt this time.

ALL OUT OF RING

The final count came in just six minutes with Al and Tiny busily engaged outside the ring with DiPaolo and Geohagen. Just before the hot action moved outside the roped-in space, Ref Bert Maxwell had been conked hard twice accidentally. Once, Tim threw Al at him, and later Al ducked an elbow smash in the corner and it caught the rotund ref, who is a house dick at the Royal York on his regular job. The detective went down like a ton of bricks and later showed up with a badly swollen lip. There was further action after the bell as Tim and the Italian tore into the Mills' huskies and gave them plenty.

Ilio won the second and equalizing fall in 13 minutes over Tiny when he caught that big villain coming off the ropes and swung him dizzy in an airplane spin before pinning his shoulders. The popular pair of Irishman and Italian teamed up better this round in their corner and in quick, hard relays to earn the decision. So furious was the action once with a five-man pileup in their corner that Maxwell ordered the bout halted and called all four offenders into the centre of the ring for a stern warning. They finally settled away and did some grappling then.

GAVE WAY POUNDAGE

Tim at 233 pounds and DiPaolo, scaling 245, spotted the villains a lot of weight, Al going 255 and Tiny bumping the beam at 274. As expected, the westerners opened it in rough style and proved experts at distracting the referee's attention, an old trick, as well as prolonging illegal grips when warned. They threw the book at Ilio in the first round, this being the only part of the bout when Tim saw little action, apart from popping in for a protest from time to time, and once when all four got into it briefly in the ring. They finally flattened the husky Italian in 12 minutes by throwing him into the turnbuckles, following a softening-up job by the pair, and then slamming him hard for the fall as the fans booed.

Towering Hi Lee took the semi-final in 19 minutes over game Alan Garfield with back-breakers across the brawny Arkansas knee. The 234-pound Englishman was no match for huge Hi, weighing 292, though he did prove speedy, tricky and got in some good work for a space with a punishing armlock. However, it was just a matter of time till the shaggy-maned and roaring Lee softened him up with his brute strength and illegal tactics to set the popular Garfield up for the fall.

GOES TO DRAW

The prelim went to a 30-minute draw. Reyes Nacho replaced the injured Chico Garcia against Firpo Szybsko, who was 241 pounds, five lighter than Nacho. The bald Pole resorted to hair-pulling and even biting in his usual rough fashion while Reyes retaliated by gouging and yanking Firpo's big moustache. They wrestled properly for a spell and then opened it up with rough stuff to give the fans something to yell about. The action was hot in the late stages and they were both going strong at the gong.

Minor Teams In Action Marmora Rink

MARMORA (ENS) — Marmora District League put on a five-game series at the Memorial Arena on Wednesday evening with bantam teams of Madoc and Havelock having the first tangle. The victory went to Havelock by a solitary goal scored midway through the third period R. McLaughlin on an assist by W. Watson.

The next encounter was between Marmora and Norwood midget teams resulting in a 3-2 win for the Marmora boys. The homesters scored in the early part of the first as A. Bedore connected well with a C. Ellis pass. Marvin Walker added a second for the team on a solo effort before the period closed. In the third Marmora added one, Bedore registering on Ogilvies assist. Hanovan scored twice for Norwood before the period closed.

JUVES BATTLE

The third game was a juvenile fixture with Coe Hill and Havelock being opposing teams. The northerners proved no match for Havelock. The Chase brothers had the greatest share in the chase being in on seven of the eight goals which their team got in the shut-out.

The fourth game was between Marmora and Stirling juveniles which was won by the latter by 3-2 after coming from behind in the second. Scorers were: for Marmora, M. Walker in the first and R. Walker from Bell in the second; for Stirling by McGee registered twice in the second with Doucette getting an assist on the second goal. Montgomery scored on Scott's assist in the third to get the winning goal.

Norwood and Flinton juniors took part in the last game of the series. Though only carrying two lines, Flinton showed to best advantage of the juvenile teams engaged in the evenings' tussle winning easily by 5-1. In the first period Jordan got their counter. In the second, Hasler registered on Thompson's assist. In the final period Lessard scored on assists from Dion and Pringle. Thompson added another for Norwood to reduce the margin with Hannon's goal. Lessard added the final goal for Flinton on Hasler's assist.

Rangers Upset Bruin Lead Snatch 5-3 Win

By ED SIMON, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Somebody must have told New York Rangers the fable about the hare and the tortoise. Frank Boucher's fifth-placers have broken the hearts of the New York faithful time and again this season by scooting into an early lead in their National Hockey League games, only to run out of gas in the last period and yield victory to their opponents. Wednesday night they reversed the procedure. Boston Bruins scored the first goal, led 3-2 at the end of two periods and finished on the short end of a 5-3 count at the final bell.

The Rangers' five-goal total equalled their season's high and the eight goals scored by both clubs also tied the top mark since the opening of the low-scoring schedule. Not since the Rangers beat Chicago Black Hawks 5-3 Oct. 11 has the red light flashed as frequently.

IMPORTANT WIN

It was an important victory for the New Yorkers. The fourth-place Bruins still lead them by five points but the two clubs play again at Boston tonight and another Ranger win could put them well within striking distance of the last play-off spot.

In other games Friday night Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings will try to break their second-place tie at Detroit while the front-running Montreal Canadiens take on the last-place Hawks at Chicago.

The Bruins, unsuccessful in their last New York visit when they lost 4-3, took the offensive from the start.

Joe Klukay finally gave them the lead shortly after the half-way mark of the opening period, only to have Eddie Kullman tie the score four minutes later.

BRIEF LEAD

Ike Hildebrand, the reformed New Westminster lacrosse player gave the Rangers a brief edge 46 seconds after the second frame opened, but within five minutes Boston bounced back with tallies by Milt Schmidt and Leo Labine.

Hildebrand's second goal squared matters at 8:39 of the third period. Barely a minute later, with the Bruins' Jerry Toppazzini off for high-sticking, Wally Hergesheimer put New York in front for keeps.

The last Ranger goal was a gift. With Boston goalie Jim Henry out of the nets in favor of an extra forward, defenceman Harry Howell cleared from behind the New York net. The puck caromed off the side boards and drifted lazily into the empty Bruin cage.

Bomber Club In Hot Water About Tickets

WINNIPEG (CP) — Disgruntled football fans who thought they had been assured of Grey Cup tickets and then got none before the Winnipeg supply ran out besieged newspaper and radio switchboards Wednesday with pleas, threats and complaints.

Under the distribution system set up by the Winnipeg club, applicants who proved they were club members or season ticket holders received yellow cards saying they were entitled to tickets.

On presentation of these cards along with proof of transportation to Toronto, and payment, they were given receipts entitling them to pick up tickets in Toronto.

SOMETHING WENT WRONG

Club officials said they thought the scheme would be near-fool-proof. But something went wrong.

The ticket supply ran out before all the yellow cards had been turned in.

Club officials estimated that about 2,400 yellow cards were mailed but apparently some fans got more than one ticket on providing proof of transportation.

They said that from the club's allotment of 3,200, players, executive, government members and companies who had served the club received 700. The remainder went to individuals. The club received 4,500 applications.

6 Officials Supervise Grey Cup Game

TORONTO (CP)—For the first time in Grey Cup history, six officials will supervise Saturday's East-West final between Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Norm Perry, president of the Canadian Rugby Union said Wednesday night in addition to the referee, two umpires, the judge of play and head linesman, another official will be stationed deep in defensive territory.

The sixth official's specific job will be to rule on long passes and punts. Normally, the two umpires drop back to cover the territory, but to do so, must relax vigilance along the line.

Two Oshawa Rinks Enter Third Round

TORONTO (CP)—Two Oshawa rinks advanced Wednesday into the third round of the Thauburn bonspiel being played at the High Park club.

Bill Brownlee and Don Holden, both of Oshawa, moved into the third round, only to meet. Brownlee's quartette edged Holden 9-8 for a ticket into today's semi-final.

Dutchmen, Sarnia Sailors Score 1-1 Overtime Draw

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Strange ice doesn't seem to faze Ontario Hockey Association Senior A competitors. At least that seemed to be the case Wednesday night as all visiting teams picked up points on the road.

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, the defending Allan Cup champions, moved into top spot with a 1-1 overtime draw with the Sailors in Sarnia. The split edged Dutchmen a single point up on the idle Windsor Bulldogs, now deadlocked with Hamilton Tigers in second place after the Tabbies downed the Maroons 3-1 in Chatham.

At Stratford, Niagara Falls Cataracts came up with a goal in overtime to edge the Indians 4-3.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Indians halted Sudbury Wolves drive for first place in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group with a 4-3 victory over the Canadian team.

Don Savage scored Sarnia's only goal and Charlie Brooker banged in his own rebound to give Kitchener a tie and send the game into overtime.

ROTH SCORES TWO

Mickey Roth tallied twice for Stratford and Don Oberholtzer scored the other Indian goal. Niagara Falls scorers were Bill Ness, Ken Campbell, Nick Dubick and Eric Unger.

Murray Comfort, Ab Conick and Frank Liscombe came up with the Hamilton scoring while Frank Bonello notched the Chatham goal.

No games are scheduled tonight, but Friday, Windsor plays at Hamilton, Stratford goes to Sarnia and Niagara Falls is at Chatham.

Majors Edge Barrie 4-3; In Third Place

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto St. Michael's College Majors, a team that was rated high at the start of the season but got off to a dismal start, are finally beginning to live up to expectations.

The Majors took over sole possession of third place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A standings Wednesday night by defeating Barrie Flyers 4-3 in Toronto.

Toronto Marlboros helped the Irish cause by dropping a 6-4 decision to the Tigers in Hamilton. St. Michael's and Marlboros were previously tied for fourth place. Hamilton's victory tied them with Marlboros for fifth.

Les Duff scored the winning goal for St. Michael's with less than four minutes remaining in the game while the Flyers were one short.

FIRES TWO GOALS

Rookie Ken Gribbon fired two goals for the Collegians and Brian Anderson got the other one. Dan McNeil, Cleland Mortson and John Martan scored for the Flyers.

Brian Kilrea and Ted Reid paced the Hamilton attack, each firing two goals. Val Mitchell and Bill Stewart shot the others. Wally Maxwell scored twice for Marlboros. Charlie Burns and Tom McCarthy added singles.

Friday's action will have St. Michael's meeting the Biltmores at Guelph, St. Catharines TeePees at Barrie and Hamilton at Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts.

Only Two Defencemen After Rash Of Injuries

GUELPH (CP) — Guelph Biltmores of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A circuit have only two regular defencemen left following a rash of injuries and releases.

Harry Scott was released Wednesday. He follows Jim Holmes, let go earlier in the week.

Early in the season Ted Maki was laid low with sickness and then Jack McLeod broke a leg. Both are still on the sidelines.

Ted Brady and Ron Howell are the only defencemen left and coach Alf Pike will bring up two junior B rearguards for Friday's game against Toronto St. Michael's.

Searchers Find Six Survivors

LOUISBURG, N. S. (CP) — Six survivors of the abandoned Newfoundland coastal vessel Danzic were picked up Wednesday night by the freighter Arctic Sealer after a day adrift in open dories.

RCAF search and rescue said Capt. Robert Smith and his men were picked up in good condition about 21 miles northeast of Scaterie island, off the eastern tip of Cape Breton.

Their 107-ton vessel, owned by George T. Dixon Ltd., Fortune, Nfld., was found earlier about 60 miles east of here.

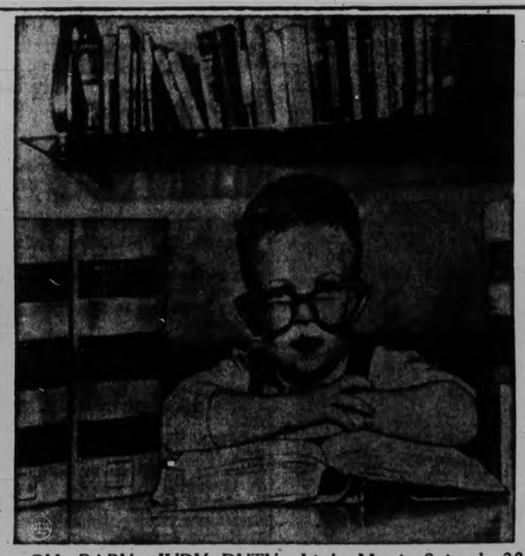
Sees No Benefit From Seaway



HALIFAX (CP)—Premier Macdonald sees no benefit for Maritime ports in the construction of the St. Lawrence seaway.

"Desirable as it may be for the rest of Canada," he told the Port of Halifax Club Wednesday, "it won't make things any easier for Maritime ports.

"I say no more because we are part of the structure of Canada."

Get U.S. Butter

BERLIN (AP) — Some 19,000 more East Berliners crossed into the Allied west sector Wednesday for a pound each of American-donated butter. It was the third day of distribution to aged residents of the Soviet sector, and brought the total handed out so far to 55,000 pounds.

OH, BABY—JURY DUTY—Little Merrit Spiegel, 28 months old, of New York, brushes up on fine points of the law after receiving a summons to jury duty. Daddy Bernard Spiegel, 32, who served as a juror only last year, thought the summons was for him until his wife, Mildred, 27, discovered that Merrit had been tapped for the job. Merrit will be impanelled when the Case of the Missing Lollipops comes to trial.

Elect French Premier On December 17

PARIS (AP)—The next president of the French republic will be chosen Dec. 17, the executive committee of the National Assembly decided today.

The president will be elected at a closed session of the National Assembly and the upper house, the Council of the Republic, sitting in Versailles palace.

There are no announced candidates for the post, which has little real executive power. The retiring president is Socialist Vincent Auriol.

It is the tradition in France that this office seeks the man. The balloting is secret.

Postpones Departure

LONDON (Reuters) — Treasury chief Richard Butler will leave here Dec. 30 or Jan. 1 to attend the Commonwealth economic conference which opens Jan. 8 in Sydney, Australia, it was learned Wednesday night. Butler had postponed his departure because his wife still is recovering from an operation.

Found In House Criminal Intent Not Established

LINDSAY (ENS)—Three youths, two from Linsday and one from Dunsford were acquitted in Lindsay police court Wednesday of "being in a residence by night with the intent of committing an indictable offence."

The youths were discovered by Mrs. Frank Traynor, in the lower floor of the house occupied by her family, when she was awakened by noises early in the morning of November 17.

According to her evidence the boys were lighting matches around the house. One of them was asleep and apparently unconscious on the bed in a room rented to two working girls when she investigated. The other two fled when she phoned the police.

The youth who was on the bed was identified by Mrs. Taylor and constable William Moseley and John Henley of the Lindsay police as Alvin McGee, 19, of Lindsay. He was nursing a partly filled bottle of beer as he slept, their evidence stated.

CHASED BY POLICE

The other two fled when Mrs. Traynor called the police, but were pursued by the officers, and a shot was fired into the air to stop them, but to no avail, as they managed to elude the officers. The next day, they were charged.

The case against Ronald Black of Lindsay, was dismissed for lack of evidence, William Hore of Dunsford however has been identified by Mrs. Traynor.

Defence counsels J. A. McQuarrie, for McGee and M. J. Cunningham for Hore, moved nonsuits on the grounds that the crown could not prove the youths were in the house for any unlawful purpose. Magistrate Gee concurred in their claims. But warned the boys that they had been fortunate in receiving the benefit of the doubt in the case.

Hore was also charged with supplying liquor to a minor. McGee told the court of meeting Hore, who had a small case of beer and of going to the house with him, though he did not know the reason for their visit. He remembered receiving a pint of beer from Hore before blacking out.

Hore's statement, in which he estimated McGee as of minor age, was admitted in evidence and magistrate Gee based his conviction on it. Hore was fined $50 and costs of $17 for supplying liquor to a minor.

Moderates Win Election In Rhodesia

By HUGH LATIMER

LUSAKA, N. Rhodesia (OFNS) —The section of a new African Representative Council for Northern Rhodesia has ended in a triumph for moderates. This is particularly important at this juncture because it is this council which has the responsibility for electing, from its thirty-one members, the first two Africans to represent Northern Rhodesia in the new Central African Federal Parliament.

By electing a team of moderates in this stormy British protectorate — where the European elected members recently launched a campaign of non-cooperation with the Colonial Government—Africans have shown that they are still prepared to reject the die-hard extremists in their midst.

The European part of the electorate will have to show whether it will do the same when the settlers hold their elections next month.

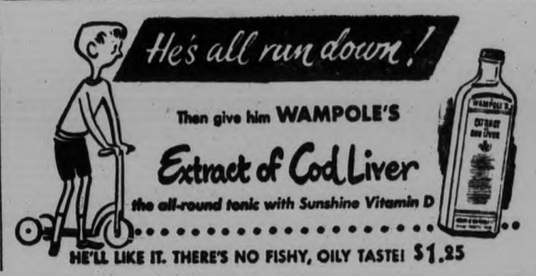
Unlike the settlers, Africans do not have a system of direct election. But they do enjoy a democratic process of election. The first stage is election for local government authorities in urban and rural areas. These authorities elect representatives to a higher body — the Provincial Councils — which, in turn, elect the members of the national body, the African Representative Council.

UNABLE TO BE MEMBER

Because no person is eligible for the Representative Council who is not, in the first place, a member of a local authority, the powerful president of the African Congress, Harry Nkumbulu, cannot be a candidate. He is reported to have tried to persuade the Government to change the regulations to enable him and others in a similar position to be eligible for election to the Federal Parliament; but this the Government has refused to do. In the neighbouring territory of Nyasaland this was done, thus providing the outstanding Congress leader there, Manoah Chirwa, with an opportunity of being elected to Parliament.

Among the successful candidates on the new Representative Council are the two trades union leaders of the African Mineworkers' Union, Lawrence Katilunga and Nkolomo. Both the present African members of the Legislative Council, Dauti Yamba and Paksale Sokot, have been elected.

And so were two moderate Congress leaders, Chileshe and Nabulyato, who were recently turned off the executive of the African National Congress.



The two African M.P.s to be elected will have the onerous task of helping to ensure that the safeguards for Africans provided in the Federal Constitution are observed.

ONE DANGER

They must be intelligent men, unperturbed by the strange new environment in which they will find themselves as a result of participating for the first time in a Parliament, and capable of making their wishes comprehensive to their European colleagues.

Although the newly-elected African Representative Council is widely representative, there is one danger. This is due to the absence of the militant members of Congress, which is the only African political Party. In a very real sense, therefore, an important political element of the country finds itself isolated. This may easily result in the disappointed and frustrated Congress leaders engaging in irresponsible political action because they have little to lose. This might become difficult especially if they try—as they might well do—to discredit the African M.P.s and give them the reputation of being "Government stooges."

Since so much depends on the acceptance by the Africans of their two M.P.s such a result would be serious. It is for this reason that some political observers are inclined to think that the Government has made a mistake in not providing an opportunity for Mr. Nkumbulu and other militant Congress leaders to have the sobering experience of Parliamentary responsibility.

Find Pickerel Biggest Catch In Manitoba

WINNIPEG (CP) — Pickerel is the biggest catch, with whitefish next, in the multi-million dollar Manitoba winter fishing season.

Starting when the ice forms solidly, at any time after the legal date of Nov. 10, the winter fishing season engages thousands of commercial fishermen and dealers and handlers.

On Lake Manitoba, all commercial fishing is done in winter, and half the commercial fish product of the province is winter-caught. Apart from pickerel and whitefish, they garner bass, bullhead, carp, catfish, the famous goldeye, and other species such as perch, pike and tullibee. The season closes in March.

GOES TO U.S.

In the winter of 1951-52 the catch went to the United States. About 6,500 men were engaged in actual fishing operations last year. An equal number worked at processing, packing, transporting and marketing the fish. Licences were issued to 690 dealers.

More than 2,700 craft were used in the summer and winter operations of that season, varying from canoes to skiffs, with 200 larger craft keeping them supplied with nets and equipment.

Stole Car, Truck Jailed 18 Months

LINDSAY (ENS). — A Kinmount man, James McGuire, 29, was sentenced to 18 months in the reformatory in Lindsay police court Wednesday, when he pleaded guilty to charges of car theft within the last month.

McGuire was charged with the theft of a car belonging to Sidney Suggitt of Oakwood from a Lindsay parking lot on November 17, and also with the theft of a truck on October 29 from Victoria Motor Sales in Lindsay.

In both cases, McGuire said he had taken the vehicles to travel to his mother's home in Kinmount. The second time, on November 17, he was intoxicated, however, and drove Suggitt's car into a ditch near Highway 35 north of Lindsay and was arrested when OPP officers investigated the mishap. McGuire was also sentenced to three months concurrent on a charge of theft of an auto defrosting device from a car parked behind the Lindsay police station on November 17. The defroster was found in the Suggitt car when McGuire was arrested. After he had been taken into custody on the charge of taking the Suggitt vehicle the first car, a light panel truck, was found parked on a little used cottage road near Kinmount. Chief Constable Hunter questioned McGuire in jail about the theft of the truck, and he admitted this offence as well.

McGuire was defended by J. A. McQuarrie of Lindsay.

GOOD FRIENDS — An odd friendship has sprung up between Nipper, an English pointer, and Willy, a racoon, both pets of Mrs. Charles Rowan, of Fredericton, N.B. Willy seems to be trying to whisper in Nipper's ear as they play on the living-room floor. Mrs. Rowan also has a Labrador retriever which gets along well with the racoon, obtained from the New Brunswick Fish and Game Association.

Disappeared 22 Years Ago Nashville Man Located

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—The Nashville Tennessean reported today that it has located Thomas C. Buntin, member of a socially-prominent Nashville family who disappeared 22 years ago. The paper said he is living in Orange, Tex., as man and wife with his former secretary, who dropped from sight with him. Both had long since been declared legally dead.

The Tennessean, in a copyrighted story, said Buntin and the former Betty McCuddy have been living under the name of Thomas D. and Betty Palmer, and have raised a family of six. One daughter presented them with a grandchild last October, the other is expecting a baby momentarily.

When Buntin, an insurance man, disappeared in September, 1931, he left a wife and three sons in Nashville. She now is married to Louie Phillips, president of the Broadway National Bank of Nashville.

INSURANCE PAID

Last Nov. 6 the New York Life Insurance Company, which had been forced by court order to pay a $50,000 life insurance policy on Buntin seven years after his disappearance, disclosed it had found him, but declined to say where.

That disclosure resulted in an injunction obtained by the insurance company tying up part of the insurance money which had been paid into a trust fund for Buntin's heirs. Until that action there had been not the slightest clue to the whereabouts of Buntin and Miss McCuddy.

The Tennessean took up the search, which ended in locating the couple in the small southeast Texas centre.

Tuesday a Tennessean reporter talked with Buntin and Betty. Both readily acknowledged their identity.

Asked why they had divorced themselves from their past, Betty was quoted as saying:

"We were in love. Money didn't mean too much to us. If money had meant anything, we wouldn't have done what we did."

Daughter Of Pioneer Family Continues Active At 89

BETHANY (ENS)—On Wednesday Miss Annie Sisson quietly observed her 89th birthday, receiving many gifts and cards of good wishes from her large circle of friends and relatives.

She has watched the growth of the village since childhood and is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sisson, who were among the pioneer farmers in the district. The homestead is now owned by Harry Preston and the house occupied by the Picton Porter farmily.

Miss Sisson's remarkable memory includes many tales of early days unknown to this generation; fall fairs in the village, the annual celebration of July 12 when visiting lodges from the neighboring communities came to celebrate in Bethany. The 2½-mile drive into the village was a treat to be looked forward to, in buggy or democrat in the summer, cutter or sleigh in the winter. She attended Galloway's school and St. Mary's Anglican church, the first church to be built in Manvers township and remarks on the large attendance at both in comparison with today.

LARGE FAMILIES

"There were large families in all the homes along the 8th line (Highway 7A) then, and everybody went to church. There were no radios to provide entertainment and a concert or dance held in the village or a party at a neighbor's home was an event to be looked forward to and remembered for long afterwards," she explained.

"Nowadays there is something to go to all the time. We were a big family," she remarked, "but we were all needed. Farmers did not have the machinery to work with that they have today and the sons and daughters all had to help with the work both on the farm and in the house. There were no electrical gadgets to make housework easier. The cooking was all done at home, even the bread. We learned to sew and knit from our mother, not at school."

The building of the present school and both churches in the village are within her memory, as well as the installation of telephones. It was her brother Stephen Sisson, who installed the first telephone in the village. He was an agent selling farm implements and wanted communication with the railway station. At his own expense, Stephen supplied the equipment and the cost of installation of a telephone in the Grand Trunk Railway station and at his own farm home. He had to pay the railway for the privilege of doing it.

WORKS FOR CHURCH

Her life has been cheerfully spent in looking after others, caring for her mother through a long illness and each of her brothers and sisters in turn. She still does a great deal of work for the church and missions. Two weeks ago at the annual bazaar there were many knitted articles sold, which were the product of her busy fingers.

She has always been active in Red Cross work and the Women's Institute. Until a few years ago she taught a class in St. Paul's Sunday school. Right now, she is busy with Christmas plans, knitting and sewing gifts for her numerous nieces and nephews and their families.

Miss Sisson reads a great deal and keeps well informed on current happenings. This and her tales of yesteryear make a visit with her a happy occasion.

Steel Strikers Back To Work

WINNIPEG (CP)—Steelworkers in the eighth week of a strike here have voted to return to work, a union spokesman announced Wednesday night.

Murray Cotterill, western representative of the national director of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), said all the 720 striking workers will be back on the job within the next three days at the Dominion Bridge and Manitoba Bridge plants.

He made the announcement following a closed membership meeting called to consider proposals worked out by union and company officials.

Mr. Cotterill said details of the agreement would have to come from the department of labor and could be expected Thursday.

Engrossed In Own Affairs

Charges Most Doctors Too Selfish, Commercial

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. C. E. Duff Wilson, Kitchener's medical officer of health, Wednesday accused the majority of doctors of being selfish, aloof, commercial, hurried and pre-occupied with their own affairs.

He gave his diagnosis to a group of doctors attending a conference on public relations, sponsored by the Ontario Medical Association.

He suggested that doctors, in an attempt to right their wrongs, should make some effort to draft a workable national health plan, "since some form of government-controlled national health plan is inevitable in Canada."

He said preparation of a plan would be one way of demonstrating that doctors want to protect the health interests of the public as a whole.

The old personal relationship between doctors and their patients is breaking down, he said, and there is a growing inquisitiveness among the public for medical facts.

"Doctors don't realize the rights of the ordinary man in this regard," he said. "We still have a tendency to mumble mystic words and take refuge behind the 'mystique' of our profession."

He said superficial and slip-shod medical examinations leave a poor impression with the patient. He could never accuse the medical profession of not striving after excellence, but he said doctors sometimes failed to convince the public of their special competence.

More doctors should take part in community affairs, he said. Few do now, giving the profession a reputation for aloofness and selfishness.

Most important of all, he said, was the fact that doctors be ready to attend to every physical and mental need under any circumstance.

"We have given the public the impression that we are consistently looking after our own interests, whereas they should be getting the impression that we are safeguarding theirs."

Municipal Problems Must Be Considered

WINNIPEG (CP) — Municipal problems must be seriously considered when federal-provincial tax agreements are revised, Premier Frost of Ontario said Wednesday.

In an address to the Union of Manitoba Municipalities, Mr. Frost said Ontario entered a tax-rental agreement with the federal government a year ago.

"Although we have never regarded this arrangement as the last word, we have considered it a reasonable approach to a difficult problem," he said.

Mr. Frost said "the time has come, indeed if it has not passed" for resumption of discussion on proposals concerning capital investment and timing and technical planning grants which were brought up at the 1945-46 Dominion-provincial conference.

Radio, TV Face Many Speeches In Controversy

By ED SIMON

NEW YORK (CP) — Ma Perkins, Howdy Doody and the Lone Ranger are facing the possibility of temporary eviction from the air waves by the ghost of Harry Dexter White.

Theoretically at least, the succession of charges and counter-charges broadcast by Republican and Democratic spokesman in recent weeks on the Communists-in-government issue could result in the United States networks turning over virtually all their radio and television time to individuals attacked in previous broadcasts.

Regulations of the federal communications commission, which controls U.S. radio and television operations, require that a public figure subjected to personal attack over the air be given an opportunity to defend himself.

UP TO STATIONS

Interpretation of this principle is left up to the stations and networks, which are unlikely to carry it to extremes that would deprive them of too great a proportion of their revenue from commercial broadcasts.

But the precedent was set when former president Truman broadcast Nov. 16 in reply to Attorney-General Herbert Brownell's charge that Truman had promoted White to a high government post despite FBI evidence that White was suspected of Communist activities.

Mention in Truman's speech of Senator Joseph McCarthy resulted in a successful demand by the Wisconsin Republican for free radio and TV time for rebuttal.

McCarthy's address Wednesday night included accusations against Truman, Dean Acheson, former state secretary, Owen Lattimore, a former state department consultant, and a number of other persons who, in theory, are entitled to their half-hour before the microphones.

ONLY REQUEST

So far, the only request for a chance to hit back at McCarthy comes from the Daily Worker. The Communist daily newspaper was accused in the senator's speech of ghost-writing Truman's broadcast definition of McCarthyism, and promptly asked NBC, CBS, ABC and the Mutual Broadcasting System for "free and equal facilities."

There was no immediate indication whether the Worker's request would be granted. NBC and ABC said they would evaluate requests on individual merits. CBC and Mutual withheld comment.

The FCC policy granting an individual the opportunity of replying to a personal attack differs from the practice followed in Canada, where the CBC allots free time throughout the year to political parties but does not grant such rights to individuals.

THE WAR MEMOIRS OF WINSTON CHURCHILL

POTSDAM: THE POLISH FRONTIERS

Victory over Japan was neither the most difficult nor perhaps the most far reaching of the problems which confronted us at the Potsdam Conference. Germany had collapsed; Europe must be rebuilt. The soldier must go home and the refugee return, if he could, to his country. Above all, the nations must make a peace in which they could live together if not in comfort, at any rate in freedom and safety. I do not intend to recount our detailed exchanges in formal conference and in private conversation on all the urgent and multitudinous questions which pressed upon us. Many of them are still unsolved. Poland, for whom Britain went to war, is neither free or quiet; Germany is still divided; there is no peace with Russia. Russia's share of Poland, Poland's share of Germany, and the place of Germany and the Soviet Union in the world, such were the topics which dominated our discussions, and to which, for reasons of space, this account must be limited.

We had agreed at Yalta that Russia should advance her western frontier into Poland as far as the "Curzon Line." We had always recognized that Poland in her turn should receive substantial accessions of German territory. The question was, how much? How far into Germany should she go? There had been much disagreement. Stalin had wanted to extend the western frontier of Poland along the river Oder to where it joined the Western Neisse; Roosevelt, Eden, and I had insisted it should stop at the Eastern Neisse. All three heads of Governments had publicly bound themselves at Yalta to consult the Polish Government, and to leave it to the Peace Conference if we could not agree. This was the best we had been able to do. But in July, 1945, we faced a new situation. Russia had advanced her frontier to the Curzon Line. This meant, as Roosevelt and I had realized, that the three or four million Poles who lived on the wrong side of the line would have to be moved to the West. Now we were confronted with something much worse. The Soviet-dominated Government of Poland had also pressed forward, not to the Eastern Niesse, but to the Western Much of this territory was inhabited by Germans, and although several millions had fled many had stayed behind. What was to be done with them? Moving three or four million Poles was bad enough. Were we to move more than eight million Germans as well? Even if such a transfer could be contemplated, there was not enough food for them in what was left of Germany. Much of Germany's grain came from the very land which the Poles had seized, and if this was denied us the Western Allies would be left with wrecked industrial zones and a starved and swollen population. For the future peace of Europe here was a wrong beside which Alsace-Lorraine and the Danzig Corridor were trifles. One day the Germans would want their territory back, and the Poles would not be able to stop them.

The first plenary session of the Conference was held at five o'clock on the afternoon of Tuesday, July 17 (1945). Stalin proposed that the President should take the chair. I supported this, and Mr. Truman accpted our invitation. A number of lesser problems then appeared.

When the Conference met for its second session at five o'clock on the afternoon of July 18 I at once raised another matter which, though outside the agenda, was of immediate importance. At Teheran it had been very difficult for the Press to get near the meeting-place, and at Yalta it had been impossible. But now, immediately outside the delegation area, there were a hundred and eighty journalists prowling around in a state of furious indignation. They carried very powerful weapons and were making a great outcry in the world Press about the lack of facilities accorded to them.

I offered to see the Press-men myself and explain why they had to be excluded and why nothing could be divulged until the Conference ended.

Stalin irritably asked what all the journalists wanted, and Mr. Truman said that each of us had his own representative to stand between him and the press. We had agreed to exclude them and matters should be left as they were. I submitted to the majority, but I thought and still think that a public explanation would have been better.

We turned to Poland.

I asked the indulgence of the President to unfold an important matter, because our position with regard to it was unique—namely, the demobilization or transfer to their homeland of the Polish forces that had fought with us in the war.

I continued that our policy was to persuade as many as possible, not only of the soldiers but also of the civilian employees of the late Polish Government, to go back to their country. But we must have a little time to get over our difficulties.

Of course, the better the conditions in Poland the more Poles would go back, and it would help if the new Polish Government would assure them their livelihood and freedom and would not victimise them for their former allegiance.

Stalin said he appreciated our problems. We had sheltered the former rulers of Poland, and in spite of our hospitality they had caused us many difficulties. But the London Polish Government still existed. They had means of continuing their activities in the press and elsewhere, and they had their agents. This made a bad impression on all the Allies.

I said we must face facts. The London Government was liquidated in the official and diplomatic sense, but it was impossible to stop its individual members living and talking to people, including journalists and former sympathisers. I asked Stalin to put his trust and confidence in His Majesty's Government and give us a reasonable time.

Mr. Truman declared that he saw no fundamental differences between us. I had asked for a reasonable amount of time, and Stalin had undertaken to drop any of his proposals which would complicate the issue. The best thing was for the Foreign Secretaries to discuss these points; but he hoped the Yalta agreement would be carried out as soon as possible.

We did not recur to Poland till our fifth meeting on July 21. The Soviet delegation wanted Poland's western frontier to run to the west of Swinemunde, as far as the Oder river, leaving Stettin on the Polish side, then up the river Oder to the estuary of the Western Neisse, and from there along its course to Czechoslovakia.

Mr. Truman recalled that we had agreed to divide Germany into four zones of occupation, based on her 1937 frontiers. The British and Americans had moved their troops back into their zones, but apparently the Soviet Government had given the Poles a zone of their own without consulting us. Unless this zone counted as part of Germany, how could we settle reparations and all the other German questions?

Stalin denied giving the Poles a zone of their own. He declared that the Soviet Government had not been able to stop them. The German population had retreated westwards with the German armies. Only the Poles remained. The Soviet armies needed someone to administer their rear areas. They were not accustomed to fight and clear territory and set up their own administration at the same time. Why not let the Poles do it?

"We ought to keep to the zones we agreed at Yalta," said the President. "If we don't reparations and all sorts of other matters will be difficult to settle."

"We are not worried about reparations," said Stalin.

"The United States will get none anyhow," answered Mr. Truman, "but they will also try to avoid paying anything."

"Nothing definite was fixed at Yalta about the western frontier," said Stalin. "None of us are bound."

This was true. The President said he did not think we could settle the matter now. It would have to wait for the Peace Conference.

"It will be still more difficult," said Stalin, "to restore a German administration."

"You can use a Polish one in your own zone of occupation in Germany," said the President.

"That is all very well," was Stalin's answer, "but the Germans have fled and the natural and indeed the only solution is to set up a friendly administration of Poles. This does not commit us to any particular boundary, and if the Conference cannot agree about one it can remain in suspense."

"Can it?" I interrupted. "These are very important areas for feeding Germany."

"Who will produce the grain?" countered Stalin. "There is nobody left to plough the land except Poles."

"What has become of the Germans?" we both asked.

"They have fled."

I had taken little part in these interchanges, but now I spoke.

How, I asked, were we to feed the Germans who had fled? A quarter of Germany's arable land would be lost. If the area suggested by Britain and America was given to Poland about three or four million Poles would have to be moved; but the Soviet plan would mean shifting more than eight million Germans. Would there be room for them in what was left of Germany? I was not sure that Stalin was right that all the Germans had fled. Some people thought that more than two millions were still there.

Stalin thereupon challenged my figures, saying that the Germans had called up many men from these regions. The rest had fled.

The President still wanted us to leave the western frontier to the Peace Conference, but I persisted.

Poland, I said, deserved compensation for the land east of the Curzon Line which she was going to lose to Russia, but she was now claiming more than she had given up. It would do Poland no good to acquire so much extra territory. If the Germans had run away from it they should be allowed to go back. The Poles had no right to risk a catastrophe in feeding Germany.

"Germany has always had to import food," said Stalin. "Let her buy it from Poland." "His Majesty's Government," I answered, "can never admit that East German territory overrun in the war has become Polish." "But Poles inhabit it," said Stalin, "and cultivate the land. We can't compel them to produce bread and give it away to the Germans." I protested that these were not normal times. The Poles were apparently selling Silesian coal to Sweden while Great Britain was having the worst fuel shortage of any time during the war. Food and fuel from the Germany of the 1937 frontiers should be available for all Germans within them, irrespective of the zone in which they lived. Stalin asked who was to produce the coal. The Germans were not producing it, but the Poles were. The German proprietors of the Silesian coalfield had fled. If they came back the Poles would probably hang them. I reminded him of his remark at a previous meeting about not allowing memories of injuries or feelings of retribution to govern our policy, and I asked him to realise that we were faced with, namely a large number of Germans dumped in our zone who could only be fed from the area which the Poles had occupied.

Stalin said that his remarks before did not apply to war criminals. "But not all the eight and a quarter millions who have fled are war criminals," I answered. He then said he meant the German owners of the Silesian coal-mines. Russia herself was short of coal and was buying it from Poland. Here Mr. Truman supported me.

When we met next day, on Sunday, July 22, we were no nearer agreement.

Considerable discussion followed about referring the whole matter to the Council of Foreign Ministers. The President said he could not understand why it was so urgent. I protested that it was very urgent. Grievances would remain unremedied. The Poles who had assigned to themselves or had been assigned to this area would be digging themselves in and making themselves masters. The Conference ought to make some sort of a decision, or at least we should know where we stood.

Why not have a line which the Polish authorities could provisionally occupy as Poles, and agree that west of that line any Poles would be working as the agents of the Soviet Government?

At this point Mr. Truman read us the crucial passage of the Yalta declaration.

This, he said, was what President Roosevelt, Stalin, and I had decided, and he himself was in complete accord with it. Five countries were now occupying Germany instead of four. It would have been easy enough to have agreed upon a zone for Poland, but he did not like the way the Poles had occupied this area without consulting the "Big Three." He understood Stalin's difficulties, and he understood mine. It was the way in which it had been done that mattered.

"Very well," said Stalin. "We bound ourselves at Yalta to consult the Polish Government. This has been done. We can either approve their proposals or summon them to the Conference to hear what they have to say. We ought to settle the matter here, but as we cannot agree then it had better go to the Council of Foreign Ministers."

At Teheran, he said, Roosevelt and I had wanted the frontier to run along the river Oder to where the Eastern Neisse joined it, while he had insisted on the line of the Western Neisse.

"If the President," he added, "thinks anyone is to blame, it is not so much the Poles as the Russians and the circumstances."

"I understand your point, and that is exactly what I meant," answered Mr. Truman.

Meanwhile I had pondered over these questions, and I now said that we should invite the Poles to come to the Conference at once. Stalin and the President agreed, and we resolved to send them an invitation.

Accordingly, at a quarter-past three on the afternoon of July 24 the representatives of the Polish Provisional Government, headed by their Prime Minister, Bierut, came to my house in the Ringstrasse. Mr. Eden, Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, our Ambassador in Moscow, and Field-Marshal Alexander were with me.

I began by reminding them that Great Britain had entered the war because Poland had been invaded, and we had always taken the greatest interest in her, but the frontiers which she had now been offered and apparently wished to take meant that Germany would lose one quarter of the arable land she possessed in 1937. The result would be that the Poles and the Russians had the food and the fuel, while we had the mouths and the hearths. We would oppose such a division.

I told them that there were other matters which troubled us. If British opinion were to be reassured about Poland the elections should be genuinely free and unfettered, and all the main democratic parties should have full opportunity to participate and proclaim their programmes. What was the definition of democratic parties? I did not believe that only Communists were democrats. It was easy to call everyone who was not a Communist a Fascist beast; but between these two extremes there lay great and powerful forces which were neither one nor the other, and had no intention of being one or the other.

We should all expect full freedom of the Press, and for our Embassy, to see and report what was happening before and during the poll.

Bierut protested that it would be a terrible mistake if Great Britain having entered the war for Palond's sake, now showed no understanding of her claims. They were modest and took account of the need of peace in Europe. Poland asked for no more than she had lost.

Mr. Eden saw the Poles again at his house late that night. Many subjects were touched upon. At ten o'clock next morning I had a stern talk with Bierut alone.

War, he said, provided an opportunity for "new social developments." I asked whether this meant that Poland was to plunge into Communism, to which I was opposed, though of course it was purely a matter for the Poles. Bierut assured me that according to his ideas Poland would be far from Communist. She wanted to be friendly with the Soviet Union and learn from her, but she had her own traditions and did not wish to copy the Soviet system, and if anyone tried to impose it by force the Poles would probably resist.

I once more impressed on him the importance of free elections.

I continued that Poland must have courts of law independent of the Executive. The latest development in the Balkans had been not toward Sovietisation but to police government. Would Poland improve? Was the N.K.V.D. leaving the country?

Bierut replied that, generally speaking, the whole Russian Army was leaving. The N.K.V.D. played no role in Poland. The Polish Security Police were independent of them and under the Polish Government. He professed to agree with me about elections and democracy, and assured me that Poland would be one of the most democratic countries in Europe. The Poles did not favor police regimes, though exceptional measures had had to be taken to heal the serious rifts of war.

I said there was no question of our standing in the way of Poland's future, but the frontier question was entangled with the problems of reparations and supply. We had had a great mass of Germans thrown upon our hands, while the Poles had the rich territories from which they had been fed. They were asking too much. We and the Americans might pursue one policy and the Russians another. That would have serious consequences.

My appeal came to nothing. The world has yet to measure the "serious consequences" which I forecast.

Asks Senate Study National Health Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—An Alberta medical man Wednesday urged the Senate to investigate a national health insurance scheme.

If it does, said Senator F. W. Gershaw (L—Alberta) during the throne speech debate, the investigating committee will recommend an expansion of the Canadian Medical Association's health insurance plan.

This scheme, he said, operates in nine of the 10 provinces under the name Trans-Canada Medical Plan. Non-profit, it maintains the patient-doctor relationship, the fee for service and freedom of choice of doctors.

Senator Gershaw said that national health insurance in various forms was sought by an increasing number of political groups and other organizations.

A former minister of the Bethany circuit from 1944 to 1948, who returned this summer to live in retirement in Bethany, Mr. Henderson died suddenly on Saturday of a heart attack in his 66th year.

The service was in charge of the Rev. Lawrence Norman, with the Rev. James Hampson of Greenwood reading the scripture lessons. The Rev. R. Prosser, Renfrew, led in prayers, and the Rev. A. Armstrong of Port Perry preached the sermon.

During his term in Bethany, Mr. Henderson had especially concentrated on working with young people, and there are many who remember with gratitude his active leadership in Tuxis Square and Young People's Union. He was mainly responsible for organizing and building the community rink and helped in the labor involved.

Pallbearers were Ralph Malcolm, Ray Robinson, Orr Lamb, W. Donaldson, A. H. Watson and Howard Malcolm. Burial was in Yelverton cemetery.

Surviving are his wife, the former Ernestine Willert, two daughters Mrs. Ray Robinson (Ernestine), and Mrs. Ralph Malcolm (Ruth), both of Yelverton, three sons, Gordon in Toronto, John of Buckingham, Que., and Murray at home; a brother George Henderson, Dawson Creek, B.C., and three sisters Miss Annie Henderson, Hamilton, Mrs. W. Four Broke Light Bulbs On Hallowe'en, Fined LINDSAY (ENS).—Four youths found out in Lindsay police court Wednesday that some kinds of Hallowe'en pranks can turn out to be expensive.

The four, Robert Whitney, and William and Robert Case, all of Lindsay, and Francis Cowan of Orono, pleaded guilty to breaking three street light globes, two 400-watt bulbs and one light cap last Hallowe'en.

The incident occurred early on November 1, on William Street South. The boys were charged following investigation by Lindsay police. All pleaded guilty to the charge, and it was pointed out to the court they had made restitution amounting to $47, before appearing in court.

Magistrate Gee fined each of the youths $10, and $8.50 costs, in view of their having made restitution. Forfeit for the fine was 15 days in each case.

Tiger-Cats Confident Ground Offensive Will Help Contain Bombers

HAMILTON—(CP)—Hamilton Tiger-Cats are ready to concede Winnipeg Blue Bombers have the better passing attack, which may get them touchdowns in a hurry in the Grey Cup game Saturday, but on the point of which is the better-balanced club the Bengals put themselves in front.

IMPORT HALF — Neill Armstrong plays offensive and defensive halfback for Winnipeg Blue Bombers. A former member of Philadelphia Eagles, Armstrong is expected to see action against Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the Grey Cup game at Toronto, Nov. 28.

Over the season in the Big Four the Tiger-Cats showed the power they can generate with their ground offensive and along with a capable but not spectacular aerial attack they have proven to the east to be the combination unsurpassed in the Big Four.

The eastern champions are confident they can handle the Bombers' running and plunging game. They believe they have the edge on the ground and expect to chew out huge hunks of yardage that way, intermingling it with an aerial show to keep the Winnipeg defence guessing.

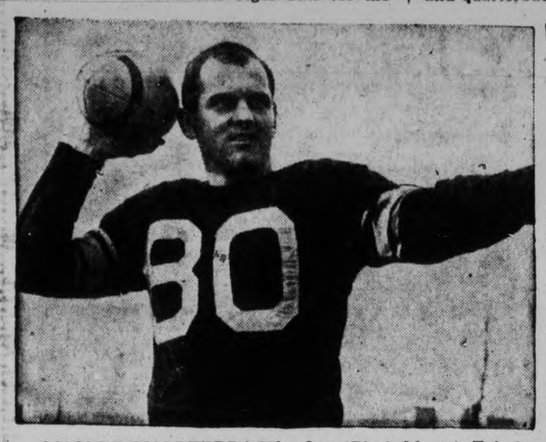
HAD OWN TROUBLES

The other Big Four clubs had their hands full in trying to contain the Tiger-Cats ground forces. Fullback Merle Hapes, halves Lou Kusserow, Bernie Custis and Royal Bailey carry the running and plunging load, combining speed and crashing force to bowl past tacklers.

Quarterback Ed Songin, former Boston College star, is a dangerous passer, equally as good whether he is throwing long or short. But even his biggest boosters on the Tiger-Cats' bandwagon will admit he is up against a better aerial artist in the Bombers' Indian Jack Jacobs.

Songin has the additional drawback of not having ends like Neil Armstrong and Bud Grant to pitch to. Those two are Jacobs' main targets and if the Tiger-Cats had a pair to compare with those two imports the odds of 7-to-5 in favor of the East for Saturday's game would be much higher.

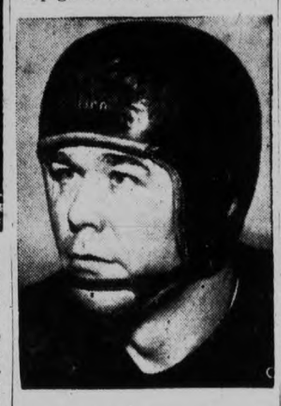
Tiger-Cats have only one American end, Vito Ragazzo who came unheralded to the club after playing with William and Mary in 1949-50. He is a good pass receiver but is also used as a defensive half, a position which he played with outstanding success along with Kusserow. Both intercepted more than 12 passes in the regular big four schedule.



OFFENSIVE ENDS

The other offensive ends are Tip Logan, who is also the team's field goal and convert kicking specialist, and rookie Gerry Mactaggart.

The fact they consider the westerners have the edge in passing isn't leaving them in awe. They ran up against great passers in Nobby Wirkowski of Toronto Argonauts, Sam Etcheverry of Montreal Alouettes and Tom O'Malley of Ottawa Rough Riders in the Big Four season. These quarters passed them dizzy in some games but when it counted they were able to stop their aerial attacks.



MAYOR PURCHASES PMHA TICKET —Minor hockeyist John Tanner is seen here making a sale to Mayor Hugh Waddell, who smilingly agreed to purchase a ticket for the PMHA booster night program this evening in Civic Arena, all proceeds going to aid minor hockey in the city. The program features an exhibition game between Oldtimers and Junior Petes, as well as broomball between firemen and police. —(Examiner Staff Photo).

MAY BE QUARTERBACK—Joe (Black Magic) Zaleski may be given the nod over Indian Jack Jacobs at quarterback for Winnipeg Blue Bombers if there is rain or snow for the Grey Cup game at Toronto, November 28. Zaleski, second-year import from the University of Dayton, O., has handled most of the Bombers' attack when the club resorted to a ground attack because of weather conditions.

INDIAN JACK—One of the most colorful players in Canadian football, Indian Jack Jacobs is the forward-passing quarterback of the Winniueg Blue Bombers. He will be out to avenge the 1950 Grey Cup defeat the Bombers suffered against Toronto Argonauts when he leads Winnipeg against Hamliton Tiger-Cats in the Dominion football championship at Toronto, Nov. 28.

Trafton Has 105 Football Plays Won't Hint About Any Of Them

By JIM BASTABLE

AURORA, Ont. (CP) — George (Thunder) Trafton has 105 football plays. He won't talk about any of them.

The 56-year-old coach of Winnipeg Blue Bombers clams up at mention of defensive or offensive strategy for the Grey Cup final against Hamilton Tiger-Cats in Toronto Saturday.

"What do you think I am?" Trafton roared a few minutes before the Blue Bombers' light drill Wednesday. "I'm not running every two-bit football team in the country. I'm supposed to be calling the shots for Winnipeg."

That's why, the voluble Trafn added, the Blue Bombers are holding practice sessions in secrecy.

BIG TIME CLUB

"This is the big time," he said. "I'm running a big-time football club and every Tom, Dick and Harry isn't going to sneak around us."

Trafton made his comments while fingering a couple of little black books with his plays just before the Bombers headed for practice at nearby St. Andrew's College, about 30 miles north of Toronto.

WHO'S WATCHING

Only a few St. Andrew's students rubber-necked.

"Why should I open up my workouts?" Trafton asked. "How do I know who's watching? I saw Red Ettinger (centre with Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four union and formerly with Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western conference) at the drills Tuesday.

"How the h—— do I know who else was there."

Trafton said he hadn't heard of coach Carl Voyles of the Tiger-Cats "yackety-yacketing about his plays," and added:

"I'm not going to fix it so Voyles can pick up any newspaper and read in three minutes what I'm going to do in an hour."

Asked whom he might start for the classic, Trafton commented:

"You've seen my line-up before haven't you? Well take your choice. I'm not crazy."

ONLY INJURY

About the only injury Trafton must contend with is Lorne Benson, 22-year-old half who is out with a knee injury.

"The other fellows are in fine shape," Trafton added. "We'll be ready."

The players agree with that.

Guard Dean Bandiera who calls the defensive signals is nursing a sore knee but he figures it will be "in shape for Saturday."

BOMBER HALFBACK — A steady performer for the last four years Tom Casey is defensive and offensive halfback with Winnipeg Blue Bombers who meet Hamilton Ti-Cats in the Dominion football championship at Toronto, November 28. A former New York Yankee, Casey's 16 touchdowns led the Western Interprovincial Football Union in 1952. He scored the winning touchdown against Edmonton Eskimos this season to give Winnipeg the right to enter the Grey Cup classic.

Remember When—

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Queen's University, then top team in the Intercollegiate Football Union, won the eastern Canada title 31 years ago today by edging the Big Four champion Toronto Argonauts 12-11. The victory came on a muddy field at Toronto with a last-minute field goal by Pep Leadlay, and the collegians went on to beat Edmonton 13-1 in the Canadian final.

PLACE-KICKER — Bud Korchak, 26-year-old Winnipeg homebrew, played an important role in Winnipeg's successful season this year with his place-kicking. He scored 66 points to help the Bombers enter the Dominion football championship against Hamilton Tiger-Cats at Toronto, Nov. 28. Korchak, a five-year veteran, was named to the 1952 and 1953 western all-star teams.

PASS RECEIVER—Import end Bud Grant is expected to be on the receiving end of forward passes thrown by Winnipeg Blue Bombers in their bid for the Dominion football championship at Toronto, Nov. 28. He formerly played with Philadelphia Eagles in United States professional football.

'Caygeon Rink Wins

LINDSAY (ENS). — The first open ladies' bonspiel of the season concluded a three-day match with the veteran Mrs. Anne McIntosh of Bobcaygeon winning the Pitts Trophy and prizes for the third consecutive year. In the finals this rink eliminated another Bobcaygeon rink skipped by Kay Martin.

Rinks were present from Toronto Granites and Toronto Curling Club, Gravenhurst, Beaverton, Oakwood, Woodville, Haliburton, Keene, Peterborough and Lindsay.

In the secondary event Mrs. V. Scott of Lindsay edged out Mrs. Cottle of Toronto Curling Club, and in the consolation event Mrs. McCartney of Peterborough defeated Mrs. Godfrey of Keene.

Mexican Boxer Wins Over Arthur King

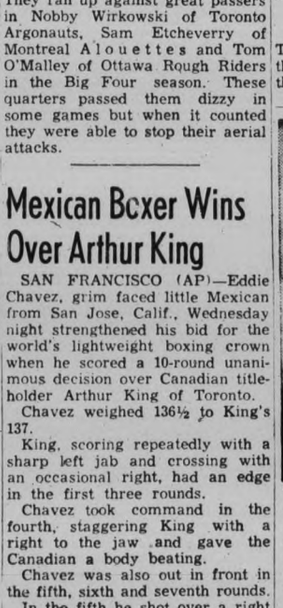
SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Eddie Chavez, grim faced little Mexican from San Jose, Calif., Wednesday night strengthened his bid for the world's lightweight boxing crown when he scored a 10-round unanimous decision over Canadian titleholder Arthur King of Toronto.

Chavez weighed 136½ to King's 137.

King, scoring repeatedly with a sharp left jab and crossing with an occasional right, had an edge in the first three rounds.

Chavez took command in the fourth, staggering King with a right to the jaw and gave the Canadian a body beating.

Chavez was also out in front in the fifth, sixth and seventh rounds.



In the fifth he shot over a right to the jaw that nearly floored King. The latter went down on his haunches, but was not off his feet.

RECORD GATE EXPECTED

TORONTO (CP)—The gross gate for Saturday's Hamilton-Winnipeg Grey Cup final is expected to total $168,443, an all-time high. Ticket sales will yield $128,443 and television, radio, movie and program rights will bring an additional $40,000.

Last year, when a Grey Cup record crowd of 27,395 saw the classic at Varsity Stadium, the gross gate was a record $126,026—$111,026 from ticket sales and $15,000 additional from television, radio, motion picture and program rights.

The ticket price range in 1952 was $5.65, $4.50 and $3.40. This year it is $6, $5 and $3.50.

Planning Big Weekend

Annual Grey Cup Fever Sweeps Toronto

By H. L. JONES

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto is set for a week-end football blowout that promises to make an atomic blast look like small potatoes.

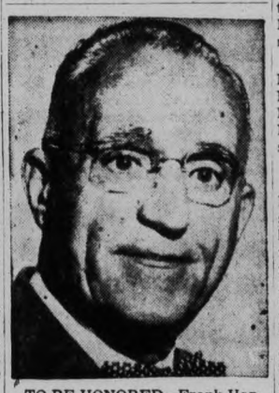
The annual fever known as Grey Cup-itis is about to grip the city.

There'll be a huge parade with bands and beautiful girls. There'll be a $10-a-plate dinner and a big ball. And there'll be an invasion by thousands of football-mad, cowboy-hatted western fans to cheer Winnipeg Blue Bombers against Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Thousands of others will come the 40-odd miles from Hamilton—4,000 of them with tickets—to see the game at Varsity Stadium Saturday afternoon or just join in the fun. Many will make a week-end of it.

Right now things are quiet.

It's the lull before the storm that will break with Friday's arrival of the first of the fun-loving westerners complete with bands and parade floats. There isn't a hotel room to be had in the city and there isn't a Grey Cup ticket that can be legally purchased.



BIGGEST EVER

Officials of the Junior Board of Trade who will welcome the first three special trains of westerners think it will be one of the biggest football week-ends ever. Hundreds of fans from all over the west have joined the Winnipegger's trek to lend Bombers support.

The Grey Cup dinner will be Friday night, followed by the ball at which Miss Grey Cup will be chosen from among 12 beauties representing teams in the Big Four, Western Conference and Ontario Rugby Football Union. The parade will come Saturday morning, reviewed by the mayors of Toronto, Hamilton and Winnipeg as it passes city hall.

Thousands will line the route to see the 30-odd floats and a dozen bands and watch the antics of the westerners whooping it up. The 12 beauties—including Miss Grey Cup—will be riding in slick new convertibles.

Then will come the climax—the game itself with Bombers bidding for the West's first National football title since Calgary beat Ottawa 12-7 in 1948.

TO BE HONORED—Frank Hannibal of Winnipeg, one of those instrumental in formation of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, will be honored at the Grey Cup dinner Friday night for his contribution to the game in Canada. He was president of Winnipeg Blue Bombers when they won the Grey Cup in 1935 and 1941.

City's Dinner Of Champions To Be Held In January Will Name Athlete Of Year

The city's "Dinner of Champions," to honor members of Peterborough athletic teams who have won Ontario championships or higher in 1952 and 1953, will be held in the latter part of January.

City council's reception committee were informed Wednesday that the chenille crests, to be presented to athletes so honored, would not all be available before December 28. There are 110 crests for 1952 champions already on hand but the 1953 crests could not be ordered until the success of the football Orfuns had been determined.

Rather than have some of those eligible for the crests receive them after the dinner, it was decided not to hold the event this year but to wait until after the holiday season so that as many as possible could be on hand and there would be crests available to be presented to them.

In addition to the presentation of the crests, an outstanding speaker will be engaged and the award of a trophy will be made to the "Athlete of the Year" to be selected by a committee of six members appointed by the recreatio commission.

The trophy stands about 18 inches high and is mounted on a base measuring about eight by 18 inches and contains four figures of athletes placed around a tall pedestal which is surmounted by a figure holding a laurel.

Recreation Supervisor Alex Sinclair told the reception committee Wednesday that the trophy had originally been presented by a group of local sportsmen in memory of the late Charles Kearns following his tragic death by drowning. But some members of the award committee had gone overseas and the presentation had been deferred for years.

It is intended to make the award each year at the dinner of champions when a replica of the figure surmounting the trophy will also be presented to the winner as a permanent memento.

It is estimated that about 200 athletes will be eligible for the crests, which consist of a chenille replica of the city's official crest in five colors. The crests are about seven inches in diameter and around the circumference are the words: "City of Peterborough Honor Award" with the year in which the championship was won appearing at the bottom.

TWO LACROSSE YEARS

Peterborough's two senior Canadian senior lacrosse championship teams are eligible for the crests, the Timbermen, who won the Mann Cup in 1952, and the Trailermen, who won it this year. Also eligible are the juvenile lacrosse club, who won the Ontario championship last year.

Other teams whose members are thought eligible to receive crests are the Peterborough Ornamental Swimming Club, who won the United States synchronized swimming championship this year; Peterborough Orfuns, who won the Ontario Rugby Football Union Intermediate "A" championship in both 1952 and 1953; the UEW soccer team, who won the Ontario Intermediate title last year, and Peterborough Shamrocks, who won the Ontario Hockey Association bantam championship this year.

Two other people qualified for the awards last year, Mrs. Maurice Charlton and Verna Rose, who won the Ontario ladies' doubles "B" badminton title.

NO CRESTS

At Wednesday's committee meeting, Mayor Hugh Waddell was in favor of having the dinner in December. But Ald. T. D. Miller said this would mean that the 1953 champions would not get their crests that night. He was opposed to the idea of having any of the crests sent in the mail. He said they ought to be presented personally by the mayor.

"I think the dinner ought to be held every year, as soon after the New Year as it's possible to get the crests," Ald. Miller said.

Ald. Miller's motion to have the dinner between January 15 and 30 was carried and the committee chairman, Ald. Syd Black, was authorized to prepare a list of those eligible for the crests and arrange for a special speaker.

No definite speaker was agreed upon but names suggested were sportswriters Ted Reeve and Trent Frayne, Coach Carl Voyles of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats, and Syl Apps, former captain of the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Cut In Department Grant Stopped Road Construction

Because the department of highways cut their appropriation by-law by $33,000 this year, the county roads committee were unable to afford any road construction. Two bridges were built and three other bridges either have been or will be repaired before the year is out.

Making his annual report to county council, County Engineer Jack Kean said Wednesday: "We feel that our county roads are in fairly good condition for the year, but we naturally regret the fact that we could not show any new construction being carried out."

MAINTAINED ROADS

"We endeavoured to maintain roads as usual, to grade and gravel them, lay dust with calcium chloride, clean up ditches and culverts, and spray weeds and brush," said Mr. Kean in his report. "The county road system absorbed the whole cut of $33,000 and did not pass any of it along to the suburban area road system or the county bridge system."

To the end of October the county roads systems had spent $89,002, the surburban area system $122,347, and bridges and culverts $25,115. The total spent is $236,464 or an appropriation for the three accounts of $258,000.

Ewart Marston, district enginneer for the department of highways, congratulated the committee for keeping within their appropriation.

County workmen built a float with a carrying capacity of 11 tons, designed to move the three-quarter-cubic-yard power shovel around from pit to pit. It was also used to unload cement and calcium cholride from boxcars which were eventually stored in the county sheds.

"It has made us more mobile and the total cost was only $612," said Mr. Kean. "This leaves us quite independent of commercial floats around town."

"Our bridge gang constructed the $3,500 Stoney Creek bridge in Anstruther township, a 16-foot span reinforced concrete structure —also the Black Lake bridge in Cavendish township which was a 12 foot by 7 foot multi-plate pipe arch, with fill."

The committee are also expecting the R. A. Blyth Co to start work soon on the Wallace Point bridge. A pier needs repairing. Timber stringers and decks were laid on the Nassau bridge and Taylor's bridge in Belmont township.

County workmen were loaned for a month to Victoria county to build a concrete bridge for them.

HAD TO STOP

"The Armstorng Bros. Constructors Co. of Brampton, started on the causeway at Gannon's Narrows but had to stop hauling fill as the township road started to give way in several spots. They won't be able to haul on the road until freeze-up comes."

The mulch paving of Buckhorn road cost $69,502 which is included in the suburban roads expenditure, previously stated. Another $40 will be spent on centre-line striping.

"Our payroll costs this year have been held to 21.6 per cent of the total expenditure to Oct. 31," said Mr. Kean. "Last year this percentage was 25.8 for the same period, and in 1951, 28.12."

Says British Ordered Killing

KLAGENFURT, Austria (Reuters)—A 29-year-old Yugoslav claimed he acted under British secret orders in the murder of Mrs. Simone de Ridder of Belgium on the Vienna-Ostend express 10 days ago, police said today.

The police statement said the Yugloslav, Stefan Matusic, "confessed to the broad outlines" of the killing, but laid the main blame on an unnamed accomplice. He is demanding to be taken to British intelligence officers on whose "secret instructions" he acted, the statement said.

Mrs. de Ridder, 51, was the mother of Olympic skating star Micheline Lannoy. She was pushed off the express near Kitzingen, Bavaria.

Matusic was arrested here last Friday on a year-old theft charge. Police said they noted "suspicious similarities" between him and a Yugoslav of similar name who was being sought in Germany after Mrs. de Ridder's death.

Ask Private TV Stations Compete Against CBC

OTTAWA (CP)—A request that private television stations be allowed to compete against the CBC in Canada's major cities has been made in the Commons.

William Hamilton (PC—Montreal Notre Dame de Grace) said Wednesday the government-owned CBC should release its "stranglehold" on television in six big cities.

Making his first Commons address in the throne speech debate, he said private TV stations should be allowed in Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa, where the CBC has stations, and in Vancouver, Winnipeg and Halifax, where CBC plans TV outlets.

However, there was apparently "not one iota of hope for private enterprise in this field in our major cities."

MOVE TOO SLOWLY

"In Montreal, years after we might have had a private television station, the CBC finally got theirs into operation. Now they are creeping towards a second, which will doubtless enable them to accumulate bigger and better deficits."

Private television stations have been authorized in 14 Canadian cities. These are at Sudbury, the only one in operation as yet, and at Calgary, Edmonton, Regina, Saskatoon, Windsor, Hamilton, London, Kingston, Kitchener, Quebec, Rimouski, Que., Saint John N.B., and Sydney, N.S.

Mr. Hamilton said the last CBC annual report showed a net operating surplus of $375,000.

However, it received $11,975,000 from the government in licence fees and statutory grant. This money was paid "for performing a service which, under a government less socialistically inclined than the present one, private enterprise would perform for nothing."

In other words, he said, the CBC had a net loss of more than $11,500,000, "all of which was picked up by the taxpayers of this country."

Labor Blockade Plan Drafted In B.C. Strike

VANCOUVER (CP)—Plans for a complete labor blockade of the strike ridden British Columbia interior are being drafted by the International Woodworkers of America (CIO-CCL).

George Morris, IWA district president, announced the plan Wednesday and said it would extend from B.C. where some 9,000 men are out of work across the Prairie provinces to Manitoba.

Claiming that the IWA is faced with an "employers' threat to destroy our union throughout the interior lumber industry," Mr. Morris said the union would fight to prevent employers from displacing them with strikebreakers.

"We have set plans in motion that will impose a complete labor blockade on the strike-bound area of the interior," he said. In Alberta and Saskatchewan, as well as B.C., at every point where workers may be hired and entrained, they will be advised that the interior lumber industry is on strike."

PROMISED SUPPORT

Mr. Morris said the IWA had been promised support of the Alberta and Saskatchewan Federations of Labor in the strike touched off two months ago by demands of interior woodworkers that their pay be increased 18 cents an hour to the level of coast woodworkers. Present interior basic wage rate is 1:29½.

About 3,000 IWA members are involved in the walkout that has forced another 6,000 workers in associated industry out of work.

New Weapons Whittle Security Away

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Health Minister Martin, the cabinet member responsible for Canada's civil defence effort, said Wednesday that modern weapons "have whittled away the security once conferred on us by the simple facts of geography."

"No longer," he told the Windsor Lions Club, "can we enjoy the sheltered isolation that was our sure protection in the past."

Mr. Martin, discussing five years of civil defence in Canada, said civil defence organizations have been established in 558 communities across the country. In more than 100 of these, he added, the organizations are trained and operational; the remainder are in various stages of development.

Report James Mason Appearing At Festival

TORONTO (CP) — The Daily Star said Wednesday James Mason British film star, has agreed to play next summer at the Stratford Shakespearean festival.

A story from Montego bay, Jamaica, says that in a letter written to friends there Mason said he and his wife, Pamela Kellino, will be in Stratford to appear in the tent theatre where Alex Guiness was featured last summer. It says Tyrone Guthrie, producer-director, has been in England seeing actors for next year's production.

(At Stratford, Tom Patterson, director of planning for the festival, said he had no information on Mason being chosen.)

Worker Rescued

GUELPH (CP)—Sidney Durose crawled through a 14-inch opening to clean the inside of an oil tank truck Wednesday. Fumes from his cleaning fluid knocked him out. Prompt action by fellow workers in pulling him out is believed to have saved his life.

Reeve Acclaimed

PORT STANLEY (CP) — Mrs. Violet McCarthy was elected reeve of Port Stanley by acclamation Wednesday. She is believed the first woman ever to head a municipal council in Elgin county.

Peoples Of Indo-China Have Complex Problems

By O. M. GREEN

LONDON (OFNS) — Much of Bernard Newman's latest book "Report on Indo-China," was written while he was still exploring Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia, the three states which make up the country, and from which he returned last spring.

One of the most interesting chapters deals with the curious religion of Cao Dai, the Supreme Being. The Vietnamese are rather vague in their religious beliefs, which fact accounts for the spread of Roman Catholicism—it now embraces two million Vietnamese —and for Caodaism.

Caodaism was founded about thirty years ago by a few mystics who practised spiritualism. Ruled by a Pope and cardinals, the Caodaists have their own state within a state, covering one hundred square kilometres, with a population of at least one million people and an efficient standing army. At the centre is a huge temple, a curious mixture of Renaissance and oriental architecture gorgeously bedizened with paintings of mystic beasts and Caodaist saints. The latter include Dr. Sun Yetsen, the first president of the Chinese Republic, and Victor Hugo, who is frequently consulted through a medium, and replies in impromptu verse.

Unlike most eastern religions, women play their part: there are women bishops and priests and even one cardinal, as well as men.

"This was not so at first," says Mr. Newman, but the Pope argued firmly with the Supreme Being. At last God was constrained to admit, 'Well, I may have made a mistake about that'—for he is a conversational Master—and women were forthwith admitted to something near equality with men."

Mr. Newman strongly repudiates the assessment of Emperor Bao Dai, popularised by the Communists and fellow-travellers, as "a French playboy." The Emperor, he says, has a keen brain, determined patriotism and unflinching purpose—as, indeed, his dealings with the French since he was restored to the throne in 1949 fully suggest.

Another character worth watching is the young, strong-willed Norodomsibanouk, King of Cambodia, who has certainly been successful in forcing the French government's hand.

The maps of Vietnam contained in the book give an alarming idea of the size of country which the Vietminh (rebel Communists) control.

Yet, basically, the war will be won or lost in the Red River delta, the rice country which the Communists need for survival. In this tragic struggle there is no front, no clear line. Mr. Newman met Vietnamese whose brothers were fighting with the Vietminh. He found children going daily to government schools and home to villages in Vietminh territory. These villages are a constant trouble to the Franco-Vietnam forces: not that they are actively Communists, but they are so terrorised by the Vietminh that they readily give them supplies.

Mr. Newman gives unstinted praise to what the French have done in the past seventy years—the splendid roads they have built, the all-round development of agriculture, universal education, and the wonderful health service, which has raised the population of Indo-China from only ten millions in 1880 to more than twenty-eight millions today.

He found many Vietnamese who fully admitted that France had done for them what they would never have done for themselves, and who were ready to co-operate with France on terms of equal friendship. But—as is so clearly shown by the recent Congress in Vietnam set up by Emperor Bao Dai to assist him in his negotiations in Paris—these Vietnames demand nothing less than complete independence.—Copyright.

WEAVING SEMINAR

The Peterborough Recreation committee plans a weaving seminar to be held January 8. This will be one step toward the reorganization of a weaving group suggested to the commission.

NEW SERVICE STATION

City council has authorized the city engineer to issue a building permit to the Supertest Petroleum Corporation Ltd. to erect a service station on their property at the south-west corner of Monaghan Rd. and Frank St.

NEW APPOINTMENT

C. I. Archibald, who recently replaced R. E. Macdonald as manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, has been nominated as recreation commission treasurer. The office was previously held by Mr. Macdonald. Confirmation awaits approval of city council.

VISITING REEVE

A visitor to the Peterborough county council chamber today was Reeve Harry Deyell of Omemee, who is on the Victoria county council. Mr. Deyell said that this year in Victoria the bill for the Children's Aid Society alone was about $31,000. Education costs are also high, he said.

CHANGE STREET NAMES

The city is taking legal steps to change the name of the highway connecting link, now known as Downer St. and Otonabee St., to Lansdowne St. E., from the east limit of the city to the point where the highway link reaches Lansdowne St. They have also recommended to the city engineer to take action to overcome the confusion between the names of Thomas St. and St. Thomas St.

MINE HIGHLIGHTED

The annual 120-page issue of the Northern Miner is on the news stands today. In the two only full - page picture cover spreads, two mining companies are featured, one in Quebec and the other Marmora. The latter, described as "the bright spot in Canada's economy," tells the picture story of the current operation. The photos were taken for the Miner by Examiner staff-photographer, Nick Nickels.

PASS ON REQUEST

County council today considered the request from Norwood for a $500 grant toward their $18,000 community building. Because the building is on "fair ground" property and is owned by the "fair board" several members thought they should look further into the circumstances before handing over the $500. So the request was referred to the 1954 council for consideration.

Home Owners Of South End Form Association

Home owners' associations organizing practices were outlined Wednesday night before an organizational meeting of 90 south-end ratepayers at Confederation school. After hearing George W. Carphin address them, the group elected Douglas Leel as an association provisional chairman.

Two main benefits by such a group could be attained, Mr. Carphin said. In addition to the main one, "getting what we want" through lobbying, there is the benefit of having a tightly-knit neighborhood organization for raising improvement funds, helping fellow citizens in a time of need and for social reasons.

An aldermanic candidate in the coming civic election, Mr. Carphin was first president of the Brookdale Home Owners' Association, and instrumental in the formation of the Parkdale Home Owners' Association.

WAKE UP COUNCIL

After describing various forms of municipal government, the speaker suggested the formation of a citizens' group is the way to "wake up" a municipal council.

First a group should form a provisional board, made up of a chairman and vice-chairman, treasurer and two secretaries, and heads of a constitution and membership committee. After the first general meeting is called, full-time officials, a president, vice-president, two secretaries, treasurer, and chairmen of a membership, constitution, political, program and entertainment committee, could be elected.

He reminded them, in closing, " . . . an awakened population leads to good aministration . . ."

In addition to naming Mr. Leel as chairman, Leonard Thibodeau was appointed vice-chairman, E. W. Curtin, treasurer, William Martin, recording and corresponding secretary, I. Bennett, membership chairman and E. Wicks, constitution chairman.

Mr. Leel said he hoped to have a general meeting called in two months.

In addressing the group, Mr. Carphin had told them home-school groups were all right but they lose sight of the fact there are childless families in their districts.

To fill in this gap, a ratepayers' association brings in everyone.

"It's not only formed for the purpose of bringing taxes down, but you still have a lot of functions you could get into."

14 Natural Ice Rinks Planned For Children

Plans for operating 14 natural ice skating rinks in the city this winter were disclosed at today's meeting of city council's parks committee, who turned down a proposal by Graham Ferguson on Sanitary Ice and Fuel Ltd. to operate an artificial ice rink. The parks department plans to operate rinks at Riverside, Inverlea, King Edward, Turner, Hamilton and McKellar parks, Hastings playground and on the grounds of St. Vincent Orphanage.

Petitions have also been received from district residents to operate rinks at Queen Alexandra and Queen Mary schools.

SUPERVISION

The Home and School Association of Queen Alexandra school have agreed to provide supervision there if the city floods the rink. The level of the ground at Queen Mary school presents a problem, however, and the city engineer and parks superintendent are going to investigate the feasibility of grading it. Permission of the board of education would be necessary to operate rinks on school playgrounds.

Ald. Syd Black proposed the ornamental lake at Jackson park as another site and Parks Superintendent Armar Butcher will report on the cost of such a project. If it proves practicable, this site will be used rather than Hamilton park.

Mr. Ferguson proposed to build an outdoor rink, 70 by 170 feet at his property on Water St., with ice to be manufactured by his existing plant. The size of the ice surface at Civic Arena is 180 by 70 feet.

He estimated the cost to himself of laying out the rink would be about $20,000. He asked the city for a guarantee to rent it over a 10-year period, from November 1 until the end of March each year, until 6:00 p.m. six days a week, at an annual rent of about $4,000. After 6:00 p.m. Mr. Ferguson would operate the rink for public skating.

The committee rejected his proposal on the grounds that, although there is admittedly an existing shortage of artificial ice for organized recreation, the construction of a Memorial Centre will probably overcome this difficulty.

It was Mr. Ferguson's opinion that the city would eventually have to have outdoor artificial rinks. H[illcrest] had recently built four at a cost of $85,000 each and the minimum price would be about $50,000. If he built the rink, his rental charge to the city would be about half what it would cost to maintain a $50,000 rink. He would require the income from public skating in the evening to operate the rink economically.

Mr. Butcher explained that at the present time Civic Arena is used during the day by the schools for playing hockey during physical training periods. Church and minor hockey clubs were required to practice at night and this had led to complaints from parents; so there was a definite demand for additional artificial ice.

In Mr. Butcher's opinion, the Civic Arena commission would be "tickled to death" if there were extra facilites for hockey practces.

Courtesy Award For Policemen

TORONTO (CP) — The four most courteous policemen in Ontario were presented with awards Wednesday.

George H. Doucett, Ontario minister of highways, made the presentations on behalf of the Garage Operators' Association of Ontario. He lauded the association's safety program.

Awards went to Cpl. Fern Goleau, Ottawa city police; constable Edward Reid, Ontario provincial police at Owen Sound; constable Allen Pike, OPP at North Bay and traffic officer Matthew Bell, of the Brantford city police.

Mr. Doucett said auto registrations have doubled in the province since 1945, increasing the hazards for drivers. He said the death toll in the province this year will increase over last year's total of 1,010.

Norman E. Elliott Heads Shrine Club

The annual meeting of the Kawartha Shrine Club, a district Club of Shriners who belong to Rameses Temple, A.A.O.N.M.S., was held Wednesday. The officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: Immediate Past President, Dr. H. M. Yelland; President, Norman E. Elliott; Vice-President, Kenneth C. Dalrymple; Treasurer, Norris Williamson; Secretary, Douglas Anderson; Directors, Jack Baker, Leslie Braunton, C. H. Davidson, T. F. Doughty, J. D. Fanning, F. Horton, Harold Inman, J. Smith, J. E. Watters.

A highlight of the year was represented by the contributions made through the local Club to certain hospitals in this district in addition to the support given to the Shriners' hospitals for crippled children.

As a mark of appreciation for his services as president during the past year, Dr. H. M. Yelland was presented with a clock.

City No Haven For Sufferers Of Hay Fever

BY HARRY THEOBALD

Actual tests give the air of Peterborough a high count of pollen of the ragweed during its flowering weeks in August and September, the period of late summer dreaded by the victims of hay fever.

The ragweed pollen air index for 1953 in Peterborough was 37.5, as reported by the federal Department of Agriculture, and "any city or community having an index above 10 is not recommended; between 5 and 10 is fairly good, and below 1 is excellent for hay fever sufferers".

Those figures alone tell the story for Peterborough.

These tests were made by the botany and plant pathology division of the Canada Department of Agriculture, with the co-operation of the Peterborough Fire Department this year for the first time. Specially prepared glass plates, about three inches square, were supplied to former Chief Ralph Leonard of the Department, during the blooming weeks of the weed.

STICKY SURFACE

One face of the plates was treated with a light coating of sticky substance to catch tiny particles floating about and borne by the air.

It is understood that the service of the Fire Department was recommended by Frank C. Paterson of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, and to him the results were recently forwarded by I. J. Bassett, assistant botanist of the weed investigation section, Ottawa.

The letter also said: "The techniques and methods used for the pollen counting are those recommended by the Pollen Survey Committee of the American Academy of Allergy.

" We consider any ragweed pollen counts over 7 per square centimetre or over 25 per cu. yd. of air for a 24-hour period as a hay fever day." There were 19 hay fever days recorded between Aug. 20 to Sept. 10.

"We had good co-operation from your city's Fire Department. They are holding the apparatus for us next year. I would appreciate it if you would let them know of our results.

"There is no doubt that an intensive ragweed control campaign in the city would be of some relief to those who suffer from hay fever. The difficulty lies in starting an extensive control campaign outside the city limits where considerable ragweed pollen is blown in."

The prepared plates were placed daily in the vicinty of the fire hall on Aylmer St. usually outside a window to catch whatever material was floating in the air.

Further data:—

Pollen per cu. yd. of air: annual totals, Aug. and Sept. (this year) 3024 maximum counts for one day 342. The apex day was August 29. These facts were obtained from actual count of pollen found on the plates sent from the fire hall to Ottawa.

The Department of Agriculture apparently assumes a causative connection between ragweed pollen and what is popularly known as hay fever. Another assumption or acceptance is in the word "allergy", and beyond that a preventive campaign of weed cutting is recommended to Peterborough and its neighbouring townships.

IDENTIFICATION

It would be interesting to know how many persons in the city could identify ragweed. If they knew it by sight, apart from its sniff-and-sneeze reputation, its spread along city streets, boulevards, playgrounds, and open places generally would be recognized and appreciated.

The opinion is ventured that very few of the city people know ragweed.

As to campaign, the Examiner voluntarily endeavored this year to stir up some interest about weed control, in the city and county, partly to enlist some support for the serious work Melville Johnston has been trying to do as county weed inspector. Reference was made to weed crops along city streets and in the country, and it was suggested to the city council that this campaign should begin with them; that they should not dump the job on the desk of city engineer Chalmers at the busiest period of his year, nor should it be left to a police constable.

The Department of Agriculture mentions: "The difficulty lies in starting an extensive control campaign outside the city, etc.", and it might add that it appears to be equally difficult to get a campaign going in the city.

Weeds are tolerated, and they are a sign of slovenly housekeeping by the community.

The pith of the tests, made here last summer and into September, may be repeated: a pollen index of 37.5 as compared with the ideal of 5 (good) and 1 (excellent). It may be assumed that the public is aware of the embarrassments and wretchedness of hay fever.

DOUBLE-HEADED MONEY MONSTERS are now being installed on city streets. They are said to have the following advantages: cars can park closer front to rear; cars can get away faster from the parking area; collection time is cut in half. Constable Ernie Beattie, right, admires them while citizen C. A. Bullock, though smiling, said, "No comment" —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Workers Vote To Accept Wage Boost

Outboard Employees Get 12-15 Cents, Shorter Work Week

Production workers at the Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co. on Wednesday night ratified the terms of a one-year agreement with management that gives the workers a package increase of 12 to 15 cents an hour.

The agreement between Local 5009, United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), and the company goes into effect Nov. 29 and it will likely be signed the next day.

Some 650 workers are affected.

Main terms of the agreement are as follows:

A general increase of five cents an hour;

A five-per cent wage increase to maintain the take-home pay;

The work week reduced from 42 to 40 hours;

Four cents retroactive to Oct. 1;

Improvement in the health and welfare plan at no extra cost to the membership;

Improvement in the hospitalization and surgical plan, also at no extra cost to the membership, and

A general tightening of the union protection clauses.

AVERAGE INCREASE

Fred Burrett, president of Local 5009, estimated that the average wage increase is 13.1 cents (five cent general, plus 8.1 cents maintenance of take-home pay). The minimum starting rate for men is $1.40 with a minimum labor rate in six months of $1.46. The minimum starting rate for women is $1.16 with a minimum labor rate in six months of $1.25.

Holidays remain the same: half a week after 13 weeks' service, a week after 26 weeks, two weeks after three years, and three weeks after 15 years. Union security is the same, a modified Rand formula: every eligible worker pays union dues as a condition of employment but he does not have to belong to the union.

When the production workers began negotiating at the end of August their union was the Outboard Marine Workers Union (CCL); since then they have voted to change their jurisdiction to the USW.

Members of the negotiating committee included Max Chambers, chairman, and Mel Foy, George Rutherford, Jack Draper and Fred Burrett, local president. They were assisted by two USW organizers, Don Montgomery and Larry Sefton.

Here It Comes

Just 12 hours late, snow started to come down in Peterborough during the noon hour. It had been predicted for Wednesday night and today. Now it is predicted for today and Friday. Across the land, except in the Maritimes, temperatures dropped to more normal levels. Wednesday night the mercury registered 28 at its lowest point. Most people hope the snow didn't gain momentum during the delay.

Rates Too Low At Resorts Owners Decide

In attendance figures the fifth annual workshop meeting of the resort section of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce on Wednesday was disappointing. But the range of subjects discussed pertaining to the resort business of the Kawarthas was broad, and to the participants satisfying. They used the late morning to discuss various phases of accomodation practices.

"Operators underestimate the importance and value of their accomodation," warned Gil Watson of Gil-Mar Lodge. "If our rates are not in line with a fair profit and a safe return on our investments, we are giving our places away."

Mr. Watson pointed out that his type of business — vacation and convention business — was entirely different from that of the other members present. Theirs was self-contained cabin type of resorts.

RATES TOO LOW

Mrs. Ross Smith of Scotsman's Point Lodge agreed that rates were too low and quoted several instances of Americans browbeating her over an established rate scale by arriving with twice the number in their parties that were originally bargained for. It was agreed that it was much better to discourage this type of tourist to protect the industry.

In the matter of promoting the Kawarthas it was agreed by all present that the district tourist industry was not well-enough established in the tourists' minds. And since the failure of the provincial governments tourist rating policy, nothing had come along to replace it. Chairman James Fraser wanted to know whether or not a Kawartha resort-rating policy could not be set up to promote the area. Members were in agreement on this, though no specific ideas were forthcoming. But, some form of promotion, such as organizing a tour for American outdoor writers, was considered.

In the matter of spending fees to belong to various hotel and tourist promotional agencies a survey showed that members present ranged from those who spend nothing to others who spent as much as $700 a year.

The rental of boats at resorts was also an agravating problem to operators and the majority of members felt that a boat-cabin "package" price was the most acceptable rate structure to the tourist.

Firemen Save Girl's Life Says Mother

Daughter, 4, Suffers Convulsions; Rushed Oxygen

A quck response by firemen is credited by Mrs. Bertram Rowe of 251 Simcoe St. with saving her four-year-old daughter, Ruth, who suffered a sever attack of convulsions Wednesday afternoon.

The firemen, headed by Chief William Sorrie, used oxygen on the child for three-quarters of an hour when there was a delay in getting a doctor. Then, with the siren going and with oxygen still being used, the little girl was rushed in the chief's car from her Simcoe St. home to Civic Hospital.

Ruth is reported to be resting comfortably today. And her mother, still upset over the incident, has the highest of praise for the firemen who responded so quickly.

MAGNIFICENT JOB

"If it hadn't been for their efforts I'd have never been able to save the child," Mr. Rowe said today. "They did a magnificent job. I can't praise them highly enough."

Twice Ruth stopped breathing and Chief Sorrie and his crew were afraid she was dying, but both times she rallied to the oxygen.

Mrs. Rowe ran the short distance from her home in the terrace on Simcoe St., near the fire station, and told firemen on duty that her daughter was having convulsions. An infected ear and a severe cold are believed to have caused the attack.

"I had no sooner told them what was the matter and had run back to the house when the firemen were coming in the front door with the oxygen equipment," said Mrs. Rowe.

Others in the special crew that answered the call were Captain Francis Shearer and Firemen Clarence Campbell and Allan Burdett.

The family doctor was attending a medical convention at the hospital at the time.

Montreal Paper Changes Publication

MONTREAL (CP) — Le Devoir, published in the afternoon since 1910, announced today that starting Friday it will appear in the morning.

The change was the second announced in Montreal's French-language newspaper field in less than 24 hours.

Earlier today, Le Canada, founded 50 years ago to support the Liberal party of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, announced it is ceasing publication.

Le Devoir which has always been edited for a comparatively small but select group of readers in Quebec province, was founded Jan. 10, 1910, by the late Henri Bourassa, outspoken Nationalist member of Parliament.

STORMY PETREL

The newspaper has been independent in politics and by its strongly - worded editorial campaigns sometimes has been described as the "stormy petrel" of Canadian journalism.

It campaigned against a Canadian Navy in 1911, conscription in 1917 and again in the 1942 plebiscite opposed the Canadian government's request for release from its anti-conscription pledge.

Le Devoir has been in financial difficulties from time to time but has always scraped through. Three years ago readers subscribed $50,000 to assure Le Devoir's continued publication.

Gerard Filion, editor, said today Le Devoir's newsstand price will be cut from 10 to five cents with its change into a morning paper.

Ringworm Cases Among Children

Dr. J. P. Wells, MOH, reports that ringworm cases are becoming prevalent among grade school children. About eight cases have been diagnosed in the month of November, one of which required hospitalization, due to secondary infection.

Parents are warned of the seriousness of this disease. It is extremely contagious, and may, if not properly treated, result in mass skin disfigurements. Most cases reported so far are scalp infections.

The disease is caused by a fungus and appears as a circular lesion on the body, face or scalp surface. In scalp cases, the hair falls out and the scalp takes on a moth-eaten appearance.

At the first sign of the disease, the child should be taken out of school and treated by a doctor.

Belgian Parliament Ratifies EDC Treaty

BRUSSELS (AP) — The lower house of the Belgian Parliament today ratified the European Defence Community treaty (EDC) which provides for a six-nation European army to resist the threat of Communist aggression.

In addition, the treaty has been ratified by both houses of the West German parliament, and the lower house of the Netherlands parliament. France, Italy and Luxembourg, the other members of the treaty alliance, have not yet acted.

The vote in the Belgian House of Representatives was 148 to 49 with three abstentions.

Report Condition Of Three Satisfactory

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Condition of a Detroit man and a Saskatchewan couple severely injured in a traffic accident near here Wednesday night was satisfactory, hospital officials said today.

Walter Misener, about 50, of Detroit, suffered chest and internal injuries; Dorward Green, 59, of Dinsmore, Sask., received a possible broken back and his wife a possible fractured skull.

Police said the car in which the three were riding rammed a truck parked on a highway near here without lights or flares.

McCarthy's Speech Annoys White House

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Times says today that top White House staff members are "hopping mad" about Senator Joseph McCarthy's television-radio speech.

A Washington dispatch says the staff members would not comment officially, but unofficially they made these points about the Wisconsin Republican's speech delivered Tuesday night:

1. He received time on the air to criticize former President Truman and ended up by criticizing President Eisenhower as well.

2. He sought to make himself, rather than President Eisenhower's legislative program, the central issue in the 1954 congressional campaign.

3. He demonstrated more clearly than ever before that he is not prepared to follow the president's lead either in fighting the Communists at home or in the strategy against them in Communist China.

The story said one White House aide described the speech as "a declaration of war against the president," and it added:

"Others put their criticism more mildly, but there seemed to be general agreement that the speech marked one more crisis in the stormy relations between the White House and the junior Republican senator from Wisconsin."

U.S. Celebrates Thanksgiving

NEW YORK (CP) —Americans celebrated Thanksgiving today — thankful that the shooting war was over in Korea. And millions of prayers were offered for this and other blessings.

Special Thanksgiving services were held in churches and many Americans at home later attended massive street parades and football games before going home to traditional turkey dinners.

High on the entertainment list were three massive street parades, traditionally held by department stores to usher in the Christmas shopping season: Macy's in New York, Bamberger's in Newark, N.J., and Gimbel's in Philadelphia.

The holiday, as usual, was not without its gimmicks—as in Tennessee.

The Knox county jail was crowded with more than 100 prisoners, far more than usual. The Knoxville city jail was almost empty. Word had gotten around that the county jail menu included turkey, cranberries, pumpkin pie and other goodies. The city jail menu was the usual black coffee and bologna sandwiches.

Mabel E. Burridge Exhibits Paintings

Mabel E. Burridge, noted for her writing and lecturing as well as her painting, is showing some of her recent canvases in an exhibit in the Lindsay Public Library.

Her still lifes have won her most favorable criticism and a large portion of her exhibit is given over to these. They are notable for their unusual quality of light and illusion of depth.

There are several small landscapes of scenes around her home at Pleasant Point on Sturgeon lake. Included are two miniatures done in water color on ivory.

Two of Mrs. Burridge's paintings were accepted when artists from all over Canada submitted their pointings for a Canadian Women's Art Show in Toronto.

Murder Charge Not Dismissed

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)—Motions for dismissal of a first-degree murder charge against Mrs Diane Wells and severance of her case from that of Negro jazz drummer Johnny Warren, also charged with her husband's slaying, were denied Wednesday.

The pretty, 31-year-old widow of Cecil Wells, wealthy Fairbanks business man who was killed in the early hours of Oct. 17, sought dismissal of the charges on grounds of insufficient evidence.

No trial date has been set. Officials have said they are looking for a third person in the case.

Both Mrs. Wells and Warren have maintained they are innocent of the killing. Warren has said that he had been on intimate terms with Mrs. Wells prior to the shooting in the Wells apartment. Mrs. Wells has denied this.

Will Submit Plans For Mill Construction

SYDNEY, N. S. (CP)—The Post-Record says today that new plans for construction of a pulp and paper mill at Mulgrave, N. S., may be submitted to the Nova Scotia government soon.

The newspaper says a German firm is expected to make the submission. One plan calls for an outlay of $13,000,000 and the other $22,000,000.

A German and a Swedish firm were negotiating on such a project some time ago but failed to reach agreement. The story says the German firm now is continuing on its own.

Pays $300 Fine For Shooting Dear

TORONTO (CP) — James Harrison of New Hamburg, Ont., paid a fine of $300 and costs for shooting a deer in the Algonquin Park game and forest preserve Nov. 7, the Ontario department of lands and forests said today.

The department said Harrison pleaded guilty to two charges, one of having firearms and the other of shooting the deer. His car was seized and the fee for its return was fixed at $175.

Rates Too Low

Forests, Lindsay, discussed fishing stocks in Kawartha waters.

"You all talk of lakes being fished out," said Mr. Weir. "Actually, we are only taking the excess of the present fish populations."

He explained the cycles and season in which fish take lures or leave them alone and claimed that when fishing was "poor" more pressure should be put on waters at that time.

Mr. Buie reviewed the progress of the department as far as game enforcement went and asked that tourist operators discuss any of their fishing and regulation problems with department men at all times. They are public servants appointed by the people, he pointed out.

The rumors that family fishing licenses are to be done away with did not sit well with tourist operators, members said. They claimed that it would allow more fish to be taken from the district waters if individual licenses were reverted to.

Mr. Weir pointed out that if the government decided to do away with the family license that it would be a policy to assist officers in law enforcement, not to save fish that were already present in sufficient numbers.

John Bark, a newly-appointed regional inspetcor of the Department of Travel and Publicity, Peterborough was introduced. He suggested that his department would be prepared to set up an instructional school in the district to show tourist operators up-to-date methods practised in this type of business. His department had already held sessions of this nature in other centres, he said, and that they were very favourably received. Chairman Fraser thought Kawartha operators might ask the department to organize one of these meetings next spring.

FIRE HAZARDS

Inspector Victor Barry of the Peterborough Fire Department talked about the various types of fire hazards that are present at summer resorts. He warned members about the care of chimneys, stoves, ranges, wiring and grass fires and especially the provision of adequate fire extinguishers of various types for various purposes in each individual establishment. He showed two films during a discussion break.

Besides those already mentioned the following were present: Mrs. Gil Watson, Max Humphries, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Doherty, George Robertson, Mrs. Mary Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Elmhirst, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lawlor and Robert Hamilton of the Chamber.

Rain, Snow Storms Lash At Turkey

ANKARA (AP)—New snow and rain storms gripped Turkey today. At least four dead were reported.

Two shepherds and their flock of some 400 sheep froze to death at Haymana, near here. Heavy rains in Diyarbakir collapsed a house, killing two persons and injuring four others.

Snowdrifts more than 10 feet high blocked some highways.

Thanks Queen For Reforms

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters) The Speaker of the Jamaica House of Representatives, C. Campbell, today thanked the Queen for "important reforms" in the Jamaican constitution granted by her Majesty in Privy Council.

He was reading an address of welcome to the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh when they visited the legislative council chamber here on their Commonwealth tour.

"These reforms," Campbell said, "represent a vital advance in the creation of a system of representative, responsible government. The advance is firmly based on the well-established principles which the Mother of Parliaments has taught the world.

"It is our determination to proceed with vigor and confidence along this road, and we are resolved so to exercise the powers and responsibilities granted us to justify our further advance towards self-government."

One Death Reported In Tokyo Earthquake

TOKYO (AP)—One person was reported dead in the earthquake which rocked central and northern islands today. A 58-year-old farmer was electrocuted by a high tension wire snapped during the quake. No other casualties were reported.

Two slight aftershocks were felt in Tokyo early this evening, but they caused no alarm.

The earthquake apparently struck just as a burglar was making off with $2,000 worth of expensive cloth from a Tokyo shop.

Owner Kiyokichi Nakamura found 59 bolts of costly silk and wool brocades tied together ready to haul away. When the quake hit, the burglar apparently was so frightened he left behind not only the cloth but his kit of burglar tools.

Sees Strong Theatre Within Five Years

CHATHAM (CP) — Canadian drama has a "new look" that should develop into a strong professional theatre within five to 10 years, Richard MacDonald, director of the Dominion Drama Festival said Wednesday night.

Here from Ottawa on a tour of Canadian little theatres, Mr. MacDonald said amateurs were beginning to think in terms beyond the annual Dominion Drama Festival and that television provided a new medium for them.

Accused Driver Interprets Too But Fined $10

Even though the accused acted as interpreter for his own witness this morning in magistrate's court, Lothar Gremer, 122 Park St., was convicted on a charge of driving without reasonable consideration by Magistrate W. R. Philp.

Gremer spoke with a strong German accent but at that, had to act as translator for his younger brother, Raymond, who agreed throughout with the accused's description of an accident at the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer Sts. November 3.

According to Arthur Stallard, 588 Water St., he was driving east on Charlotte and was crossing Aylmer late that night with the green light when Gremer's car struck his vehicle in the side. He hadn't seen the car until an instant prior to the crash.

Gremer and his brother told the court they had been westbound on Charlotte, stopped for the light, and then started a left turn, with signal lights flashing, to go south on Aylmer. At this point Gremer's car struck Stallard's.

PC Eldon McDonald described the accident scene and vehicles involved.

After reviewing the evidence, Magistrate Philp decided that Gremer, "having regard to the liability of the accused in regards to making a left turn, . . . was not keeping a proper lookout."

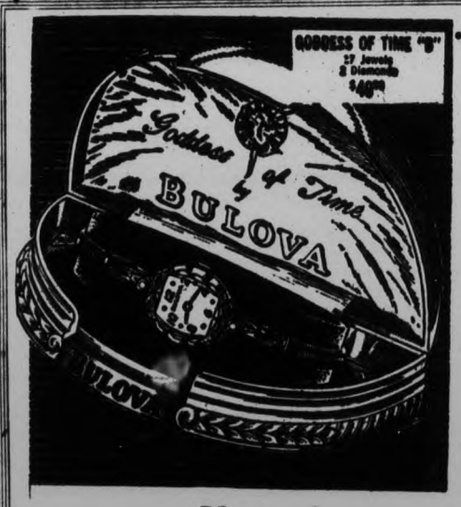
He convicted the accused and fined him $10 and $6.75 costs. Additionally, he was fined $10 and $2.50 for failing to register a motor vehicle with the department of highways within six days.

Queen To Meet Aussie Aborigines

CANBERRA (Reuters) — The government has made arrangements for the Queen to meet aborigines during her tour of Australia, it was disclosed today.

Eric Harrison, minister in charge of the royal tour in Australia, made the disclosure in reply to a pointed question from a Labor party member in the House of Representatives.

Gilbert Duthrie asked whether "a color bar is being erected in Australia as it was in Bermuda this week when the Queen arrived there."



Harrison said he regretted Duthrie had "imported the color question."

Anglican Archdeacon Dies Of Heart Attack

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—The Venerable Archdeacon H. P. Westgate, DD, rector of St. John's Anglican church for the past 37 years and a priest of the Anglican church for close to 50 years, died late Wednesday night. He was 75.

Archdeacon Westgate was apparently in good health in the earlier part of the evening when he attended a laymen's banquet. He suffered a heart seizure while going home.

OAC GRADUATE

A native of Lambton county, Archdeacon Westgate was born near Watford, one of 10 children. He graduated from Ontario Agricultural College in 1898.

In 1902 he entered Huron College, London, and was ordained deacon in 1905.

His first appointment was to the mission parish of Atwood and Henfryn in Perth county, where he remained five years. He then became assistant to the rector of Trinity church, St. Thomas.

Troops Enjoy Thanksgiving

PANMUNJOM (AP) — The traditional American day of Thanksgiving took precedence today over work on plans for a Korean peace conference and the stalled Communist campaign to woo home prisoners who have refused repatriation.

The ponderous and complicated armistice machinery was at a virtual standstill for the holiday. Diplomats trying to arrange a peace conference took the day off.

For thousands of American troops, South Koreans and other United Nations forces there were prayers, big turkey dinners and holiday entertainment.

There was something special, too, for 22 Americans who have refused to go home.

The Indian command, which guards unrepatriated prisoners, said the Chinese Communists supplied chicken, eggs, fish, pork, beef and candy for the Thanksgiving dinner. The food was shared by one Briton and 328 South Koreans who the Reds say have chosen communism.

Man Fined $30 On Two Charges, Not Guilty Of 3rd

Fines on two liquor charges against Bernard McGarrity, 34, of 730 Lock St., totalled $30 Wednesday as convictions were registered against the accused for having liquor and being intoxicated October 25.

The accused escaped a third and costlier charge of having liquor obtained illegally, however, when Magistrate W. R. Philp ruled there was insuffficient evidence to convict.

McGarrity was drunk, PC William G. Scott said, when he was followed to a Townsend St. address by the officer. The accused went into a house which was described by the constable as a "bootlegger's" reeling and flailing his arms as he went.

JUST ONE ARM FLAILING

When he returned the accused was still reeling but flailing only one arm. His other arm he held close to his body. It was too dark, and the accused was walking in the wrong direction, for the officer to tell whether he was carrying anything.

PC Scott stopped the truck later in which McGarrity was riding, and found him with a bottle of wine between his legs. The accused admitted ownership.

Magistrate Philp decided this evidence was not sufficient to put the accused on his defence on the charge of having liquor obtained illegally. He was fined $15 and $2.50, however, for having it in a place other than his residence and $10 and $2.50 for being intoxicated.

Dutch Upper House Would Expand Treaty

THE HAGUE (Reuters)—A committee of the Duth parliament's upper house proposed today that the European Defence Community treaty be expanded to allow for a non-aggression pact with Russia.

This qualification was suggested as foreign ministers assembled here for a six-country conference on European unity.

Italian Premier Giuseppe Pella, attending the meeting, told reporters that a solution of the Trieste dispute would "help enormously" in getting his parliament to ratify the EDC treaty. But he added that solution of the Trieste affair would not be a pre-condition.

Goes To Rome Meet

OTTAWA (CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner left for Rome today to attend a meeting of the United Nations' Food and Agricultural Organization. He plans to return in about a month.

JETS BLAST SANDS OF TIME—The blast of jet engines being run up at Northrop Aircraft's test facility on Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., has literally blown away the sands of time to reveal a past era's way of life. Powerful jets of the F-89 Scorpion interceptors have blown away the dry lake-bed sand to reveal, in solidified sandstone, the tracks of a two-wheeled cart and cleft footprints of oxen. Above, they're pointed out by Carroll Q. Wheeler, Northrop technician. Old-timers say that a Spanish ox-drawn carreta, of the type that made these tracks, took longer to cross the dry lake than it recently took an F-89 to fly the 1,900 miles from Edwards base to Dayton, Ohio.

Air Speed And Altitude Still Continue To Rise

The aviation industry this year looks back on 50 years of powered flight, a half-century in which airplane speed progressed from the 10 feet a second achieved by Orville Wright on his memorable first flight to better than 20 miles a minute achieved by Bill Bridgeman in his Douglas D-588-2 Skyrocket in 1951, James J. Haggerty, Jr., writes in New Frontiers.

At the same time, altitudes progressed from the tree-top height of the Wright Flyer to Lt.Col. Marion E. Carl's unofficial record of just over 83,000 feet. And that is part of a corollary story of aviation progress—the development of pressurization equipment to permit pilots (and passengers, too) to fly comfortably at the great altitudes for which today's modern aircraft are designed.

MUCH INCREDIBILITY

In the first few years of flight's half-century, those who believed in the airplane at all (and most refused to credit that it had actually flown) thought of it in terms of a sporting gadget which might possibly some day fly as high as 1,000 feet, but certainly would never get above that. In fact, as late as 1909 the world's official altitude record was only 509 feet.

By that time, however, man had learned quite a bit about the pecularities of the flying machine and had discovered how to build additional performance into it. Only 16 months after the first official altitude record of 500 feet was set, a Frenchman named Georges Legageneaux climbed to the unbelievable height of 10,171 feet.

But even this staggering record was short-lived. There followed a succession of new altitude records until 1920, when Legageneaux again captured the climbing crown by reaching 20,079 feet. This record brought home to the air-minded that there was a major problem to be hurdled before man could fly much higher, for Legageneaux had made the flight without oxygen equipment. The fogginess and semi-consciousness he encountered made it apparent that some means of permitting man to breathe normally in rarefied atmosphere must be developed before flight above 20,000 feet, even for brief duration, could be accomplished.

WORLD WAR I

The First World War emphasized the need for flying higher, when the Royal Air Force developed the kite balloon, which forced attacking German planes to stay above 8,000 feet, and later the anti-aircraft barrage, which kept them above 14,000 feet. Many good airplanes were developed before and during that war—the Sopwith Camel, the DH-4, the Spad, the German Albatross. They all had ceilings in the neighborhood of 20,000 feet, but could not operate at those altitudes because of the lack of oxygen equipment.

Such equipment was in development in the latter days of the war, however, and on February 26, 1920, Maj. R. W. "Shorty" Schroeder of the U.S. Air Service made a really momentous flight, using oxygen for the first time on an official altitude test. He reached 33,113 feet in a Packard-LePere biplane.

Schroeder's flight was made in an unsupercharged airplane, but prior to his record it had become apparent that some means of power augmentation would be needed at high altitudes, since the rarefied air not only affected humans, but also produced a marked decrease in engine power.

This led to the development of the supercharger, a device which increased air pressure in the engine cylinders, permitting the engine to maintain its power output in the thinner air of higher altitudes.

On Septemberf 28, 1921, Lt. J. A. Macready made the first altitude flight in a supercharged airplane, also a Packard-LePere fighter, and added a thousand feet to Schroeder's record.

The era of the '20's marked accomplishment of one aeronautical record after another. The official speed record moved from 188 miles per hour at the start of the decade to well over 300 miles per hour by 1930, and altitude flight mounted accordingly. On June 4, 1930, Navy Lieut. (now Rear-Admiral Apollo Soucek) topped the eight-mile mark (43,166) in a Wright Apache at Anacostia, D.C.

The early '30's produced another great development — the Douglas DC series, the start of a great epoch of larger and faster passenger-carrying aircraft. The altitude performance of the DC-1, which flew in 1933, and the DC-2, which made its debut a year later, thoroughly convinced aircraft designers that something more than the oxygen mask would be needed if passengers were to fly safely and comfortably at the airplane's optimum altitude. This initiated a long cycle of research in the field of cabin pressurization, or cabin super-charging, as it was first called.

The world's official altitude record is now 56,046 feet, and the British have already topped that with a 64,000-foot flight not yet officially approved.

Abbott Gives Anti-Freeze Price Spread

OTTAWA (CP)—The tariff board in a report made public Wednesday, estimated that the anti-freeze price spread between canner and consumer was between $3.45 and $3.65 a gallon last year.

The board's report was tabled in the Commons by Finance Minister Abbott who requested the price spread inquiry after receiving representations from the Canadian industry that Canada soon may be flooded by imports of duty-free ethylene glycol anti-freeze.

The board said it conducted two surveys in 35 centres last year and found that the bulk of the anti-freeze sold between $5.75 and $5.95 a gallon, though in some cases prices ranged lower.

The average cost of ethylene glycol used by four of the largest canners of anti-freeze last year ranged from $1.85 to $2.15 a gallon, with the canner's margin of profit varying between $1 and $1.10.

Farm Labor Demand Unchanged In 1954

OTTAWA (CP) — Demand for farm labor next year is expected to be about the same as in 1953, delegates to the annual federal-provincial farm labor conference said Wednesday.

Provincial directors of farm labor indicated current federal-provincial arrangements for the placement and transfer of agricultural workers should be continued. They felt this would be necessary even though mechanization is cutting down on the need for hired help.

Relentless Prosecution Wearing Down Mossadegh

By RAWLE KNOX

TEHERAN (OFNS)—A change has come over Teheran. The few Persians who visit the little courtroom at Sultanabad, ten miles from the capital, and the thousands who daily read reports of the trial of Dr. Mossadegh recorded at incredible length in every Teheran newspaper, are beginning to alter their views about the former Premier. Onlookers in the court no longer titter in anticipation every time Mossadegh lifts his weary head to jibe at the Public Prosecutor, and the old doctor's quibs make a less frequent appearance in Teheran conversation.

The insistant attack of the Prosecutor, Azmoodeh, which has rasped almost without interruption through eight three-hour sessions last week (one had to be adjourned because Azmoodeh felt too weak to continue) is having its effect. After the Prosecutor's early arguments justifying the competence of the court, which even some of the anti-Mossadegh Press here criticised as weak, eleven of Persia's leading constitutional lawyers were called in to give Azmoodeh advice; and he has clearly profited from this.

Mossadegh's interjections are less frequent now, and less telling. Indeed, the Prosecutor almost scored over the former Premier in a farcical interchange concerning Mossadegh's comparison of himself with Marshal Petain.

Mossadegh's pretension that he is still the legal Permier, which he repeats in court whenever he is given the chance, is being slowly demolished in a series of rhetorical blows. "Who is this old man?" asks Azmoodeh, "to question the order of the Shah which dimissed him, merely because it arrived in the small hours of the morning? Does any criminal have the right to object to the time at which the police come to arrest him?"

Mossadegh's contention that during the three days' tumoil in August that followed the Shah's departure from the country he, as Premier, ordered the destruction of the statues of the late Reza Shah, but that Communists were responsible for overturning those of the present Shah, had been bombarded with ridicule.

Azmoodeh is trying to establish the close interdependence of Mossadegh and his Foreign Minister, Hussain Fatemi, who is still in hiding, and whom most Persians believe would have been lynched had he been found on the day of the Shah's return to Teheran. Recording of Fatemi's ranting speeches, filled with savage abuse of the Royal Family, have been played back to echo round the courtroom. Vicious extracts from the editorials of Fatemi's newspaper "Bakhtar Emrooz" have provided Azmoodeh with further ammunition.

In contrast, the Prosecutor intersperses passages of reverent praise for the Shah and his family and has even glossed over the Shah's sudden departure for Rome, after Mossadegh had arrested the bearer of the royal message dismissing the Premier as being due to "the need of a few days' holiday abroad."

General Riahi, who was Mossadegh's Chief of the General Staff, and who is accused with him, is being alleged to have undermined Persia's Army. "A man who had never previously held real command" was how Azmoodeh described him, in showing how the Army, on the day it decided to arrest Mossadegh was until evening hopelessly handicapped by Riahi's order not to issue ammunition to any units save Mossadegh's own house guard.

As Azmoodeh grinds along, General Riahi, who with his five counsel sits crammed on the same wooden bench as Mossadegh and his counsel, preserves a uniform silence and calm. Mossadegh alternates between a pretence not to listen and resigned objections to the prosecution's remarks. But nothing stops Azmoodeh, who each day appears to gain fresh assurance by rolling out, in sonorous detail, charges of Mossaregh's alleged treason against his Imperial Majesty the Shah.

Emergency Medical Care Plan Suggested

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Foster Smith of Toronto said Wednesday doctors feel they owe a definite service to persons who can't get their own doctors and yet have an emergency.

Speaking to a group of 80 doctors studying public relations under auspices of the Ontario Medical Association, he said emergency medical care should be made easily available to the public.

Emergency phone numbers for doctors should be listed in the front of phone books along with those of the fire and police departments.

Awarded Damages

BRANTFORD (CP) — Damages totalling $8,777 have been awarded to William Terry of Brantford township for injuries he suffered April 16, 1952, when hit by a car. The judgment was handed down by Chief Justice J. C. McRuer against the car driver, Charles V. Grinham of London, Ont.

Pedestrian Killed

ST. THOMAS (CP) — William Beattie of Aylmer was fatally injured Wednesday night when he was struck by a car about seven miles east of Aylmer. Police said Beattie apparently tried to cross No. 3 highway and was hit by a car.

Plan To Build Some Dams As Next Project

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Construction of dams at Mitchell and Wildwood, together with channel improvements at Mitchell and St. Marys, will be Upper Thames Valley Conservation Authority's next project.

UTVA Wednesday approved the estimated $2,000,000 package proposal, asking the province to make an engineering survey and to request the federal government to split 75 per cent of total cost with the province.

TO SHARE COST

Benefitting municipalities, Mitchell, St. Marys, London and several townships would share the remaining 25 per cent.

Several UTVA members from the area, said there was general agreement among residents along the upper half of the north branch that flood control measures were needed.

Dr. J. Cameron Wilson, UTVA chairman, told the authority's fall meeting that with Fanshawe and the Ingersoll project completed there was no major project underway.

Mrs. Graydon Withdraws

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Gordon Graydon, widow of the former member of Parliament for Peel, said Wednesday she will not seek the Progressive Conservative nomination for her husband's seat in a by-election because of "purely personal reasons."

REWARD FROM CUBA—Mrs. Martha Batista, Cuba's First Lady, decorates Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower with the insignia of the Grand Cross of Honor and Merit of the Cuban Red Cross. Mrs. Batista, wife of Cuban President Fulgencio Batista, called at the White House during her six-day visit to Washington.

Cheap Power Great Resource Hardly Touched In Alberta

EDMONTON (CP) — Cheap power, the key to booming industrial expansion, is an unlimited resource which has hardly been touched in Alberta. Only a fraction of energy, generated by either water or steam, is being tapped at present.

In water power alone the province has more than 1,258,000 horsepower. Of this amount only 215,000 h.p. has been developed so far. Alberta's coal fields contain 17,000,000 tons of mineable coal, 55 per cent of all the mineable coal in Canada.

The time is not far off when industry will be turning to Alberta's coal fields for energy, J.G. MacGregor, chairman of the Alberta power commission, estimates Canada's 50,000,000 horsepower in available water power will soon approach full development.

Alberta's power situation differs from Ontario's where hydro power is cheap and steam power expensive. Mr. MacGregor said in Alberta there is an abundance of coal for steam plants but a scarcity of rainfall and lack of natural reservoirs for hydro power.

NEW POWER SOURCES

Future sources of power development will come from new hydro plants on the Bow river, west of Calgary. However, Mr. MacGregor says the increase in steam-generated power will not likely mean more gas-fired plants by extension of those in Edmonton, Lethbridge and Medicine Hat.

The commission chairman estimates 740,000 kilowatts will be needed by the province by 1962, an increase of 440,000 over 1952. From studies made by the Alberta power commission it is expected that 150,000 kilowatts will be obtained from hydro and 290,000 from steam power plants, the latter generated by either natural gas or coal.

New coal-fired plants are expected to produce 140,000 kilowatts. These new plants will be located on coal seams because the coal will be strip mined and delivered to plants by conveyor belts.

Silent Screen Recalled In Memoirs

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Putnam has just published "A Pictorial History of the Silent Screen," and it is jammed with memories for those who can recall the roaring '20s and before. I don't go back that far, but here are some interesting notes I gleaned from the book:

Thomas Edison, who developed movies in 1889, thought they were a novelty that would soon wear off . . . Among early film players: Annie Oakley (the real one), Buffalo Bill, strong man Eugene Sandow, James J. Corbett . . . Tom Mix was a marshal in an Oklahoma town until a picture company came to the place.

The first western star was Bronco Billy Anderson, who still lives in Hollywood . . . First epic: Italian-made "Quo Vadis," which ran 22 weeks in New York at $1 top (1912) . . . Among the early titles: 'Ivanhoe," "Prisoner of Zenda," "Julius Caesar," "Three Musketeers," "Billy the Kid." Which proves that there's little new in the movies.

Leon Trotsky was a bit player with Clara Kimball Young in "My Official Wife" (1914) . . . Theda Bara made 40 pictures for Fox in three years. Real name: Theodosia Goodman. . . .

DREW $675,000

Highest salary paid up to 1915 was $40,000 to Billie Burke for five weeks' work — but in 1916 Charlie Chaplin drew $675,000 for the year . . . Talk about present-day epics: D. W. Griffith's "Intolerance" took 20 months to shoot and ran 3½ hours on the screen. . . .

Tallulah Bankhead's first professional appearance was in a movie, "30 a Week" in 1918 . . . and Clifton Webb was playing opposite Barbara La Marr in "Heart of a Siren" in the early '20s. Oh, Mr. Belvedere!

Big three attractions of 1923: "The Virginian," "10 Commandments," "Covered Wagon." And in 1953, Paramount is again planning to make all three . . . pint-size Mickey Rooney was appearing with Colleen Moore in "Orchids and Ermine" in 1927 . . . Clark Gable was an extra in the first "Merry Widow," filmed in 1925.

UNWORRIED—Despite the current controversy over the Harry Dexter White case, Hon. Lester Pearson, Canada's Minister for External Affairs, finds time to enjoy a joke—and a jolly good one apparently—at the recent annual dinner of the English-speaking Union of the United States in New York. Sharing his hearty laughter is Mrs. Vijaya Pandit, president of the United Nations General Assembly, a post formerly held by Mr. Pearson.

Oldest Montreal Notary Celebrates 92nd Birthday

MONTREAL (CP) — George Lighthall celebrated a big day recently—his 92nd birthday and the 71st anniversary of his career as a notary, the oldest in Montreal, if not in Canada.

No one was surprised when he spent the day at work in his office in the Aldred Building, high over Place d'Armes, least of all his long-time partner, Edmund Greenwood, 75.

The day was full of the wisecracking with which the old-timers cover their friendship.

Although admitting they have good times together, Mr. Lighthall added with a twinkle in his eye: "We're getting pretty tired of each other by now. But what can we do? We just endure. . . ."

HAS NO FORMULA

Neither has any particular formula for vigorous longevity, beyond hard work.

"Do you smoke?" Mr. Lighthall was asked.

"Does he smoke?" interjected Mr. Greenwood. "Like a factory chimney!"

"Now just a minute," said Mr. Lighthall. "You don't know everything. Yesterday I smoked my first cigar since more than a month . . . Of course I admit you can't smoke very much with pneumonia."

He then explained that after his recent marriage to the former Mrs. Arthur Schell, he came down with pneumonia while on a trip to Washington.

It was his first serious illness, and he recovered without ill affects.

FUR STORE ROBBED

BARRIE (CP)—Furs valued at $6,500 were stolen at the Wiggins fur store after the back door of the store was smashed open.

Guilty Of Being Habitual Criminal

WINDSOR — (CP) — Gerald Blackburn, 36, who spent all but one and a half of the last 16 years behind bars, Wednesday was found guilty of being a habitual criminal despite an eloquent plea to the jury on his own behalf.

Blackburn, who appeared without counsel, was found guilty Tuesday on eight charges of illegal possession and sale of narcotics.

He will be sentenced on the nine counts today.

Under the habitual criminal conviction, Blackmore is subject to "preventive detention" for an indeterminate period at the expiration of any sentence handed down in connection with the narcotics convictions.

The sentence of a habitual criminal is reviewed by the justice minister at least once every three years.

This was the first time such a charge has been laid in Essex county.

Scientists Want To Improve Efficiency Of Busy Bee

WASHINGTON—Honeybees, paragons of industry and efficiency, have some extravagant habits.

They work themselves to death. They commit suicide when they sting. Their strange customs of swarming and casting endanger their very existence.

Because honeybees are among earth's most important domestic creatures, genetists are trying to bred out the bad habits. What a beekeeper wants is a longer-lived, friendlier, stay-at-home servant.

POLLINATE CROPS

Some basic food crops, including virtually all fruits and most vegetables, are dependent solely upon the busy bees for pollination. The vital process is carried out by the insects as they go from flower to flower with bits of fertilizing pollen tangled in their fur or limbs.

Clover, alfalfa and other important pasture grasses are similarly beholden to bees. Production of honey is by far the least important of the bee's services to man and beast.

Perhaps the most wasteful honeybee habit is swarming. The excuse for swarming is the prospect of a second queen in the hive. cesses are about to hatch, the old queen leaves with part of the hive's workers to found a new colony. Later, the original hive may be weakened further as young queens fly off with casts.

Many dangers lie along the way for swarms and casts. Particularly serious is the sudden advent of winter. A new colony may be caught without enough honey in storage to last until spring, and with its emigrant workers from the old hive too near the end of their life span to be of much use.

BURNS ITSELF OUT

A worker's life is short. On the average, it literally burns itself out in six weeks. Several weeks elapse after a c't—which is a small swarm—leaves home before the new colony can raise a generation of replacements for the worn-out pioneers.

It is suicidal for honeybees to sting because their barbed weapons cannot be withdrawn from the flesh of a victim. The bee deliberately wrenches free, leaving behind both sting and vital organs.

Now stingless and soon to die, it can be handled with impunity. Bumblebees, wasps, hornest and yellowjackets, however, had best be left severely alone after the first sting. They keep their weapons and can attack again.

Charge Dismissed

TORONTO (CP)—A charge of manslaughter against a hotel bouncer was dismissed Wednesday on the grounds of insufficient evidence. Nathaniel McNulty, 42, was charged with the death of Dennis Coville, 29, who died of brain injuries six days after his head struck the pavement outside a hotel. He was thrown out in a fracas between beverage room waiters and customers. None of the witnesses called could identify the man who struck Coville.

SLAIN—Susan Rothschild, 9, the daughter of an American officer stationed in Japan, was found strangled in a drainage ditch near her home in the Sagamihara housing area near Tokyo. U.S. Army and Japanese authorities have found no clues as to who killed her.

14 Miles Suburban Road Paved Engineer Reports

Fourteen miles of the suburban area commission's 72 miles of roads in Peterborough county were paved this year.

Jack Kean, county engineer and road superintendent, reported for the commissioners. He said that with the completion of the Buckhorn road, as well as portions of the Warsaw road and the Douro road, 50 per cent, or 36 miles, of the commission's roads have now been paved.

To October 31, the commission spent $122,347, leaving $8,000 to finish the year.

This summary of work done on the suburban area commission roads—main arteries serving both city and county—was given Wednesday afternoon to the county council at their November session, the last of the year.

The commission hope to pave another five miles of roads next year.

A summary of work done by the commission says, in part:

"We wish to thank the county council and the city council for making it possible to pave the Buckhorn road this year by supplying the necessary money and negotiating for us with the department of highways for the subsidy they provide. It improves our position considerably for future years work due to low maintenance costs on mulch roads. We hope to be able to pave at least five miles next year and possibly more. As you know, our yearly maintenance costs on the Buckhorn road were very high and considerable of our monies went for this rather than for new paving."

SURFACE TREATMENT

Mr. Kean said that the commission did further surface treatment to protect mulch roads showing signs of cracking. They also did their usual amount of weed spraying and dust-laying, as well as resurfacing with gravel.

"We purchased a new machine for centre-line striping our asphalt roads. We felt that this white line is important enough as an aid to safer driving to warrant the outlay of $960 for this machine.

"Because we were a little late in the year in the purchase of this striper it will not be possible to do all our mulch roads this year but we will finish early next summer . . ."

Members of the commission are Floyd Curtis, chairman, and Jeremiah Mahoney and Bert Middleton, city, county and departmental representatives, respectively.

Newspaper To Cease Publication

MONTREAL (CP)—Le Canada, Montreal newspaper founded 50 years ago to support the Liberal party of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, today announces that it is ceasing publication.

The French-language daily, established April 4, 1903, made the announcement with the front-page headline:

"Le Canada Suspends Publication."

An editorial-page statement which thanked readers and collaborators for their support during the newspaper's half-century career, blamed changing times and increasing costs for its cessation.

The announcement came after rumors that Le Canada was for sale had persisted for more than a month.

A year ago, Le Canada changed from standard eight-column to five-column tabloid size. At that time publishers said the change was designed to attract new readers.

Today's announcement says that when Le Canada first appeared, morning papers were "the most listened to and their circulations corresponded to the needs and customs of the period."

"A relatively modest circulation no longer permits assumption of the enormous cost of an editorial staff which must be equipped according to the tastes and needs of the modern age."

Faked Books To Keep Employees Working

MANCHESTER, England (AP) Donald Salloway was fined £100 Wednesday for faking his books to keep his employees working overtime.

Salloway, 49-year-old boss of a packing-case firm, said the workmen refused to put in overtime if they had to pay the stiff British income tax on their extra earnings. So he entered the overtime payments as "travelling expenses."

The basic British income tax rate is 45 per cent.

Salloway was charged with making false statements to the tax collector.

Civil Defence College Established At Arnprior

ARNPRIOR, Ont. (CP) — The health department is taking over a wreck here.

The financial support for this colossal pile of debris has already been provided for in the department's estimates. The wreck is for civil defence, for which the department is responsible.

The wartime airport on the outskirts of this town 30 miles west of Ottawa has been taken over as the civil defence staff college. One of its outer classrooms will be the "wreck"—a simulated bombed-out area complete wih rubble-filled cellars, crumbling walls, gutted rooms and bomb craters in the streets.

Here civil defence students will be put through emergency rescue tactics and other courses under conditions as close to the real thing in war as possible. The school will be able to train about 1,500 students a year, probably starting early next year.

Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington, national civil defence co-ordinator, said the first to be invited to take the course will be police chiefs and municipal clerks from across the country. Then others from all walks of life will be trained.

Gen. Worthington said Canada's civil defence network as yet is woefully weak. Of the 130,000 persons enrolled, only about 10,000 were fully trained and key personnel. Graduates of the civil defence college, however, soon would bring this force to a peak of efficiency.

Quarters are being prepared here for married students and single men and single women. Hangars are being partitioned for offices and classrooms.

Students will have their transportation paid and be given free uniforms, lodging and meals while on course. They will receive no salary, but in most cases, wages from their regular employers will be continued uninterrupted.

British Resort Artist To Tame His Products

By DEREK JAMESON

LONDON (Reuters) — Some of the salty tang will be absent from Britain's thronging coastal resorts next summer.

The change is praised by some but mourned by others as the passing of a British institution of half a century's standing.

The salt is not marine—it is the sly innuendo of the millions of brightly - colored postcards vacationers send home each year.

They have become as much a part of a British beach vacation as sun tan oil.

Faced with mounting police prosecutions against beach candy stores displaying his work, the man who turned a cartoon of a shapely blonde and a 10-word innuendo into a $1,000,000 industry has decided to tame his products for the coming season.

Donald McGill, a primly-dressed man nearing 80, first put the garishly colored cards on the market in 1904. Over the years, he has designed about 12,000, selling more than 150,000,000 copies.

The postcards are brightly-colored cartoons which sell most in the vacation atmosphere of Brighton, Blackpool, Southend and a score of other British seaside resorts.

The secret of the four-cent comic postcard's survival is the double-meaning usually put into their caption.

Here is a tame example: fat lady sitting on a thin bar stool, says to the barkeeper: "Give me a double, Bert. I've got a dreadful hangover this morning."

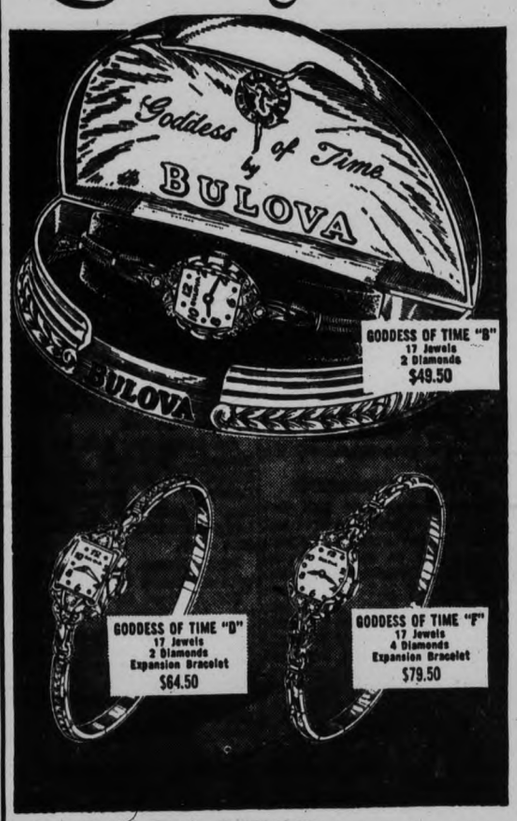
Authorities have long been tolerant toward the cards as a national institution, preferring to see only the innocent side of the innuendo. But last summer, hand in hand with an anti-vice campaign, there were more seaside prosecutions than ever before. Thousands of cards were burned.

Few members of McGill's immense public know the name of the man behind their sniggers. An ex-newspaper artist put out of business by the invention of press photography, he is an academic little man, not very much interested in art. He prefers anthropology and astronomy.

McGill is pleased that his best-seller—approaching 2,000,000 copies—was among the most innocent. It was the picture of a small girl saying her prayers with a puppy tugging at her nightdress. "please, Lord, excuse me a minute while I kick Fido," said the caption.

But the artist frankly admits that his 'thick" jokes are his mainstay.

Not all of his cards have a resort flavor. But whatever the location, the characters always remain the same. There is the fat lady, the red-nosed man in a straw hat—and, of course, the voluminouse blonde in inadequate clothes.



An Oxford professor has compared his characters with those of Shakespeare. The late George Orwell, author of "Animal Farm" and "1984," wrote an erudite essay praising McGill's art as a true and rare expression of British working class humor.

The pleasurable and relaxing music was by the Peterborough String Orchestra. Leader Mr. Cecil Searles arranged the program to include groups of classic and modern selections by the six stringed instruments and piano, vocal selections by Mrs. Searles, taken from musical comedies, and violin duets. Benjamin Franklin, the American statesman and inventor, was the 15th child in a family of 17.

GLAMOR AT HOME, especially at this time of the year, is essential to modern women of today and glamor does not stop at the feet as has so often been the case in the past. Today, Canadian shoe manufacturers have designed beautiful shoes for at-home wear which are equally as attractive as those worn to the Christmas Ball. Here is a ballerina type shoe in rich black velvet trimmed with sparkling white braid. The little matching bag keeps everything at hand for the busy hostess.

Most Original Centrepiece At St. Luke's Parish Tea

The women of St. Luke's Anglican Church parish were extremely pleased with the result of their Christmas bazaar and tea Wednesday. They were kept busy in all quarters by a steady crowd throughout the afternoon.

Their tea-table centrepiece was the most original, and was done by Mrs. D. H. Wyatt, president of the afternoon branch of the WA. She had a piece of driftwood painted white and had also painted the leaf part of the milkweed white, putting into it a centrepiece of red wool to make it look like flowers arranged in the driftwood base.

Her candle-holder, which many guests remarked on, was another original idea. Its original function was as a chair rocker, but with holes bored for the quarter circle of red and white candles, it made a very effective showing.

The tables supplies were laid out laid over a red base and silver tea things. The tea was poured by Mrs. Alice Leach and Mrs. Harold Choate and Mrs. R. H. Turner and Mrs. Jack Lee.

Ladies of the afternoon and evening branches assisted in the tea-room, with Mrs. W. King and Mrs. K. Stewart as co-conveners. Those serving were Mrs. R. Northcott, Miss Muriel Curtis, Mrs. D. Grills, Mrs. Ross Greenly, Mrs. Ronald Menzies and Mrs. Kenneth Hamley.

The table supplis were laid out by Mrs. Arthur Ebbs, Mrs. C. Chapman, Mrs. Walter Merrett, Mrs. F. Biddle, Mrs. William Gates, Miss E. Stewart, Mrs. L. Storey and Mrs. J. Gemmell, and tea was made by Mrs. R. Krant. Mrs. R. G. Maniece and Mrs. Hugh Morrison were doing the replenishing at the table.

Welcoming the guests to this annual event of the season were Mrs. W. J. Gilling, the rector's wife, Mrs. Wyatt and Mrs. Roy Sanderson, president of the evening branch WA.

Three bales, prepared by the Junior Auxiliary, and the two branches of the WA, were on display. On hand to explain about their contents and purpose were Mrs. Donald Worboy, Mrs. James Miller, Mrs. Ernest Lee and Mrs. E. Croft.

Church calendars were for sale by Mrs. S. Mason.

An attraction operated for benefit of the JA included 25 "touch and take" parcels, and nickel and dime bran tubs. This table also had Christmas cards and wrappings and was in charge of Mrs. S. Vint and Mrs. Roy Davidson. The Cub and Scout Mothers' Auxiliary had miscellaneous handmade articles for sale, with Mrs. Ross Pammett, Mrs. R. Miller Sr. and Mrs. Miller Jr. and Mrs. J. Watson in charge. For the GA, Mrs. O. Pollock and Mrs. Margaret Mason were selling candy, taffy apples and popcorn.

The two WAs combined also on the home baking, and Mrs. Chris. Hughes, Mrs. Elsie Turner, Mrs. Harold Tunnicliffe and Mrs. Morgan Perry were the salesladies. Christmas cakes, puddings and mincemeat sold very quickly and were handled by Mrs. Heber Rogers, Mrs. Jack Rogers and Mrs. Andre Dalton.

The Chancel Guild always features a "country store" at this bazaar and Mrs. Charles Hamilton and Mrs. Fred Batten were the attendants. The organ fund committee had a table with a very varied selection of articles, ranging from beautifully done oil paintings. Mrs. Fraser Watson and Mrs. Harry Willis were in charge.

Three tables, offering "white elephants," aprons and "parcel post" articles, were staffed by choir members, Mrs. Sid Pammett, Mrs. M. Mesley, Mrs. Frank Biddle and Mrs. A. Barnes.

OES Uses Two YW Rooms For '53 Tea And Bazar

With all of 500 tickets sold in advance of their Christmas tea and bazaar, the ladies of the Order of the Eastern Star, Chapter 161, expected to entertain a very large crowd on Wednesday afternoon—and they did.

However, being forewarned, they were also forearmed, and they had reserved the two large rooms of the YWCA, one for a tea-room and one for a bazaar-room. Thus the affair went very smoothly and easily throughout the afternoon.

Mrs. Harry Green was responsible for the tea-room and co-convener Mrs. D. Hillier for the bazaar-room.

Christmas trees, wreaths and lighted candles set a festive atmosphere in the tea-room, and the centrepiece on the lace-covered tea table was in a Christmas color scheme, with red carnations and green and white 'mums in the bouquet with the tapers to match. This was done under the convenership of Mrs. Robert Hutton.

Hostess in the tea-room was Mrs. Victor Smith and those serving were Mrs. Elmore Williamson, Mrs. C. Alexander, Mrs. E. Downing, Mrs. Wm. Beggs, Mrs. P. Cooper, Mrs. W. Cross, Mrs. A. Elliott, Mrs. R. Mathews, Mrs. J. McGovarin, Mrs. R. Russell, Mrs. L. Thibadeau, Mrs. L. R. Groombridge, Mrs. D. Hill, Mrs. B. Holloway, Mrs. Wm. Morrison, Mrs. C. Northey, Mrs. V. Salt, Mrs. C. Freeman, Mrs. A. Townsend, Mrs. C. Campbell and Miss Evelyn Bailey.

Pouring tea the first hour were Mrs. Walter Terrace and Mrs. Robert Hendry, and the second hour, Mrs. A. J. Lashbrook and Mrs. W. H. Saunders.

Teacup reading was an added attraction, provided by Mrs. W. A. Greenslade and Mrs D. Leckie.

There was piano music to make the tea hours more pleasant, with Mrs. O. Culver, Mrs. R. Goodfellow and Mrs. Greenslade playing in turn.

Behind the scenes, and kept busy laying out the good things to serve the guests, were Mrs. P. Moore, Mrs. G. Ireland, Mrs J. Keating and Mrs. M. Concrief. At this tea they were using Lazy Susan trays on which to serve the sandwiches, and tiered cake trays for the small goodies, all home-baked.

More of the members' delicious baking was for sale in the bazaar-room. Mrs. Wm. Beggs and Mrs. H. Hall convened the table, and their helpers were Mrs. A. Melrose, Mrs. F. Dellar, Mrs. T. Craig, Mrs. M. Manley, Mrs. B. McLean, Mrs. R. Rothwell and Mrs. W. Butcher.

Convener of the candy table was Mrs. Carlyle Ferguson and her helpers were Mrs. A. Knott and Mrs. P. D. Windrim.

Mrs. Ferguson is also an artist and did the painting, "Hills of Scotland," on which draw tickets were being sold. The draw will not take place until December 14, however, ticket sellers Mrs. H. Young, Mrs. J Hewitt and Mrs. N. Brown advised.

The bazaar table, offering a seemingly endless assortment of nice things, was convened by Mrs. P. Butler and Mrs. J. W Morrison. Helping them with sales were Mrs. A. A. Munro, Mrs. O. Kidd, Mrs. R. Brown, Mrs. E. R Briggs, Mrs. O. Williamson, Mrs. C. Watson and Mrs. S. Richardson.

"Touch and take" parcels were on a very pretty Christmas tree, to add to their mysterious attractions, and Mrs. E Johnston and Mrs. L. Hardy were in charge.

Worthy matron Mrs. Keith Armstrong and the past worthy matron, Mrs. A. J. Newton, received at the tea-room door, where the tickets were being taken by Mrs. S. Ward and Mrs. J. W. Miller. Bazaar-room hostesses were Mrs. Frank Merrett and Mrs. A. W. Nelson.

Lady Rose Alexander Says She's Lonesome For Canada

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Lady Rose Alexander is a "little bit" lonesome for Canada and she'd like to go back, but it won't be for a while.

The daughter of Canada's former governor-general has promised her family she will remain in Britain another 18 months. Then she'll decide whether her future lies here or in Canada.

The attractive, 21-year-old Lady Rose has nothing against Britain. It's just that she spent seven important years in Canada. Now that she's back in London she finds many of her old friends have grown up, moved away or found new interests.

FRIENDS IN CANADA

"All my friends are in Canada," she said. "Now I have to start all over again."

Lady Rose's dark-haired mother, Countess Alexander explained: "It all takes time. My husband and I are so busy it means Rose spends much time alone."

Meanwhile, Lady Rose has taken a stenographer's job in a civil engineering office off Park lane. She cycles to work daily, much to the amusement of her soldierly father Earl Alexander, now Britain's defence minister.

"It's good for her," Lord Alexander jokingly said at a "family" interview. Actually he thinks his daughter has plenty of nerve to brave London's west end traffic.

"You could say it is improving my vocabulary," chimed in Lady Rose, referring to the colorful language London's taxi and bus drivers sometimes use when cyclists get in their way.

MISSES WINTER

The Alexander's only daughter—there are two sons, Shane, 18, (Baron Rideau) and Brian, 14—came back to Britain last May after completing two years of an arts course at McGill University. Like many Canadians who come to Britain, her first reaction was to shiver. "How I miss the Canadian winter," she said, looking out at London's night lights wreathed in fog.

A favorite family reminiscence concerns the Coronation. Young Brian, acting as his father's page in a little lord fauntleroy costume of white knee-pants, white silk stockings and lace ruffles, was en route to Westminster Abbey when a woman within earshot said: "Isn't he sweet?"

Brian blushed brick-red, bolted back inside the Alexander apartment and had to be coaxed out again. If he'd dared, the Hon. Brian would have ripped off the fancy clothes.

CHRISTMAS WEEKEND

The Alexanders now look forward to a long Christmas week-end at their country home in Surrey.

"There will be quite a house party," said Countess Alexander. Besides herself and Lady Rose there will be Lord Alexander, young Brian and adopted daughter Susan. Shane, now doing his compulsory army service in the Irish Guards, his father's old regiment, will also be home for Christmas and the party will be completed by the countess' brother, the Earl of Lucan, and four children.

Even if they wanted to the Alexanders would find it difficult to forget Canada.

"There's always some visiting Canadian dropping in," said Countess Alexander. Just recently she had resident Canadian members of the Women's Club down to see the Canadian kitchen given by the women of Canada.

Huge Crowd At Knox WA Christmas Tea and Bazaar

It was very Christmasy in the Knox United Church Sunday school rooms Wednesday afternoon where the Woman's Association was holding its annual Christmas tea and bazaar with a huge crowd attending.

Right inside the main door was a little Christmas tree, gay with red and silver, and in the tea room there were red and green streamers, Christmas bells, and evergreen branches everywhere one looked.

Each quartette table in the room had a big red candle set with glittering sequins as a centrepiece, and the tea table centrepiece was the essence of everyone's dream of Christmas, Santa with his sleigh full of gifts drawn by reindeer. This table was covered with a beautiful lace cloth and the decorations were highlighted by the red and green candles in silver holders.

Booths offered such a wide variety of gift items, as well as an extensive supply of eatables, that the customers must have had considerable difficulty making up their minds what to buy.

The ladies acting as salesladies in these included: Mrs. A. Kempt, Miss Phyllis Kidd, Mrs. H. McIntosh, Mrs. H. Brown, Mrs. A. Percy, Mrs. R. Gillies, Mrs. H. Murduff, Mrs. E. Jewell, Mrs. L. Foster, Mrs. M. Rosborough, Mrs. C. Osborne, Mrs. J. Clarke, Mrs. D. Walker, Mrs. J. Throop, Mrs. H. Trotter, Mrs. J. Lancashire, Mrs. S. Lancashire, Mrs. J. Londerville, Mrs. C. Hill, Mrs. C. "Balloon lady" was Mrs. A. Pitchford and there was a fish pond attended by Mrs. G. Newmaster and Mrs. H. Frost, and a "post office" attended by Mrs. R. Hanscom, Miss Clara Garside and Mrs. T. Smith.

Tea pourers were representatives of the various women's organizations of the church, Mrs. E. Mesley, Mrs. H. G. Lewis, Mrs. A. Huffman, Mrs. A. Gertley, Mrs R. Hanscom and Mrs. D. Richardson.

Convener of the tea room was Mrs. Wm. McCracken and her assistants were Mrs. C. Hancock, Mrs J. Kempt, Mrs. J. Gilders, Mrs. D. Richardson, Mrs. G. Myles, Mrs. Wm. Gaskin, Mrs. G Morrison, Mrs. J. McNabb, Mrs. S. Adamson, Mrs. A. Gertley, Mrs. K. McCannan, Mrs. H. Knox, Mrs. J. Hooper, Mrs N. Thompson, Mrs. E. Frape, Mrs. G. McGavin and Mrs. Wm. Wedlock.

Hostesses in the tea room were Mrs. Howard Clegg and Mrs. John Donaldson, and the guests were received by President Mrs. E Pearse, assisted by president-elect Mrs. Gordon James. Mrs. G Hutchinson was at the treasurer's table.

Table supplies were kept on hand by Mrs. H. Charlton and Mrs. A. Millard and the plates were fixed by Mrs. Killingbeck, Mrs. G. Goodfellow, Mrs. R. Goodfellow, Mrs. H. Reynolds, Mrs. C. Weldon, Mrs. A. Saunders, Mrs. J. W. Richmond, Mrs. A. Logan, Mrs. Robertson and Mrs. Bennett.

Convener of the decorations was Mrs. Albert Pearcy, who was assisted in putting them up by the general conveners of the tea, Mrs. Eric Pearse and Mrs. Frank Dunford, and Mrs. L. Maudsley and Miss Ellen Thexton.

Movies were shown in the nursery by Robert Ross, and the children were looked after by Mrs. W. Sharpe, Mrs. J. Drummond, Mrs. N. Heigh and Christine and Carol Douglas and Donna McDougal.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Glazed Baked Ham Provides Plenty Of Real Good Slicing

Last weekend one store in our community advertised smoked hams—half or whole—at 59 cents per lb., and were sold out by 6 o'clock on Friday night, so had none for Saturday's big business.

Because of this rush and apparent hunger for smoked ham I wondered if there was any sense in being optimistic about the pork market in general. I telephoned my good friend who is manager of the largest packing plant in town and here is his report:

The packing industry hopes that the drop in hog prices will be permanent, for in the past eight months the hog run has been so light the prices have been high.

The hog run is still not heavy but unless there are adverse weather conditions to slow up shipping, February and March should see them in good supply.

Very early in 1953 the price for hogs was too low to encourage production, so the hog raisers were discouraged and lowered their production rate. (Don't ask me how you do this—you must give the hog's fatherly advice.) However, in the spring the prices went up, so production went up. (Hogs learned to read the market report—the silly things.)

The along came hog cholera. Right now that is effecting the current pork shortage, but by March this will have been overcome, barring unforeseen and different disasters.

What is more the price of feed is low, so the picture today is rosy and there is no reason why hog production and price should not return to normal in Canada (unless the hogs get a little more savvy).

Since there is so much good slicing from a whole ham it is a favorite with and a comfort to the hostess. If she has only a few guests for dinner it also is a good buy, for while half of the ham may be leftover it will not last forever or become monotonous if she handles it ingeniously.

These details are given today because the big entertaining time of the year is just ahead of us. Clip these details, which give roasting time and temperature and an attractive glaze.

GLAZED BAKED HAM

A 12 to 15-lb. ham requires 16 to 17 minutes per lb. at 325 deg. Fahr., but the maximum size of ham from an old sow will be tender in 4½ hours. A ham under 10 lbs. requires 20 minutes per lb. but a maximum of 3 hours. Roast uncovered without water and do not baste (unless during the glazing period).

Glaze for ham weighing 12 to 15 lbs. Mix together 1 cup brown sugar, well-packed, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, ¼ cup corn syrup or liquid honey and 1 or 2 tablespoons fruit juice or ginger ale. Stir this into a thick paste until smooth, then pour over the ham (from which you have very carefully removed the rind), and with a fork spread it evenly over top and top sides of ham. Return ham to oven, raising temperature to 425 deg. and bake about 20 minutes longer or until nicely glazed. Do not baste this glaze.

BAKED SLICE OF HAM

Ask the butcher to cut you a slice of ham 1½ inches thick from the top of the smoked ham leg er). Melt 2 tablespoons brown er). Metl 2 tablespoons brown sugar in frying-pan, and put ham slice in pan and brown on both sides. Add a little dry mustard if you wish by sprinkling it on (½ to 1 teaspoon), cover with 1 cup milk. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. until tender. This might be 40 to 60 minutes. Remove ham to hot platter, thicken liquor in pan by mixing 2 tablespoons flour with 3 tablespoons cold water and stirring it into the liquid until thick. Pour over ham or serve separately. You might like to use ½ teaspoon ginger instead of mustard, or 2 tablespoons finely chopped preserved ginger, to sprinkle over ham before baking.

DOROTHY DIX

Girl Guides Lad's Doings His Affection For Her Cools

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm afraid I'm losing my boy friend through over-possessiveness. I am very much in love with him, and I know he once loved me, too, but now he says he isn't so sure. A glance at his background may help you see the situation. He never has had much freedom, since his parents have always been very strict. Even now, as a senior in high school, he's not permitted to go out as much as the other boys. Since we've been friends—three years—I have monopolized his free time. I made him centre his whole life around me. He likes sports, but unless I could participate with him, I strongly objected to his activities. He never had a chance to make other boy friends, because I was always on the spot first. He's not as mature as I am, although he's a year older. What can I do to bring him back to his former status?

Wanda B.

ANSWER: I'm afraid that instead of being mature, you are just the opposite. Your desire to dominate a friend is strong evidence of immaturity. Now that the realization of your fault is beginning to take form, you are really achieving emotional development. Your young man certainly has been tied down, first through over-strict parents, then by a girl who might have aided him, but instead imposed further restrictions on him.

UNDERSTANDABLE DESIRES

That he would like a bit of freedom, a choice concerning his friends and activities, is certainly understandable. Your part in his life, at least for the time being, is to step aside and let him get into the swing of high-school life, enjoy to the full his last term, and enjoy the company of other boys. If girls become part of this new phase, cross your fingers and hope they're just interludes. If you want to continue an active part in your beau's social awakening, do so constructively.

DEAR MISS DIX: For the past year I've been going with a girl of a different religion. We've been living together during part of that period, and though I have never made a promise of marriage, she seems to think she owns me, demanding an accounting of all the time I'm not with her, etc. Has she a right to do this?

P. F.

ANSWER: Apparently neither of you has been affected by your religion, unless you belong to a sect that never heard of the Ten Commandments. As for the "rights" demanded by the girl—since she's given you marital rights, don't you think she's entitled to some consideration? Your ethics are as bad as your morals, young man.

DEAR MISS DIX: Boys at school seem to like me, but I'm afraid to make a date with one of them since my parents are very strict. I believe that if the boy came to call for me my folks might scare him away.

L. L.

ANSWER: Why not tell Mom that a nice boy asked you to go skating, or to a dance? Perhaps she's not as strict as you think. Certainly, she should want to meet the boys you know at school, and I'm sure she'll be impressed with your good judgment in selecting friends.

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm a mother of six children, with a husband who drinks all the time he's not working. A friend of mine told me she broke her husband of this habit with a drug. Have you ever heard of it? And would you advise me to try it?

Mrs. M. W.

ANSWER: Please, lady, don't fool around with powerful drugs. Doctors spend many years and a considerable amount of money to learn their profession; depend upon them for prescriptions.

Gets Private Tutoring On How To Kiss

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — With his training, Gene Barry should be the screen's hottest lover since Valentino, but Hollywood logic casts him as a nuclear physcist.

What other star was taught to kiss via the private tutoring of Mae West herself?

'At my first audition for a role in Mae's play "Catherine Was Great" she looked me up and down and sideways, then glanced at a young actress nearby and said "Mr. Barry, let's see how you kiss."

"I smothered that girl with a kiss that would have done justice to John Gilbert," says Barry. Mae put her hands on her hips and, in an aside to an aide, said:

"Have Mr. Barry stay after school tonight. He needs some private lessons."

Mae preceded the after-school session with a lecture on the mechanics of a Mae West kiss. Then Mae kissed Gene, some 30 years younger than she. Mae picked up her fur coat off a chair, called the director over and made one comment:

"Sign that boy."

Gene played a lover opposite Mae for several years and later came to Hollywood. His first picture was "Atomic City."

Newspaper Receives Emergency First Aid

LONDON (CP)—The Canada Review, seven - month - old toddler among United Kingdom newspapers, recently received a little emergency first aid from The Scotsman, a 134-year-old veteran.

News and photographs for The Review, a weekly owned by Canadian publisher Roy Thomson, usually are flown here direct from Canada. But when fog closed in London airport, the shipment was detoured to Prestwick, Scotland. That's where The Scotsman, a daily purchased by Thomson in September, stepped in.

The Review material was taken 65 miles by road to the Edinburgh offices of The Scotsman and relayed by teleprinter and wirephoto machine to London. From there it was sped 100 miles to Bournemouth, where The Review is printed, and the young weekly met its deadline.

Indians On Move As Trapping Begins

SIOUX LOOKOUT, Ont. (CP)—Only the very old and the very young remain at the Indian settlements scattered through the 125,000-square-mile Patricia district to the north of Sioux Lookout.

Everybody else has gone trapping.

With some 1,400 Indian trappers at their winter camps—most took their families along with them—fur has begun trickling into fur buying centres.

The season opened Nov. 1 and the trickle will increase to a flood just before Christmas when the trappers return to their villages for the holiday season.

Mink, beaver and otter are reported in "top prime condition." Last season Patricia-area trappers sent down 9,700 mink, 50,000 muskrat, 3,100 otter and a record catch of 31,500 beaver.

Seeking Funds For Ferrier Scholarship

LONDON (CP) — Funds are being sought throughout the Commonwealth to establish a Kathleen Ferrier memorial scholarship for talented singers born in the Commonwealth.

Roy Henderson, teacher of the Lancashire-born contralto who died October 6 from cancer said that the scholarship is intended to "broaden" the woman who rocketed to world fame from a job as a telephone operator.

He said the scholarship will depend on finances for its form and coverage. It is hoped to make it annual at least.

Henderson is a trustee of the proposed scholarship, along with other British musical notables such as conducters Sir John Barbirolli and Sir Malcolm Sargent and accompanist Gerald Moore. Treasurer is the Royal Philharmonic Society, which has already received more than £800 in contributions ranging upward from little more than a shilling.

Kathleen Ferrier died at 41 and had become known as one of Britain's most accomplished and talented singers of all time. She had made several trips to North America following the Second World War.

Churchill's pledge came in the Commons as he answered questions about Britain's policies in the Big Three Bermuda conference.

Cheese-Making Becoming Lost Art On Ile d'Orleans

By BERTRAND THIBAULT

ST. PIERRE, Ile d'Orleans (CP) Cheese-making is a vanishing art on the Ile d'Orleans.

Twenty-five years ago almost all the inhabitants of the little parish of St. Pierre on the picturesque island near Quebec City made cheese at home. Today, only one family continues a tradition which came from France with the earliest settlers.

Bernadette Aubin, 32, and her 39-year-old brother, Gerard, get up every morning between October and March at six o'clock to milk the 14 cows whose milk is used to make the cheese. It is a full-time job in season.

The milk is solidified by curdling, sliced and spread on mats of reeds arranged on the kitchen stove-pipes.

It is left there to dry for 15 days, then taken to a cellar and wrapped in damp linen cloths. During the aging process, the cloths are sprayed daily with salt water. When taken from the cellar four weeks later, the "fromage de l'ile" is ready for market.

It requires three pounds of milk to make one small round of cheese five inches in diameter and one inch thick which sells for about 45 cents.

Miss Aubin is not a cheese-maker through love of the product.

"The smell of the cheese disagrees with me very much," she said. "I'm not at all fond of the taste either."

Gourmets are the usual customers.

LOOKS AFTER HOUSE

In addition to making about 200 dozen of the small cheeses every year, Miss Aubin, a small, blue-eyed brunette, must attend to the 160-acre farm and look after the 10 rooms of their 110-year-old house.

The Aubin's home is similar to many on the Ile d'Orleans. The rooms are reinforced with wooden beams supported by iron braces These old houses—most of them built more than a century ago—are all whitewashed, as are the farm buildings.

The big houses shelter families of 13, 15, 17 and even 20 children, a fact regarded by the parents as a feather in their cap.

The Aubins, like the other 325 farm families of the island rise at dawn and retire at dusk.

PRODUCTIVE FARMS

Tall yarns are told of wealth accumulated by farmers from the fertile lands of the 70-square-mile island, named after the Duke of Orleans, later Louis XIV of France.

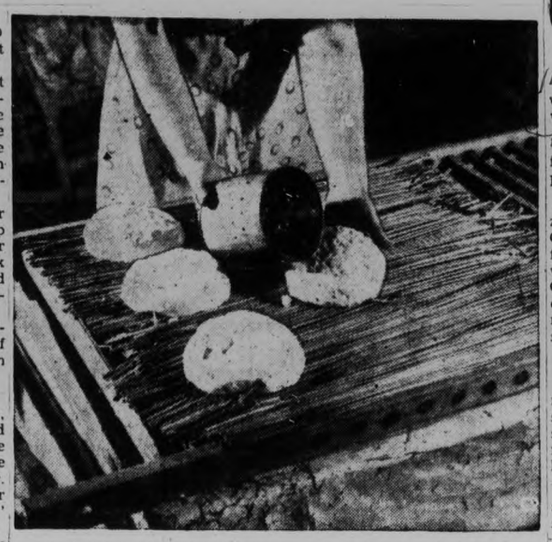
But it is a fact that St. Famille, whose 292 years make it the oldest parish on the island, and St. Pierre include large farms that yield rich harvests of grain and fruit.

Family wealth is passed on from father to son and many farmers till land which their ancestors cultivated when Msgr. Montmorency de Laval, first bishop of New France, owned the Ile d'Orleans, before exchanging it in 1675 for Ile Jesus, opposite Montreal.

All farm products are taken by truck to the markets at Quebec City to be sold, usually on Fridays.

Before construction in 1931 of a bridge connecting the island with the mainland, the farmers crossed by ferry and, during the winter, by a natural bridge of ice over the St. Larence river. The ice bridge is formed every winter and still is used by the islanders.

WHEN EGGS WERE CHEAP



Records show what the farmer's labor produced at the start of this century: 10 cents for a dozen eggs; 16 cents a pound for butter. However, he could buy a pint flask of whisky for 60 cents or a good suit for $7.

A farm co-operative was set up in St. Pierre in 1940 to handle produce. Last year fruits, vegetables and milk products sold through the co-op resulted in a turnover of some $1,000,000, with a net profit for the 200 members of $50,000.

The co-operative now is constructing a refrigerated warehouse for preserving strawberries and eels, products representing a major portion of the island's economy.

Representatives from many countries have come to St. Pierre to study the co-op's methods under sponsorship of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

The first internal combustion engine is credited to Samuel Brown of London in 1823.

CHEESE FOR GOURMETS—The Aubin family is the last of the St. Pierre parishioners on the Ile d'Orleans to make its cheese at home following ancient recipes handed down through the generations. Milk from the family's 14 cows is solidified by curdling, sliced and spread on mats of reeds arranged on the kitchen stove-pipes. It requires three pounds of milk to make one small "round" of cheese five inches in diameter and one inch thick which sells for 45 cents and is the delight of gourmets. This is a Quebec government photo.

FAMED FOR CHEESE—Bernadette Aubin, 32, is one of the last cheese-makers in St. Pierre parish on the north side of the Ile d'Orleans, although 25 years ago almost all the parishioners on the island, only a few miles from Quebec City, practised the ancient art. She and her brother get up every morning between October and March to milk the 14 cows whose milk is used. She makes the cheese in her kitchen while two younger members of the family look on. This is a Quebec government photo.

Ex-Russ Officer Being Held On Spy Charge

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—A former Soviet army staff officer was ordered held without bail here Wednesday pending filing of charges that he spied against the Allied forces in West Gemany for the Kremlin.

Georgi Vladmimirovich Khorumzhu, known in West Germany as Georg Mueller, was brought before a United States court along with his wife, Elizabeth, an East German refugee. Both will be charged with unauthorized transmission of information to the Russian intelligence service.

MASTER SPY

Mueller, described in the German press as "Malenkov's master spy," had been held under special security custody for the last two months. It was the second time he had been charged.

The 39-year-old Russian, who showed up in West Berlin in 1948 seeking political refuge, was arrested last Sept. 1 but the charges were suddenly quashed without explanation.

The German press speculated that Mueller was a "double agent" and the holding of a public trial would have caused embarrassment to the Allied forces.

Water Supplies Short

TORONTO (CP)—Mild, dry weather throughout Ontario last week gave farmers a chance to catch up on farm jobs and prepare for winter more thoroughly than has been possible for many years. However, the Ontario department of agriculture's weekly farm report said water was in short supply in many areas, particularly Halton, Norfolk and Elgin counties.

New Polymer Shares Not Sold To Public

The information was tabled for Colin Cameron (CCF—Nanaimo), who asked if the reference to the stock issue in the company's 1952 annual report indicated the shares were sold to the public.

HAVEN'T FELT SO WELL IN YEARS—THANKS TO SYNTONA

Eat Well; Sleep Better At Night. Stomach Disorders, Headaches, Rheumatic Pain No Longer a Problem, Says This Man.

"For a long time my stomach was in bad shape and my entire system became rundown, but I haven't felt so well in years as I have since I've been taking Syntona," said Mr. R I. Smith, R.R. 7, St. Thomas, Ontario, in a recent report.

Former Energy Gone

"I would have indigestion very bad with heartburn and gas after my meals. I'd belch up hot, sour liquids and often get dizzy spells and throbbing headache. At night I couldn't get my proper sleep. More recently rheumatic pains set into my arms, back and limbs and my entire system seemed so rundown that I didn't have my former energy to do things. I seemed to be feeling tired-out all the time.

Quite Different Now

"Reading about Syntona helping other people like this I made up my mind to try it and even after taking the first bottle I began to notice a difference. As I kept on with it my food began to digest better and all the gas, souring and other distress cleared up. Then the aches and pains eased up and headaches and dizzy feelings ceased to be a problem to me. Now I sleep much better, enjoy my meals, and feel better throughout the day."

How It Acts

Made from 12 of Nature's Finest Herbs and Roots, Syntona will help anyone suffering from stomach disorders and associated symptoms. At the same time it helps tone up the entire system. Rheumatic pains and overtired, nervous symptoms usually disappear, and sleep becomes more sound and restful.

The experience of thousands of other sufferers in getting results such as this may be your guide in taking SYNTONA for better health.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough by Elliott's Drug Store. (Advt.)

Ask Big 3 To Confer In Berlin

Russia May Demand Further Meeting To Include Red China

PARIS—(AP)—A new Russian note has proposed that the Big Four foreign ministers should meet in Berlin to discuss the German problem and other causes of world tension, but indicates that the Russians at such a conference will press immediately for a Big Five meeting with Communist China.

This information was contained in a digest of the note made available here today.

The note stated Russia accepted the Nov. 16 invitation of the Western powers for the conference, and suggested Berlin as an acceptable site. The digest indicated the Russians had not suggested a date.

The digest indicated that the Russians had agreed to the conference without any pre-conditions such as were contained in the Russian note Nov. 3. Among these conditions were that the Western powers should agree first to meet in a five-power conference with China and that the West should agree in advance to break up the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and abandon United States air bases around the world.

EUROPEAN PROBLEMS

The note, as outlined here, stated that since it was clear from previous notes that all four powers are seeking peace, Russia therefore is glad to take up the problems in Europe which have been causing tension.

The note, as outlined in the digest, did not suggest an agenda for the conference nor did it call for any preliminary meeting below the ministers' level to discuss agenda questions.

The note added, however, that since previous exchanges had indicated Asia was one of the causes of tension among the powers, the Russians would demand at the four-power conference that a five-power conference be arranged to discuss Korea and other Asian questions.

Observers here thought that in this provision lies the gimmick so often found in Russian notes which has made acceptance of their proposals so difficult for the West.

Ideal Cup Weather

TORONTO — (CP)—Ideal weather for Saturday's Grey Cup classic—that's the prediction of Fred Turnbull, Ontario's chief weather forecaster. This is what the weatherman predicts for the afternoon clash between Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Hamilton Tiger-cats: "Partly cloudy, afternoon temperature near 40, no rain or snow, light winds."

Row 26 Hours In Dense Fog, 6 Men Rescued

HALIFAX (CP)—Six Newfoundland survivors of a derelict coastal freighter told today how they rowed through a pea-soup fog for 26 hours and considered their situation "mighty nigh hopeless" before being rescued.

Capt. Robert Smith of Grand Bank, Nfld., and his five crew members abandoned the 107-ton Danzic off Cape Breton island Tuesday after she sprang a leak.

Search planes and ships passed in the heavy fog without sighting their distress flares.

The freighter Arctic Sealer finally found them late Wednesday after 26 hours in the two dories.

"If the Arctic Sealer hadn't practically run us down in the fog, we'd have never lived to see daylight," Capt. Smith said. "We were mighty nigh hopeless."

A heavy sea almost swamped dories just before the freighter spotted them.

FOG FOILS PLANE

Just before the ship was abandoned, a search plane passed overhead, answering a distress call from the Danzic. But the fog was so thick the plane failed to spot a flare.

Loading the dories with bologna and a box of soda wafers, all they could reach at the time, the six men left the ship.

"I took along the bedding and kerosene as a makeshift for beacons after the flares gave out," Capt. Smith said.

"We sure needed them, too. It seemed planes kept passing over us about every half hour and sometimes we could see to count their engines through the fog.

"After the flares gave out we ripped the bedding into strips, soaked it in kerosene, and wrapped it on the end of an oar. Even these fire beacons didn't seem to attract the planes."

The men, meanwhile, struggled at the oars. Some of them had hands half covered with blisters, rubbed raw by the salt water which whipped into the low, open dories. Finally, the Arctic Sealer saved them.

See Latest Note Effort To Torpedo European Unity

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States today branded Russia's latest note on a Big Four meeting as an obvious effort to slow progress on the development of "greater European unity and strength." A statement released at the state department also described the note as "a tactical retreat" by Russia in the sense that it is an effort "to gloss over the uncompromising nature of Soviet policy" toward the West.

The real substance of the Soviet note shows that Russia has not in any sense changed its basic positions on world issues and from this standpoint, therefore, "the note is disappointing," the department said.

The statement forecast that the Russian message, which was delivered Thursday night and called for a four-power foreign ministers meeting at Berlin, would be discussed at the Bermuda conference beginning in a week.

MIGHT TRY STALLING

Evidence that the note was a thrust at European unity and strength, the state department said, was found in the fact it was timed to coincide with the foreign policy debate in the French Parliament on the European Defence Community which would mean West German rearmament.

The statement called that "one of the most significant and obvious aspects" of the note and added that it "would appear therefore, to represent another Soviet effort to impede progress on EDC ratification and other steps toward greater European unity and strength."

A digest of the note Russia sent Thursday night to the United States, Britain and France became available this morning in Paris. It indicated that if a Big Four meeting of foreign ministers is held, the Russians would immediately press for a broader, follow-up meeting including Communist China.

Informed observers here said the result might be that instead of further postponing a four-power meeting by dispatching repeated notes on the Chinese question, the Russians conceivably might allow the meeting to assemble, and then stall discussion of European problems while the Chinese issue is worked over again.

In any case, the Russian note was under intensive study today by State Secretary Dulles and his principal policy advisers to determine whether it is a serious step toward easing world tensions or a clever stab at the unity of the West.

Available information in Washington and Paris was that the note laid down no pre-conditions for a Big Four meeting, but gave clear evidence of Russia's continuing preoccupation withe the status of Red China; that it proposed a meeting of foreign ministers without previous consultation on agenda, suggested Berlin as the meeting place and left the date open.

U.S. Paper Says Forget Gouzenko Affair

WASHINGTON (CP)—The Washington Post says in an editorial today that the U. S. state department should make no further approaches to Canada in the Igor Gouzenko case because of Senator William Jenner's "unwillingness to accept the reasonable Canadian offer."

The Post, which considers itself politically independent, notes that Canada has agreed to permit the examination of Gouzenko by congressional investigators on condition that Canada would have the final word on making public any of his testimony on Soviet espionage.

"The latest Canadian note offered a means of putting an end to this disagreeable and highly dangerous controversy."

JENNER "UNREASONABLE"

But Senator Jenner (chairman of the internal security sub-committee) has objected to the restriction the Canadians wish to impose.

"His unreasonable persistence has been carried too far.

He seems to ignore the fact that Canada has her own security problems and that as a sovereign state, she had the right to manage them in her own way.

"Mr. Jenner's unwillingness to accept the reasonable Canadian offer would be ample reason for (state) Secretary Dulles to drop the whole matter."

The paper says: "There have even been intimations that the committee might want to question Gouzenko about certain activities of highly-placed Canadian officials, including Lester Pearson, the Canadian secretary for external affairs.

"We cannot bring ourselves to believe that the committee would contemplate such a monstrous impropriety as that. . . .

"The Canadian press is apparently incensed about what it considers an affront to the sovereignty of the Dominion and by what some newspapers have construed as an effort at intimidation."

Britain Plans 1,500 MPH Rocket Planes

LONDON (AP)—A semi-official Royal Air Force magazine said today that piloted rocket ships launched straight up from the ground will form a part of Britain's future defences against atomic bombing.

The magazine, Flying Review, said the stubby-winged rockets will hit 1,500 miles an hour and will be able to reach a bomber flying at 50,000 feet in less than a minute.

Once at fighting altitude they will have enough manoeuvrability to line up their target and attack it with 32 radar-guided rockets—16 under each wing. The pilot then will glide back to the earth.

CAN'T BE JAMMED

The article said the piloted killer craft will have one big advantage over radar-controlled guided missiles: They will be able to do their work even if the enemy succeeds in jamming the radar waves.

And, unlike the guided missiles, they also may be used over and over again.

Britain has tested a similar rocket, without a human pilot, in Australia.

Laniel Wins Confidence Vote

PARIS (CP)—Premier Joseph Laniel won a vote of confidence by a margin of 31 votes in the French National Assembly today. In the face of Laniel's threat to resign unless his European defence policy was upheld, the Assembly backed him 275 to 244 and cleared the way for the premier and Foreign Minister Georges Bidault to represent France at the Big Three Bermuda conference next week.

The assembly's vote could hardly be taken as a clear expression of support for Laniel and the European army plan, however, because the resolution was watered down to the point where each party was able to interpret it to suit itself.

The vote came at the end of a tension-charged day in the Assembly's debate on French foreign policy. The vote reflected reluctance to throw Laniel out of office on the eve of the Bermuda conference and just after Russia had offered to meet the Western Big Three to discuss world tensions.

Early in the day it seemed that Laniel would have difficulty in getting approval from the deputies of his policy on European unity. Then at one point Foreign Minister Georges Bidault threatened to resign because he felt he had been slighted by the premier.

At the afternoon session, however, the personal animosities faded as the deputies sought to give the outward appearance of harmony.

Mayors Ask Gov't. Drop Tax

OTTAWA (CP)—A delegation of Canadian mayors, concerned over a worsening of municipal finances, today appealed to the federal government to eliminate the 10-percent sales tax on municipal equipment and supplies. In a meeting with Prime Minister St. Laurent and his cabinet, the delegation, representing the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, urged also: 1. Payment of federal grants on all federal property in municipalities, eliminating the four-percent assessment qualification. 2. Calling of a federal-provincial conference, to include municipality representation, to clarify the national role of Canada's cities and towns and to find ways of providing them with the needed revenues to carry out their duties.

The mayors, carrying to the cabinet resolutions adopted at their recent annual meeting, proposed also that the government institute a "comprehensive" national health plan without delay; increase its contribution to the cost of civil defence; make mortgage repayments easier; and help pay for education costs through agreement with provinces.

PRIMARY CONCERN

But the mayors were primarily concerned with finances and ways of easing the local cost load.

The delegation, headed by federation president J. C. Asselin of Montreal, said the municipal financial position is "serious." There was no immediate crisis, but the "situation is bound to worsen and reach a crisis stage." Even a slight recession could have "adverse effects" on the municipalities.

It realized that the federal government cannot make direct contributions to ease the municipal financial load, but could make "indirect and substantial contributions" through modification of federal tax and financial policies.

The federal government now makes grants in lieu of taxes on federal property in excess of four per cent of the assessment of local taxable and federal property combined. This represented a "serious" revenue loss to municipalities.

"In justice and equity, the cost of providing municipal services to federal crown property should be a charge against the taxpayers of the nation rather than those of the community in which federal crown property happens to be located."

Says Canada Can't Afford Foolproof Air Defence Plan

OTTAWA—(CP)—Defence Minister Claxton says Canada can't afford a foolproof air defence system, even if one could be devised. He told the Commons Thursday in a general review of Canada's defence measures that Russia some day may be in a position to deliver "so devastating" an attack that North American military strength, actual and potential, would be seriously crippled. No means had yet been devised to guarantee that every attacking aircraft would be downed short of its target. Even if such means could be devised, the combined resources of Canada and the U.S. wouldn't be able to pay for it.

He said Canada and the U.S. are in "general agreement" about what should be done to protect the continent against attack. They were working together and their efforts were spurred by the knowledge that Russia possesses nuclear weapons.

The two countries were carrying out joint research into defensive measures, among them the McGill Fence, a radar screen so-named because development work on it was done at McGill University.

The primary object in radar was to build "outward and upward" from North America's chief target areas. An early-warning system in the far north would be useless if attacking planes could not be plotted after they had passed this initial screen. At the moment, it was a case of taking care of most urgent matters first.

Mr. Claxton said continental defence has not been subordinated in importance and priority to the North Atlantic alliance defence buildup.

He said NATO is "not close" to achieving its final targets. But the situation was "very different" than three years ago. The buildup had been of sufficient strength in Europe that NATO forces could hold off any invader until reserves could be brought up. Canada had achieved its NATO commitments on or before target dates.

He disclosed that the Korean war cost Canada $200,000,000 outside Canada, $50,000,000 of this amount for supplies purchased from the U.S. If costs of administration and training in Canada were included, the total might go as high as $1,000,000,000.

Fire Sweeps Through Pusan

PUSAN, Korea (AP)— A wind-fanned fire swept through hundreds of houses in this refugee-packed port city tonight and endangered American army installations.

An American officer said he did not know by late evening if anyone had burned to death. The fire still blazed.

A 30-mile-an-hour wind whipped the fire. American and Korean firefighters called out all available equipment.

Some American units and members of the neutral nations truce inspection team evacuated their quarters.

The toll of houses and shacks burned may reach past the 1,000 mark, an army officer said.

Inquiry Spreads On Dope Ring

JERSEY CITY, N. J. (AP)—Three American members of a purported international dope ring—which was smashed before making its first sale—are free today on reduced bail while a hunt is on in Canada for others.

Still held in Hudson county jail in lieu of bail ranging from $50,000 to $250,000 are three other members—an American and two Canadians. All six were charged Sunday with conspiracy to possess and transport narcotics.

Bail was reduced Wednesday from $50,000 to $7,500 each for Angelo Mandato of Newark, N. J., and Joseph Falcetano of West Orange, N. J., and from 150,000 to $10,000 for Teddy Diviello of Newark.

Applications for reduction of bail have not been filed by the other three men—Sal Merola of Newark, and Marcel Rheam and Camille Berberi, both of Quebec City.

Merola's bail was set at $50,000 and the Canadians' at $250,000 each.

Assessment Mistake Costs City $24,000

SARNIA (CP)—A mistake in Sarnia's assessment roll which assesses the Sun Oil Company's new Sarnia refinery at $495 instead of $495,000 may cost the city more than $24,000.

The error was found in Judge Edwin A. Shaunessy's appeal court. He said the time for appeals against 1953 assessment has passed.

The error was discovered during the appeal when downtown business men complained that their assessments were not comparable to industrial assessments. Sun Oil's assessment was mentioned during the appeal.

Just Playing In Sand Jail For Moneymaker

LONDON (Reuters) — No one gave a second glance at 48-year-old John Wilson as he sat puttering away in the sand of one of Britain's most popular beach resorts.

Passers-by didn't dream that the middle-aged camper, working outside his tent, had set up a perfect counterfeiting set on the sand at Weston Super-mare. With it he melted metal and poured it into plastic moulds described by experts as "almost perfect."

Today Wilson began a three-year jail sentence after pleading guilty to counterfeiting and possessing moulds of silver coins.

His productions astonished the judge, who called him "a very skilful worker."

Wilson, a former engineer, had been unemployed since leaving a mental home in 1951.

Doucett Presses Investigation

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario Highways Minister Doucett said today the government investigation into alleged irregularities in the Fort William district are "not yet near completion" but are being pressed.

The minister said the probe he announced Oct. 7 is continuing in every part of the division under H. A. Cotnam, provincial auditor and J. L. Zoller, financial comptroller of the Ontario department of highways.

A. M. Mills, division engineer at Fort William since 1947, has been suspended.

20,000 Civil Servants Get Pay Increases

OTTAWA (CP)—The civil service commission today announced salary increases for about 20,000 civil servants across Canada.

The increases, averaging about nine per cent, cover some government employees who were not included in increases announced last week for some 75,000 workers. All the boosts are effective Dec. 1.

The commission said this leaves not more than 10 per cent of the classified civil servants still to be dealt with. Many of the remaining classes have only one occupant. Most of these will be dealt with in the next two weeks or less.

Of the 20,000 covered in today's announcements, about 4,000 are in Ottawa.

Swept Up In Mob

TORONTO (CP)—External affairs Minister Pearson came to town today and promptly got tangled up with a bunch of western football rooters.

In black homburg and dark topcoat the minister arrived on an Ottawa train just about the time two Winnipeg Blue Bomber specials rolled in from the West. He soon got caught up in the press of boisterous fans at the station.

Libretto Writer Dies

LONDON (Reuters) — Hungarian-born Rudolf Bernauer, 72, who wrote the libretto for the opera "The Chocolate Soldier" and discovered movie star Marlene Dietrich when she was 16, died in hospital here today. Bernauer was a naturalized Briton.

Fans Fill Two Trains

Bomber Supporters Cavort In Hotels

TORONTO (CP) — Two Blue Bomber special trains rolled into Union Station today and turned loose on Toronto hordes of blue-and-gold bedecked supporters.

Operating on the platoon system, the Winnipeg fans paraded through the station in two huge groups, their trains having arrived from the Manitoba capital 20 minutes apart.

They were met in the lower concourse by about 250 Torontonians —some there to shout a welcome, some out of pure curiosity. Some were former Winnipeggers.

It seemed that every man, woman and child who stepped from the trains wore blue and gold ribbons or wore signs to show where they were from.

Some wore blue-and-gold beanies. Two or three hardy souls wore straw hats, although the day was cold and grey. Here and there were wide-brimmed cowboy hats.

INDIAN SIGN

The signs and buttons read: "The Indian sign is on Hamilton;" "Take off your hat to the Bombers;" "Ask us about our Blue Bombers."

Out of the arriving crowd emerged two Bomber supporters in comic dress, carrying a huge blanket. They spread it out, supplied their own smoke in puffs and sent out smoke signals.

The St. Andrews girls pipe band of Toronto welcomed the Westerners. The band, also operating in platoons, moved across the street to the Royal York Hotel and paraded about the lobby.

The smoke-signalling specialists, showing signs of fatigue, spread out their blanket on the lobby floor and flopped on it, gamely but feebly waving their Winnipeg pennants.

The hotel had removed every stick of furniture from the lobby to provide room for the milling crowds.

Naval Chief Denies Saying Recruits Morons

CALGARY (CP)—Rear Admiral H. E. Pullen, chief of naval personnel, has denied a news report from Vancouver which quoted him as saying most of the men rejected by the Royal Canadian Navy are "morons."

"I never said any such thing," he said in a Calgary interview Thursday night. "I resent it being said that I did.

"I could say that men applying did not meet with our standards, but how can one man pass judgment on another in such a way."

The report he denied was published in a Vancouver newspaper and carried by the Canadian Press.

Polite Customs, Caviar Sandwiches

Reporter Finds Moscow Entry Easy

(Editor's Note: Bill Boss, Canadian Press correspondent in Korea for three years, has just been reassigned to Moscow to give Canadian newspaper readers a picture of life behind the Iron Curtain. This is his first story from the Soviet capital.)

By BILL BOSS

MOSCOW (CP) — The customs examination was polite and cursory. The currency control was gentle. Caviar sandwiches were served in mid-air by a winsome stewardess with long blonde hair.

I am in Moscow. My hotel room is comfortably heated and has a bath with hot and cold water.

The prelude to my stay in Moscow has been promising.

End of the line for western aircraft is Helsinki. From there you fly by Aeroflot, the state-operated Russian airline, in a twin-engined counterpart of an American Dakota.

There is no stewardess between Helsinki and Leningrad. Another member of the crew showed the five passengers where to hang their coats in a small alcove. The plane's cretonne-upholstered seats, built like old-fashioned armchairs, have no safety belts. Apart from that, the flight was normal.

Take-off from Helsinki was at 4 p.m., just before dusk in that part of the world. We saw nothing of Russia during the flight except the impressive lights of Leningrad and Moscow.

BILL BOSS

The other non-Russian passengers were a Swedish diplomat and three Finnish business men. All got out at Leningrad for customs and immigration inspections in the main airport building whose carpeted waiting room with red plush furniture was like the "best room" of the '90s.

In the customs hall, a uniformed woman inspector showed no interest in typewriter, camera or binoculars. I opened my brief case, gladstone bag and an overnight bag.

"What are these books?" she asked in English, and put them back in the brief case when she learned they were Russian grammars and non-political works.

She asked about currency. I had $410 in travellers' cheques but could find only $230 easily. She let me declare only $230.

"Declare the rest in Moscow," she said.

I protested that I'd be in for trouble when I tried to cash the missing cheques.

"Don't worry about that," she said, "let Moscow."

(At the foreign trade bank here next day, an elderly French-speaking woman official said it was of no importance.)

The foreign passengers were kept apart from the Russians until just before flight time. A Russian came into the group later but kept to himself throughout the rest of the flight.

A blonde stewardess with braided hair joined the aircrew at Leningrad. She brought out box lunches as soon as the plane was airborne.

The sandwiches were crammed with caviar. There were three apples, 10 shortbread biscuits, two tinsel-wrapped chocolates and sugar for the tea, served later in a glass.

Two hours and 25 minutes later the plane landed at Moscow airport, 15 miles from the city centre.

An airport representative of Intourist, the state-operated travel services, who met the plane knew where each passenger was to stay. In 15 minutes all were driving into Moscow in a handsome Russian limousine. It dropped me at the Metropole hotel, just around the corner from the Kremlin.

Jenner Drops Gouzenko For Moment

Leaves Questioning Issue Now Up To Diplomats

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator William E. Jenner (Rep. Ind.) has left the issue of questioning Igor Gouzenko up to Canadian and United States diplomats and pressed forward on other fronts in his Communists-in-government inquiry.

He issued a statement Thursday night which said the Senate internal security sub - committee which he heads has nine former government employees, including Alger Hiss, "now under special scrutiny."

It has thus become apparent that Jenner plans no further steps until there is a fresh exchange of views between State Secretary Dulles and External Affairs Minister Pearson.

Jenner's sub - committee had asked again for Canadian permission to question Gouzenko. The one-time Ottawa Russian embassy code clerk, who put the finger on a Canadian spy ring in 1945 and 1946, now is a Canadian citizen living in police-guarded obscurity.

CANADA'S POSITION

Canada has agreed to the Jenner sub - committee's second request provided (1) Gouzenko is willing to be interviewed, (2) the interview is confidential and under Canadian auspices and (3) the decision as to making public the information gleaned is left to Ottawa.

Jenner objected to the last condition, saying his committee could not promise it would keep from the U.S. Congress, and hence the public, any "evidence vital to the security of the United States." He asked Dulles to try for a different arrangement.

Gouzenko, when he tipped off Canadian authorities in 1945, said the Red spy ring in Canada had U.S. contacts. The Canadian government says the U.S. has been kept fully informed and Gouzenko has nothing more to tell. Gouzenko says he might have some useful advice for the Jenner sub-committee.

ROSE HAS LEFT

One of the men named by Gouzenko, Fred Rose, a former member of Parliament, has gone behind the Iron Curtain, leaving his wife and daughter in Canada. Rose, a naturalized Canadian born in Poland, served a five-year jail term for his part in the spying.

The Jenner sub - committee turned to Gouzenko after Attorney-General Herbert Brownell's charges Nov. 6 that the Truman administration was "incredibly" lax toward rooting Reds out of key government positions.

Rail Talks Adjourned Until Next Week

MONTREAL (CP) — Contract talks between representatives of some 150,000 railway workers and company officials, have been adjourned to next week.

Frank H. Hall, chairman of the negotiating committee of the 17 unions whose members man shops, stations and offices of Canada's two main railways, said talks will be resumed Tuesday.

"So far, we've simply been exploring the situation," he said Thursday. "Discussions have been satisfactory."

The non-operating unions seek fringe benefits in their new contract, chiefly improved pay for work on statutory holidays and Sundays, extended paid vacations and more generous sickpay provisions.

Baby Born In Car Causes Traffic Jam

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A girl, whose birth in the back seat of her father's car caused a minor traffic jam, was reported doing well in hospital Thursday.

The father, Albert Parry, was taking his wife to hospital Wednesday night when it became apparent he would not reach there in time. When he stopped for a red light in downtown Windsor he noticed a doctor's car in front of him.

Excitedly he drove his car out of the line and attempted to pull in front of the doctor's vehicle. He misjudged a bit, however, and pulled the bumper off the doctor's car.

"My wife is having a baby in the back seat," Parry shouted to the doctor.

After the baby, the Parry's fourth daughter, was delivered she was wrapped in her father's flannel shirt and taken to hospital.

Safeblowings Increase

OTTAWA — (CP)—Safeblowings increased 56 per cent last year in provinces where the RCMP has jurisdiction. The RCMP polices all provinces except Ontario and Quebec. The RCMP annual report shows there were 190 safecrackings in the year ended March 31, 1953, compared to 122 in the previous year.

Price Spread Too Great For Farmers

FERGUS (CP)—Clarence A. Milligan of Napanee, president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, said Thursday there is too much spread between the amount received by farmers for their products and the price paid by consumers.

Addressing the annual meeting of the Wellington County Federation of Agriculture, he said farmers' buying power has dropped 16 per cent since 1949 while that of most industrial workers has gone up 16 per cent.

He said that at a recent federal-provincial agricultural conference he attended, Agriculture Minister Gardiner said farm income has gone up seven per cent since 1949.

"I don't know where Mr. Gardiner gets these figures. They give the general public the wrong impression. This probably has been brought about by the recent bumper crops in western Canada."

WRONG IMPRESSION

Mr. Milligan said Britain is ready and willing to buy Canadian products if the price is fair. Therefore, it was up to Canada to go after the British market.

One way this could be done had already been tried successfully by the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association. The association had sold large quantities of cheese to the United Kingdom at 25½ cents a pound, well below the regular market price in Canada, and made up the difference by a levy on all cheese produced after Nov. 1.

"This plan, or one similar, should be adopted by the producers of many other farm products."

Banks Increase Rate Of Interest

MONTREAL (CP)—Rates on approximately 8,000,000 Canadian bank savings deposits will climb to two per cent Dec. 1, first change from the current 1½ per cent in years.

The Canadian Bankers Association announced the increase Thursday and said it is "in line with the general firming of money rates."

"The increase is being put into effect so that the rate on personal savings accounts will reflect more accurately the general level of interest rates."

Experts here said the boost, affecting more than $5,000,000,000 in chartered bank deposits, reflects heavier demands and greater earning power of bank loans.

The increase, lifting the rate to the 1936 level, was also planned to reduce the gap between the current 1½ per cent offered by the banks and the 3¾ per cent Canadians can get through purchase of Canada Savings Bonds.

Many Canadians are believed to have withdrawn money accumulating in savings accounts to purchase the bonds.

Generally, however, savings deposits have increased over the years, reaching about $5,200,000,000 Sept. 30, a jump of more than $3,000,000,000 in the last 10 years.

Recheck Confirms Social Credit Loss

VICTORIA (CP) — British Columbia's Social Credit government has lost out in its attempt to obtain a legislature seat for Finance Minister Einar Gunderson.

A recheck Thursday of all ballots cast in Tuesday's by-election to fill the vacant Victoria seat in the legislature showed that Liberal George Gregory defeated Mr. Gunderson by 90 votes.

Government sources said following the re-check that it was unlikely Mr. Gunderson would ask for a judicial recount. They also said the government was not expected to attempt to find another seat for him.

Talented Musician Dies In England

WORCESTER, England (AP)—Sir Ivor Atkins, distinguished musician and collaborator of composer Sir Edward Elgar, died Thursday night. He was 83.

Sir Ivor was master of choristers and organists at Worcester Cathedral for 52 years until his retirement in 1950. With Elgar he prepared editions of Bach's "St. Matthew Passion" and "St. John Passion" which became standard works.

He was knighted in 1921.

French Dramatist H. Bernstein Dies

PARIS (AP) — Henri Bernstein, leading figure in the French theatre and political life for half a century, died today in a hospital following an operation. He was 77.

Since the presentation of his first play — "Le Marche" — in 1900, Bernstein has had his works translated and produced throughout Europe and in North America.

He wrote one play in English, "Rose Burke," which was produced in San Francisco in 1942 with Katherine Cornell as the leading lady.

MAY REPLACE WALK

Several times grand juries have recommended that the board walk, between the rear of the county courthouse and the jail yard, should be replaced by a cement walk. On a motion by Reeves James Gifford of Ennismore and Deputy Reeve Robert McAdam of Smith the council gave the property committee power to act in the matter.

MOUNTAIN OF ICE BOXES—Two youngsters marvel at a mountani of discarded ice boxes collected by a Sacramento, California, supermarket which offered a turkey for every ice box of this type. The offer was made because so many small children had died when trapped inside old ice boxes in both Canada and the United States. The operation turned into an avalanche and had to be called off after two hours. In that time, 4,000 turkeys had been given away and company trucks were still hauling in boxes and doors.

Farmers On Lookout For Hungry Wildcat

MARKDALE, Ont. (CP)—Farmers were on the lookout today for a calf-killing wildcat that eludes pursuers in 10-foot bounds.

Ross Peart found the body of a day-old calf, its chest torn open, in a thicket about 200 yards from the house. Another calf was found previously in the same condition.

Four other farmers in the district 20 miles south of Owen Sound spotted the animal around cattle on Percy Greenwood's farm near Traverston. They tried to surround it but it jumped away in 10-foot leaps and disappeared in a swamp.

Herb Payne Hurt Fell Off Ladder

Accidents on the city streets, at work and at home sent four people to the hospital Thursday, three suffering minor injuries, the other quite serious.

Herb Payne, of 273 Romaine St., owner of Payne's Transport and popular hockey referee, was the most seriously injured. He's in the Civic Hospital suffering from a compound fracture of the right wrist and a head gash which required 54 stitches before closed.

Mr. Payne had been taking facing off one of the doors to his new garage on Romaine St. He was about six feet up the ladder working when he either took a weak spell or the ladder slipped.

He was taken to the hospital in Nisbett's ambulance. His condition today is satisfactory.

A Lindsay mother, Mrs. Gerard Campeau, 20 Glenelg St. West, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital about 10 p.m. Thursday following a train-car accident at Lock and Ware Sts. She was only X-rayed and permitted to return to Lindsay.

COLLIDED WITH TRAIN

The car, driven by her husband, met in collision with a special CNR freight train, engineered by John Nesbitt, 82 Colbourn St., Lindsay. The Campeau family were proceeding north on Lock St. and the train towards Lindsay from Belleville.

Mr. Campeau, daughters, Anne, six, and Maureen, 16 months, escaped injuries.

All the damage done was to the Campeau car. The front end, the radiator, the grill, the hood, the front bumper and right fender, was damaged.

Two Peterborough district men were treated as out-patients at the Civic Hospital following minor accidents while working. In the morning Ames Bennett, RR 2, Lakefield, had his right eye treated after hit with a piece of steel. A piece of falling wood sent Clarence Liscum, RR 2, Warsaw, to hospital in the evening for treatment for a head cut.

In London Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said today in an obvious reference to the new Russian note agreeing to a four-power conference that Britain will seize any opportunity to reduce international tensions.

But Eden was cautious. He made no outright comment on the note.

He said that if an opportunity to reduce international tension occurs he and Prime Minister Churchill will "seize it with both hands."

He made the remark on a tour of the North Paddington constituency in West London, where his nephew, John Eden, 28, is the Conservative candidate for a special election next Thursday.

The foreign office said earlier Britain welcomes Russia's surprise agreement to a four-power conference and expressed hope that the West will send a reply to Moscow "without undue delay."

Timmins Mine Announces Plan To Close Down

TIMMINS (CP) — Paymaster Consolidated Mines Limited, which lost $200,000 on its operations during its last fiscal year but which has long been regarded as potentially one of the richest gold mines in this northern Ontario district, plans to close down Dec. 17.

It announced Thursday it has decided upon the step due to its heavy operating losses and to "other circumstances" beyond its control.

The "other circumstances" mentioned in an announcement mailed to the mine's 350 employees and posted on a bulletin board to be read by the shift reporting at 4 p.m. at the mine at nearby South Porcupine was an apparent reference to rejection by the United Steelworkers of America (CIO) of a company "package offer" of new contract terms.

NOT IN STRIKE

The mine is one of three in this area not involved in a strike by the steel union which has made upwards of 5,000 men idle, some since mid-July. The others are Dome, employing 1,060, and Pamour, with 425.

For some time the union local at Paymaster has had a revocable checkoff of dues. A union demand for the checkoff at the eight mines on strike is a major issue in the strike, along with wage increases and other benefits.

The present contract at Paymaster was signed Dec. 17, 1951, to run two years. A year ago the union exercised its contract provision permitting reopening of wage discussions and was granted a general wage increase of five cents an hour. Last October negotiations on new contract terms started.

REJECTED OFFER

The company in its package offer agreed to union requests for job posting, improvement in vacation terms, payment for five statutory holidays instead of four, a general hourly wage increase of 2½ cents with other adjustments for a trades group and other benefits. The union rejected this offer last Sunday.

Paymaster then withdrew the package offer and proposed renewal of the existing agreement but with a general increase of 3½ cents an hour and a further increase averaging two cents an hour to the 35-man trades group. The company said it was advised Wednesday by the union that the union had not met to discuss the second offer. The management then withdrew the offer.

It said layoffs will start immediately.

County Forest To Net $1,600

The county's reforestation committee hope to get as much as $1,600 in revenue from sale of logs from the county forest this year.

During the summer, William Aikens, caretaker of the forest, chopped cedar posts for sale and he has also cut about 100 spruce logs, now at a Havelock sawmill. Altogether it is estimated he has 7,000 to 8,000 board feed of spruce and cedar.

Cliff Davey of Norwood has cut several roads into the forest and has felled some 40,000 board feet of lumber, most of it valuable pine. Reeve James Humphries of Asphodel township, chairman of reforestation, said he thought there was a potential sale for 30,000 board feet of it early in December.

Reeve Humphries estimated that 150,000 board feet of lumber would be cut during the winter in the forest.

He also reported that this year Mr. Aikens, with a couple of other men, had trimmed out the western boundary line of the county property. This will be finished soon, he said.

Practically the only expenses—with exception of a few tools—are the caretaker's salary and wages for the other two men, employed on a part-time basis.

No arrangement has yet been made with the Bell Telephone Co. for the taking over and maintainancing of the telephone line into the caretaker's house.

U.S. Dollar At Discount

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar was at a discount of 2 9-16 per cent in terms of Canadian funds at noon today, Thursday's noon rate was 97 17-32 cents. Pound sterling $2.74, against $2.74¼.

Price Groups Lower In Early Trading

TORONTO (CP) — All price groups showed lower in light early afternoon stock market trading today.

Papers, utilities, constructions, motors, liquors, manufactures and refining oils had more gains than losses despite the index decrease. Agricultures, foods and banks were steady and steels made the only loss.

Golds reached a new low since 1942. Paymaster dropped seven cents to lead the juniors lower. Seniors traded lightly and holding companies were lower, except Placer which gained 25 cents.

Base metals showed most seniors slightly lower although Hudson Bay had a 75-cent gain. Juniors were higher as Barvue, Anacon and United Asbestos led with 10-cent gains.

Home, Federated and Prairie led western oils downward although Canadian Colleries held its 25-cent gain.

Uraniums and Bathurst area base metals slipped as Lorado dropped 11 cents.

Find Germans Poor Workers, Break Contract

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will have about the same demand for farm-worker immigrants in 1954 as this year, provincial spokesmen Thursday told the annual federal-provincial farm labor conference.

About 16,000 farm workers will have been admitted during the current year, it was estimated.

All provinces indicated they will absorb about the same numbers as last year, though Alberta's representative told the conference it doesn't want any more unmarried German immigrants unless the quality of the newcomers can be improved.

GERMANS UNSUITABLE

For the second day, heavy emphasis was laid on the unsuitability of many of the farm immigrants from Germany, now Canada's largest pool of agricultural labor.

Several recommendations for meeting the problem were advanced, but none met with approval from the experts conferring to lay out Canada's farm labor program for the next year.

As provincial farm labor directors outlined it, Germans in large numbers have been jumping the agreements under which they contract to work on farms for a year after coming to Canada. Also, many representing themselves as farmers had proven to be without previous farm experience.

Mrs. John Nornabell Heads Committee

The citizens committee on Otonabee River conservancy at its organizational meeting Thursday evening named Mrs. John Nornabell chairman and Arthur Smoke secretary-treasurer. The chief sub-committee, Planning and Investigation, is composed of Alderman R. E. Knox, Mrs. Charles Ray, A. L. Malby, R. R. Faryon and H. M. Yudin.

Named to other committees were Mrs. Charles Huffman, Edward Riley, T. J. Allen and James M. Fraser.

The scope and purpose of the organization were discussed. The intention is to promote the reclamation, preservation and orderly development of the banks of the Otonabee within the city limits, to ensure their conservancy for public enjoyment and ornament. The committee is likewise interested in the Jackson Park creek. It was emphasized that the committee does not envisage the spending of public funds, but rather hopes to achieve its aim through private citizens' efforts and the support of business, industry and other groups.

School Debenture Issues Approved For $1,730,000 By United Counties' Council

COBOURG—(ENS)—Debenture bylaws covering expenditures on high school district school construction, totalling $1,730,000 were given 2 readings at Thursday's session of Northumberland and Durham counties council. The bylaws go forward to the Department of Education for approval. The actual outlay of money will be by the municipalities comprising the high school districts involved. For a new school in Port Hope and an addition to the Bowmanville high school, being the Durham High School area, the debentures are for $1,040,000; Brighton $515,000 and Cobourg district, $175,000.

The legislative and bylaws committee recommended passage of a new bylaw regulating tree cutting in the Ganaraska Watershed. Members of the committee turned down a proposal that an onus clause be inserted which would compel an accused person to show that wood cut was for his own use and not for commercial purposes. It was pointed that such a clause was a violation of the principle of British justice whereby a man was adjudged innocent until proven guilty. However, the new bylaw will make it more difficult to get around the regulations.

The committee endorsed a resolution from Simcoe county which advocated assessment of woodlands. The committee members agreed that trees for sale at Christmas was getting to be a large source of income for woodlot owners. Deputy-reeve G. Rickard of Darlington township said that all woodlots should be assessed and where no commercial gain resulted to the owner that he be rebated the tax paid on such land. Without going into great detail as to how such an assessment could be brought about, the members of the committee agreed with it in principle.

OTHER BYLAWS

In addition to the two readings given to the school debenture bylaws, council passed several bylaws confirming the closing of certain unused road allowances in Hamilton, Brighton, Haldimand and Manvers townships. Percy Gooding, of Brighton township, and Harold Skinner, of Tyrone, were appointed weed inspectors for Northumberland and Durham respectively. Previously, the weed inspectors were appointed by resolution and a court case this year to enforce the Weed Act fell through because the inspectors had not been appointed to office by bylaw. A bylaw was passed which stiplated that the Labor Relations Act did not apply to Northumberland and Durham Counties employees.

Council passed a resolution sponsored by Reeve A. Beer, of Manvers township, and Reeve H. Smith, of Port Hope, that the board of management investigate the financial status of everyone being admitted, and already admitted, to the counties home and that they be charged $60 a month if able to pay all or part of their keep.

Harry Campbell, general chairman of the plowing match, and his committee were thanked for their good work in conection with the match. However, Mr. Campbell, while thanking the council and expressing his appreciation for all the co-operation received at the international and world plowing match, was somewhat annoyed over the fact that the counties had billed the committee for $200 for trucking snow fence to and from the grounds.

"The international and world plowing match advertised Northumberland and Durham Counties all over the world. It therefore seems small business when we get billed for trucking of the snow fence. After all, it was done by counties' trucks which were driven by counties' employees. Some of us worked for more than a month and we didn't ask for one nickel. I think the road commission could overlook this bill," said Mr. Campbell.

Reeve R. McCann, of Brighton township, chairman of the Road Commission, said that he didn't know anything about it. It apparently had come into the road office as a routine account and the road office bookkeeper had passed it on as a non-subsidy item. "If it were charged against the road appropriation it would bring finances still closer to the line but if it could be charged against the general fund it might be a better way to handle it," said Reeve McCann.

Deputy-Reeve A. S. Smith, of Port Hope, declared that the counties had granted $1,500 to plug the plowing match and if this bill was supposed to go to the committee to pay, then it should go there and with no apologies to the committee for so doing.

"I don't think that Mr. Campbell has a right to come here today and give us a calling down for something that was properly referred to the committee for payment," said the deputy-reeve of Port Hope.

"Don't forget that one thousand of that went to Toronto to the OPA" (Ontario Plowmen's Association) retorted Mr. Campbell.

"I move that we send a receipt, marked 'paid in full,' to the committee for this account," said Reeve Charles Burrison, of Hamilton township.

"I second it, and that it be paid out of the general fund," said Deputy-Reeve Smith.

HEALTH UNIT BLAST

Reeve Burrison unloaded a blast at the health unit and its plumbing bylaw. Under this bylaw, the inspections of plumbing installations under provincial government regulations are made by the health unit plumbing inspector and charged against the builder in the case of new construction. The municipality adds a charge for collection. The inspection is mandatory and if the municipality does not pass it, the inspection will be done anyway and the municipality billed for the inspection.

"This plumbing bylaw is vicious to rural people," said Reeve Burrison. "It should not be forced by the health unit on any municipality that doesn't want it. It should have come before the counties council so that we could turn it down if we wanted to. The health unit is taking quite a liberty. Tourist resorts (Reeve Burrison runs one) take up their plumbing in the fall and put it down in the spring and we will have to pay an inspection fee when we put it back. It will cost $25,000 a year to enforce. It is like getting back to the days of Hitler and Mussolini. I am going to move that we abolish this plumbing bylaw," said the Reeve of Hamilton township.

"We didn't like it up our way, either, but we were told it was a provincial regulation, so I don't know what we can do about it," observed Reeve J. Rickard, of Newcastle.

"I am afraid there is some misunderstanding," observed Deputy-Reeve S. Gray, of Hope township. "I am a junior member of the Board of Health. This was passed by the provincial government in June of this year. Don't blame the health unit. It has no choice but to apply the provincial regulations."

"That is right," said Warden J. H. Lowery. "I can't see how we could act on your motion, Reeve Burrison. If you refuse to pass the bylaw on, you still have to pay. If you have the bylaw you can charge the builder."

"Anyway, it applies so far only to certain designated areas, which are built-up areas. It does not apply to a rural area," said Deputy-Reeve Gray.

Reeve Roy Nichols, of Darlington township, said that up his way in new housing areas there were all kinds of septic tanks going in and some of them were no good and the cause of complaints to people living next door. It was a good thing to have such a bylaw in built-up areas, he said.

Reeve Rickard, of Newcastle, favored a show of disapproval of the regulations and moved that council ask the provincial government to abolish it. It was seconded by Reeve Burrison and carried.

HEAR ASSESSOR

Garnet Shields, counties assessor, addressed council on the re-assessment. He said that some of the grading being done by municipal assessors was not consistent and did not give a fair equalization. He said he would like to have all the assessors come to Cobourg and go over the basic rates. He declared that he valued the opinions of assessors but there needed to be a more unified plan of assessing. Industrial assessments were another thing that needed study and he was not satisfied with the valuations of depreciation.

Leslie Wilson, Cobourg, member of the court of revision for the counties, said that only half the assessment had been completed and some of it would have to be done over. Some of the assessors didn't realize the extent of their duties and it would be a good idea for municipalities to pay their assessor enough money to make it worth his while to put more time on it.

APPOINTMENTS MADE

The following appointments were made to high school district boards: Cartwright township, D. Wilson; East Northumberland, Andrew Kemp; Peterborough Suburban, Fred McAdoo; Cobourg, Harry Deyman; Durham, L. H. Winslow.

Warden J. H. Lowery was presented with a wrist watch at the annual warden's banquet, which was attended by some of the ex-wardens, members of counties council and their wives, and other guests. The retiring warden was lauded by members of the counties council for the dignity he had shown in carrying out his office and of his unselfish co-operation and fairness to all.

Snodgrass had barely paid off the mortgage on his house when he mortgaged it again to buy a car. Having bought the auto, he sought out the same banker again and tried to mortgage the car to build a garage.

Exasperated, the bank official said sarcastically, "If I do make the loan, how will you get the money to buy gas for the car?"

"Well, it seems to me," said Snodgrass, "that a fellow who owns his own house, car and garage should be able to get credit for gas!"

The New Assessments

The whole of Peterborough has now been re-assessed. The Examiner has prepared and published a series of articles to explain the necessity for the revision, the bases on which the new assessments have been made, and the probable effects on property owners' bills. In doing this we are not apologists for the re-assessment; we consider it needs no apology or soothing-syrup. It was an essential and desirable revision; it is good that it has been done and we are glad to have published explanations of it. The new assessment puts the municipal tax system on as rational a basis as human judgement permits and as the taxation framework erected by the Province allows to communities. There can be some arguments about the 1940 starting point but none that destroy the propriety of having a re-assessment.

Assessment notices on the new basis are now being delivered to property owners. They are causing some consternation because most of them are higher than they have been before. However, in many hundreds of instances, the actual tax which the property owner will have to pay will be less than before, although his assessment is higher. Estimates have been made at the City Hall that the revision will raise the total assessment in the city from $42,397,902 of this year to $59,562,390 for next year. It is against this higher total assessment that the costs of operating the city will be set, and on it the new mill rate will be established. The present rate is 64.5 mills. Based on the new assessment, the new mill rate would be 47 on this year's spending; that is, assuming the municipal spending next year to be the same as it was this year.

From these figures property owners can estimate how much their tax bill may be next year, on the new, higher assessment of their property. The percentage of increase in the total assessment is 40½ per cent. Thus (if city spending next year does not increase) the assessment on your own property will have to increase 40½ percent. before your taxes will be higher. If the increase is less than forty per cent. your taxes next year could be lower than they are this year.

* * *

Yesterday we published a long and thoughtful letter on the subject of the municipal tax system. One reference in it can be subjected to the figures we have given above. The writer was regretting the increases in assessment on his own house in the last eight years. The revision now makes his assessment thirty per cent. greater than it was this year, he stated: an increase of $1,100. Our calculation shows therefore that his property is newly assessed at $3,666. According to our reckoning, his taxes next year could be $172.30. This year, he says, they were $235. Thus he is the gainer by the new assessment. When you compare this with the $96.00 he paid on the same house eight years ago, it is not excessively high—not double what it was. Is the owner prepared to admit that his property is not worth twice as much money now as it was in 1945?

All the foregoing is propounded on the assumption that the rate of municipal spending—the budget—next year—will not be higher than it was this year. We wish at this time to warn next year's Council and Boards of a danger. A possible new rate of 47 mills will look low in comparison with this year's rate of 64.5. It would be easy to allow the budget to fatten, for the Council to relax its vigilance against increased spending. There may be a temptation to say: "Oh, well, as long as we keep the rate down to fifty, nobody should complain". But, aldermen of 1954, remember that the new rate applies to the new, higher assessments made on nearly every property in the city. Yield not to temptation.

The Language Doctors Use

The medical profession is now in deservedly high renown, and its wages, in dollar terms, support the reputation, making doctors men of substance as well as of science and specialized skill. The new techniques, the high professional standards, the extension of medical knowledge and the amazing therapeutic, medicinal and surgical feats doctors now perform to remove pain, restore health and keep people well are deserving of great praise. The devotion of most of the practitioners to their calling and their genuine service to humanity are worthy of public trust and respect. In only one major department do we think that the medical profession is retrogressive. Its language is tribal.

The progress of the profession since the founding of the Company of Barber-Surgeons in 1540 is apparent; the medical knowledge and skills gained in the last hundred years alone are remarkable. The old treatments of bleeding, purging, blistering and amputation were still supreme as late as 1800. The Royal Society was solemnly advised in 1723 that swallowing of leaden bullets cured "that miserable Distemper which they call the Twisting of the Guts". A character in Brown's The Dispensary said it was easy to become a surgeon: "Do but buy a lancet, Forceps, Saw; talk a little of Contusions, Fractures, Compress and Bandage . . . I myself have turned several doctors out of families because they would not prescribe Physick plentifully and in large quantities. I have persuaded my Patients, that they did not well understand their distemper; so have brought in another who has swingingly dos'd'um".

Despite the professional advances, its terminology is medieval. It would seem as if doctors had a corner on special mysteries, and like priests of a cult, try to wall them from the common people (those who call a bone a bone and guts guts). This practice, even if it does not hoodwink people, is dangerous to the profession. It allows a "Dr. Cyr" to operate. He gets hold of the jargon, cultivates the professional medical manner, puts on the gown (white for sanctity as well as sanitation) and becomes a doctor.

The profession should try to abandon the language of the fakir; if it is not to be imposed on by quacks it should use, where terminological exactitude permits, language understandable by the people its serves. Thus can the populace be assured that the doctor is qualified by his knowledge and skill and not by his mumbo-jumbo. A diagnosis of "twisting of the guts" has at least the virtue of being meaningful, and is probably as exact a description as "volvulus".

The Queen And The Sport Of Kings

The Royal Family has been fond of racing for several generations, and maintains a stable of excellent horses, including some Derby winners. Within the past fortnight the Queen has been sharply criticised by the president of the Methodist Conference, a Dr. Donald Soper, who has said that the Queen, as a Christian woman, should not give her support to a sport which involves gambling. Dr. Soper is eager to show that he is no kill-joy, and loves innocent fun himself. He wrote in an English newspaper: "When my wife and I go on vacation we always put on our swim suits under our Sunday best and hope for a short sermon". Swimming, of course, does not involve gambling, though in future we think that Dr. Soper's water exercise will involve the gamble that some angry Royalist may push his head under water and keep it there until all his cares are over.

The Methodist Church has always opposed racing, and gambling, and has good historical reasons for doing so. When John Wesley began his great mission to the poor and wretched, drink and gambling were two of their greatest enemies, and he preached powerfully against them. Dr. Soper knows better than we whether modern Methodists need this sort of protection. But we must point out that we do not think that the Queen needs it. She is an immensely wealthy woman, so her pocket is not likely to suffer. She is also the anointed head of a great Church, and when Dr. Soper presumes to advise her on spiritual matters he is guilty of professional impudence. He is insisting that the Queen should live like a Methodist in order to help him with his work. It is a wholly unjustifiable proposal.

The Cardinal Archbishop of Westminster does not ask the Queen to eat fish on Fridays, in order to set an example to English Catholics. The Moderator of the Church of Scotland does not urge the Queen to abandon the celebration of Christmas, because his Church is traditionally opposed to it. The head of the Baptist Conference does not request Her Majesty to submit to total immersion, in order to please his people. Why, then, should Dr. Soper want the Queen to abandon racing and betting because of a historical—decidely not a theological—prejudice on the part of his people?

The Doctor appeals to the Queen as a Christian woman. As she lives a dedicated and dutiful life far beyond anything which he is called upon to match, we consider this cheek. What is more, we will bet that the Queen's ancestors were Christians when Dr. Soper's were simple animists, in the forests of early Britain. What is more, we will bet that the Queen never went into the Lord's House with a bathing gown underneath her clothes.

Wisdom from the Kingston Whig: "Those who sit on the shore and wait for their ship to come in don't leave footprints on the sands of time". Of course not; they leave the larger but less impressive pantsprint.

City Of Palaces

By PATRICK O'DONOVAN
(in Kyoto, Japan)

THE PALACE is, in essence, no more than a series of sheds. Heavy tiled roofs are supported on wooden pillars. The outside walls are sliding panels of paper glued to a thin lattice. Even the dividing walls are light and slide in grooves, so that the whole place could be turned into something like a warehouse. A wide passage runs round the interior and over bridges into the next shed. The rooms are cubes, some huge, some small, all opening on the passage. Nothing could be simpler and nothing more splendid in effect.

This strange and rather sinister place is Nijo Detached Palace in the Japanese city of Kyoto. The palace was built about 1600 by the Tokugawa Shoguns (feudal rulers) to use during the formal visits they paid to the Emperors, who, technically, were the source of their absolute power.

LIKE THE great baroque palaces of Europe, this place represented a calculated attempt to impress and overawe. This is rare in Japan, but then there was competition. The Emperors, who were by this time powerless, lived in this city; they were often nearly destitute, occupied perforce with exacting ceremonies and minute arts. But they were still the Sons of Heaven and they did not require the careful splendours of the Shoguns to maintain their position.

The Shoguns lived in almost Byzantine magnificence. This palace of theirs is surrounded by a high white wall and entered by fantastic gates. Its dark timbers between the flimsy walls are fastened with metal bosses that are coated with gold leaf. Its interior walls are wonderfully painted with huge withering pine trees, with hawks in flight and birds in the snow. For the Shogun, there are polished dais, of an overwhelming simplicity. By a few inches they dominate a wide sweep of soft gold matting where the court would sit.

SHAVEN-HEADED, dressed in vestments which, like the feathers on certain birds, puffed the body out to more than human proportions, the court knelt, sitting stiff-backed on their heels, rigid and showing no emotion, looking more than human and more terrible than knights in armour.

Today the place is quite empty. Japanese tourists in stockinged feet pad along the passage behind the rattling guide. There is no furniture: the silk tassels for handles still hang ready to move the painted screens; the wood is polished and the matting swept; there is a dull gleam of gold and the shape of faded painting from every shadow. It is cold here. It is impossible to imagine a child running down the broad corridor or little girls squealing over a doll. It still smells of male pride and stately violence. Even the drinking of wine would have a sacramental quality here. There is no comfort, no privacy, no sign of weakness. It is really the most exquisite savagery.

But in a city of palaces and temples the Nijo Palace is only one among many, although it is one of the more emphatic. The rest of the city, though as proud and unconceding as the history of Japan, is secretive, and its greatest splendours are designed for the few that would have seen them and the few that could fully understand them.

KYOTO is one of those fortunate cities from which history has receded. It is the focus for all the nostalgic loyalties of Japan and for the most fastidious aestheticism in the world. In this country it has the prestige of a Peking or a Paris. Yet its main streets are lined with inexpensive Western buildings of more than usual vulgarity. Its skyline is a porcupine of smoking chimneys. Its more obvious shops sell the trivial rubbish that has debased the coinage of Japanese culture all over the world.

At first it seems typical of all the Eastern cities whose merchants have chosen to envy the West. But embedded in this staleness there are the bones of the old capital. All over the city, hidden behind walls or pressed among trees against surrounding hills, there are empty inward-looking palaces and a thousand temples. It is a place where the chief priests are still sometimes cousins to the Emperor or descendants of a Shogun - a city within a city whose bare rooms and dark shrines are visited by the most respectful tourists in the world.

IT IS ALMOST as hard to know Kyoto as it is to know London. There is too much. There is a long wooden building which contains precisely one thousand life-size statues of the Goddess of Mercy, all gilt, all smiling gently and all drawn up like a battalion on parade. Or just across the road there is the Blood Ceiling. A gold-toothy priest in a white gown will lead you round a nobleman's house that has been turned into a temple. It is dark and polished and bare except where a room has been turned into a shrine and tables loaded with gleaming utensils and gilded flowers bar the way to an altar which holds something too dark to be identified.

The priest will take a stick and point at the ceiling. This ceiling was once the floor of a castle where several nobles committed suicide simultaneously. Their bodies were left to await the outcome of a civil war. And now, with a little faith, you can follow his stick and see the outlines of the bodies that were sprawled there more than three hundred years ago.

OR there is the palace which is today the official palace in Kyoto. It is a heavy, dreary place built a hundred years ago, where the roofs are too heavy and the effort to be magnificent and worldly and yet Japanese has produced the Japanese equivalent of English Victorian municipal architecture. There is a huge room where a silk tent stands on a polished floor and under the tent is a flimsy chair inlaid with mother-of-pearl, with two stools for the sacred insignia—the sword and jewels. Privileged tourists gaze at it with an awe that simple Christians use for the Holy Sepulchre.

But all these strange splendours are not perhaps the things that set Kyoto apart for the Japanese intellectuals. The things that matter are of a revolutionary simplicity—or so they seem at first. The arrangements of a suite of lacquered shelves in a corner of a small room, the shape and texture of a piece of wood used in an alcove, the placing of a round window in a wall, the contrived view between stones of a pine tree across a pond or even the arrangement of thirteen rocks in a courtyard of raked sand—these things and harmonious combinations of them are endowed with the virtues and significance that Europeans find in Mozart and Vermeer.

BUT there is still more to it than that. Judgement of these things is not a matter of good taste, of standing back from the graceful dip of the eaves above the view of a garden and saying "Charming!" The things must obey rules and rules far stricter and more devious than Vitruvius's or Ruskin's.

The strictness and the occasional artificiality of these rules may account for some of the disasters that occur when so exquisite a people as the Japanese choose to move to unfamiliar forms of art. But Kyoto is a fair epitome of Japan. It is beautiful; it is as fascinating as an eccentric library.

I am told that its fascination increases in proportion to the times it is visited. But the stranger's heart is left a little cold; he will still prefer Peking or Paris.

QUESTIONS VALUE OF STATISTICS

SIR: Having just read Main Street Topics for November 24th concerning the average number of nursing hours per day per patient at the Civic Hospital, we would appreciate knowing the number of working hours and the number of persons employed to arrive at these figures and what, if anything, has been gained by their conclusions? Could not our taxpayers' money be spent on actual nursing care rather than on such fruitless efforts?

What do these figures mean to the average citizen, who, on entering hospital anticipates twenty-four hour nursing care? If such articles are to appear in our paper should not an explanation accompany them?

A THRIFTY CITIZEN.

RIGHTS FOULLY TRADUCED

SIR: Have I no authority on the manner in which my rights are used or destroyed in this country?

It will be 20 years next May 1954, when I gave up my rights as an American or U.S. citizen to become a Canadian citizen by marriage, for it is my belief, where one willingly earns a living, works for the good of the people, country and those around about you, there should your chief interests in life, government and country lie, so why should anyone wantingly spend many years under these circumstances without becoming a citizen of that country? With these ideas in mind, I felt that I had given up my rights as a U.S. citizen and become a Canadian citizen in heart, deeds and thoughts the day I crossed the border as Mrs. Joseph Hamilton in May 1934.

But from that first day in Canada and for every month and year since that date, I have been constantly reminded by many, that I was a foreigner, not wanted, and was an undesirable and that some would never cease to work to have me deported back where I belonged.

From that first week, I was warned against going to any church, social, civic or school function and if I did go I would wish that I had remained in seclusion. Soon, after having gone to only 3 church services, I was told by the preacher in charge of 4 churches, "I am going to have to ask you to remain or stay away from all church, civic, social or school functions or wish that you had . . ." My remark was, "Well . . . I thought all churches should be open to all alike . . ." His answer was, "If you do not stay out by my asking, I will have to demand you stay away . . ." answer was . . . "The church is the place for the sinners, so let the sinners go to your churches, we can stay at home and worship by our radio . . ." That is what we have done for these 20 years. When we have gone anywhere, our home has been entered hundreds of times leaving more than a 6 qt. basket of broken locks and many valuables missing as evidence of why we would be made sorry if we did persist in exercising the rights due any citizen in a democratic country. I can count on my fingers the number of times we have had special invitations given to have a meal in homes during these 20 years, but God alone knows how many have come into our home when we were absent.

During these years, I have remained away from most all events, as was demanded by that preacher so, if I cannot be among them in person, I have not wanted my name to be linked with them, in any way, but on November 18, my name was mentioned in the Hall's Glen News items in a commercial way, for I understand the writer is paid according to the inches of space used for news items.

I had purposely reported a trip we had made through Michigan, Ohio, Pa., and N.Y. States and gave that to the Examiner for the personal section of their paper and stated to that party how I would not want it in the Hall's Glen news. Later I made the same request so the correspondent had time to have it eliminated from her report before it reached the printing stage. In due time, Monday, November 16, I called the Examiner office and reported my request and the reasons for same to one of the highest officials of that paper asking that he be sure to report my request to the proper one in charge and see that my name was not used along with the names of others for commercialization. I never gave any information of our trip to the States for such publication. I had definitely requested no publication by the correspondent on same but my RIGHTS again were overuled. As for visiting anyone in Toledo, I can truthfully state that we shot through Toledo about the same as most of you shoot through Warsaw. We only stopped long enough to fill the tank with 25c gas and wishing that we could take more.

Yes, I have never had freedom of the mails without interference, freedom of religion, school, civic or social functions, business without destruction by outsiders, peace and protection in business or home during all these years and now they use without our consent, our name for commercial purposes even though I, as reported, had registered my objections for same to the proper authorities without them showing recognization of my rights as a citizen if I may call myself to be.

Now is there any wonder why many are at a loss to say, when is a foreigner no longer a foreigner and just what rights can one expect? Since when did my own name cease to be mine to have, to hold and protect as any law abiding citizen should have that right?

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And God said, Let the earth bring forth the living creatures after his kind, cattle, and creeping things, and beast of the earth after his kind: and it was so . . . And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them . . . And God saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was very good. (Gen. 1:24, 26, 27, 31.)

But there went up a mist from the earth, and watered the whole face of the ground. And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul. (Gen. 2:6, 7.)

We all, with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory even as by the Spirit of the Lord. (II Cor. 3:18.)

Public Ask Thrift

(Winnipeg Free Press)

The record of the St. Laurent Government in many respects has been superlatively good. But in the matter of economy it has failed to seize and exploit an opportunity not only to ease the heavy tax burden now resting on the public but, also, to revitalize and make more efficient the business of government.

No doubt one reason for this is the failure of the Conservative or the C.C.F. parties to offer any constructive criticism. The Conservative party, both in Parliament and in the last general election, discredited itself by advocating, at one and the same time, an increase in Federal expenditures of $2,000 millions per year and a decrease in taxation of $500 millions. This was an affront to the intelligence of the electors and the result was apparent on election day. The C.C.F. is not now nor has it ever been remotely interested in economy.

As the present session proceeds and the estimates for 1954-55 are prepared, Mr. Abbott and his colleagues would be wise to realize that the folly of the opposition parties is shared by only a small segment of the electors; that what the public desires is not prodigality but thrift in the administration of public business. Tax reductions should be obtainable not only from greater output but also from reduced expenditures.

A BRITISH OPINION

Joint Commission Seeks Solutions To Problems Along Border - Charles Hurst

Charles K. Hurst, engineering advisor to the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission, discussed that foundation and its functions at the Kiwanis club luncheon, Thursday.

The commission is made up of six members, three Canadian and three American, and these members are authorized to call on the experts from the federal services of either country for any advice or information they may require.

"For some mysterious reason a great many problems and difficulties arising between countries seem to concentrate along their political boundaries. The United States and Canada are no exception."

The flow of water and air across boundaries is the real reason of the existence of the joint commission.

It deals with problems of irrigation, water levels, and recently in the control of polluted air or 'smog' which in some areas is becoming a fatal menace.

The first problems of irrigation control between Canada and the U.S. were centred between northern Montana and southern Alberta. Both areas could produce fine crops, but only if an adequate water supply was on hand.

PROVIDE WATER

Two rivers, the Milk and the St. Mary's, could provide this necessary water. They both originated in the U.S. with the St. Mary's joining the Saskatchewan and the Milk after flowing through Canada for about 100 miles, returning to the U.S. The damming of such streams could easily cause a lack of water in either country, and thus were created ideal circumstances for an international row.

With this situation in mind, and the possibility of similar future situations, the treaty, "Between the United States and Great Britain relating to Boundary Waters, and questions arising between the United States and Canada", was signed in 1909.

The difficulties and delay associated with the negotiation of new treaties between congress and parliament, were eliminated. All problems were dealt with by the International Joint Commission with the signing of the new treaty.

No uses, obstructions or diversions, whether temporary or permanent, of boundary waters, can be made, that will affect the level or flow of such waters, except by authority of either government and with the approval of the joint commission.

Projects from coast to coast are under the control of this commission. The Passamaquoddy and affiliated projects for extracting electrical power from the Bay of Fundy tides, were investigated by the commission and found to be impractical at the present time.

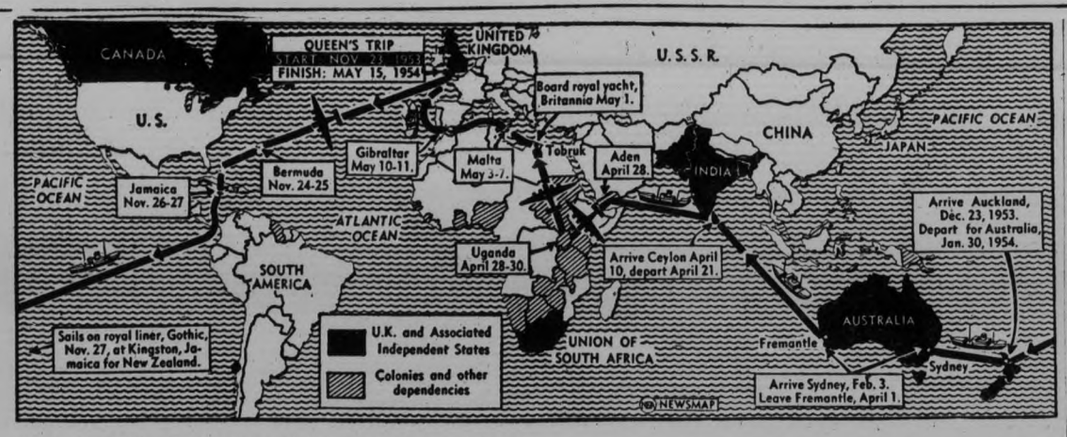
The St. John river basin is presently being studied by the commission. The provinces of New Brunswick and Quebec and the state of Maine are all interested in this potential power supply, which, if completed, would enhance industry in the three areas.

The commission has given its approval for the construction of dams and necessary works in the International rapids of the St. Lawrence. When these giant dams are completed they will operate under the strict supervision of the commission so that property owners on the shores of Lake Ontario, navigation interests, power authorities and the downstream interests at Beauharnois and Montreal will be assured equal consideration.

Attempts are being made to control the level of Lake Ontario, and thus avoid the danger of flooding along the shorelines.

The falls at Niagara presents another problem. Every gallon that flows over the falls is lost for electrical production. If all the water were to be used in the generating plants, one of the scenic wonders of the world be lost. It is the problem of the commission to regulate this division. A project will commence soon to equalize the flow of water over the escarpment so that the middle of the falls will not receive all the weight. Some 90,000 cubic yards of stone will be removed from the river bed at the sides, so that the flow will be more uniform and cause less wearing of the fall lip.

Some $17,00,000 will be spent by the Ontario Hydro-Electric commission on this development.



AIR POLLUTION

In recent years, death by air pollution has become more and more common. In the Detroit-Windsor area there is a very heavy concentration of industry that is belching forth noxious fumes into the atmosphere at an ever increasing rate. Under certain meterological conditions, instead of dissipating into the air, these fumes are held close to the ground by what is known as a temperature inversion.

This problem has been placed in the hands of the International Joint Commission.

"You who live in the Trent Valley where the well regulated Trent River system provides you with a copious supply of good water, may find it difficult to appreciate the problems of people in Montana, southern Alberta, and the Dakotas, where a small amount of water may be the difference between a good crop and a crop failure. The real life blood of a nation is its streams and rivers. Without a supply of good water in copious quanties, a nation will die.

"These are some of the problems of the International Joint Commission, and as the economy of Canada becomes more complex, and the development of Canadian resources more intensive, there problems will become more numerous and more contentious."

ROYAL TOUR OF COMMONWEALTH—Queen Elizabeth II and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, are making a six-month trip around the world (see Newsmap) during which they will visit many of the British Commonwealth nations. The royal couple travelled by air from London to Bermuda on the first leg of the trip and from there visited Jamaica. At Jamaica they boarded the liner S.S. Gothic for the voyage to New Zealand. The Gothic will be their home for five months, until they reach Aden in April. From there they will fly across North Africa to Tobruk, where they will board the royal yacht Britannia for the journey home.

Trials By Television Scored By Diefenbaker

TORONTO (CP) — John G. Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Prince Albert, Thursday night attacked "trials by television and attacks by innuendo," saying toleration is no longer a "matter of selective choice but the essence of democratic survival itself."

In an address to the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, Mr. Diefenbaker said the attacks indicated the necessity of "speaking with circumspection."

"Communism today marches with a mystical control over man . . . and feeds on discrimination. . . Let us mobilize the forces of democracy against the practices of discrimination."

He said the spiritual foundations of Christianity and Judaism are being challenged everywhere.

NEED IT TO SURVIVE

"We need to realize that times of crisis have always been the greatest menace to tolerance and that toleration is no longer a matter of selective choice, but the essence of democratic survival itself."

He called for a national declaration of human freedom or a bill of rights and the introduction in Parliament of the international declaration of fundamental freedoms.

Highlighting the dinner was the presentation of Human Relations Awards to Col. David Croll, member of Parliament for Toronto Spadina, J. Gerald Godsoe of Toronto, and Emile Dubois of Hamilton.

A painting was presentid to Roy H. Thomson, Canadian publisher and prominent council worker, who is taking up residence in Scotland.

Hospital Planned

TORONTO (CP)—A group of nuns from Holland who established their first Canadian house in Toronto in February, 1951, said they are planning a $200,000 convalescent hospital here. The Missionary Sisters of the Precious Blood said they have already secured a 6½-acre site for the hospital.

Urges Doctors Prepare National Health Proposal

TORONTO (CP)—Some form of government - controlled national health plan is inevitable and the medical profession should prepare the draft of a workable scheme, says Dr. C. E. Duff Wilson, Kitchener's medical officer of health.

In an address Wednesday to a group of fellow doctors attending a conference on public relations sponsored by the Ontario Medical Association, Dr. Wilson said that preparing a national health plan would be one way of demonstrating that doctors want to protect the health interests of the public as a whole.

He said doctors have been accused of being selfish, aloof, commercial, hurried and preoccupied with their own affairs. He gave this as a frank diagnosis of what some persons think of the medical profession.

In a dispatch Nov. 25 The Canadian Press erroneously quoted Dr. Wilson as accusing the majority of doctors of being selfish, aloof, commercial and hurried. Dr. Wilson said nothing of the kind.

The Canadian Press regrets and apologizes for any inconvenience caused Dr. Wilson.

The Grey Cup game at Varsity Stadium tomorrow is the big sports' item of the weekend in Canada. Once it is over and the Monday morning quarterbacks have pulled the piece apart, we can settle down to Christmas shopping, hockey and winter. But the gridders have their day Saturday, and a great many folk who wouldn't pay a dime to see a Big Four game through the autumn fall over themselves trying to give away 10 bucks or better to be able to sit in on the cup classic. Many more will take it by TV and radio. Including this scribe who finds is as tough as anyone else to get the coveted paste-boards. Only the working press at that game get passes.

Picking Ti-Cats to take it, we might mention a few figures. The average height of the Hamilton line is six-one and average weight 213. Backs go five-ten in average height and scale 183. And the players' ages average out to 23. Now for Winnipeg Bombers. The age is 24, height of line six-one and weighs 214 pounds. Backs are five-eleven tall and weight 184. Both are powerful, experienced squads with their full quota of starry American imports, as well as some fine footballers from various parts of Canada. Should be a great game, a thrilling spectacle and seen by a huge crowd. Gamblers are betting Hamilton to take the trophy but not giving much in the way of odds where sizeable chunks are laid on the line.

Along The AHL Front

Haven't heard much lately from the AHL apart from the fact that Red Sullivan is leading the snipers. Nothing on Don Ashbee or Nip O'Hearn from here. Bruins called up Jerry Toppazzini and if they need further help will likely bring Red back to the parent club. Did notice an interesting item saying that Jean Marois, subbing for the injured Providence goalie, Harv Bennett, is probably the wealthiest goalie in the game. He is one of the heirs to a half-million-dollar shoe business in Quebec, helping his father build it up. Jean just plays hockey for the fun of it, having no urgent need for more mazuma. How different from other toilers along the pro ice lanes, eh?

In their only OHA senior "B" meeting to date, Orillia Pontiacs and the TPT Petes drew 7-all here in overtime. They clash again here tonight and another rugged and stirring scrap may be expected. The Pontiacs have been building up after losing twice to Oshawa and once to Kingston earlier in the race. Since then they trimmed Belleville badly right on Quinte ice, so they'll be no soft touch for the Petes and can climb out of the cellar at the expense of Belleville and Eddie Redmond's men. The Truckers are atop the heap with Kingston a close second, the other three in the group being in a dogfight right now. The Petes are overdue for a victory on the home cushion and will shoot the works this e'en to take the duke.

Blood and Thunder, Eh?

A good time was had by all at the PMHA booster night program last e'en in Civic Arena. A fairish crowd on hand for the draw, the lively broomball game betwixt police and firemen (a scoreless tie), and the puck exhibition between the junior Petes and the oldtimers. It was a 6-6 tie ere the benches were cleaned in the final few minutes and everyone got into the act in a slambang finish. Rubbery Art Heal scored two for the veterans, Red Creighton one, and Rube Brady pulled the hat-trick for three tallies, one on an odd penalty shot awarded by Referee Dit Clapper, with tongue in check. Uren, Ruttan, Twist, Gardner, Red Creighton and Ross Nicholls scored for the juniors, the latter couple on wrong-way efforts. Yes, 'twas lots of fun.

Athletic Advisory Club of St. Peter's High did it up brown last gloaming with the annual football dinner being held at Assumption Hall. Coach John Lynch's grid teams did well the past season, the junior Saints capturing the COSSA junior "B" title, while the senior squad won the Ontario Catholic Conference senior "B" trophy. Presentations were made after the spread and the two most valuable players named. John Hickey was the senior star picked and Ray Allen took juniors honors for the year. Coach Vic Obeck of McGill University proved an interesting guest speaker. He certainly knows his football from away back.

Minor Puck Booster Night Sees 6-all Tie Game Between Vets And Juniors

Local oldtime hockeyists and the junior OHA Petes tussled away to a 6-all draw in more or less regulation time before several hundred fans at Civic Arena last night. It was for the PMHA booster night, and firemen and policemen went to a bloodless and scoreless draw in broomball between periods. Nobody took it too seriously and quite a few of the veteran puckists who had been lined up for the exhibition apparently got cold feet and took a powder, as the saying is. However, about 20 ice vets were on deck and did well against the free-wheeling youngsters. In the final minute of play everybody got into the act, and somebody or other scored in the mad scramble, but it was 6-6 before the free-for-all.

PULLS HAT TRICK

Rube Brady pulled the hat-trick by scoring three goals for the oldtimers, one on a penalty shot. When announcer Stan McBride advised the fans that this was an unusual scoring feat for a vetern hockey player, Rube received a big round of applause. There was some question regarding the propriety of awarding the penalty shot by Referee Dit Clapper, but the former NHL ace was too big to argue with, the juniors felt.

Art Heal scored the first goal for the old crocks on assists from Honey Tompkins and Johnny Godfrey. Red Creighton, playing for the ex-seniors, evened it up by scoring on his own side on a deflected corner shot. Brady got the next one from Doug Mortimer for the vets.

The juniors got rolling in the second to tally four. Uren got one from Pavelick, and the latter and Uren aided Ruttan on another. Then Twist counted from Heffernan and Coyle. After Red Creighton got a neat one from Bob Thorpe and Scotty Maudsley, the juniors got a gift goal when Goalie Ross Nicholls—who looked as good over most of the route as in his heyday—stickhandled the rubber into his own net. Then Brady wound up on a penalty shot to sink the disc again.

ART GETS ONE

Art Heal batted one home early in the third for the oldsters, and Bob Gardner got it back in a junior scramble in close. Brady once more tied it up with a masterly finish in on Joe O'Brien's doorstep. Everybody jumped on the ice then from both benches and that was that. Two of the juniors were given minor penalties in the tilt.

Some of the oldtimers turned in flashes of the type of hockey they used to dish up regularly. Noted among the veterans were: Nicholls, Godfrey, Gardner, Quimet, Creighton, Thorpe, Maudsley, Kingdon, Tompkins, Heal, Brady, Burton, Mortimer, Blewett, Ludgate, Jack Jopling, Flint and several more. PMHA president Dick Quimet thanked the oldtimers and juniors for aiding the cause, as well as the refs, fans, firemen, police and Ed Riley for giving the door prize.

G. Mann Rolls High

G. Mann had high single of 257 this week in the YWCA senior girls' bowling circut, as L. Martin hit 255, L. Bonney 236, M. Flaherty 236, Marg Arnold 225 and D. Martin 223. Only three rolled over 600, L. Martin leading with 697, M. Flaherty having 646 and G. Mann 643.

The best the teams could do on the night's play was rack up four points for the winners, as Hurricanes, Corvettes, Tigers and Commandos took four from Glens, Bombers, the Aces and Luck Strikes in that order.

Same Qualities Give Success To Christian, Athlete

Many of the qualities stressed from the pulpit are the same qualities which make a good athlete.

Vic Obeck, coach of the McGill University Redmen, stressed this point in his address to the assembly of football players, parents and club members at the fifth annual Catholic High School Athletic Advisory Club supper, held at Assumption hall, Thursday evening.

To be successful in any sport, sacrifice is required. This is something which is instilled in us by our Christian teaching. It is what our faith is based on, and it is something which is required to gain success. The football player must sacrifice many things. He must give up the warmth of a home to practise in rough weather. If he is not feeling well, he must still attend the practises. Training prevents him the luxuries of smoking, many social events and general relaxed forms of living, but all these sacrifices are necessary if he as an individual is to knit into a team, and make that team win.

PERSEVERENCE

Another quality of the successful athlete, and successful Christian, is perseverence. It is easy enough to be technically a Catholic—and not too difficult to be a member of a team. But this haphazard participation is not the stuff of which winners are made. To be a success, one must give a little more than is required. Extra effort is the stuff that counts and pays off. Life is similar to a football club. You can make an effort to achieve a position on the team, but only those who give that extra something, are the ones that will make the winning team.

Although Mr. Obeck personally stated that he was not old enough to spout the age-old precept about "the good old days," he did state that he felt that the youth of today was inclined to get away with as much as possible. The contemporary belief is: "the guy who figures the angles, is the smart one." This is largely due to movies, literature, and other forms of education today. But it is not the true road to success.

The third quality which Mr. Obeck drew a parellel between religion and athletics on, was courage.

"We are not born with this quality, nor are we born without it. It is something that we learn from our parents and from our personal discipline."

The courage that we need today, is not so much a physical thing, as a determination to attack intangible evils. The ability to be our own conscience.

"I am not suggesting that you boys become soap-box orators—just lead the life that you have been taught to. Act rather than talk."

TOO MUCH CONFORMITY

"There is too much conformity in the world of today. Because 99 boys decide to do something, doesn't necessarily say that it is right for you to do it. It takes more courage to step out, than to follow the crowd. This courage is what makes a man. It is manhood in the strict sense of the word.

Honesty is very much affiliated with courage. The world has come to a point, where "fence-sitting" no longer belongs. The men of the future will have to be one thing or another. A war, whether material or spiritual is facing the future men of this world, and it is up to them to take a stand and lead others weaker than themselves. Athletic training will help them in their future jobs as leaders of the world, and it will be no place for luke warmness.

"To see a man do a job well, no matter what the job is, is almost artistic. It is a wonderful thing to see and experience, and no one ever loses admiration for the man who can do it."

"The war now is between Communism and Democracy and the latter is getting plenty of lip service, but not much active aid. When the Lord said, 'Love thy neighbor', He didn't mean a certain group of neighbors. Hate and prejudice are things that are learned, not inborn. This is apparent from the habits of children, who, at an early age are free and loving toward everyone, but as they mature, develop prejudices and hates which are foreign to the true definition of democracy".

CONGRATUATES TEAMS

The Most Rev. Gerald Berry congratulated the junior and senior teams, and told them they were giving a new spirit to the school which would bring rewards for many years to come.

"Remember", he said, "you can be a rugged man and still be a good Christian".

The junior St. Peter's team, which won the COSSA junior "B" title this year, was presented with leather jackets by the advisory club, and the senior team was presented with the McKinney Trophy for their capture of the Catholic Conference victory over Toronto St. Michaels.

The Cavanagh Trophy was presented to John Hickey as the most valuable player on the senior team. The Key Club Trophy was presented to Ray Allen as the most valuable player on the junior team. John Lynch, coach of the two teams was presented with a gift by both teams, in token of his services to them.

Chairman for the evening was Rolly Hull, president of the advisory club.

Guests at the head table were: Larry Forbes, John Hickey, Harry Yudin, Bernie Jones, the Rev. J. Coughlin, Vic Obeck, the Rt. Rev. Gerald Berry, Dinny Fitzgerald, the Rev. J. McGuire, Ron Board, Don Finley and Bill Collins.

G. Milliken Leads

G. Milliken had high single of 264 and best three of 609 in the Playfair Wednesday afternoon bowling loop for girls. Rockets led the teams with 2,701 and had a single of 1,012.

Good singles included: M. Young 236, A. Lucas 234, H. Bleakley 220, M. Wray 217, F. Armstrong 216, E. Earnshaw and M. Cook 214, E. Roberts 209, T. Hamblin 207 and P. Doig 206; neat triples were: M. Wings Shut Out Toronto 2-0; Canadiens Win

By WALTER GRAY, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Caulm Mackey, Jerry Toppazzini and Terry Shawchuk had much to be thankful for after their Thanksgiving Day chores in the United States Thursday night. Mackay, 26- year-old leftwinger with Montreal Canadiens scored three goals and an assist to give the National Hockey League leading Montreal Canadiens a 6-3 victory over Chicago Black Hawks. Toppazzini, the 23-year-old right-winger recently recalled from the minors, also scored three goals to give Boston Bruins a 5-2 victory over New York Rangers.

Sawchuk, Detroit Red Wings' netminder, shut out Toronto Maple Leafs 2-0 for his third shutout of the season.

ONE CHANGE IN STANDINGS

Thursday night's action resulted in only one change in the league standings. The Red Wings broke their second-place tie with the Maple Leafs, leaving them three points behind the Canadiens. The Bruins consolidated their hold on fourth place, three points behind the Leafs and seven points up on the fifth-place Rangers.

Mackay's scoring spree came in the second period when he scored twice within 56 seconds, on assists by Dick Gamble and Bernie Geoffrion, and again in the last two minutes of the period, assisted by Maurice Richard and Geoffrion.

Gamble, Richard and Doug Harvey scored the others.

Gus Bodnar, George Gee and Bill Gadsby, netting his eighth of the season, scored for Chicago.

HITS HIS STRIDE

Toppazzini, playing his fifth game since the Bruins recalled him from Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League, also came up with his scoring punch in the second period. He got his first two within 79 seconds and his last in the final minute of the game.

Johnny Peirson and Fleming Mackell netted the rest.

Ranger goals were scored by Nick Mickoski and Harry Howell.

The scoring jinx still held the Leafs powerless in Detroit. They have been held scoreless in Olympia Stadium for 212 minutes and 58 seconds. The last time they scored in Detroit was in their final game last season. Sawchuk kicked out 23 shots for the blanking.

Rosen Named Best Player Unanimously

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Al Rosen, Cleveland's slugging third-baseman, today was named most valuable player of the American League in 1953 by an unprecedented unanimous vote.

All 24 members of the committee of the Baseball Writers Association, three from each American League city, named Rosen first on their ballots. Thus the 28-year-old infielder won the award in a landslide with a maximum 336 points.

The highest previous total was run up by Lou Boudreau with 324 points in 1948, the year he led Cleveland to the pennant and world championship. Best score in National League history was Stan Musial's 319 in 1946.

TOPS IN HRs

Rosen led the league in home runs with 43 and runs batted in with 145, and just missed nipping Washington's Mickey Vernon for the batting championship. Vernon finished with an unofficial .337 to Rosen's .336.

Bobby Shantz, Philadelphia Athletics' little lefthander who won the American League award in 1952, didn't get a vote this year because he was sidelined most of the season due to arm trouble.

Yogi Berra, New York Yankee catcher and 1951 winner, finished second with 167 points, and Vernon was third with 165.

Orestes (Minnie) Minoso, Chicago's fielder and third-baseman and a .313 hitter, was the fourth choice with 100 points.

Hershey Beats Hornets 6-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two games played Thursday night in the American Hockey League moved the second-place Hershey Bears two points nearer the league-leading Buffalo Bisons and hoisted the rapidly-improving Providence Reds into contention for top spot.

Providence got four goals in eight minutes to down Cleveland 5-2, while the Bears were trouncing Pittsburgh Hornets 6-3. Hershey now is six points behind the Bisons and Providence, five.

TWO APIECE

At Hershey, Skip Teal and Dunc Fisher were the Bears' big guns, scoring two goals apiece. Arnie Kullman and Jack McIntyre were the other Hershey goal-getters. Andy Barbe, Frank Sullivan and Danny Lewicki counted for Pittsburgh.

At Providence, four goals in the last eight minutes of the second period broke a 1-1 deadlock and enabled the Reds to win handily.

A goal by Paul Larivee of Providence in the first period was nullified by Cal Stearns' tally early in the second frame. Then the roof fell in on Cleveland, Cam Bedard, Pete Kapusta, Pat Egan and Chuck Scherza scored in rapid succession. Jack Gordon was the other Cleveland marksman.

Change Of Air Bothers Bomber Team

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

AURORA, Ont. (CP)—Eastern air made Winnipeg Blue Bombers feel like a soggy football for two days.

"It leaves you like a wet sack sometimes," says coach George Trafton. "You gotta be a doctor, coach and crystal-peeper in this business."

Trafton had just finished putting the Bombers through a drill at nearby St. Andrew's College in preparation for their Grey Cup game against Hamilton Tiger-Cats in Toronto Saturday when he said:

"It's a big change when you move down here from that brisk, dry air on the Prairies. I didn't notice it much but the players nearly wilted during the drills shortly after they arrived."

PLAYERS FELT CHANGE

The players apparently felt the change after a three-hour practice Wednesday. Most of them took time only to eat a steak dinner before they went to bed.

Big Bud Korchak, the 26-year-old flying wing and kicking ace, was only one of many Bombers to notice the change.

"Man, was I beat Yesterday (Wednesday)," he said. "I couldn't get to bed fast enough. Sleep came fast."

However, Trafton figures the air "will be like a shot in the arm by the time we meet the Tiger-Cats," He added:

"They say it takes a couple of days to get used to it. The boys were pooped Wednesday but were fine yesterday. Don't fret about us, buster. We're okay."

CHECKS GAME PLANS

Trafton, who has secluded himself in his motel room since the Bombers arrived, spent most of Thursday going over the offensive and defensive plays he will use against Tiger-Cats. He wouldn't say a thing about them but called in a player every so often for a chat.

The 56-year-old Trafton didn't let up the secrecy order on the practice sessions.

"Nobody gets in," he said. "Oh, the odd guy manages to sneak in somehow or other. But I don't want to see anyone not in a Winnipeg sweater around that field."

Trafton said he was calling for short drills. But they are going well over two hours.

3-HOUR SESSION

"That one on Wednesday went three hours," said Korchak, the 180-pound flying wing who won the Western Interprovincial Football Union scoring title this year and was named to The Canadian Press all-star team.

Steve Patrick, 21-year-old guard in his second year with the Bombers, came out of Thursday's practice feeling "like a million bucks."

"The boys are in good shape," he said. "I haven't had time to get the jitters; nobody has."

"I don't think anybody will," interjected Trafton.

Report Packers Offer Trafton New Contract

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says today in a sports page story from Los Angeles that Green Bay Packers of the United States National Football League have offered George Trafton, coach of Winnipeg Blue Bombers for the last three years, a three-year coaching contract at $17,500 a season.

Trafton, here with the Blue Bombers for the Grey Cup playoff Saturday for the Canadian championship, formerly was assistant coach of Los Angeles Rams of the NFL. Previous to that, he was head line coath at Green Bay.

"In addition to Green Bay, two other NFL clubs, Los Angeles Rams and New York Giants, are reported to be eyeing Trafton," the paper says.

Grey Cup Games Have Come Long Way

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—When Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Winnipeg Blue Bombers meet Saturday in the Grey Cup final, they will battle for an 18-inch-high trophy donated June 4, 1909, by Earl Grey, then governor-general of Canada.

Originally, the award was for the senior amateur football championship of Canada. But it hasn't worked that way. The teams to show their stuff before 27,000-odd fans at Varsity Stadium, plus a potential 5,000,000 radio and television audience, represent an annual investment of about $500,000 with player salaries accounting for nearly two-thirds of the budget.

When the big-time football season opened in August on eight fields from Montreal to Edmonton, it was estimated that nearly $2,500,000 would be spent this year on building Grey Cup contending clubs.

A BIG DIFFERENCE

That's a far cry from the days early in the century when eastern teams battled for the trophy and the players received and gave their gridiron knocks for fun. And it's a far cry from the '30s when players received wrist watches, a banquet and possibly blazers at the end of a season.

Western Canada got into the Grey Cup act in 1921, making it a national affair and since then the classic has ballooned into the greatest sports spectacle in the country. Now, with the boom on, football is a hard-boiled dollars-and-cents business.

"Name" American imports make the headlines across the country and Grey Cup enthusiasm has become national every November.

There was a time when the Senior Intercollegiate Football Union and the Ontario Rugby Football Union were top-flight cup contenders. But, since 1935 when Winnipeg Blue Bombers won the cup for the West for the first time, it has developed mainly into a fight between the eastern Big Four and the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

FIRST CUP-WINNER

The University of Toronto became the first holder of the trophy in 1909 when the college team defeated Ottawa of the Big Four 31-7. College teams continued in the cup hunt until 1936 when the University of Toronto defaulted to Ottawa of the Big Four.

That was the end of an era during which the intercollegiate teams won the trophy seven times with the University of Toronto and Queen's University taking the honors. Toronto made it three straight in 1909-10-11 and Queen's also made it three consecutive years—1922-23-24. Toronto made it four times with victory in 1920.

The Ontario Rugby Football Union, once a power in the game, has been relegated to a position where three of its four teams—Toronto Balmy Beach, Brantford Redskins and Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen—are farm clubs of Big Four teams. Sarnia Imperials, one of the great names of Canadian football, won the title once—in 1936—but the Imps always were a threat from the late '20s and into the '30s.

The last ORFU cup triumph was in 1944 when HMCS Donnacona-St. Hyacinthe defeated Hamilton Wildcats 7-6.

Since the western Canada champions challenged the East 32 years ago, the game has gone through two eras.

The westerners, who have won the trophy only four times, got their initial triumph at Hamilton in 1935 when Winnipeg Blue Bombers defeated Hamilton Tigers of the Big Four 18-12. Fans in the East then started to take serious notice of the westerners and the classic built up gradually into the spectacle stage.

Bombers won the title again in 1939 and 1941 and their victims each time were Ottawa Rough Riders. In 1939, on a snow-covered slippery field at Ottawa, Bombers took it 8-7 with a last-minute returned kick by Art Stevenson that went for a point. In 1941, Ches McCance, one of the best placement kickers in the game, broke a 15-15 third-quarter tie to give Bombers an 18-16 victory over Riders at Toronto.

The present era started in 1948 and the game captured the country's imagination. Calgary Stampeders won the cup for the first time that year but more than that they started a wild spending spree by big-time clubs, a demand for cup tickets that hasn't been matched by any Canadian sport and a pre-game show that knocked staid Torontonians silly.

TICKET SCRAMBLE

Persons who had never seen a football game, who probably wouldn't know the difference between a touchdown and a field goal, wanted to get into Varsity Stadium for the game. The ticket situation became a big headache to the Canadian Rugby Union and to clubs who were besieged by fans.

Teams with an annual budget of $50,000 or $75,000 in 1948 suddenly realized that greenbacks—plenty of them—were a key to a berth in the last Saturday in November game.

The search for talent reached into nearly every section of the United States, and club budgets soared to $100,000, $200,000, $250,000 until today expenses nudge the $300,000-mark. It has become a matter of civic pride to win the cup and profits have become negligible, often as low as only a few hundred dollars.

In 1946 the Canadian Rugby Union allowed five imports to a team and only five of the country's senior clubs took any imports at all. Since then, however, the quota has steadily increased. Today, each club in the Big Four and Western Conference is allowed eight and they take the quota.

TORONTO BOOM TOWN

Railways put on special coaches to handle fans, Toronto hotels hung out "sold out" signs two months in advance, restaurants do a booming business, ticket scalpers haunt hotel lobbies and westerners drop untold thousands of dollars on bets.

Newspaper, radio, television and movies coverage of the game has grown steadily. The 36-seat press box for sports writers is jammed and another 40 or more newspaper men are accommodated in an open-air stand.

A network of 70 radio stations stretching from British Columbia to the Maritimes will broadcast a play-by-play description of Saturday's game. This is the largest network for any sports event in the country.

The CBC-TV network of stations in Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal will bring the game into the living rooms of fans who decide to watch the two-hour game either by choice or simply because they can't buy a ticket.

RECEIPTS AT PEAK

Gross gate receipts will total $168,000, the highest in the game's history.

Old-timers recall the early days of the East-West final. For instance Toronto Argonauts started off this East-West classic with a 23-0 victory over Edmonton in 1921 and the western club received expenses of $1,500, its share of the net proceeds.

Crowds in the '20s didn't total more than 15,000 for any game and in some years only a few hundred persons sat in the stands. In 1929, less than 100 persons were on hand at Hamilton when a snowstorm raged. That was the year that Hamilton Tigers of the Big Four defeated Regina 14-3.

The status of the final was challenged in 1951 by a group of Sarnia Ont., sportsmen who declared that the trophy had lost its identity They pointed out that the cup was for the "amateur" championship and that competing teams now are professional.

They didn't get anywhere.

Fans Too Enthusiastic

Hamilton Ti-Cats Driven Into Hiding

Canadian Press Staff Writer

HAMILTON (CP) — Ten years without a Grey Cup contender hasn't dampened the ardor of Hamilton football fans. In fact, pre-game fever has reached such a pitch here that even the Tiger-Cats are being forced to seek refuge from it.

The team will be taken to a secret hide-out immediately after tonight's final practice. They'll go directly from there to Toronto's Varsity Stadium a few hours before game time Saturday.

The move, prompted by a siege on players for Grey Cup tickets plus the need for a quiet night together as a team, caught this city in the midst of preparations for a monster send-off, planned for Saturday morning. The fans wanted to make sure their club was fired up for its meeting with Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

However, as one city official said Thursday night, "you can't very well wave the boys good-bye if you don't know where they are."

"But you can bet your bottom dollar there'll be a hot time around here Saturday night when they get back from Toronto with that old Grey Cup."

None of the Tiger-Cat executive would say where the team was going. Some said they weren't even sure if coach Carl Voyles knew the pre-game hideout.

VOYLES NOT TALKING

If Voyles had, he wouldn't admit it. His only apparent thoughts concerned his team's chances against the Western Conference champions.

"We're going to win Saturday," he confidently predicted. "That Winnipeg line isn't as hot as some guys think. They haven't been up against anything tough out west. As far as I'm concerned, that'll make the difference."

Voyles put his team through a light drill behind closed doors Thursday night. A chalk talk followed.

There are no serious injuries in the Hamilton camp, only a few aches and pains left over from last Sunday's Big Four playoff against Montreal Alouettes.

MINOR INJURIES

Bob Cross, 245-pound tackle from Kilgore, Tex., is suffering from a sore shoulder and Bernie Custis, the 25-year-old Negro back, has four bruises from the week-end game.

Cam Fraser, 190-pound end and kicking specialist, has a sore back. However, Thursday night's Canadian Rugby Union announcement allowing 27 players to dress for the game will guarantee him a place in the line-up.

OUTSTANDING PLAYER — Billy Vessels, 21-year-old halfback with Edmonton Eskimos, has been chosen the outstanding player in Canada this year; his first year in Canadian football. The hard-plunging backfielder wins the Canadian Schenley award and $1,000 in cash. Vessels, formerly of Oklahoma Sooners, won the Heisman trophy in 1952 as the outstanding college player in the United States. The 185-pound player also was chosen on The Canadian Press all-star Western Interprovincial Football Union team this year.

Name Vessels Player Of Year

TORONTO (CP)—Billy Vessels, 21-year-old hard-plunging back with Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, today was chosen Canada's most outstanding player of the year.

The dark-haired 185-pound all-star was given the Canadian Schenley Trophy and $1,000 cash award at a special pre-game Grey Cup final presentation. Sports writers and sportscasters from the senior football cities of Canada selected the backfielder, one of the mainstays of the Eskimo club this season.

The award to Vessels, one of the greatest players to come to Canada, was his second big-time honor in two years. Last year he was chosen the most outstanding player in American college football, he played with Oklahoma Sooners, and won the Heisman Trophy.

Votes of the selectors were weighted to give equal balloting strength to each city.

PARADERS LACK TICKETS

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg's high-stepping Blue Bomberettes and the city police pipe band are going to take part in the Grey Cup parade Saturday, but may not get inside Varsity Stadium to see the big game.

Jack St. John, chairman of the the city's participation in the parade, said he received a telephone call from Toronto advising that plans to get the groups in to see the game had hit a snag.

He said officials of the Canadian Rugby Union declined to let the two groups in without tickets. And they have none.

St. John said it was understood Bomber president Karl Slocomb and manager Scotty Kennedy are seeking a solution.

The Bomberettes are being sent to Toronto on funds raised by friends after the Winnipeg club declined to take them. The city is sponsoring the police pipe band.

ANNOUNCE CUP OFFICIALS

TORONTO (CP)—A record number of six officials will handle Saturday's Grey Cup final between Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Winnipeg Blue Bombers, it was announced by Norm Perry of Sarnia, Canadian Rugby Union president.

Paul Dojack of Regina will be the referee. Umpires are Seymour Wilson, Hamilton; Cliff Roseborough, Winnipeg, and Harry Bowden, Toronto; Judge of play, Tom Daley, Ottawa; head linesman: Bill Nairn, Winnipeg.

INCREASE LIMIT

TORONTO (CP)—Each finalist in Saturday's Grey Cup game will be allowed to dress 27 players, it was announced by Norm Perry of Sarnia, president of the Canadian Rugby Union.

In recent years, 24 players participated for each team in the Dominion football final. However, the CRU relaxed the ruling last year, allowing Toronto Argonauts and Edmonton Eskimos to dress 26 each.

It was reported that coach Carl Voyles of Hamilton Tiger-Cats and coach George Trafton of Winnipeg Blue Bombers had asked the CRU for permission to dress 28 players for Saturday's final.

MORE RECORDS FALL

SAN MATEO, Calif. (CP)—Willie Shoemaker ran his string of 1953 victories to 456 and trainer R. H. McDaniel saddled his 197th winner at Bay Meadows Thursday as the leading U.S. jockey rode three winners, one trained by McDaniel.

Both Shoemaker and McDaniel break a world mark every time they produce a winner.

Shoemaker's winners included Imbros in the $10,000 added feature for three-year-olds.

FANS LEAVE FOR FINAL

WINNIPEG (CP)—The second big wave of Winnipeg Blue Bombers supporters began rollicking toward Toronto by rail Thursday night on the last two Grey Cup specials taking western fans to Saturday's game.

Their departure brought to an estimated 1,200 the number of Winnipeg fans going east by train.

3 Western Rinks Unbeaten In Semi-Finals

HAMILTON (CP)—Three western Canada rinks, two from Quebec, one from the United States and one from New Brunswick were among the 16 unbeaten quartets as the semi-finals of the four-day bonspiel celebrating the Hamilton Thistle Curling Clubs' centennial ended.

Finals will be played tonight.

R. M. Allan of Kingston defeated C. J. Watson's Chicago entry and the Royal Canadian Curling Association rink skipped by R. E. Raguin, and will meet a Montreal quartet skipped by F. C. Rubbra. Winner of this match will meet either C. Rankin, Quebec, or L. T. Hill, U.S. Grand National Association, for the Thistle Past Presidents' Trophy.

Two western rinks skipped by H. Palmer of Calgary and H. Horeak, Saskatoon, were the other two unbeaten crews after Thursday's play. Palmer defeated a favored Hamilton crew skipped by A. Ross Tarlton, 13-7, in the morning, and came back in the afternoon to take an 11-4 decision over F. W. Bedard's Brookline, Mass., rink.

The Horeak foursome won over Dr. L. W. Sturgeon's Welland rink, and again over W. J. MacKey's Montreal rink. Scores were 14-1 and 8-5.

CHAMP—Juan Manuel Fangio of Argentina gives spectators the winning wink after taking the unlimited sports car division of the Pan-American road race in 18 hours and 11 minutes. The victory gave him $17,442 in prize money. He also won a $10,000 side bet with an Italian millionaire.

Remember When—

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Calgary Stampeders upset Ottawa Rough Riders 12-7 in the Grey Cup final at Toronto five years ago today, taking the Canadian football championship west for the first time in seven years. The young, light Calgary squad under coach Les Lear played errorless ball while their charging wingline caused several Ottawa fumbles.

CAHA Prepared Carry On Fight

VANCOUVER (CP)—Doug Grimston, immediate past president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, Thursday said the CAHA will carry its fight on hockey contracts to the Ontario Supreme Court.

In a recent decision by an Ontario county court, two former Ottawa Senator players won support in their contention that contracts signed with the team were not binding.

Grimston, who said he would leave Dec. 6 for emergency CAHA meetings in Toronto and Montreal, said "the county court judge at Renfrew, Ont., ruled that the courts do not recognize contracts with the CAHA. This decision could have far-reaching effects and may even reach the National Hockey League."

"We have decided to take our case to the Supreme Court."

Lily Lake School To Be Opened By H. R. Scott

LILY LAKE (ENS)—The official opening of the new Lily Lake School, S.S. No. 1, on the second concession of Smith Township, is being held tonight at 8.30 p.m.

The building, a handsome structure of brick and cement blocks and built at an estimated cost of $25,000 is to be officially opened by the Honorable Harold R. Scott.

Guest speaker will be W. C. Vander Burgh, Assistant Superintendent of Elementary Education, Department of Education, Toronto. There is to be musical entertainment and guest soloist will be M. J. Curtis, director of the PCVS Choral Club.

The new school's first teacher is William Anderson, who also taught three years in the old school.

For more than 85 years the old school served the community but as the school section's population grew it became evident that something must be done to accommodate an increased number of pupils which at the present time is about 45 from grades one to eight.

Should the need arise for more accommodation, there is a basement room which can be used.

For some time the school section wondered whether to build a new school or remodel the old one. Finally it was decided to build a new structure and the contract was let to Ross Greenly, a local contractor and work was begun about the middle of June.

Trustees of this chool section are William Steinkrauss, Everett Tully and Arthur Hancock with George Middleton being the secretary-treasurer.

It is interesting to note that Mr. Tully's grandmother was a former teacher at Lily Lake school.

It is hoped the new school which is fully equipped will serve community gatherings.

Actress Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Esther Mitchell Wilson, stage, radio and television actress, died Thursday. A native of Australia, Miss Wilson came to the United States in 1922. She later appeared in a number of Broadway productions, including "O Mistress Mine" and "The Corn is Green."

LOW BLOW—The sky was blue and the wind calm at Surfside, California, Wednesday, but violent, stormy seas weren't having any part of the quiet. Lashing viciously against the coastline, mountainous waves toppled two seaside homes in the water-soaked colony. Here a resident looks helplessly on as his frame house topples from its pilings and comes apart under the pounding waves.

Trinity WA Appoints Nominating Body

OMEMEE (ENS)—Trinity United church WA met at the home of Mrs. H. Graham. Mrs. H. Deyell presided.

The meeting opened with quiet music followed by a hymn and the Lord's prayer. Receipt of a card of appreciation from the family of the late Mrs. R. Poast was acknowledged.

The matter of supplying paint for the parsonage kitchen and a few other small requirements were referred to the parsonage committee. It was agreed to bear the expense of having the choir gowns cleaned.

The proposed turkey supper in connection with the re-opening of the church was postponed indefinitely since the re-opening date was going to be too close to Christmas.

A nominating committee, consisting of officers, group leaders and conveners of standing committees, was authorized to bring a recommended slate of officers to the December meeting.

Before leading her group in the worship program, Mrs. Graham gave a report of the group five rally at Bobcaygeon.

Fellowship was the worship theme. Scriptures were read by Mrs. B. Hyland and a commentary by Mrs. M. Finney. Mrs. Graham led in prayer and Mrs. T. A. McConnell and Mrs. Harold Laidley sang a duet The topic, presented by Mrs. S. D. Vaughan, dealt with some phases of Christian fellowship.

Mrs. Graham's group were hostesses for the social hour following the program.

Editor's Wife Dies In Crash

FLESHERTON (CP)—Mrs. Clayton Schaus, wife of the editor of the Chesley Enterprise, was killed Thursday night and three other Chesley residents were injured in an accident near here.

Mrs. Chris Ankenmann was in Markdale hospital in serious condition. Others injured were W. P. Krug and Mrs. E. J. Brown, wife of Dr. Brown of Chesley.

The four persons were returning from a trip to Toronto when the accident occurred.

Hospital attendants said Mrs. Ankenmann would be removed to Owen Sound hospital during the night.

Police said the automobile in which the women were riding collided head-on with a transport truck during a heavy fall of wet snow.

Conservatives Claim Moral Victory

LONDON (CP) — Government opponents in Prime Minister Churchill's Conservative party claimed a moral victory in Thursday night's vote in the House of Lords even though the government won approval of cabinet plans to introduce commercial television in Britain.

The government claimed to have beaten a rebellion in its own ranks as the peers defeated by 157 to 87 a motion opposing the government's scheme. A full debate on the issue now is slated for the House of Commons.

The Conservative rebels pointed to the fact that more than 100 peers abstained from the vote. Leading Conservatives in the House of Lords opposing the government plan include Lord Halifax and the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Britain's present TV and radio are a monopoly of the publicly-owned British Broadcasting Corporation. Under the new plan, some advertising would be accepted to earn money for improving and expanding the service.

CONSERVATIVE SPLIT

The hot issue over TV is one of three splitting the Conservative ranks. Rebels in the party also have opposed the government's stand against pension increases for First World War officers and its tentative decision to withdraw the British garrison from the Suez canal.

The political differences have brought Churchill under bitter criticism from some of his Conservative supporters just as he is preparing for the Big Three meeting in Bermuda.

The prime minister answered Labor questions Thursday about the meeting, telling the House of Commons he would seek a greater exchange of British and U. S. atomic secrets.

"Our desire," he said, "is that the exchange should be reciprocal on fair and equal terms and that is what we shall endeavor to pursue."

American laws now bar the joint atomic research that the United States and Britain carried on as partners in the Second World War.

Educational Campaign Exceeds Objective

KITCHENER (CP)—A campaign for expansion of educational facilities in three areas of the Roman Catholic diocese of Hamilton—Grant county, greater Hamilton and Waterloo county—has exceeded its goal of $1,100,000, Bishop J. F. Ryan announced Thursday. Total realized is $1,114,572.

Money collected in Waterloo county will be used for new buildings at St. Jerome's College and for planned expansion of the curriculum.

Shipping On Rhine River

BONN—A dispute over freedom of international shipping on the Rhine River is threatening to cause bad feeling between Holland and West Germany at a time when the two nations have been approaching closed economic cooperation as members of the Schuman Plan.

The argument is still being conducted in a relatively subdued tone. But one of the latest Dutch moves has been officially to accuse West Germany of adopting a "national" attitude rather than an "international" one and of violating a longstanding European treaty.

The cause of the trouble is a refusal by the Germans to permit Dutch and other foreign barges to pick up cargoes in one German town along the river a practice known in international shipping as small cabotage.

The occasion for this type of hauling constantly exists because the Rhine flows through or past four countries—from Switzerland past France, through Germany and Holland to the North Sea.

For example, Dutch ships with a cargo from Rotterdam to the German Rhine port of Duisburg near the Ruhr may want to carry a payload from Duisburg to the German Rhine city of Mannheim as they proceed upsteam to Basel in Switzerland for another cargo to take back to Holland.

This type of shipping was, in fact, extensively practised on the Rhine without interruption for many decades before World War II. The Dutch claim they are entitled to it on the basis of the Mannheim Acts of 1868.

In the Mannheim Acts, the Rhine's riparian states agreed on two main principles: freedom of navigation and equal treatment of the ships of the nations concerned.

Recently, the West Germans have begun to contend that the agreement of 1868 never meant that Germany gave away its right to reserve small cabotage to vessels under the German flag.

The Dutch say that Germany's stand on this matter amounts to a unilaterial repudiation of an international agreement.

At the last meeting of the Central Rhine Commission in Strasbourg, a body set up in the last century to operate the Mannheim Acts, the Dutch received the support of the other Rhine states.

The United States, which joined the commission after the war through its status as an occupation power on the Rhine, reportedly has not taken a definite stand one way or the other. Its representative at Strasbourg, counsel Leonard L. Badon, is understood to have suggested that the Dutch and the German stop sending official notes to each other and try to reach a compromise.

The American idea is that they should seek a working solution without engaging in a final, hard-fought battle on who is legally right about the Mannheim Acts.

The practical reason for the German refusal to grant the Dutch demands is that the internal German freight rates for German barges operating from one German port to another are fixed and are usually higher than those offered by the Dutch.

Thus, if the Dutch undercut the German bargemen the Germans would have to lower their prices. The German barges would then in turn, draw traffic away from the German state railways. This would cause all kinds of difficulties in the internal German economy.

The other interested states will not push the case for full Rhine freedom as hard as the Dutch. They do not have as much to gain. The Dutch fleet is by far the largest on the river since the war, bigger than the German flotilla and twice as big as that of the French, Swiss and Belgians combined.

The Netherlands government is considering whether to take the issue to the International Court at The Hague. For the moment it appears to be shying away from this step, since it would not be conducive to improve relations between the two nations.

One of the compromises that has been mentioned would be for the Dutch to agree to observe the German fixed freight rates.

Expect Cayuga To Sail Again

TORONTO (CP)—The cruise ship Cayuga is expected to sail again next summer on the Niagara run.

Ownership of the vessel passed from Canada teamship Lines to the Cayuga Steamship Co. Ltd., this week.

The Cayuga will resume a service which operated continuously between Toronto and Niagara from 1878 to 1951, when the CSL cancelled the cruises because of what it said was lack of business.

The new owners also plan metropolitan Toronto waterfront cruises.

Fides is directed by a board comprising fathers of the Holy Cross Society and laymen.

FREDERICTON (CP) — Extension of the mathematics program in grade 9 has been recommended by the New Brunswick curriculum committee. Members thought there should be more emphasis on algebra and possibly less on trigonometry.

Requests Baxter Change Statement

OTTAWA (CP)—A Liberal senator Thursday urged that Beverley Baxter, British member of Parliament, "repudiate" some of the sentiments he quoted in an article in a Canadian magazine.

Senator Joseph Bradette (L—Ontario) said during the throne speech debate that no outsider is entitled to criticize as Mr. Baxter did the election choices of Canadians "and certainly not in a spirit of flippancy which is unbecoming to a person well-versed in public affairs."

He referred to an article by Mr. Baxter in the Nov. 15 issue of Maclean's Magazine. In writing of Quebec province, Mr. Baxter said that "whatever headaches it presents to the rest of Canada, there is an undeniable fascination to Quebec."

Mr. Bradette also objected to Mr. Baxter writing that a friend told him "the French supply the babies and the prime ministers, the rest of Canada pays the taxes."

He said Mr. Baxter mentions that he cannot vouch for the accuracy of his quotation about prime ministers and babies but "it would have been so easy for him to have gone to the proper source of information."

"I hope he will find it possible to repudiate the sentiments he has quoted because they are fair neither to the province of Quebec nor to Canada as a whole because Quebec is an integral part of the Canadian federation and the Canadian nation."

He said Mr. Baxter's reference to Quebec's almost-solidly Liberal vote in federal elections is not one an "outsider" should make.

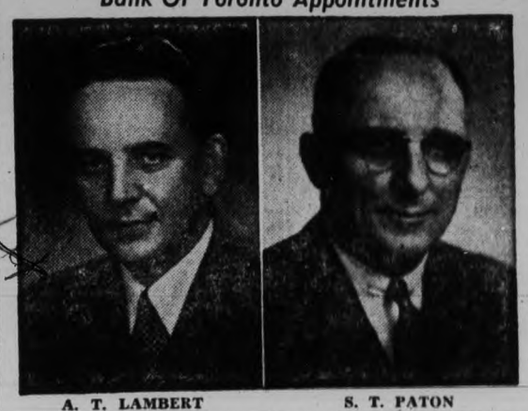
Driving Tips from R. W. Buyers, General Manager, Ontario Safety League.

HOW TO PASS PROPERLY

Pass only on straight, level road—never on a hill or curve or at an intersection!

- Be sure you have plenty of clear road ahead of car you want to pass.
- Pick up to passing speed (10 M.P.H. faster than car you are passing) before you move out into left-hand lane.
- Be sure no one is going to pass you. Then signal to driver ahead that you want to pass, by horn or flashing headlights.
- Don't cut back into right lane until you can see the car you have passed in your rear-view mirror.



1. Be sure of enough straight, level passing space.
2. Pick up to passing speed and don't cut back in too soon.

THE WAR MEMOIRS OF WINSTON CHURCHILL

THE END OF MY ACCOUNT

Frustration was the fate of this final Conference of "the Three." I have not attempted to describe all the questions which were raised though not settled at our various meetings. I content myself with telling the tale, so far as I was then aware of it, of the atomic bomb and outlining the terrible issue of the German-Polish frontiers. These events dwell with us today.

It remains for me only to mention some of the social and personal contacts which relieved our sombre debates. Each of the three great delegations entertained the other two. First was the United States. When it came to my turn, I proposed the toast of "The Leader of the Opposition," adding "whoever he may be." Mr. Attlee, and indeed the company, were much amused by this. The Soviets' dinner was equally agreeable, and a very fine concert, at which leading Russian artistes performed, carried the proceedings so late that I slipped away.

It fell to me to give the final banquet on the night of the (July) 23 (1945). I planned this on a larger scale, inviting the chief commanders as well as the delegates. I placed the President on my right and Stalin on my left. There were many speeches, and Stalin, without even ensuring that all the waiters and orderlies had left the room, proposed that our next meeting should be in Tokyo. There was no doubt that the Russian declaration of war upon Japan would come at any moment, and already their large armies were massed upon the frontier ready to overrun the much weaker Japanese front line in Manchuria. To lighten the proceedings we changed places from time to time, and the President sat opposite me. I had another very friendly talk with Stalin, who was in the best of tempers and seemed to have no inkling of the momentous information about the new bomb the President had given me. He spoke with enthusiasm about the Russian intervention against Japan, and seemed to expect a good many months of war, which Russia would wage on an ever-increasing scale, governed only by the Trans-Siberian Railway.

Then a very odd thing happened. My formidable guest got up from his seat with the bill-of-fare card in his hand and went round the table collecting the signatures of many of those who were present. I never thought to see him as an autograph hunter! When he came back to me I wrote my name as he desired, and we both looked at each other and laughed. Stalin's eyes twinkled with mirth and good-humor. I have mentioned before how the toasts of these banquets were always drunk by the Soviet representatives out of tiny glasses, and Stalin had never varied from this practice. But now I thought I would take him on a step. So I filled a small-size glass with brandy for him and another for myself. I looked at him significantly. We both drained our glasses at a stroke and gazed approvingly at one another. After a pause Stalin said, "If you find it impossible to give us a fortified position in the Marmora, could we not have a base at Dedeagatch?" I contented myself with saying, "I will always support Russia in her claim to the freedom of the seas all the year around."

On the morning of the 25th the Conference met again. This was the last meeting I attended. I take no responsibility beyond what is here set forth for any of the conclusions reached at Potsdam. During the course of the Conference I allowed differences that could not be adjusted either round the table or by the Foreign Ministers at their daily meetings to stand over. A formidable body of questions on which there was disagreement was in consequence piled upon the shelves. I intended, if I were returned by the electorate, as was generally expected to come to grips with the Soviet Government on this catalogue of decisions. For instance, neither I nor Mr. Eden would ever have agreed to the Western Neisse being the frontier line. The line of the Oder and the Eastern Neisse had already been recognized as the Polish compensation for retiring to the Curzon Line, but the overrunning by the Russian armies of the territory up to and even beyond the Western Neisse was never and would never have been agreed to by any Government of which I was the head. Here was no point of principle only, but rather an enormous matter of fact affecting about three additional millions of displaced people.

There were many other matters on which it was desirable to confront the Soviet Government, and also the Poles, who had obviously become their ardent puppets. All tihs negotiation was cut in twain and brougth to an untimely conclusion by the result of the General Election. To say this is not to blame the Ministers of the new Government, who were forced to go over without any serious preparation, and who naturally were unacquainted with the ideas and plans I had in view, namely, to have a "show-down" at the end of the Conference, and, if necessary, to have a public break rather than allow anything beyond teh Oder and the Tastern Neisse to be ceded to Poland.

However, the real time to deal with these issues was, as has been explained in earlier chapters, when the fronts of the mighty Allies faced each other in the field, and before the Americans, and to a lesser extent the British, made teihr vast retirement on a four-hundred-mile front to depth in some places of 120 miles, thus givign the heart and mass of Germany over to the Russians.

I flew home with Mary on the afternoon of July 25. My wife met me at Northolt, and we all dined quietly together.

Excellent arrangements had been made by Captain Pim and the staff of the Map Room to present a continuous tale of election results as they came in the next day. The latest view of the Conservative Central Office was that we should retain a substantial majority. I had not burdened myself unduly with the subject while occupied with the grave business of the Conference. On the whole I accepted the view of the party managers, and went to bed in the belief that the British people would wish me to continue my work. My hope was that it would be possible to reconstitute the National Coalition Government in the proportions of the new House of Commons. Thus slumber. However, just before dawn I woke suddenly with a sharp stab of almost physical pain. A hitherto subconscious conviction that we were beaten broke forth and dominated my mind. All the pressure of great events, an and against wihch I had mentally so long maintained my "flying speed," would cease and I should fall. The power to shape the future would be denied me. The knowledge and experience I had gathered, the authority and goodwill I had gained in so many countries, would vanish. I was discontented at the prospect, and turned over at once to sleep again. I did not wake till nine o'clock, and when I went into the Map Room the first results had begun to come in. They were, as I now expected, unfavorable. By noon it was clear that the Socialists would have a majority. At luncheon my wife said to me, "It may well be a blessing in disguise." I replied, "At the moment it seems quite effectively disguised."

In ordinary circumstances I should have felt free to take a few days to wind up the affairs of the Government in the usual manner. Constitutionally I could have awaited the meeting of Parliament in a few days' time, and taken my dismissal from the House of Commons. This would have enabled me to present before resignation the unconditional surrender of Japan to the nation. The need for Britain being immediately represented with proper authority at the Conference, where all the great issues we had discussed were now to come to a head, made all delay contrary to the public interest. Moreover, the verdict of the electors had been so everwhelmingly expressed that I did not wish to remain even for an hour responsible for their affairs. At four o'clock therefore, having asked for an audience, I drove to the Palace, tendered my resignation to the King, and advised His Majesty to send for Mr. Attlee.

I issued to the nation the following message, with which this account may close:

The decision of the British people has been recorded in the votes counted today. I have therefore laid down the charge which was placed upon me in darker times. I regret that I have not been permitted to finish the work against Japan. For this, however, all plans and preparations have been made, and the results may come much quicker than we have hitherto been entitled to expect. Immense responsibilities abroad and at home fall upon the new Government, and we must all hope that they will be successful in bearing them.

It only remains for me to express to the British people, for whom I have acted in these perilous years, my profound gratitude for the unflinching, unswerving support which they have given me during my task, and for the many expressions of kindness which they have shown towards their servant.

"THE DECISION of the British people has been recorded . . . I have therefore laid down the charge which was placed on me in darker times . . . It only remains for me to express to the British people . . . my profound gratitude . . ." Thus the old warrior was cast aside and Clement Attlee shouldered the responsibilities of the Prime Ministership. He is shown entering 10 Downing Street with Mrs. Attlee.

CORNWALL (CP) — Clive Williams, mechanical superintendent at the Cornwall Standard Freeholder since 1945, has purchased the Arthur Enterprise-News.

Mr. Williams leaves the Cornwall paper Saturday and takes over as owner of the weekly next Tuesday.

After starting in newspaper work in 1923 as a printers devil with the Orillia Times, now the Daily Orillia Packet and Times, and working in several Toronto printing shops, Mr. Williams came to the Freeholder in 1928. When the Freeholder amalgamated with the Standard, he became head make-up man.

After four years army service he returned to the Standard Freeholder as mechanical superintendent.

County Raises Bounty On Wolves $10

The wolf bounty in Peterborough county has been boosted $10 a pelt—from $25 to $35.

County council decided on this move Thursday after hearing Reeve Norman Wilson, of Burleigh-Anstruther, tell them that there is an unusually large number of wolves in the north country this year.

The extra $10 bounty will only be paid in the period between December 1, 1953, and February 28, 1954. During that same period fox bounties of $3 a pelt will be paid, as in previous years.

The motion for payment of the fox bounties was proposed by Reeve James Humphries, of Asphodel township, and Deputy Reeve Walter Sloan, of Dummer township.

"Tell me," said Reeve William C. Grant, of Lakefield, gravely, "has a census been made of the fox population in Peterborough county? Are foxes still a menace to chickens?"

"Oh, yes," said Reeve Stewart Clysdale, of Dummer, "they're killing lots of partridges and small game, too."

WOLVES IN NORTH

"In the north country it's the wolves that are a menace," said Reeve Wilson. "They're thick this year. In our district an additional wolf bounty would be more appreciated."

Reeve Rork Ferguson, of Norwood, observed that nowadays poultry are kept in a protected run; they don't roam about as they used to do. He was reminded by Reeve William E. Griffith, of Belmont-Methuen township, that geese can't be kept shut in.

The upshot of this amicable discussion was that council voted to pay the $3 fox bounty and the $35 wolf bounty in the three-month period. Last year the county paid out $1,800 on fox bounties and $600 on wolf bounties.

Here are the requirements: To collect the bounty from the county clerk and treasurer the applicant must have killed the fox or wolf in Peterborough county in the specified period. The pelt must be thoroughly cleaned and dried before it is brought in for the bounty; raw hides will not be accepted.

Wolf pelts may be brought into the county clerk's office during regular hours; fox pelts will only be accepted on the first Thursday of each month — December 3, January 7, February 4 and March 4.

Foxes will be marked in a shed behind the county courthouse. Experience has shown that the county office takes on too gamey a smell if the pelts accumulate in there on bounty days.

Children Faint From Hunger

GLACE BAY, N. S. (CP)—The miners' assistance committee here is investigating reports that several children of unemployed coal miners have fainted in school because of lack of nourishment.

Chairman Malcolm O'Handley told members of the committee: "It's a matter of bread and butter, and clothing, too." He said many cases "of dire need" have been reported.

About 1,200 men were thrown out of work in June when the big No. 1-B pit here closed for mechanization. Since then the return to work has been gradual.

The Rev. S. McDowell, assistance committee secretary, said $4,300 had been contributed and all had been used. "We had to tell them there is nothing left for them now," he said.

Safety Drive Fails

LONDON (Reuters) — Deaths from traffic accidents during Britain's Road Safety Week, Oct. 17 to Oct. 26, totalled 158, 18 more than in the same period last year, when no special precautions were taken, it was announced Thursday.

"Referred" Clinics Offer Citizens TB Check-Up

An average of 20 persons a week profit from city health department, provincial department of health and Peterborough County TB Association sponsored X-ray chest clinics. Held bi-monthly at the city's two hospitals, the clinics give free service to ex-sanatorium patients, new cases and those who have associated with TB suspects.

The clinics serve a two-fold purpose in the combating of tuberculosis; surveillance and prevention. X-rays are provided free for any cases which are referred to the clinics by private practitioners, the medical officer of health, or persons who have been in close contact with those afflicted with the disease, including their families, friends and co-workers or fellow students.

The Peterborough Department of Health conducts the program in co-operation with the provincial department, the radiologist of which inspects X-ray plates and films, and the local TB Association which pays for the operations.

PRE-NATAL CARE

In addition to those who have been suspected of exposure to the disease, all women undergoing pre-natal treatment in the city are urged to be X-rayed for TB in early stages of pregnancy.

A local health department nurse supervises operations of a chest clinic while the actual photographic and processing end is conducted by X-ray technicians at either hospital.

Clinics are held at the Civic on the first Wednesday of each month; at St. Joseph's, the third. Up to four clinics a month have been held. They attract an average of 40 each day.

The Peterborough County Tuberculosis Association, made up of interested citizens devoted to stamping out the disease, relies on the annual Christmas Seal sales to provide the necessary funds for the clinic's support.

Last year, a total of 1,395 X-rays were taken in the clinics. Costs were estimated at one dollar for most and $2.50 for some and probably totalled in the vicinity of $2,000.

They are often described as "referred" clinics because those having their X-rays taken are referred there by medical men.

INVITED TO ATTEND

Once a medical practitioner has informed the medical officer of health that his patient is suspected of the disease, the patient is sent a notice by the department, inviting him or her to attend. Often it works the other way around; the MOH informs a practitioner his patient is suspected of being in contact with the disease and the practitioner recommends the X-ray be taken.

Attendance at a referred clinic is never compulsory nor is it limited to persons of a certain financial status. It is purely voluntary and anyone, regardless of means, can attend if over 21 and if issued a notice.

In some cases, permission is given for a person to attend the clinic even if there is no family physician's recommendation or verified contact with the disease.

Once a patient has been released from sanatorium care, he or she is asked to return for an X-ray every three or six months, or every year as the MOH decides.

Approves Stand Canada Takes

LONDON (Reuters)—The Times says today that the Canadian government is doing its best to avoid being dragged into "the rough waters of United States internal policies."

"But the slope on which it stands remains steep and slippery," the paper adds in an editorial on the American request to interview former Russian cipher clerk Igor Gouzenko about Soviet spy rings in North America.

The Times goes on to say that the Canadian government has "obviously gone as far as it can to meet an embarrassing request and it has sought, with evident skill, to change its original loose and dangerous form."

But, The Times contends, if Senator William Jenner (Rep. Ind.) demands that his Senate internal security sub-committee should set its own conditions for a meeting with Gouzenko and decide what part of Gouzenko's testimony should be published, "then the Canadian government would have an unquestionable duty to call a halt."

"It would then be clear that the (Jenner) group is seeking not information for security reasons, but publicity for personal reasons."

Four Killed

MANILA (Reuters)—Four persons were killed Thursday in a gun battle with bandits trying to hold up a bus in Cavite Province south of here. A woman passenger, a policeman and two of the bandits were slain.

Make New TV Tube

SCHENECTADY, N. Y. (AP)—The General Electric Co. Thursday said it is producing a new transmitting tube that would increase by 25 to 50 per cent the coverage area of low-power television stations. Grady L. Roark, marketing manager for the GE tube department, said the 25,000-watt tube is the most powerful commercial model capable of operating on all 13 standard TV channels.

Red Trade Jumps

WIESBADEN, Germany (CP)—West German exports to Communist countries reached 30,000,000 marks ($6,700,000) in October, an increase of 6,200,000 marks over September, the West German statistical office said here Thursday. Imports declined negligibly.

County Gives High School $500 For Agriculture

County council are giving the Norwood district high school board a grant of $500 because agriculture is taught in the Norwood high school.

The county in which a high school teaching this course is situated is required by Ontario law to pay a $500 annual grant. The decision to pay it was reached Thursday, the last day of the November session, after it was established to the whole council's satisfaction that Norwood high school had a specialist teacher.

But not all the councillors were happy about it.

While conceding that the high school is teaching an agriculture course, some of the councillors said that it is unfair to levy the whole county for the money. Some of the municipalities are not in the district, and at least two school sections—Percy township and Hastings—are not in Peterborough county at all.

These Hastings county ratepayers, then, who are sending their children to the Peterborough county school, are not subject to their share of the $500 levy. The Hastings pupils, in effect, would be getting the advantages of the agricultural course for nothing.

"I don't think we have any alternative but to pay the $500," said Warden Ernest Leeson, of Havelock. "But I don't think it's fair that these other outside ratepayers should be exempt."

The law doesn't cover the situation where school sections in the same high school district, but in different counties, are concerned.

The motion was introduced by Warden Leeson, of Havelock, and Deputy Reeve Walter Sloan, of Dummer township.

Stirling Pupils Receive Awards

STIRLING (ENS)—The annual commencement exercises of Stirling High School were held in Stirling community hall on Wednesday night.

The program opened with a piano interlude by Misses Ruth Mumby and Margaret Spencer followed by the presentation of special prizes by Principal J. L. Good assisted by J. B. Belshaw, representative of Centre Hastings High School Board.

A Student Dominion-Provincial Student Aid Bursary in Grade XIII general course (value $100.00) was awarded Marion Asselstine and Mary Roblin was the winner of the Hon. J. R. Cooke scholarship (value $50.00).

The senior choir, under the direction of D. H. Garrison, with Miss Margaret Spencer as pianist, rendered a group of special numbers.

The Grade IX music class, under the direction of Miss A. Nickle were heard in several selections.

Rev. W. F. Banister, OBE, BTh, BD, DD, minister of Chalmers United church, Kingston, was guest speaker and was introduced by Mr. J. L. Good.

The contract calls for completion of the job within two years with cost paid by the Dominion government.

Artist Dies

TORONTO (CP) — J. Sydney Hallam, 55, one of Canada's top painters and commercial illustrators, died Thursday. The City of Toronto gave one of his paintings to the Queen when she visited here. His portraits of Ontario persons prominent in education hang in many of the province's schools.

QUEEN IN JAMAICA—A gracious smile appears on Queen Elizabeth's face as she steps forward to shake hands with Jamaican officials upon her arrivel on that island.

Great Lake Shipping Slows Before Increase

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — Great Lakes shipping is slowing in anticipation of the first seasonal increase in insurance rates, effective Nov. 30.

An insurance company spokesman said insurance rates will be approximately doubled when the first increase goes into effect. More increases take effect Dec. 5, 9 and 12.

Insurance rates on lake shipping do not depend on weather as in the case of ocean-going vessels travelling the St. Lawrence. Grain boats will go into storage loaded whenever possible because of the shortage of elevator space.

Send Canadian Pictures To Stockholm

LONDON (CP)—A group of 22 Canadian-painted pictures of Canadian cities has completed its London showing and moved on to Stockholm.

More than 6,000 persons saw the 22 paintings and 28 sketches in the first eight days of the two-week public exhibit, opened by Field Marshal Earl Alexander, former governor-general of Canada and an amateur painter himself.

Lord Alexander prefaced is speech with a reference to his "deep affection for Canada and the Canadian people," adding that Canadian cities might be separated by vast distances, but that each was marked by a similarity typically Canadian.

EXPRESS TREND

The paintings on view, he said, expressed Canada's trend in industrial and cultural development.

In a review of the exhibit, The Times singled out paintings of Saskatoon and Three Rivers, Que., for commendation.

Coodridge Robert's view of Saskatoon is a "pleasant and slightly post-impressionist landscape." It says Jacques de Tonnancour's work of Three Rivers is "executed with an agreeable freedom of handling."

The Seagram collection touches Amsterdam and Madrid after Stockholm and returns for a Canadian tour next spring.

Soldiers Coming Home

OTTAWA (CP)—A big home-for-Christmas draft of Canadian soldiers from Germany will land at Halifax next Tuesday, army headquarters announced Thursday. The group of 35 officers and 700 men of the 27th Brigade will arrive on the liner Neptunia and board trains shortly afterward for their homes across Canada. All have served between one and two years with the brigade.

Non-Confidence Motion Won By Government In First Test Of Strength

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has won its first test of strength in the new Parliament.

The Commons Thursday night voted 156 to 36 to defeat a CCF motion of non-confidence in the government. Liberals, Progressive Conservatives and two Independents voted against the motion, supported by the CCF and Social Credit parties.

The Social Credit party promptly presented its own non-confidence motion.

The two motions centred attention on the issue of free enterprise in the throne speech debate, with indications the two-week-old debate may end next week.

WANT HEALTH INSURANCE

The CCF motion criticized the government for giving no promise of a national health insurance scheme in its outline of legislation in the speech from the throne. However, it amended a Progressive Conservative non-confidence motion already before the House by deleting the statement that Canadian welfare depends on free competition.

Opposition Leader Drew said his party opposed the CCF motion as "pure and unadulterated socialism."

The Social Credit amendment, presented by leader Solon Low, again amended the Progressive Conservative motion by substituting the words "private enterprise" for "free competition." It also urged the government to accept payment in sterling for Canadian exports.

Mr. Lowe said he would not try to say what the Progressive Conservatives meant by free competition. But the Social Credit party believed in the worth of private enterprise as giving individuals the right to follow any pursuit not forbidden by law on the ground that it violates human rights.

Canada should be willing to settle trade debts with other countries by accepting "the only thing that they may have—their own currency." Within Canada, it purchasing power were kept at a high level, many problems of surplus production would disappear.

Mr. Drew said the CCF motion showed that party was "right back to the Regina Manifesto. . . to the old idea that you must do away with the profit motive, place everything under the control of the state and substitute for the judgment of thousands and hundreds of thousands of individuals the judgment of. . . these men who know how to solve everything."

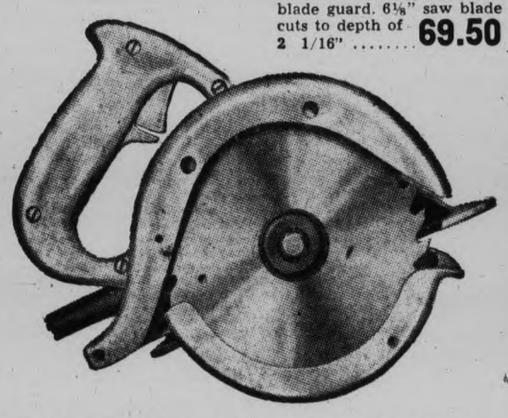
Mr. Drew said the Progressive Conservatives supported national health insurance "just as strongly" as the CCF. But it would not be "beguiled" into voting for the CCF motion which was "the most reactionary proposal of all."

Tourist Committee Calls Witnesses

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate tourist committee decided Thursday it will call its first witnesses of the parliamentary session next week, probably Tuesday.

Opening evidence likely will be heard from the Canadian Association of Tourist and Publicity Bureaux and from D. Leo Dolan, director of the Canadian Travel Bureau.

The committee agreed with a suggestion of Senator W. H. Dennis (PC—Nova Scotia) that the government agency be asked to provide year-by-year figures on its spending and the returns from it since the bureau's inception.



Australian Cruise

OTTAWA (CP)—The cruiser Ontario, one of Canada's mightiest warships, will sail for Australia early next year on a three-month training cruise. A navy spokesman said details of the cruise have not been made final but that the visit will coincide with that of the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh.

REAPPOINT OFFICIALS

Four county council appointments on district school boards were made Thursday. All of them are reappointments. Gerald Buchanan of Havelock is the county's representative of the Norwood district high school board; Erie Pearson of Smith on the Lakefield district high school board; John Kitney of Otonabee on the Peterborough district high school board and also on the Peterborough board of education.

SEAL REMINDER

Forty people from Peterborough city and county are in sanitariums with tuberculosis, Reeve Dick Stewart of Otonabee township reminded county council Thursday as the Peterborough County TB Association gets under way with its annual Christmas seal campaign. In 1952, 20,000 people in the city and another 4,000 in the county took advantage of the free chest X-ray service.

County Nominations

Peterborough isn't the only municipality in this district having a nomination meeting today. Six of the 15 municipalities that make up the Peterborough county council are also having nominations. Afternoon meetings are being held in the five townships — Otonabee, Chandos, Galway - Cavendish, Burleigh-Anstruther and Belmont - Methuen. Havelock will have an evening meeting. It is expected that all of the incumbent reeves will be in the running again, with the exception of Reeve Dick Stewart of Otonabee.

Police To Buy Radio Hook-up Will Pay $3,974

In compliance with a department of transport directive, Peterborough's police commission will purchase new radio equipment for the police station and vehicles. After reviewing four FM radio tenders, commissioners accepted a CGE bid of $3,974, the only quotation under $4,000.

Meeting Thursday, members of the commission considered a summary of the tenders, opened two weeks ago, which were received from GCE, Canadian Marconi, Rogers Majestic Electronics Ltd., and RCA Victor.

The summary, prepared by city clerk E. A. Outram, listed CGE's price as $3,974; Canadian Marconi's, $4,793; Rogers Majestic's, $4,883, and RCA Victor's, $4,156. Pye Canada Ltd. submitted a quote of $2,970 for AM equipment.

Mr. Outram, however, pointed out in a report of a radio engineer's meeting: "FM is preferable to AM for land mobile service because its instantaneous gain control feature minimizes flutter caused by motion of the mobile units through a standing wave pattern."

REDUCES STATIC

He didn't attempt to explain this but did point out FM (frequency modulation) reduces static and interference found in AM (amplitude modulation) to a large extent.. (Home radios are mostly AM sets.)

The Rogers Majestic bid of $4,883 was for a main transmitter and receiver located in the police station. It could be remotely controlled instead from the police station with the main set located in the garage (the way CGE's will operate) for $5,227.

RCA-Victor intended to install an antenna on the Civic Building roof for $4,156. For $5,381, it could be installed on the ground beside the garage.

CGE's bid was for the remote control unit, a ground antenna 70 feet high, three car and one motorcycle two-way sets and the main transmitter-receiver.

Additionally, an allowance of $400 will be made on the old police FM set. The radio equipment will be altered to meet civilian defence requirements and then given to the Peterborough Civil Defence Committee as a present so the local committee can have its own communication system.

Fifth Victim Of Break-in Gas Station

Sandy's Store Also Robbed In Series Of Thefts In Week

The series of petty restaurant and gasoline station break-ins which started early this week continued Thursday night. This week's fifth small breakin was discovered early today at W. V. Drury's service station at the corner of Charlotte and Rubidge Sts. It is the third station to be entered.

Sometime late Wednesday night or early Thursday morning, the fourth breakin took place at Sandy's Surplus Store on George St.

The burglars' loot from the Drury station amounted to $20 in change and small bills while at Sandy's they discovered $20 also, again in small change, and took two watches.

On Tuesday night thieves entered the new garage, owned by Bill Dorrington, and the adjoining restaurant, operated by G. W. Shepherd, on Highway 7, three miles east of the city. On the same night burglars also broke into the Trade Winds garage on Highway 28 at the city outskirts.

The total loot from the five breakins during the past three nights amounts to $60 ($20 was taken from Shep's Grill), a half pie, half a ham and the two watches.

OFFICE SHIFTED

Donald Barringer, 308 Welsh St., a mechanic at the Drury garage discovered the breakin at 7 a.m. today when he opened the garage. Since the main station is being torn down for a more modern station, the office this week was shifted to the old restaurant which hasn't been in use for nine months.

Barringer entered the temporary office by the back entrance. While going into the front office, he tripped over a case of pop, laying in the hallway floor. He tried to find a flashlight on the desk but it had been knocked to the floor by the intruders.

He went through in the darkness and down the stairs to turn on the lights.

Once back upstairs he wondered why the case of pop was on the floor. He then noticed the cash register had been forced and was empty. Turning to telephone the police, Barringer found a side window, leading to a small alleyway, open.

Preliminary investigation by police constables, Dennis Smith and Jack Wilson, revealed the nail holding the 24-by-48-inch window closed had been bent back, allowing the burglars to raise the window easily.

The thieves could work unnoticed at the window. The alley beside the station was narrow and dark, shielded from the street by a picket fence and Murray's confectionery.

Later today the detective department, headed by Inspector of Detectives, William (Bud) Clarke, took over the investigation.

TILL EMPTY

The owner of Sandy's Surplus store, Sidney (Sandy) Sandler, found his store entered when he opened for business early Thursday morning. He saw the till open and empty. He called the police and Detective Douglas Farthing investigated. Today city police are following up a lead from Oshawa.

Entry to the store had been made through an unused door on the second floor. The thieves had apparently climbed to a one-storey addition at the rear of the store, walked along the roof. They pried off the wood from the lower part of the door, cut through the insulation on the inside and squeezed through the small opening.

Once inside they emptied the till of the $20 in change and small bills, and took the watches.

ANOTHER TILL EMPTIED—The week's fifth breakin, the third at a service station, happened sometime Thursday night at W. V. Drury's garage at Charlotte St. Burglars entered the temporary office through a side window and emptied the till of $20 in small change and bills. Donald Barringer, 308 Welsh St., a mechanic, discovered the breakin when he arrived for work at 7 a.m. Barringer (above) found the till open and empty on the office desk.

Henry T. Hickey Contractor, Dies; Ill Eight Years

An illness of eight years that cut short his career as a building contractor, ended in the death of Henry T. Hickey, 683 Gilmour St., Thursday afternoon at St. Joseph's Hospital. He had been there hardly two days for a medical re-examination.

Mr. Hickey's last work was in July, 1945, when a sudden debility forced his retirement. From 1910 until that midsummer he had completed a long series of contracts in both southern and northern Ontario. He gained his experience with Malcolm McIntyre and his brother, the late A. A. McIntyre, and also their thoroughness and enterprise.

Mr. Hickey was still in his teens when he decided to venture into business for himself, and he was only nineteen when he took a contract for an enlargement of the post office in Peterborough. Incidentally, he was superintendent of the construction of the Hunter St. bridge for the contractors, Russell-Townsend Co., Toronto.

WORK WIDESPREAD

The scope of his work and territory is indicated by his building of the Court House at Cobalt, the Flavelle cold storage plant and Horn Brothers' knitting mill at Lindsay; hospital at Bowmanville;

HENRY T. HICKEY

a job for the CGE in Peterborough. His life during his 35 years of activity was a succession of construction of homes, churches, schools and industrial buildings. The Martin residence on Monaghan Road, years ago, one of the finest in the city, was built by Mr. Hickey.

His own house at the west end of Gilmour St. was one of the first in the realty advance across Monaghan Road, and into what was then the township with many acres of vacant and unserviced land. Mr. Hickey was occasionally engaged as an expert valuator of property, and one of the last of those calls on his knowledge was during the determining of the value of the Hatton property when it was bought by the crown for Wartime Housing Ltd.

BORN IN CITY

Mr. Hickey was born in Peterborough 65 years ago, son of the late P. J. Hickey and his wife, Annie Ryan. He was educated here, was a life-long member of St. Peter's Cathedral parish, a member of its Holy Name Society, Knights of Columbus, and for a time was a trustee of the Separate School Board. He leaves his wife, the former Katherine O'Brien, and daughters, Mrs. Ed. G. Hiland of Peterborough, Misses Barbara and Maureen Hickey at home; one son, the Rev. John J. Hickey; his sister, Miss Kathleen Hickey of Peterborough and brothers, Herbert, Francis J., William J. and Butler A. Hickey; and grandsons, Edward and John Hiland.

The funeral of Mr. Hickey will be Monday at 10 a.m. from his late home, Gilmour St. west, to St. Peter's Cathedral for requiem high mass. Burial will be at St. Peter's cemetery.

Minimum Land Veterans Must Buy Should Be Cut

The area of land that veterans must buy under the provisions of the Veterans Land Act should be reduced from the present two acres to two-fifths of an acre, county council have agreed. A resolution stating this was received from Simcoe county and Warden Ernest J. Leeson and Reeve Dick Stewart of Otonabee successfuly moved that the Peterborough council support it.

The land bought by a veteran must be held for 10 years. Reeve Stewart said that often the veteran works in the city and does not work all his land; so weed patches grow up.

Other matters dealt with in the legal and legislative committee:

Received a resolution from Burlington advocating that the speed limit in school areas be reduced to 15 miles an hour.

No action was taken on an Elgin county resolution that would request the department of highways to make toll roads of the super highways in the province. "A backward step," was the way Warden Leeson summed it up.

They concurred on a Simcoe county resolution asking for a change in the Assessment Act as it affects woodlots. Simcoe County claim that a revision this year keeping assessment stationary on woodlots—regardless of whether the crop or trees was growing or had just been stripped off—would result in unfair and inequitable assessment. (This may be a misinterpretation because the department have stated that while assessment will remain stationary under these circumstances, it will not be stationary if the whole municipality is reassessed.)

WOULD ABOLISH CHARGE

Concurred in a Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry resolution which would abolish the charge of 50 cents a day the Ontario hospital, at Woodstock, charged to municipalities for their indigent patients being taken care of in the hospital. The motion was by Warden Leeson and Reeve William E. Griffith.

No action was taken on resolution from Dalhousie and North Sherbrooke townships that proposed a new way of paying sheep herders who suffered loss when their sheep were killed by dogs. Under the township plan payment would be reserved until all the claims were in at the end of the year and then the dog licence tax would be divided up among the claimants. If there was a surplus it would be carried over into the next year.

Stolen Articles Found By Police

Clothing and some furniture, stolen from the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Rae McWilliams of Chemong road and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Norman, 435 Hillcrest St. have been recovered by city police. The breakins occurred three weeks ago.

Police have also arrested an Orillia district man, Kenneth M. Mitchell, in connection with the breakins. He appeared in city court this week charged with possession of some of the stolen articles.

Inspector of Detectives, William (Bud) Clarke said some clothing and radios had been recovered.

The McWilliams home was entered while Mr. and Mrs. McWilliams were away on the deer hunt. They returned to find their home entered and ransacked, a fur coat, a radio, toaster, movie projector, camera, suitcase, 24 pairs of socks, a dinner ring, and $200 in quarters taken.

The Norman house was entered while they were away in Toronto. Similar articles were taken and this led police to believe both breakins were done by the same persons or persons.

Treasurer Predicts Surplus Of $46,500 For City By End Of Year's Business

Lower Expenditures, Higher Revenue Chief Reasons for Black Figure If Nothing Unexpected Happens

Officials of the treasurer's department at city hall have forecast a surplus of more than $46,500 in the city treasury at the end of the year. In a statement of actual revenue and expenditure for the first 10 months of the year, together with an estimate for the remaining two months, City Treasurer A. S. Couper and City Auditor Edward Humpage predicted revenues of $3,161,456.41 and expenditures of $3,114,800.12 would produce a surplus of $46,656.29 for 1953, compared with the $259.42 surplus estimated when the mill rate was struck earlier in the year.

It was pointed out that, so far as amounts estimated for the last two months of the year were concerned, the statement had been prepared from the best available information. "Provided that no large unforeseen expenditures are made during this period," the facts on which the estimate was based "should be substantially correct".

The predicted surplus was largely a result of lower expenditures than had been estimated for certain items and substantially higher revenues from parking meters, police court fines, parking tickets and payments in lieu of taxes from Ontario Hydro and the utilities commission than had been estimated.

MISCELLANEOUS

The biggest drop in expenditures came in the "miscellaneous" bracket, a catch-all item designed to allow for unexpected but necessary spending. Actually, city council, in striking the mill rate, added an extra quarter mill, about $10,500, to bring the rate to 64½ mills. But allowance was made for other items that might crop up in the course of the year.

For example, when the city paid $40,000 for property between King and Sherbrooke streets to be used as a parking lot, the treasurer's department at first marked it up as a miscellaneous item to be paid for out of current revenue. Later, however, council decided to issue debentures to pay for it.

Another unexpected windfall came in September in the form of a $7,296.18 cheque from the utilities commission to cover the excess amount the city had paid for street lighting in 1952. Last year the HEPC raised the rates for street lighting and, as a result, the city this year budgeted for an extra $5,000 to meet last year's deficit. Later in the year, however, the HEPC granted an adjustment on the 1952 rates. Consequently, more than $12,000 of the predicted surplus consists of these two amounts.

STAFF CHANGES

Spending was also cut in the health department, where staff changes throughout the year are expected to result in expenditures of $49,668.66 instead of the $57,252.30 estimated early in the year.

The special rate for Civic Hospital was levied to produce $225,600.56, but it is estimated now that this item will entail expenditures of only $219,377.08.

These estimated savings in expenditures will be counterbalanced to some extent, it is expected, by extra spending by the parks department and for garbage collections. Although $65,000 was budgeted for by the parks com-

City Organist Appointed To Montreal Church

Christopher Gledhill for the past five years organist and choirmaster of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church has accepted appointment as organist and choirmaster of St. James' Anglican Church in Montreal. He will be leaving the city at the beginning of the year.

St. James the Apostle is one of the larger Anglican churches in Montreal, and is situated at the corner of St. Catharine and Bishop Sts. It has a four-manual Cassavant organ, a little larger than the organ in St. Paul's Church.

In addition to his St. Paul's duties Mr. Gledhill has been organist and music master at the Grove School, Lakefield. For the last two and a half years he has directed the Coventry Singers of Peterborough and been their conductor during their radio programs, their concerts, and their prize-winning music festival entries. He has given musical assistance to the Peterborough Summer Theatre.

During his Peterborough time, he has published two folk-song arrangements for choir and a juvenile piano piece, also his own composition.

At present Mr. Gledhill is vice-president of the Peterborough branch of the Ontario Registered Music Teachers' Association, a director of the Community Concerts, and a committee member of the Drama Festival Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Gledhill and their four young daughters expect to take up residence in Montreal in the middle of January, or as soon thereafter as suitable accommodation can be found. Mr. Gledhill's first Sunday at his new organ will be January 17.

ELMCROFT ADEEN MAY, grand champion at the Peterborough Holstein championship show in 1952, was sold by George R. McLaughlin, Oshawa, for $2,700 to S. B. Roman, King, at the Sale of Stars last week at the Royal Winter Fair. She was one of the six animals comprising the East-Central Ontario herd that won the Interprovincial herd title at the Royal. She was also fourth in the four-year-old dry cow class. The Royal Holstein herd trophy was taken by western Ontario breeders for the last four years in a row. The sale set a new auction average of $2,128 for Holsteins in Canada.

Annual meeting of Peterborough Federation of Agriculture will be at Norwood Wednesday, December 9. The place of meeting was not definitely known Thursday night. Directors were trying to arrange for the High School recreation room.

The guest speaker will be Lloyd Jasper of Bruce county, second vice-president of the Ontario Federation, who comes highly recommended by those who have heard him.

CHEESE EXHIBITION

Blocks of Cheddar cheese will be door prizes at the British Empire Dairy Show at Belleville, December 1 and 2. Annual meeting of the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' Association will coincide with the dairy show, except in place. The show will be in the market room at the city hall, and the Cheese Makers' at Hotel Quinte.

FARM FORUM NOVEMBER 30

The subject for Monday night's Farm Radio Forum broadcast and discussion is "The Struggle for Men's Minds." It evokes the ideological division of the world today in opposing ways of life, Communism, implanted mostly by fomented revolution on the one hand, backed by military power, and on the other the democratic ideals embraced in the four freedoms.

Discussion is proposed in two questions: What steps should Canada take to show Asiatic countries that our attitude to them is friendly and non-aggressive? What can we do to convince others that the democratic way of life is better than the Communist?

The report of the Westwood Forum discussion last Monday on "Urban-Rural Tensions" at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Lake, with A. Patterson leader, one suggestion was: "Relations might be improved by making facts about farming better known instead of maintaining the close-mouthed, independent attitude that is traditionally associated with farmers, and conversely by becoming better acquainted with the problems of town people. This can only be implemented by more association between the two groups in social and organizational life. The words "hick" and "city slicker" are rarely applicable or applied now as the two groups approach each other in educational, financial and living standards, and no doubt in the future there will be as much intermingling in the social and business worlds as there is now in town between proprietors and dependents in other businesses."

On the question Nov. 16, of edible oils and the challenge of dairy substitutes, Forums generally approved the Ontario legislation, "and should be strictly enforced," as urged in the report from Central Smith Forum. They met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Reynolds with eleven persons present. "Our Forum thinks the oleomargarine act is good protection, and we should like our member of the Legislature to know we are strictly in favor of these acts being continued in force."

Importance of the dairy industry in Ontario extends more broadly than the public realizes, according to most Forum reports. "If dairying were seriously injured, all other phases of farm industry would suffer greatly" as expressed by Lily Lake at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Middleton.

Donegal Forum said: "Dairy farming makes use of a tremendous amount of grain and concentrates, also manpower, and if it were seriously injured by imitations, the grain surplus would be tragic for our country. We have wheat stored now and can't sell. If rural buying power is cut off, the urban population is bound to suffer." Donegal were guests of the Arnold Stenvensons.

Forums agreed that the public harly realizes the nutritional values of dairy products, and recommended the continuation of the advertising policy that is now becoming established. Pine Grove succinctly proposed: "Forget about the other fellow's product and boost the worth of our own goods by more advertising." Braden Bullock was leader at the home of Elwood Northey.

Some Forums mentioned that farmers have been so long producing dairy products, essential in health sustaining diets, that they have been taken as matter of fact. For that reason means of publicity have to be adopted to tell the story as effectually as possible.

Twenty-two were present at Stewart Hall Forum meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Oliver.

Fairview (Smith) at the home of Wesley Bell included this recommendation: "The vegetable oils interests are still in business and will search for a loophole through which to operate. No part of any dairy product should be allowed to be used in an imitation or substitute."

Free And Open Market

Commenting on assertion by Wellington Jeffers, Toronto daily financial editor, that farm supports are wrong and should be abolished, the monthly bulletin of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture remarks that this is an old and weary tale to farmers.

"To be logical," the bulletin reference says "Mr. Jeffers, and those who hold the same belief, should also be asking the automobile industry to come out from behind its years-old tariff wall, and market their products in the free and open market, discarding also the present ban on importation of used cars from the U.S. Or, to be asking the textile industry to discard all its protective measures. Or the gold industry to discard its $10 million annual subsidy from the federal government. Or, the working man to discard his union labor wage contracts, his minimum wage laws and his unemployment insurance, and market his labor in the free and open market."

High Protein Hay

Wesley Wilson of Emily township, winner of the reserve championship in the May exhibits at the Royal Winter Fair, entered a bale of alfalfa. The best bale was shown by Edward Gardhouse of Unionville. At the Spring Show meeting here this week, Mr. Wilson said his alfalfa was August 2nd cut. "It kept its color by being dried in the loft," Mr. Wilson said.

The protein content was 18.5%, highest at the Royal show, and moisture 13.2.

The Egg Price Drop

Marketing of too many eggs in Canada and the U.S. at the same time brought about the seasonal drop in prices during the last two months.

Weekly marketings by the end of October were 10% above their volume a year ago as shown in the report of the poultry products marketing section of the federal Department of Agriculture. The Bureau of Statitstics indicates that their estimate showed five per cent more layers in September than in that month last year. This increase was more pronounced in the prairie provinces than elsewhere in Canada.

By the end of October weekly egg receipts were 26% higher than in the corresponding period a year ago.

The report continues: "At the time Canadian producers were offering an increase of 10,000 cases a week at 75 cents, American producers increased their offerings. Canadian exports declined then from more than 4,000 cases a week to fewer than 100 cases. It was not until the Canadian market softened to a point where exports to the U.S. could be resumed that the market in this country showed some strength."

If prices during the next three months conform to the pattern of recent years, the price level in the U.S. will exercise a strong influence on the Canadian market to the end of January.

After that time, price in Canada will be determined by the combined effect of the incentive to store shell eggs, the demand of breakers for breaking operations, price levels in the U.S. and the immediate consumption in the domestic market.

Dinner At Newcastle

Durham Junior Farmers have sponsored for Friday night (Nov. 27) a turkey dinner at Newcastle Hall. Their winning livestock judging team at the Royal Winter Fair and four provincial 4-H Club champions will be honored. There is also a public speaking competition and dancing.

Durham Junior Farmers Winning Team

Ed. Summers (right), Bowmanville, agricultural representative in Durham, with his county team that retained possession of the Jeffery Bull Memorial Trophy in the inter-county livestock judging competition at the Royal Winter Fair. Left to right: Jim Brown, assistant agricultural representative; Howard Trewin, Burketon; Bev Gray, Port Hope, RR 1; Sam Turner, Bowmanville RR 4. Twenty-nine Ontario county teams competed. Durham finished in front with a total score of 2607 of a possible 3,000 points. Bev Gray was awarded a gold medal, and the team also gathered in a second trophy. Mr. Summers has a long established reputation among the agricultural representatives of the province as a producer of top ranking junior judging teams. Bringing home trophies to Durham is no longer a novelty, and it is generally conceded in these annual competitons that the Summers team is the one to beat.

East-Central Ontario Herd Winner At Royal

The victory of the East-Central Ontario sextette of Holsteins in the interprovincial herd class at the Royal Winter Show last week should bring fresh encouragement to the breeders of the black and white cattle in this district. They were placed first in a notably strong class of six entries.

These selected herds for the purpose of the show were: one each from Manitoba and Illinois, and the four fieldmen's sections of Ontario.

The East-Central Ontario district comprises the counties from Simcoe to Frontenac whose breeders bring their county Black and White Day winners to Peterborough in October for the final championships of the entire area. Winning the interprovincial herd honors at the Royal is a distinction that is reflected on the whole twelve counties whose breeders have been making an annual success of their own championship show.

The competing herds at the Royal, each consisted of six animals, senior and junior bulls; aged cow, four-year-old cow, senior yearling and calf.

The composite entry from East-Central Ontario was as follows: Senior bull: "Illehee Sovereign Supreme" owned by H. C. McCloskey, Queensville, York, a former champion at Peterborough.

Junior bull: Don Haven R.A. Diplomat from the herd of C. J. Cerswell, Beeton, Simcoe; another champion at the Peterborough assembly.

Aged cow: Helen Pitje Posch Illehee from the Massey-Harris farm at Milliken, York.

Four-year-old cow: Elmcroft Adeen May from the George R. McLaughlin herd north of Oshawa (Ontario county). She was grand champion female at Peterborough in 1952.

Senior yearling: Lynn Baroness Sovereign, owned by E. Oyler of Port Perry and Roy Ormiston of Brooklin, Ontario county. She was junior champion in Peterborough, October this year.

The heifer calf: Cedarbrook Beth Monogram owned by Stephen B. Roman of King, York.

TRIBUTE TO J. E. NELSON

Of this class and the placing of the herds, John Powell of Brantford commented: "Breaking the strangle-hold which the West-Central Ontario district has had in this competition for four straight wins, the trophy this year went to the very uniform group from the East-Central Ontario district of fieldman G. E. Nelson of Brooklin. Strategy entered into this win as the reserve grand champion bull was used to head the group rather than the grand champion, in the interest of uniformity."

The grand champion at the Royal was Rockwood Rocket Tone of the Quinte District Cattle Breeders Association, now finishing a great year of victories, particularly in Toronto and Chicago. He is a former East-Central Ontario grand champion.

"Gerald Nelson deserves the congratulations of the breeders of his district," Stan Wood remarked to the Examiner. "That herd last week made a great impression around the ring. They were not only uniform in type, but also in color, being nearly all black. Breeders of our district were delighted."

The East-Central championship show is built on all the exhibits, not simply on the class winners. The strong entries have been coming from the west side of the district, but the honors have been fairly well distributed, and improvement in quality generally was seen this year.

SALE OF THE "STARS"

The story of the sale of Holstein stars at the Royal has already been told. Thirty-five head averaged $2,128 for a gross $74,500, and top price of $8,000.

The high price was for the first prize two-year-old bull, Glenafton Nugget, owned by J. J. E. McCague of Alliston, Simcoe, one of the East-Central district breeders. It was bought by D. F. Mereilles of Sao Paulo, Brazil.

H. C. McCloskey's Illehee Sovereign Supreme sold for $2,600 to Rosendo Aja of Mexico City.

Second prize senior yearling at the Royal, Lynn Baroness Sovereign, brought $2,800 to Roy Ormiston and Ed Oyler, Brooklin and Port Perry.

G. H. Walker, Port Perry, received $3,200 for his second prize dry two-year-old. George McLaughlin sold Elmcroft Adeen May for $2,700; an A. D. Fleming estate cow, of Reaboro (Victoria) went for $1,300 to Pickard and Clark of Alberta. Luis de Ruder of Buenos Aires paid $1,000 for a female from the herd of Orvan Chambers, Wilfrid (Ontario county).

The general impression that stands out from Holstein affairs at the Royal last week is the new proof that the East-Central breeders are in excellent company when they show at the Peterborough championships.

Relapse Of Minister

Recurrent illness of Hon. F. S. Thomas, provincial Minister of Agriculture, has been inspiring recent rumors that he may have to resign his office. John Robarts, MLA, London, has been mentioned as a possible successor.

Mr. Thomas became ill during the session of the legislature last spring and was unable to resume duty until midsummer. He briefly attended the opening of the Royal Winter Fair, but is now back in hospital for an indefinite period. He expends a great deal of energy in his work, and that habit of concentration has been taking a toll on his health.

Milk Producers Dec. 4

Peterborough Milk Producers are holding their meeting Friday, Dec. 4 at 8 p.m. This is the occasion of a visit from the association's secretary, V. S. Milburn of Toronto.

Farm Implements Valuable Capital

Some farmers appear to overlook the capital value of their machinery, said George McLaughlin of Elmcroft Farm at the Central Ontario Spring Show meeting here Tuesday.

Crops are promptly rushed to cover, adequate care is given livestock, but occasionally there is evidence of neglect of farm machinery as if the equipment, in those instances, was given a secondary rating in value.

This was one of the comments in a lively discussion on the topics chosen for the Show panels next March. Rust and other effects of neglect of good implements can bring about depreciation that can become a serious item in farm economy. Mr. McLaughlin said one of the points of discussion in the panel could begin with the question: "What machinery do I actually need for the efficient operation of my farm?" That comes home to every farmer. Is he investing in the most serviceable machines for his program? Is he over-buying?

On the subject of cash crops, expressions favored a gradual shift to soy beans and grain corn, for instance, and also if any move in that direction is undertaken. Mr. McLaughlin interjected the idea "that our responsibility (in this section of the province) should put stress on more economic production of the crops we are producing now."

That was virtually a question, and later Mr. McLaughlin said: "I've been interested in this matter of soy beans and thinking about it, and I'm just quoting some of the arguments that were thrown at me."

As to income, Ed Summers of Bowmanville spoke of some Durham soy bean yield of 35 bushels to the acre; and incidentally that market was up and down in Chicago this week.

Harold Detlor of Stirling said he thought the beans could be a cash crop in the cheese factory area, and also grain corn. Soy beans, he said, were easily harvested, not too hard to handle, and "there's no great expense to seed."

"We're almost into a panel discussion right here," said A. O. Dalrymple, Stirling.

The meeting of about 30 farmers, interested in the Spring Show agreed that their subjects for the two panels next March promised to be helpful to farmers in facing this year's trends.

That is a brief bit of preview of what may be expected, providing the panels are as competent as they were in the two previous shows. In the next three months, the executive should be able to secure the type of men they want, including practical farmers and their experience.

TAKING MANHATTAN BACK? — New Yorkers must have thought the old gag about giving Manhattan back to the Indians had come true when they saw Chief Paul Horn riding his horse amid Park Avenue traffic. The chief, a leader of the Mohawk tribe at Hogansburg, N.Y., was just on his way to the International Children's Bazaar.

Trailer Owners Seeking To Be Taxed

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario section of Canada's 16,000 trailer-home owners is asking to be taxed.

The Canadian Trailer Coach Association this week submitted a brief to the provincial government concerning an improved system of licensing the owners of rolling homes.

Existing legislation, according to the brief, treats them as transients and trailers as tourist conveniences. However, 98 per cent of trailers in Ontario are used for year-round living.

Most of these trailer homes are owned by young couples centred in the industrial sections of Ontario.

OBJECT TO CHILDREN

Several municipalities have reported ratepayers object to "trailer families" sending their children to schools without contributing to building upkeep.

The association suggests legislation based on an act passed in Michigan in 1939. At least 40 of the United States have legislation for the more than 2,000,000 persons in that country living in trailers.

COPS SEEK RAISE

KITCHENER (CP)—Members of the Kitchener police force Thursday asked police commission for a $200-a-year raise in pay for all ranks. Basic pay for first class constables is $70.79 a week and top-ranking officers receive $99.

FAIR WARNING—Here's one highway sign few motorists will ignore. It's one of the many warnings erected in the neighborhood of Kansas State Prison at Lansing, Kan. Light, reflecting from the sign, makes the message visible after dark.

Squadron Planned

OTTAWA (CP)—Formation of an auxiliary aircraft and control squadron at Windsor, Ont., early next year was announced Thursday by RCAF headquarters. It will provide training facilities for approximately 300 airmen and airwomen, the announcement said.

Two Countries Tangle Over Titles

CANBERRA (Reuters) — The Australian government has denied reports that the Republic of Ireland is proposing to withdraw its ambassador because of a dispute over titles.

Tension has developed between the two countries because Australia wants to accredit ambassador-elect Paul McGuire as "ambassador to Southern Ireland," or "to the Irish Republic." The Republic of Ireland has refused to accept either, and insisted that McGuire be called "the ambassador to Ireland."

Australia claims the title must clearly not apply to northern Ireland, which still owes allegiance to the Queen.

MAY BREAK OFF RELATIONS

The Melbourn Herald reported Wednesday that the two nations might break off diplomatic relations over the dispute.

External Affairs Richard Casey said in Parliament Thursday he has no idea when the differences will be resolved.

He denied that there is any suggestion at present to reduce the Australian representative in the Irish Republic from ambassador to consul-general.

Irish officials in Dublin have declined to comment on the dispute. They appear to think it is a matter for Canberra to decide, and one that time will probably solve if left alone.

Central Place For Hangings

TORONTO (CP) — Establishment of a central place for hanging was urged Thursday by Dr. Malcolm McLean of Welland in a brief presented to the Ontario legislature's select committee on reform institutions.

Dr. MacLean, who recently resigned after serving as jail surgeon at Welland for 17 years, said he was pleading for this central hanging point so that reform institutions should not become houses of death.

Relating his experiences during six hangings at the Welland jail, Dr. MacLean said he was appalled at the effect upon law officers who had to be witnesses.

Each time, a pall of depression fel lover the staff, he said. A similar state of depression affected the inmates while everyone awaited the day of execution.

No Discrimination Board Ruling

TORONTO (CP)—The chairman of the Ontario liquor licence board says the board may issue written regulations forbidding discrimination because of race, creed or color by operators of licensed premises.

Judge W. T. Robb Thursday told the joint labor committee to combat racial intolerance, if discrimination were discovered, the proprietor in question would be summoned to show why his licence should not be suspended or cancelled.

The committee appeared before the board to charge a Toronto athletic club with discriminatory practices. Testimony indicated Negros had been refused admittance on several occasions.

E. A. Goodman, solicitor for the club, denied the charges and the hearing was indefinitely adjourned to allow the committee to obtain more witnesses.

UP TO SNUFF — They say goats will eat just about anything. This one, owned by Harry Cochran, of Fish Lake, Ind., has a craving for snuff. In addition to relishing the strong tobacco powder. "Billy" will sometimes chew up a cigarette as dessert. Here Eva Cochran, 17, a Mill Creek, Ind., high school student, gives the goat his snuff ration. He snatched the cardboard snuff box out of her hand and gulped that down, too. Peering from a safe distance is her nephew, three-year-old Drryl Johnson.

Blame British Imperialism For Troubles Of Sudanese

CAIRO (OFNS)—Fears are growing that the passions and propaganda engendered by the general election campaign now in progress in the Sudan may endanger the country's stability.

The National Unionist party, developing Egypt's campaign to get rid of British influence, is everywhere preaching the doctrine that the Sudan is backward because it has been kept in that state by British imperialism and colonialism. The aim of this propaganda is to defeat the rival UMMA Party, which leads the independence movement, and which is described as "the tool of British imperialism" because in the past it has cooperated with the British administrators.

The latest NUP pamphlets describe the Sudanese people as "groaning for 50 years under the yoke of British imperialism". While the NUP leaders were languishing in gaol, and suffering martyrdom in the cause of freedom the Umman leaders were rolling in wealth under British protection. Woe, says the pamphlet, to the protector and the protected! The country will know how to deal with traitors who sell the people to the colonizer.

The attack on Britain was, of course, to be expected — Egypt, which financed the unionist movement from its inception, has promised that it will secure the evacuation of the British from the Nile Valley and so has bought Sudan's interest in the campaign.

EFFECT ON AFRICA

The danger, as some Sudanese and outside observers see it, lies in the effect this kind of propaganda is having in the Sudan itself, and the repercussions it may have on Africa as a whole.

The effect is most noticeable away from the politically active centre at Khartoum, the capital of Sudan, and Omdurman and particularly among the 3,500,000 negroes of the pagan, equatorial South. There, propaganda suggestions that the Southern tribes have been kept in their backwardness and misery by the wicked British and their Umma Party tools touch a deep fear which natives have of the white people—and for the native, the Mediterranean Eyptian is a white as much as the Briton. A British business man, recently returned to Khartoum from the South, says that for the first time—but on three separate occasions—he was told by young partly educated negroes to "get out, you white man—white man no good."

When these people are told that the British must go because they have kept them a backward people, it stirs them to envy of the benefits they know of in Northern Sudan—benefits which it is beyond the power of the NUP, or of anyone else, to give them within a foreseeable space of time. With the limited objectives of a political campaign in mind, the NUP has stirred up feeling among Sudanese African natives in much the same way as Communists have stirred up native feeling elsewhere in Africa.

HAD BALANCE OF POWER

If the propaganda were to end with the elections, it would not matter so much; but as it happens the 22 representatives of the South will, in a Chamber of 97 almost certainly hold the balance of power; and the campaign to win their support is likely to go on indefinitely.

Developments are being closely watched by neighboring African territories such as French Equatorial Africa and, in particular, the Belgian Congo. Belgian newspapers have commissioned despatches from the Sudan during the elections, which they consider one more threat to the "peace" of Africa.

There is a free movement of people across the Sudan's frontier with the Belgian Congo, and in the latter territory the native is taught to expect the unyielding rule of Belgium until eternity. It is the "peace" of complete domination, in which such ideas as those current in the Sudanese elections are classed as "dangerous thoughts".

To the Belgian colonist, elections in a Southern Sudan tied to a more advanced North are a foolhardy experiment which will breed trouble. Whether or not they do will depend on the politicians in Khartoum.

Plan New Church

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—The new Anglican parish of St. Columba was "set aside" Thursday night during a brief ceremony conducted by Bishop Walter Bagnall of Niagara in a suburban Grantham township school near where the church is to be constructed early next year. Bishop Bagnall confirmed the appointment of the Rev. Paul A. Moore as rector of the new mission.

Combines Defended By CMA

GRANBY, Que. (CP)—Court decisions under the Combines Investigation Act do not take into consideration whether or not the public has been damaged, J. D. Ferguson, of Rock Island, Que., president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said Thursday night.

In an address prepared for delivery to the Granby branch of the CMA, he termed the basis for such decisions "outmoded and unrealistic."

Mr. Ferguson said several groups of manufacturers charged with operating illegal combines have pleaded guilty and been fined, and this had led to a widely-held conclusion that business, especially what is known as big business, has been weighed in the balance and found wanting in honesty and in respect for the law and the public.

ADMIT TECHNICAL BREACH

"What are the facts? One is that when the groups of business men pleaded guilty, it did not mean, for a moment that they were admitting they had done anything detrimental to the public.

"All they admitted was that they had committed a technical breach of the law as it is at present interpreted, which they believe is not the way Parliament intended it to be interpreted.

"They believe Parliament intended that agreements by manufacturers which result in lessening of competition should be held to be illegal only if they are shown to be detrimental to the public.

"As the courts have interpreted the law, however, it is not necessary to show that the public has been damaged. Once a certain amount of lessening of competition is proved—and the necessary amount is nowhere specified—then agreement is held to be illegal regardless of whether the public is damaged, unaffected or even benefitted."

INCAPABLE OF TASK

Mr. Ferguson said a principal reason why courts "refuse to consider whether the public has been damaged . . . is that they say they are not competent to do so. . . .

"Therefore, they fall back on the bland assumption that if such and such an amount of lessening of competition is involved, the public will necessarily suffer. No warrant for any such assumption can be found in the statute. . . .

"While the object of all agreements may be said to be to balance productive capacity and market demand, and thus ensure stability and avoid ruinous 'peaks and valleys,' no two agreements are alike in the methods adopted to achieve the end in view.

"Consequently, it is impossible to generalize about them and lay it down as axiomatic that if a certain amount of lessening of competition is proved, the public will suffer."

OLD-TIME THINKING

The criterion applied by Canadian courts in the last 20 years, Mr. Ferguson stated, "is a survival from the days when the classical economists taught that the ideal and only guarantee of economic health was 'perfect competition' everywhere in the business world, and that if competition were imperfect, this was a sign that monopolists were at work.

"Present-day thinking is that 'perfect competition' is a meaningless abstraction. If we could get it, which we can't, it would mean that the prices of automobiles or overcoats would vary from day to day as shoppers went searching for bargains; and that, as a result, the sort of corporate budgetting and planning on which stable business and stable wages depend, would be impossible.

A NEW CONCEPT

"'Perfect competition' might work among traders who operate on their own with a few employees and few long-term commitments; it makes no sense in a world of manufacturing plants representing a heavy permanent investment, on whose stability depends the security of thousands."

A number of present-day economists, said Mr. Ferguson, have replaced "perfect competition" with "workable competition" as the kind both possible and desirable.

This concept, he continued, "distinguishes sharply between practices which are monopolistic in their effect, and practices which make possible the ultimate benefits of lower price and better quality to the consumer."

IMPERIAL BANK OF CANADA EXECUTIVES ADDRESS 79th ANNUAL MEETING

BUSINESS PROSPECTS REMAIN GOOD

L. S. MACKERSY, M.C.
President

J. S. PROCTOR
General Manager

ASSETS AND DEPOSITS AT ALL-TIME HIGH

Toronto, November 25:—Mr. L. S. Mackersy, President, Imperial Bank of Canada, addressing the Bank's 79th Annual Shareholders Meeting today, stated that business prospects remain good for the foreseeable future. Mr. Mackersy pointed out that "The present high level of prosperity offers the world a golden opportunity to cut tariffs and remove exchange restrictions under the most favourable circumstances." Mr. Mackersy continued in part:—

The increase in output of goods and services comes as a welcome reward for large capital investments. Relatively, Canada's development since the war has been greater than that of the United States.

Mr. Mackersy stated that, in contrast to the early postwar years when the reduced labour forces and shorter working hours of peace-time retarded growth in the output of goods, "In the last year or so, however, there has been a sharp increase in production per person."

Continuing, he noted with satisfaction that despite these great changes, commodity prices have recently been stable. Increased volume of output coupled with the high level of imports has tended to act as a stabilizing influence on the rising level of investment expenditure.

Referring to the current rise in real wages, he observed that "Average earnings continue upward and this time the rise has not been accompanied by an increase in the cost of living."

Commenting on consumer credit, Mr. Mackersy sounded a mild warning with regard to the sharp rise in the purchase of durable goods on credit. "Though the proportion of consumer credit to sales is not yet above pre-war ratios its sharp upward trend will bear watching."

Mr. Mackersy pointed out that to augment Canada's labour force during the next few years, it is desirable to increase the influx of immigrants. This is particularly necessary to meet Canada's expanding labour requirements at a time when Canadian recruits to the labour force will be below normal due to the low birth rate of the 1930's.

Referring to export trade, he noted with satisfaction that "Prospects for a gradual relaxation of trade and exchange restrictions seem brighter than they were a year ago."

The fall of world raw commodity prices has made sterling and dollar prices more competitive and, to importers in many countries, buying in British and European markets is fast becoming an attractive alternative to purchasing in the United States. "The United Kingdom, by freeing one trade after another from government controls is giving an important lead in the movement to liberalize trade without waiting until sterling can be made fully convertible."

Commenting on Canadian wheat exports, Mr. Mackersy expressed the view that, although some apprehension has been evidenced about large wheat stocks in Canada and the United States, the situation should be kept in its proper perspective. The large stocks on hand are the result of a series of remarkably high yields rather than of lost markets and at the present level of export, a short crop or two could very quickly make the surpluses disappear.

Noting that the Canadian economy has adjusted itself to the new levels of defence and of productive investment expenditure, the President referred to the government announcement of its intention to facilitate financing of house building by permitting chartered banks to lend on mortgages on new houses. "While not seeking such an extension in its operations, your Bank will do its best to manage this new means of access to the capital market by prospective home-owners so that it will work out to the general advantage."

In forecasting business prospects, Mr. Mackersy pointed out that while some indication of pessimism is apparent in the business mood in the United States, this need not be reflected in Canada. As long as the consumer maintains his spending at a high level commensurate with high income, and with no prospect of severe cuts in defence spending, Canada's continued prosperity would seem to be assured. With a vast amount of "catching-up" to be done in many fields of investment, the President felt that there would seem to be no good grounds for apprehension and that for the immediate future, business prospects will remain good.

The President further noted "That Canada's ability to adapt production and trade to changing markets quickly, yet with a minimum of disturbance, does not just happen. It is the result of the industry of labour, the resourcefulness of management and government policy."

Mr. Mackersy concluded "A frame-work of relatively stable conditions has thus been created which encourages private business to put forth the full productive effort of which it is capable. Apart from some catastrophe abroad these favouring circumstances should continue."

Toronto, November 25:—Mr. J. S. Proctor, General Manager, Imperial Bank of Canada, commenting on the 79th Annual Statement of the Bank said in part:—

The seventy-ninth Annual Statement of the Bank shows Total Assets of $623,149,121. This is an all-time high and an increase of $36,609,000. After depreciation, taxes, contributions to Staff Pension Fund, and appropriations to Contingency Reserves, Net Profits amounted to $1,402,000. From Profits $840,000 has been paid in dividends at the rate of $1.20 per share and $210,000 has been provided for payment on December 1st, 1953 of a bonus of 30c per share to shareholders leaving $352,000 to be added to Profit and Loss Account increasing the balance in that account to $1,567,000. From this balance $1 Million has been transferred to the Bank's Reserve Fund which now amounts to $12,000,000.

Deposits are also at an all-time high at $575 Million. Non-interest bearing deposits increased $15,755,000 and savings deposits are up $24,058,000, a total increase in deposits by the public of $39,813,000. Government of Canada deposits increased $7,453,000 and Provincial Government deposits decreased $12,027,000. Investments not exceeding market value total $196,838,520, a decrease of $25,706,584 from a year ago. Total loans amount to $300,186,000 an increase of $53,234,000, and Current Loans at $285,797,000 indicate the Bank enjoys its full share of the commercial business of the country. Bank Premises Account stands at $8,746,000 an increase of $498,000 and we now have 234 branches in Canada, opening nine new branches and closing two during the year.

Expressing his appreciation of the loyalty and support of the Staff, Mr. Proctor stressed that Banking is a strenuous, exacting business but provides a future full of opportunities for young men with ambition and the spirit of enterprise in their veins.

Industrial production during the past year, stated Mr. Proctor, has again been substantially increased. However, this further improvement has not been uniform throughout, with some lines showing a decline in sales. The pressure on certain elements of industry, notably textiles, has been further emphasized and because of importation of goods at unrealistic values, management is faced with serious problems, and labour some curtailment of working hours.

Mr. Proctor, continuing his review of general business conditions, stated that retail trade continued at high level, reaching an all-time record. It is unfortunately true that despite present prosperity, sales against future payment have increased faster than sales for cash.

The most notable feature of recent developments has been the apparent stabilization of the Canadian price structure and, barring unpredictable changes, no further price advances are expected or likely. The foreign exchange market has been extremely active and Canada's experience has confirmed the wisdom of our Government in allowing free play of market operations to govern the exchange value of the Canadian dollar. Since abandonment of Foreign Exchange Control in Canada, the exchange market with respect to the Canadian dollar, has performed its proper function of a barometer rather than a control of Canada's external business.

Speaking of the 1953 Western wheat crop, Mr. Proctor stated that it is one of the best ever produced—both in quantity and quality. The carryover of 363 million bushels from last year's record crop with the addition of 564 million bushels of new wheat will present, however, a selling task of considerable magnitude.

Production of lumber in Canada was up moderately during the year and the pulp and paper industry, with some few exceptions, continues to operate at or near capacity during 1953. The development of power continues on a major scale in all provinces and the accomplishments in this field are noteworthy.

While no spectacular discoveries of new oil fields have occurred during this year, the number of smaller new discoveries in the three Prairie provinces is still imposing. The Alberta Petroleum and Natural Gas Conservation Board has indicated Alberta now has an exportable surplus of natural gas and various proposals for orderly and sensible marketing of this surplus are under careful observation and scrutiny at this time.

The mining industry as a whole, despite serious strikes and labour problems in Northern Ontario, and at mines elsewhere, has continued its outstanding record of achievements in the development of our mineral resources. This industry, backed by free enterprise, has been and will continue to be one of the main bulwarks of our economy and our defence.

Mr. Proctor concluded that "As a Bank we continue to have abundant faith in Canada, in the Canadian businessman, and in our many friends from south of the border and from abroad. We look to the future with quiet confidence and the accumulated knowledge and experience of seventy-nine years of commercial banking."

Rhee, Chiang Hold Parley In Formosa

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Syngman Rhee and Chiang Kai-Shek, two Asian leaders bonded in hatred of communism, today began a series of talks apparently aimed at tightening their unofficial alliance against the Reds.

The South Korean president flew secretly to this Nationalist Chinese fortress only two days after conferences with top United States officials in Korea.

Chiang and Rhee clasped hands warmly at the door of Rhee's borrowed transport, which belongs to Gen. John Hull, United Nations Far East commander.

Rhee said his trip was a friendly visit but added "something may be brought up for discussion."

STARTS SPECULATION

The surprise visit started immediate speculation they may join in a new anti-Red bloc.

Observers here expected the talks would touch upon at least two key points:

1. The possibility of Nationalist Chinese troops being sent to South Korea if that war is resumed.

2. The problem of what to do with some 14,600 anti-Red Chinese prisoners-of-war in Korea who are due to be freed as civilians in late January unless they choose to return to communism.

The meeting undoubtedly will draw a stream of attack from the Chinese Reds.

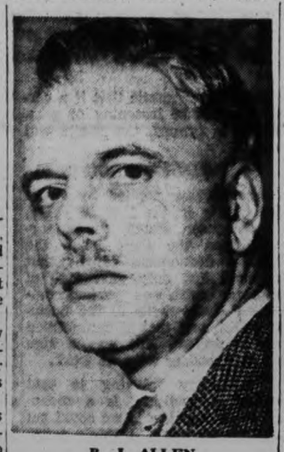
The plans were a well-kept secret in both Korea and Formosa.

FIRST REPORTS

Rhee slipped from his capital of Seoul. The government announced the departure two hours after he left, and the news reports from Seoul were the first word here that he was coming.

Despite all the hush-hush, the U. S. obviously knew of the projected talks, since Hull loaned Rhee his private four-engine transport for the flight.

The navy had disclosed earlier that Rhee conferred Wednesday with the four top U. S. military officials in Korea aboard the battleship Wisconsin at Inchon, Korea.



Rhee was accompanied to Formosa by Foreign Minister Pyun Yung-tai and Ambassador Kim Hong Il.

The importance of Rhee's visit was emphasized by Chiang's personal greeting—the only other persons he has met at the airport in four years on this island have been Gen. MacArthur and vice-president Nixon of the U. S.

President Hopes War Over For U.S.

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—President Eisenhower sat down to Thanksgiving dinner with his family Thursday night and voiced the fervent hope that American boys will never have to go to war again.

"We are very, very thankful," the president said happily.

The dinner scene, with a 39-pound turkey on the table, was the trophy room of the Augusta National Golf Club. With the president were Mrs. Eisenhower, their son and daughter-in-law, Maj. and Mrs. John Eisenhower, and the three grandchildren. The president's son recently returned from Korea.

Eisenhower wore the green jacket which denotes membership in the golf club, and a bright yellow tie with the club emblem —a map of the United States and a golf flag marking Augusta.

Chilly 47 Degrees Grips Miami Beach

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The temperature dipped to a chilly 47 degrees in Miami today to make it the coldest Nov. 27 in the 43 years the weather bureau has been keeping records. Previous low for the date was 49 in 1936.

Elsewhere in Florida temperatures were even lower. Tallahassee reported 32, Daytona Beach 38 and Tampa 45.

Too Late Now To Change Plans At Gannon's

It's too late now, county council have decided, to change the planned overhead bridge at Gannon's Narrows for a swing span. And at this stage a switch would be too costly.

At the November session of county council, which ended on Thursday afternoon, several letters were read from people who enjoy sailing and say that their hobby will be curtailed because of the height of the overhead bridge to be built at Gannon's Narrows. The bridge will be 23 feet high, not enough clearance for tall-masted yachts.

A petition is said to be circulating among the Stony Lake Cottagers' Association to press for a swing span. Previously Warden Ernest J. Leeson had informed Kenneth Junkin of Lakefield that the matter had been "fully discussed" last March and since then the public have had "ample time" to register objections, if any.

REPORTED

Devolopments were reported in the news columns of the Examiner, Warden Leeson said, and the propect was advertised in case anybody wanted to object. Plans have now been completed for an overhead bridge, and a contract signed for putting in the rock fill.

County Engineer Jack Kean said it would be costly business to change now. There would have to be a new contract for rock fill. The $99,000 given by the department of transport for the overhead bridge would have to be returned and the county would have to build a low level bridge, costing perhaps $80,000, to let the surplus rush of water through the narrows during the spring.

The alternative constructions were these, said Mr. Kean:

1. The department of transport would give the county $99,000 toward a swing bridge (they have already done so on the understanding that this first plan is going through).

2. The department of transport would hand over no money but would build a swing bridge, on the shallow Harvey township side, leaving the county to build a low-level bridge on the Ennismore side to let through the surplus water.

Ewart Marston, department of highways district engineer, said that he didn't want to be drawn into any controversy, but he pointed out that the contract with Armstrong Construction for rock fill is now signed, the plans have been made and approved, and it would be "embarrassing" to switch over now.

"It would be costly in the long run,' he said.

STIRLING TRIUMPHS

MARMORA—(ENS)— Stirling juveniles defeated Marmora 3-2 in a keen fixture here on the new artificial ice sheet. Walker scored first for Marmora unassisted, and he made it 2-0 next heat on a pass from Bell. However, Stirling finished strong with two goals by G. Duke's Yuletide Cards Show Four Airplanes

LONDON (Reuters)—The Duke of Edinburgh, proud of his recently-gained pilot's licence, has had special Christmas cards prepared showing his four training planes.

A flight of the four planes, single-engined Chipmunk and Harvard and twin-engined Oxford and Dove, were sent over Windsor Castle for a special photograph.

The Duke and Queen Elizabeth prepared their Christmas cards before leaving on their Commonwealth tour.

Ontario Farmers Fail To Break Crop Records

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario farmers didn't break any crop records this year but they put plenty of money in their pockets.

The Ontario department of agriculture says farmers had a "fairly satisfactory crop year."

Although the acreage seeded to grain crops in 1953 was down about 187,000 acres from 1952, the total grain production for this year was estimated at 178,761,000 bushels.

The figure, tabulated in the department's final estimates of the 1953 crop year, compares to 172,406,000 bushels last year and 186,946,000 bushels in 1951.

"The fall wheat crop was up substantially both in acreage and production for a year ago," the department said. "The acreage of this crop in 1953 totalled 723,000 acres as against 650,000 acres in 1952."

YIELD PER ACRE UP

The yield per acre was figured at about 35.8 bushels compared with 32.0 last year.

About 121,616,000 bushels of oats, mixed grains and barley were taken in this year. About 122,219,000 bushels were harvested in 1951.

Nearly 122,945,000 pounds were harvested this year in flue-cured tobacco, which had a ready market. Production in 1952 totalled 127,435,000 pounds.

In southern Ontario, such counties as Brant have a plentiful supply of grain, fodder and roots.

In western Ontario, many farmers' barns are filled to overflowing. Winter feed is in good supply in many central and eastern Ontario areas. There is plenty of hay to feed farm stock in northern Ontario.

Britain Welcomes Russia's Proposed Big Four Meeting

By STANLEY PRIDDLE

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain today welcomed Russia's surprise agreement to a Big Four foreign ministers' conference and expressed hope that the West will send a reply to Moscow "without undue delay."

"If and when such a conference does assemble, we shall do our best to make positive progress on the formidable and difficult problems which would have to be discussed," a foreign office spokesman said.

Capitals of West Europe are convinced that Russia's new move in the cold war will likely bring about the first Big Four foreign ministers' meeting since 1949.

CONDITIONS DROPPED

The vital point of the Russian note handed over in Moscow Thursday night to the American, British and French ambassadors is seen as the abandonment of conditions for such a meeting.

The Russian note accepted the Western invitation to a foreign ministers' session on Germany. Berlin is the place the Russians propose for the meeting.

Western diplomatic sources consider Russia's abandonment of pre-conditions for the meeting as a startling diplomatic victory for the West. But most observers, while regarding the meeting as likely, are not optimistic about its likely results.

They believe the time has come for another stock-taking in Europe that will show beyond all doubt whether the post-Stalin regime in Moscow has anything new to offer to assure a lasting peace between East and West.

They are agreed that until that has been done, the West's already-faltering European policy will continue to drag. The current foreign affairs debate in Paris has shown that there is little hope of obtaining a much-needed impetus to the Allies' plans for building up their defences.

The Russian note, though it attacked the European army plan, did not imply that the whole plan would have to be dropped before the foreign ministers could come together.

The new note indicated, informed sources say, that Russia would wait for a Big Four meeting before pressing for a follow-up meeting including Red China.

Not Committed On 2nd Charge Ruled Void

A technical error has resulted in Fred Blaby, 23, of 554 Romaine St. being tried on a charge of indecent assault when he had not been formally committed for trial and had not elected as to how he should be tried.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, QC, informed Judge John de N. Kennedy of the error today at the general sessions of the peace.

Blaby was tried on two charges: abducting a 10-year-old girl without her parents' consent, and indecent assault on the girl. He was apparently committed for trial only on the abducting count and elected speedy trial on it alone.

When he appeared for court trial last Thursday the two charges were read out to him and he pleaded not guilty to both of them. Crown Attorney Bradshaw and W. J. Arthur Fair, QC, defence counsel, both agreed that the evidence at the trial would apply to both charges.

After hearing the evidence, Judge Kennedy last Friday reserved judgment until today. In the meantime the technical error was discovered.

SCOND ONE VOID

Crown Attorney Bradshaw today asked the judge to consider the evidence on the abduction charge only. The indecent assault one is void.

"Do you agree that the accused was properly tried on the abduction charge?" Judge Kennedy asked Mr. Fair.

"This isn't the United Nations, your honor," said Mr. Fair, "I'm not engaging in double-talk . . . but I can't make any admission on behalf of my client."

Judgment was reserved indefinitely on the remaining charge and Blaby was freed on $7,000 bail.

The trial of John Randolph Brown, 34, formerly of Peterborough, on a charge of having carnal knowledge of a 15-year-old girl, ended Thursday afternoon. Judge Kennedy reserved judgment to Dec. 10, and Brown continued free on $2,000 bail.

Final Search For Fliers

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — Canadian and American planes planned to make a final sweep of icy Lake Superior waters today for two missing United States Air Force fliers.

The fliers, Lieut. Felix Monica, pilot, and Lieut. Robert Wilson, radar observer, disappeared Monday on a routine training flight. Their F-86 jet fighter plane was last sighted shortly after it took off from Kinross air force base near here.

The U.S. coast guard Thursday withdrew from the search for the missing fliers, but air force spokesmen said the search would be continued at least through today. The RCAF has been aiding in the search.

U.S. Army Sergeant Confesses Slaying

TOKYO (Saturday) (AP) — The U.S. army said today an American sergeant has confessed to the strangulation slaying of nine-year-old Susan Rothschild last Saturday.

The announcement identified him as Sgt. Maurice I. Schick, 29, chief ward master of the U.S. army hospital at Camp Zama.

The hospital is near the Sagamihara housing area where Susan's body, a gag stuffed in her mouth, was found in a drainage ditch by her army colonel father.

Army authorities said Shick told them he had not planned the murder before meeting her in a lightly populated area only two blocks from the home of her parents, Col. and Mrs. Jacquard Rothschild.

Court Acquits U.K. Army Captain

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—A British army captain today was acquitted on a murder charge accusing him of machine-gunning two innocent Africans while on a patrol against the anti-white Mau Mau terrorists.

Capt. Gerald Selby Lewis Griffiths, 43, was cleared by a court martial which took 78 minutes to reach a verdict.

He was accused of killing two native forestry workers at a Kenya roadblock last June 11 after his troops stopped them on an anti-Mau Mau patrol.

RCAF Officer Killed In Auto Crash

FONTAINEBLEAU, France (CP) Sqdn. Ldr. George H. Aitchison, 39-year-old RCAF officer attached to the Allied air forces central European headquarters here, was killed Wednesday in a car crash, it was learned today.

Aitchison is survived by his widow, Cecilia, at Fontainebleau. He last was stationed at Trenton, Ont.

Aitchison will be buried at Metz, RCAF 1st Division headquarters.

25 Escape Crash

TOKYO (Reuters) — Twenty-five passengers and five crew members of a United States C-46 transport plane escaped serious injury when it ditched into the Sea of Japan three miles off shore Thursday night, the air force announced today. A rescue boat picked up the survivors within a few minutes. They included 10 members of an entertainment troupe.

Polish Primate Awaits Trial In Moscow Jail

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican radio said today that Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski of Poland has been transferred in secret to a Moscow jail to await "typical Communist trial."

The radio, quoting information from Vienna, said the cardinal is locked in a Lubianka prison cell near that of Lavrenty Beria, ousted ex-chief of Soviet internal security.

The Vatican did not further identify the source of the information, but it is known to have its own sources behind the Iron Curtain.

The broadcast said it was believed the Polish primate is being put through the long, gruelling preliminaries to the same type of Communist trial to which other Roman Catholic leaders east of the Iron Curtain have been subjected.

Still Hunting Civilian Plane

EDMONTON (CP) — Private aircraft owners and the RCAF showed no sign today of slackening their intensive search for a missing civilian plane and its three occupants. Thirty-four planes were scheduled to take off for their fifth daylight search.

The only clue to the disappearance of the light plane—signal flares reported sighted late Tuesday—has been all but discounted by thorough search of the Edson area, about 110 miles west of Edmonton.

A $2,000 reward awaits the finder of the light single-engine Cessna, which disappeared Sunday night on a 225-mile flight to Edmonton from Grande Prairie. Relatives of Dr. Don Wilson, one of the missing men, offered $1,000 and Grande Prairie business men matched it.

The reward will be given if any one of the three is found alive.

Rain Stops Play In Royal Polo Game

By GOMER JONES

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters) Heavy tropical rain today washed out a polo game in which the Duke of Edinburgh was to have played.

It brought disappointment to thousands of enthusiastic Jamaicans who began crowding in to Up Park military camp soon after sunrise to watch the athletic duke playing one of his favorite sports and to see Queen Elizabeth in the front row of the spectators' stands.

For the crowds the game would have been the climax of the royal couple's last day here. The Queen and the duke sail tonight in the luxury liner Gothic on the next stage of their 50,000-mile six-month Commonwealth tour. They will stop over at the Pacific isles of Fiji and Tonga before reaching New Zealand Dec. 23.

Cancellation of the game gave the royal couple an opportunity for a morning rest before attending their first public engagement of the day, a tree-planting ceremony in the grounds of the governor's house, where they are staying.

VISIT UNIVERSITY

Later on their last day in Jamaica, the Queen and the duke will also visit the new University College of the West Indies, now nearing completion, and the historic old town of Port Royal. Once known as the "wickedest city on earth," it was the haunt of buccaneer Sir Henry Morgan, who plundered gold ships plying the Spanish main in the 17th century.

The Queen will see the quarter-deck where naval hero Nelson stood and read the inscription at squat, grey Fort Charles: "In this place dwelt Horatio Nelson. You who tread his footsteps remember his glory." And in the church of St. Peter's, the Queen will see the drinking mug from which Morgan quaffed his rum.

Something of Port Royal's former glory will be recaptured in a farewell military review on the town's time-worn parade ground.

The end of the review will mark the end of the royal visit here. The Queen and the duke will board a launch at the end of the parade ground and sail out to the waiting Gothic, lying sleek and white in the sunset.

B.C. Mission Boat Helps Settlers Along Coast

By EROS PASUTTI

VANCOUVER (CP)—A missionary of the sea plays a vital part in the lives of 4,000 persons along the lower British Columbia coast.

From inlet to inlet, the mission ship Columbia II skippered by Capt. George A. MacDonald, a friendly 70 - year - old Vancouver man, brings spiritual and physical comfort to loggers, fishermen and settlers in some 225 isolated communities.

The sturdy, 100-foot diesel-driven ship plies from Stuart island and Cape Scott at the northern tip of Vancouver island.

VETERAN CHAPLAIN

The chaplain is Canon Heber Greene, a veteran missionary, and the ship's medical facilities are directed by Dr. J. G. Kempff.

In the tiny chapel, there have been weddings, christenings, confirmations, and funeral services.

"We handle hatches, matches and dispatches," says a crew member.

The ship is one of four operated by the Columbia Coast Mission of the Church of England in Canada.

Many mercy missions are undertaken by the 48-year-old Columbia. Last year she logged 31 emergency calls for sickness and accident cases.

"Calling the Columbia" is a frequent call over the ship's radiotelephone, coming from the coastal districts dotting the rocky island shoreline.

ONE MISHAP

She takes nine six-week cruises a year, and only once has she suffered a mishap. In 1948 she piled onto a reef in Warner bay and was laid up some weeks for repairs.

Capt. MacDonald has been with the Columbia for 17 years. With him he has engineer Bob McCrea, Jack Owens, as cook, and Bob Anderson, deckhand.

Off the main deck is a two-bed hospital equipped with examination table, dental chair, drugs and surgical instruments. Only minor operations are performed. Serious cases are taken to hospital at Alert Bay, the Columbia's home port, 225 miles northwest of Vancouver.

There are recreational comforts, too. There is a reading room, much used by lonely settlers, and a movie theatre, where various films are shown during visits to upcoast ports.

"We feel we cover the whole life of the people," said Canon Alan Greene, superintendent of the mission and brother of the Columbia's chaplain.

BETTER THAN PLANE

Talk of the mission ship being replaced by an airplane gets little sympathy from mission authorities.

Storms and fogs have been battled by the Columbia on mercy missions. Under similar bad weather, a plane would be grounded.

"The plane lacks the personal touch," added Canon Alan Greene, and his views are shared by Capt. MacDonald.

The first mission boat was launched by the Rev. John Antle in 1905 when Columbia Coast Mission was founded. It voyaged for many years along the coast, was replaced by the Columbia II. The old and expensive Columbia II, too, may be replaced, this time by a smaller vessel.

Of the 13,2591 miles covered by the Columbia in 1952, 1,295 miles were logged on emergency calls. She made a total of 1,047 calls, during which 807 cases were treated. Her sister ships, the John Antle, the Rendezvous and the Veracity, travelled 6,000, 5,383 and 476 miles, respectively. Three vessels are confined to mission work only.

Such coverage entails an annual expenditure of $75,000, most of which is incurred by the Columbia. The Community Chest of greater Vancouver bears the major part of the ship's operating expenses, with the provincial and federal governments contributing small grants. The balance is provided through church contributions and private donations.

COASTAL VESSEL CHAPLAIN—Canon Heber Greene, veteran chaplain of the hospital ship Columbia II, which plays a vital role in the lives of 4,000 persons along the lower British Columbia coast, holds in his arms one of the many children he has christened on his trips. The ship is one of four operated by the Columbia coast mission of the Church of England in Canada. Besides its religious functions, the Columbia provides medical and recreational facilities along the coast.—(CP from National Film Board).

Ile d'Orleans Popular Refuge With 17th Century Sailors

By BERTRAND THIBAULT

ST. LAURENT, Ile d'Orleans, Que. (CP) — The Ile d'Orleans, which in 1642 Sieur de Maisonneuve almost chose as a colony instead of Montrealu, was a refuge for many 17th-and 18th-century sailors.

The St. Lawrence river is navigable only on the south side of the island which has known heavy marine traffic since the start of the colony, and has been transformed by ship repair and construction yards.

Founded in 1679, St. Jean has a population composed mainly of sailors and river pilots. Some 60 workers are employed in its shipyards and those of nearby St. Laurent, the "maritime" parishes of the Ile d'Orleans.

WOLFE'S HEADQUARTERS

Ste. Petronille, founded in 1872, is the newest parish on the island, although its territory was the first to be inhabited by Huron Indians. It was there that in 1759 General Wolfe established his headquarters. During the last few years that parish has become a fashionable holiday resort.

At St. Laurent, in addition to established dockyards, a number of residents build boats for their own use with make-shift tools. They have become experts in the trade.

Francois - Zavier Lachance, 59, has built yachts and other boats for 33 years in the shop opposite his home. The shop is surrounded by water at high tide.

A sturdy French-speaking Canadian who smokes only on Sundays—during the week he has no time—he practises a trade long necessary to the islanders. A boat or canoe used to be the only means of reaching nearby Quebec City or other mainland points.

LARGE OUTPUT

Mr. Lachance, originally from Ile au Canot, 33 miles southeast of Quebec, has built 1,500 boats since he opened shop.

After a breakfast of French cretons—washed down with strong coffee, Mr. Lachance goes to his workshop. He usually works with about three apprentices. He scorns some modern equipments because he works "by the eye," as he puts it.

Mr. Lachance says 15,000 feet of wood of various types, but mostly oak, pine and cedar, is needed to build a yacht 56 feet long, weighing 15 tons and costing $24,000. Construction of such a boat would involve four months' labor on the part of seven men.

Yachts are delivered to buyers —at such places as Toronto and Winnipeg—only after being blessed iby the Rev. L. N. Carrier, parish priest of St. Laurent.

DISPUTE OVER RELICS

The annals of this parish, originally named St. Paul, record stories of castaways and wrecks on have aroused residents at times. Early in its history a notable dispute centred about two religious relics.

Toward the end of the 17th century, Msgr. de St. Vallier, who succeeded Msgr. de Laval as bishop of Quebec, made a gift to the parish of St. Paul of a reliquary containing a bone from the arm of St. Paul the apostle.

Several years later, the bishop decided that St. Peter and St. Paul should be honored in the same church—the parish church of St. Pierre, also on the Ile d'Orleans. The parish of St. Paul immediately changed its name to St. Laurent.

The parish priest of St. Pierre then asked the priest at St. Laurent to exchange the relic of St. Paul for one of St. Clement which he had in his church. In July, 1702, the relics were exchanged with the approval of Bishop de St. Vallier.

The change displeased the St. Laurent folk. One night a group entered St. Pierre church, replaced the relic of St. Paul with that of St. Clement and brought back the former to their parish.

A heated controversy followed. Msgr. de St. Vallier settled it by ordering that the relics be replaced in the churches where they were kept prior to the "abduction."

Thus it was that one Sunday a solemn procession left each parish and followed the road which crosses the island from north to south. At the point where the processions met, the two priests again exchanged the relics.

This road, well-known to the 4,300 inhabitants of the Ile d'Orleans and which links the towns of St. Laurent and St. Pierre, has borne since that evening the name the "route des pretres" or "priests' road." A cross stands at the spot where the exchange of relics took place.

Under The Glassy Wave

By PATRICK HEYWORTH

It was foolish of me to have stood with my back so near to the fire. My trousers did not go up in flames, but my hostess said they were smouldering. The next morning I took them to a shop to be invisibly mended. I was passing the shop again in the afternoon and paused to look in the window, where a girl operator invisibly mended all day; and there, behind a pane of glass, were my trousers on the table before her. They had met their Fate. Like Clotho she sat, inscrutably determining their future—for better or for the office.

Had it not been for that pane of glass I might have spoken to her, have let her share the joke of my discomfiture and given her a personal interest in the repair. As it was, I just peered until eventually her eyes looked up at mine and darted back. It was terrifying. They were the eyes of a goldfish.

Since then, I have felt ill at ease at the sight either of goldfish or of those hapless artisans whose lack of privacy is so similar. I have pondered on the sad lot of these creatures, shut up in their vitreous showcases, swimming or sewing behind glass perpetually impressed by the noses of an inquisitive public.

With fish I am particularly in sympathy, because I like to think that in the shallower and safer waters off the southern coast of Spain I have established myself as the fish's friend. Not long ago I was spending an indolent holiday in a Spanish fishing-village. The sun was so hot and the food so heavy that the only sane thing to do between meals was to go into the sea and stay there. It was out of boredom rather than to court adventure that I became an underwater swimmer, equipped with face mask, breathing tube, and rubber flipper-shoes.

Now I must confess that my upper lip is not by nature stiff. Not for me are the heroics of men such as Hans Hass and Jacques-Yves Cousteau. But the timid have their reward. Most fish, even sharks, will turn tail if you swim straight at them and show that you are not frightened; on the other hand, if it is abundantly clear to the most stupid fish that the very fact of being submerged scares you almost out of the water, you may depend upon it that shoals of fish will at once surround you—silently appraising you like a brood of parish ladies examining the new vicar. For myself, I can truly say that whereas Spaniards looked upon me as the extraordinary stranger with the big silly hat, Spanish fish accepted me as one of themselves without a bubble of reserve.

What struck me most about these fish was their spirit of independence. On one occasion, when I trod on a bed of spiked sea-urchins and frantically thrashed about in the water, all the fish around me vanished in a split second without a questioning glance passing between them. No, piscine shop-steward cajoled them. No piscine Whip prodded them into activity. They all knew instinctively that it was every fish for himself and that my foot would get the hindmost.

There was one especially charming individualist—a strange yellow fish with red fins and a blue tail; she (her femininity was so exquisite as not to be in doubt) was the loveliest of fish, though perhaps she was getting on in years. On a bank alone she sunned herself all day long, scorning the sportive aquatics of the shoal. Yet passee though she was—yesteryear's Bright Young Thing, left high and nearly dry, with neither a mermaid nor a Mr. Coward caring any more to sing her praises —she had something of the Grand Lady about her; in fact it would have been as unthinkable to tickle her as it would a dowager. Moreover, her personality was so positive that when one morning I noticed that her blue tail was unaccountably looking green, she made me feel no less embarrassed than a husband whose wife has dyed her hair purple without warning.

I am not exaggerating when I say that every fish which swam my way seemed consummate in all the private and social virtues. I realize, of course, that a few may have been as bad as you make them, but I am convinced that fish au fond are good creatures with highly developed sensibilities. It therefore appals me to see them imprisoned in aquaria.

I do not so much decry the vogue for having aquaria in public houses, although fish in a place where I drink suggest an unfortunate association of ideas, and although the proximity of 10 or 20 total abstainers looking reproachfully out of a glass water-wagon is thoroughly disconcerting, what riles me more is the practice of keeping fish from a heinous curiosity in their private affairs.

But I shall not labor the point. My only concern is to stress that if you wish to know and understand fish it is much more ethical and far better manners to jump into the Mediterranean and meet them on their own terms. And do so in no spirit of condescension: for though Man may be further from the amobea, fish are really very much closer to happiness.

Emergency Act Repeal Demanded

OTTAWA (CP)—Howard Green (PC—Vancouver Quadra) Thursday in the Commons demanded immediate repeal of the Emergency Powers Act so that Parliament could again be made supreme.

Speaking in the throne speech debate, Mr. Green said that unless the act were repealed, it would cast its shadow over the entire first session of the 22nd Parliament. The "drastic" powers outlined in the act should be taken out of the hands of the cabinet and restored to Parliament.

The act, due to expire May 31 next year unless extended, gives the cabinet powers to control communications, harbors, territorial waters, transportation, export and import trade and production and manufacturing.

Will Increase Output Of Combines

While maintaining a supply of threshing machines, International Harvester Co. are transferring their thresher plant to the production of combines in their present plans and program of output.

This comment by Cliff Curtis of Peterborough at the Central Ontario Spring Show meeting here this week was partly a reflection of trend of demand from the agricultural community. Beyond that, it stresses the fact that International is switching to their Hamilton plant this year the manufacture of combines that have been made for them in the United States.

Demand for threshers has taken a subordinate place to the combine business. Threshing machines will be available, but more combines will be turned out.

Mr. Curtis told the meeting that the implement dealers would maintain their phase of the Spring Show which is to be held here in March.

Western Diplomats Doubt Russia Has New Weapons

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) Western diplomats were skeptical today of a hint by Andrei Y. Vishinsky that Russia may have types of atomic and other weapons that the West hasn't.

The chief Soviet delegate to the United Nations dropped his intimation Thursday in the General Assembly's political committee just before that group rejected every proposal in his package plan for easing world tension.

Some delegates suggested privately that Vishinsky had timed his remark to distract attention from his defeat, which he could foresee. It was agreed that his speech got more attention than the vote.

The Vishinsky peace package called for a ban on all atomic and hydrogen weapons, a one-third reduction in the armed forces of the big powers, the abandonment of all foreign bases and the elimination of propaganda of a hostile nature.

TRANSLATION DISPUTED

Just what Vishinsky said about Russia's new weapons was still being disputed today. He spoke in Russian, and UN translators turned out two versions.

The version relayed to the delegates as Vishinsky spoke said that the Western powers "do not have everything in this field of atomic and other weapons that the Soviet Union already has." Other Russian experts went back to a tape recording of the original speech in Russian and came up with a translation saying the other powers "possibly" do not possess all the weapons the Russians have.

There was no doubt, however, about Vishinsky's claim that Russia now has overtaken the West in atomic and hydrogen weapons.

American military authorities have repeatedly denied that the Russians are anywhere close to the United States in either atomic or hydrogen bomb production.

Still On Job

CANBERRA (CP)—Air Minister William McMahon said the Royal Australian Air Force squadron in Korea is being maintained at operational readiness in case the truce is broken. Sqdn. Ldr. D. R. Beattie was appointed to succeed Wing Commander Alan Hodges as commanding officer of the squadron.

DOROTHY DIX

Has Security On The Farm But Wants To Go To City

DEAR MISS DIX: I expect to be married next year. My fiancee lives with his grandparents who own a farm. He works for tehm, gets his board, clothing, use of a car and a weekly allowance. His brother works in the city. Allen, my fiancee, thinks his chances of success are better in the city. I might add that he likes farm work and some day will inherit his grandfather's place. I am 19, Allen is 21, if that will help.

RAECHEL L.

THE FARM'S THE PLACE

ANSWER: I would say, most assuredly, that Allen's best chances for secure economic living would be at the farm. His brother's salary may sound like riches, since he is single and has only a small financial responsibility at home. But for family care, it's not adequate. On the farm, Allen will always be assured of food and a roof over his family's head. You may lack some city comforts, but the essentials of life are at hand, save, of course, in case of grave emergencies such as drought, etc. Furthermore, it's the life to which Allen is accustomed.

Don't let a big decision like this hinge on a mere display of green bills. They may look tempting, but they are soon gone in these days of high cost of living.

Allen should, of course, ascertain just what financial arrangements his grandfather will make with a young couple on the place.

DEAR MISS DIX: I've been invited to my first prom and would like to know what time I should be home. The prom will be over at 11:30, but we have been invited to a party later. Ordinarily, I must be in at 10:30, but I think this occasion deserves special consideration. MARIANNE.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I agree that a prom is a very special occasion and that you should be given extra privileges. If your mother knows the people who are giving the party, or makes it her business to become acquainted with them before the big event, she should be satisfied to let you stay out later.

DEAR MISS DIX: I was married at 16, and since I was very unhappy with my husband, I fell in love with Dick a year later, and had an affair with him. My husband and I are separated, but not divorced. Dick hasn't asked me to marry him yet, but I'm sure if he did I could get a divorce. How can I get him to ask me?—JOANNE.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I hope you have something else to do while you are waiting for Dick's magnanimous gesture. It'll be a long time coming, my girl, and I fear you'll be an old lady before you hear that proposal.

DEAR MISS DIX: Though I'm 26, I have never succeeded in having a man friend who met with my parents' approval. We are a very close family, and I hate to offend my folks, but I fear they are ruining any chance I'll ever have to marry. I'm going with a fine man now. He's everything a girl could want—kind, thoughtful, considerate, has a good job, and is of my religion. Yet my parents won't attempt to know him better.—SELMA.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Much as I respect dutiful children, I feel that parents too, should earn respect. When they forfeit it by possessively clinging to marriageable children, it's up to the young folks to rebel. Since your parents are financially and physically able to care for themselves, it's selfish of them to expect you to remain home just to keep them company. Do your best to make them see reason.

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Association Of Consumers Has Folder of Achievements

By JOAN BARBERIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A women's association concerned with constructive criticism from consumers has put out a modest folder on its achievements since it started in 1947.

The Canadian Association of Consumers now has more than 16,000 individual members from all provinces and includes representatives from 15 national women's groups.

CAC members first rolled up their sleeves over margarine in 1948. The association successfully appealed the federal ban on this food. As a result the manufacture of margarine now comes within the jurisdiction of each province.

In 1949 CAC officers appeared twice before the Senate committee on banking and commerce and gave evidence on the bill for national trade mark and true labelling. Their evidence was a factor in the passing of the bill, which requires manufacturers to use accurate labels on their goods and empowers the government to set up standards for Canadian goods.

MANY PROJECTS

Standard garment sizes for women and children is another project. Five years' effort on it was climaxed when the government specifications board called a conference in 1952. In January of this year a committee formed from that conference started working on a standard sizing system for children's clothing.

The CAC has three national objectives regarding milk. They are: consumer representation on all government price fixing commissions; a price differential between home - delivered and store - purchased milk and public hearing by milk boards before a change is made in the price.

In connection with the first objective, CAC now has a representative on the milk boards of Ontario and New Brunswick.

In Manitoba the consumers association secured an amendment to provincial legislation so that the milk control board sets the minimum and maximum prices for milk. Milk sold in stores in Winnipeg now is cheaper than home-delivered.

MILK RULING

The CAC was successful with its third objective in Ontario and Manitoba and obtained a ruling that milk control boards hold public hearings before altering the price.

The new bread and flour regulations which came into effect Feb. 1, 1953, incorporated four recommendations from the CAC.

At the moment CAC sights are set on more informative labelling of textiles, including instructions as to use and care of many of the new materials on the market. The association also wants a distinguishing label on canned fruits and vegetables to indicate if packed in federally inspected plants.

Uniform grading in quality foods is another goal, and the members are also out to get more well-made and suitable toys from Canadian manufacturers.

Colored Slides Hydro Project

LAKEFIELD (ENS) — Colored slides of the huge hydro project now underway at Kemano, B.C. were shown by John Leonard, when the Missionary and Service Club of the United Church met at the home of Mrs. W. W. Leonard. When completed, it will be the largest power development in the world, and will be the source of power supply for the Aluminium plant at Kitimat.

John, a student at Lakefield Preparatory School, and a grandson of the hostess, took all the pictures. His father is one of the engineers on the project.

Mrs. Eric Anderson was in charge of the devotions and Mrs. Stanley Richardson led in prayer. The president, Mrs. W. H. Fife presided for the business.

Members were asked to help make cancer dressings the first Thursday of each month in Memorial Hall. This work is supervised by Mrs. Douglas Davis.

Mrs. Robert McCracken, general convener for the Christmas bazaar which will be held on December 4, gave a report of the progress being made and conveners of various committees reported.

Mrs. Allen Graham gave a report of the nominating committee, but as it was incomplete it was left over until the next meeting.

An invitation, extended to the members to attend a party at the manse by Mrs. H. C. Wolfraim was accepted.

Mrs. Alex Graham read a list of sick and shut-in members of the church who will be remembered by flowers or candy at Christmas.

Mrs. M. Calberry was named auditor replacing Mrs. W. H. Tonge who has moved away.

Assisting the hostess with refreshments were Mrs. George Tanner, Mrs. Ralph Jackman and Mrs. S. A. Grylls.

Mrs. W. Hornsby Heads Girls' Club

HAVELOCK (ENS)— Mrs. W. Hornsby was elected president of the Belmont Girl's Club at a meeting held at the home of the leader Mrs. Donald Elmhirst. Other officers were: vice president, Miss Ruby Youmans, secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Alfred Althouse, press reporter, Mrs. Clarence King.

The discussion for the meeting was in connection with the project which is called the "Supper Club" and was conducted by the leaders Mrs. D. Elmhirst and Mrs. C. King. The topics under discussion were—"The requirements of a club member"; "working methods"; "cleanliness; dish washing, abreviations in recipes, good food makes a difference".

It was decided to hold a bingo to raise money for achievement day, the date to be set later.

The next meeting was set for December 3 at the home of the assistant leader, Mrs. Clarence King.

Field Secy. Visit Reviewed At WCTU Meeting

W.C.T.U. members and visitors met Thursday afternoon in the Y.W.C.A. The meeting was led by president, Mrs. E. M. Davis. Devotions were conducted by Mrs. J. Spencer and Mrs. G. Hewitt.

The speaker was Dr. N. D. Patterson of Mark St. United Church, giving the life story of Wm. Carey missionary to India and founder of Modern Missions, whose motto was "If I begin a thing, I must go through with it."

Mrs. Patterson was soloist, choosing "Sweet is the Promise. I will not forget thee." Her accompanist was Mrs. W. Boorman.

The talks given by Mrs. B. McKay, Field secretary of Provincial W.C.T.U. during her visit here caused a good deal of interest in those who attended the meetings arranged for her.

At the parlor meeting at the home of the local secretary Mrs. A. Macklin last Friday afternoon, devotions were taken by the Bethel Baptist visitors, Miss Kidd and Mrs. K. Corner. Mrs. McKay's topic was "It depends on me." In the evening the Springville Mission Band put on a fine program and Mrs. McKay showed a film. Their collection was presented to the Peterborough Union to be used for buying prizes.

Five Sunday School groups enjoyed Mrs. McKay's films, talks and stories during their regular sessions on the Sunday. The Salvation Army welcomed her at their evening service, where her topic was "Alcohol is Dynamite." At the George St. Church Fireside Hour the Y.P.U. furnished a fine program with Mrs. McKay as speaker.

The local Unions of this and surrounding districts are indebted to Mrs. McKay for her valuable help and information on the current activities of W.C.T.U. in this province.

Speaker of the evening, Mr. John A. Bradshaw, stressed the need for humane education among children, and he said that, "if a child is taught to be kind to animals he will be kind to them when he has grown to an adult". He suggested that members should endeavour to have the teachers co-ordinate their lessons with the program of the Humane Society.

Mr. Bradshaw was introduced by Mr. C. S. Rickard and Mr. Claire H. Stuart gave the vote of thanks.

The audience was again favored by Roy Bacon when he sang, "Song of Spring" which he will also sing at the forthcoming Kiwanis Music Festival. For an encore he sang, "Bless This House". He was appropriately thanked by Mrs. W. Cole.

To further the work of the society, tickets were sold on a doll beautifully dressed in Coronation gown. The draw was won by Miss Jean Jamieson when Miss Mabel Collins drew the winning ticket. The doll's gown, a replica of the Queen's, was hand-made, embroidered and beaded by Miss Phyllis Denne. Miss Denne was also convener of this program.

Delicious refreshments were served at the close of the evening.

The remainder of this unusual and popular handicraft, which this year features new designs and new items, is being kept in the city for a week and can be seen at the home of Miss Linden Hall on Fleming Place.

Interesting items noticed were duffle cloth shoes, travelling shoes in a case, lovely tray cloths, embroidered napkin rings, key rings and paper knives of walrus ivory, and new designs on the scatter rugs are most attractive.

One of the rugs was offered as a draw prize and was won by Mrs. R. B. McWilliams. The ticket sales were in charge of Mrs. B. D. Hall.

The crafts were displayed at the tea by Miss Clara Morris and Miss Hall. There were also the distinctive Labrador stationery and hasti-notes for sale, by Mrs. E. Yelland and Miss A. Howson, and the Christmas cards and calendars were offered by Mrs. H. Bletcher.

Mrs. G. Reinhardt had some lovely Christmas table bouquets she had made up with evergreens and cones and these sold well.

A table of delicious home cooking was attended by Mrs. C. E. LaBranche, Mrs. Pete LaBranche, Mrs. C. L. Upper and Miss Maud Rush.

The tea room was in charge of Mrs. A. H. Heideman and she had laid the table beautifully, centring it with a silver bowl of yellow roses and two candalabras. She used a lovely hand-worked linen cloth for the occasion.

Tea was poured by Mrs. S. C. Carger, Mrs. G. R. Langley and Mrs D. T Diplock, in turn, and Mrs Walter Perry, Mrs. M. E. Clarkson, Mrs. Haig Kelly and Mrs. Ted Cragg served.

President of the local branch of the Mission, Miss Abbie Robinson, and the secretary, Mrs. Augustus Brown, received the guests at the door. Mrs. F. M. Sommerville received the donations.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN N. McISAAC of Peterborough, the bride formerly Miss Jean Findlay. —(Choate Studio Photo)

McIsaac-Findlay

At St. Peter's Cathedral on Thursday morning, Jean Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Findlay, became the bride of John Noel McIsaac, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McIsaac, all of Peterborough. The Rev. J. F. McGuire performed the ceremony and said the nuptial mass. Organist Mrs. R. G. Aman played wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was wearing a grey gabardine suit with white feathered hat and white gloves and she carried white carnations. She was attended by Miss Phyllis Hobbins, wearing a navy suit with pink feathered hat and gloves, and she carried blue tinted carnations with pink roses centering the bouquet.

A reception followed at Hooper's Palm Room. The bride's mother wore a black crepe gown with white trim, black velvet hat and corsage of white 'mums. The groom's mother was dressed in navy and her corsage was pink 'mums.

Mr. and Mrs. McIsaac will make their home 176 Brock Street.

Sharp-Grumbine

Mr. Edward A. Sharp, son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Sharp of Peterborough, was married early this month to Miss Carol Grumbine, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy J. Grumbine of Kenwood, a suburb of Cincinnati, Ohio. The ceremony took place at St. Gertrude's Church, Madeira, and a wedding breakfast and reception followed at Maketewah Country Club.

The bride chose a gown of white satin. The softly draped bodice with long sleeves tapering over her hands featured an oval neckline, detailed with hand-cut appliques of Chantilly lace. The bouffant silhouette of the paneled skirt extended in a chapel train. A double-tiered fingertip veil was caught to a woven satin Juliet cap and she carried a bouquet of white Fujiama chrysanthemums and wheat sprays framing two white orchids. She was given in marriage by her father.

Attendants were Mrs. Robert T. Shiels as her cousin's matron of honor, Mrs. Jerome Fagel and Misses Mary Clare Corcoran and Ann Winter. Their ballerina gowns of antique red shantung had matching jackets. Mrs. Shiels carried a bouquet of green grapes and white Fujiama 'mums and the bridesmaids had red grapes and white 'mums.

James Sharp Jr. of Peterborough was his brother's groomsman. The ushers were Robert G. Robson, cousin of the bride, James Duffy and Connie Broden of Montreal.

For the wedding Mrs. Grumbine chose a mauve satin gown with beaded collar, matching satin hat and black accessories and her corsage of pink carnations was caught to her handbag. Mrs. Sharp wore a cocktail gown of black and purple orchid corsage.

Soroptimists Mark 8th Anniversary Hear Maj. Roberts

Soroptimists celebrated the 8th anniversary of receiving their charter at the dinner meeting Thursday evening at the Empress Hotel.

Charter president Miss Myrtle Sargent spoke very briefly of the eight years past, first reminding the eight charter members present of their charter night dinner and ceremony. She said that the principles of Soroptimism—friendship, sincerity, tolerance, wisdom and service—"have made a greater blessing in our lives as we go marching on."

President Mrs. Eva Brackenridge cut the anniversary cake while Miss Sargent was speaking. Decorations for the occasion featured the blue and gold Soroptimist colors, with bouquets of gold 'mums at the table centres.

Speaker for this meeting was Major Horace Roberts of the Salvation Army Temple Corps, and he outlined the general work of a Salvation Army officer.

De described the Salvation Army as a "practical religion" which he turned to at the age of 20, after being brought up in a Presbyterian home in Wales. First incident of this working religion which impressed him was on the boat coming to Canada when he saw a SA woman tending the sick baby of a passenger. For four years he thought over the matter, then offered himself for service. Now, after 20 years in various parts of the world including military service, he says "I have enjoyed it all."

Major Roberts explained that an SA officer, who may have the care of a flock of several hundred, is also expected to embrace the community at large "to do something for his fellow men." The dominating purpose of the Army is to render service to humanity in need, regardless of race, color or creed, he said. The officer may also be sent anywhere in the world at any time, notwithstanding his preference or his home.

"The Salvation Army is the local link with the missing persons bureau," Major Roberts remarked. He said he had handled 50 enquiries here the past year. It is also a clearing-house for unmarried mothers seeking admittance to one of the SA chain of homes. It assists the welfare department with the "means test" for older people seeking pensions. He advised that there are more than 500 people in Peterborough over 70 years of age.

Hundreds of garments are distributed yearly to needy families, he said. An average of 70 transients a year are given meals, and possibly lodging.

Major Roberts was introduced by Mrs. Enith Scott and he was thanked by Miss Florence Scott.

Christmas Trees Line Way To Legion Tea

Midget Christmas trees, decorated for the season, lined a passway for guests to the Christmas tea of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion at the Legion Hall, Thursday afternoon.

But the trees were not the only evidence that Christmas is coming. There were jolly Santa Claus candles on each serving table, the booths were trimmed with Chirstmas streamers, and the tea table candles in red stood in Christmasy holders.

Red carnations stood out handsomely in a bouquet of white 'mums on the tea table, which was covered with a beautifully hand-crocheted ecru lace cloth. The decorating was done by Mrs. H. Dodds and Mrs. H. Beresford.

Tea pourers were Mrs. Hugh Waddell, wife of the mayor, Mrs. G. K. Fraser, wife of the federal parliament member, Mrs. M. E. Clarke, wife of the officer commanding the Peterborough regiment, and Mrs. A. S. Williams, president of the Silver Cross Chapter.

The tea was convened by Mrs. A. Manley and her assistants in serving were Mrs. F. Blaby, Mrs. A. Mason, Mrs. D. Farthing and Mrs. A. Parrington. Mrs. A. Moscrof kept the table supplied and the plates were prepared by Mrs. C. S. Windsor, Mrs. A. Wade, Mrs. A. A. Glenn, Mrs. P. Taylor and Miss Ada Jenkinson.

Tea cup reading, also palm reading, by Mrs. Lynch, was a very popular feature.

Mrs. A. Gynane and Mrs. M. H. Sargent attended the candy table and had a box of chocolates as a draw prize, which was won by Mrs. Moscrop.

Mrs. F. Frape sold draw tickets on a hamper of groceries and an iced Christmas cake. The groceries were won by Mrs. J. Spencer of Stewart Street and the cake will go to the holder of ticket No. 74.

Mrs. E. Graham and Mrs. E. Dormer were selling the home cooking and Mrs. A. Wagstaff and Mrs. L. Withers the bazaar goods.

Auxiliary president Mrs. G. C. Stevens received at the door, assisted by her first vice president Mrs. Wm. Downer, and the admissions were taken by treasurer, Mrs. Robert Ritchie.

No One Claims Ownership Of Hotel Dieu Hospital

MONTREAL (CP) — From the day Jeanne Mance founded Hotel Dieu hospital in 1642, a series of devoted administrators have disclaimed any ownership of the institution.

Its history dates back to the time Maisonneuve was sent from France to Canada to establish the settlement of Ville Marie. With him was sent Jeanne Mance to establish Hotel Dieu. And at that time the order of the Religious Hospitalers of St. Joseph was set up to train nurses for the new hospital.

The order now has 38 other hospitals in Canada and the United States which it administers as its own but Hotel Dieu is always treated as "the property of the poor" and separate books are kept for it.

MONEY DIVIDED

The first building was put up in downtown Montreal on what now is St. Paul street, on land carefully divided between the order and Hotel Dieu. To this day, when some of the original land is rented, the property and revenue are divided between the order and the hospital.

Jeanne Mance was authorized to administer the hospital until her death, when a committee of civil administrators was to be chosen. But when she died in 1673 no Montrealer wanted to take on the job of running the hospital, partly because it was in debt.

The Sulpician Fathers agreed to keep the books on a temporary basis but a few years later the superior in France ordered that this arrangement be terminated and Bishop Laval at Quebec told the sisters to carry on from year to year.

CONFIRMED BY PARLIAMENT

This arrangement was confirmed by an act of the British Parliament in 1849 which authorized the sisters to acquire and possess property as administrators "for the poor of Hotel Dieu."

The mother house of the order and the hospital were moved in 1861 to its present site on Pine avenue near the foot of Mount Royal. The order had been given a tract of land about 60 acres long and four acres wide. Some adjacent farm land was bought to extend the area.

And to separate the mother house from the property of "the poor of Hotel Dieu" a wall was built through the middle. The wall still stands.

Readers' Friday Column By Mary Moore

QUESTION: I usually make Fruit Chili Sauce but not being too "frisky" this summer didn't do much canning . . is it possible to make up my recipe using canned tomatoes and peaches . other ingredients can still be purchased . . Marion M. (see answer below)

QUESTION: I would like to know if you could give me a recipe for making Chili Sauce with canned tomatoes . . Mrs. Wm. R.

ANSWER: I have shortened both of the above letters and will answer the other parts of them by mail or later in this column. I thought your questions were so good other readers might be interested in my answer.

LATE CHILI SAUCE

Fifteen cups thick well-drained pulp from canned tomatoes (this is roughly equivalent to 30 medium-sized tomatoes after peeling and coring); 6 peaches (or 1 20-oz. tin canned best quality peaches drained); 6 pears, 6 onions, 3 or 4 sweet peppers (could be green and red), 8 teaspoons salt, 4 cups cider or spirit vinegar, 4 cups sugar, 1 oz. whole mixed pickling spices. If using canned tomatoes drain them well before measuring, also peaches if canned ones are used. Pare and chop pears. Peel and chop onions. seed and cut peppers in small strips. Tie spices in bag with long string. Put all ingredients together and boil until thick—about 2 hours. Pour into sterile jars and seal.

ATTENTION THAIS H.

LETTER: I love to read your column. The recipes are always what the everyday homemaker wants . . a reader wanted Standing Pie. This is our favorite of nearly 50 years. We always have one for callers both at Christmas and Easter. It can be heated for a hot supper. Good on picnics too. Thank you for good reading . . Mrs. G. M. B.

STANDING PORK PIE

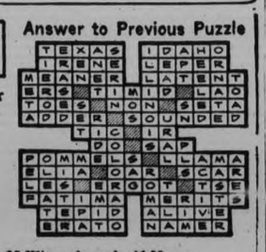
(Courtesy Mrs. G. M. B.)

One and one-half pounds minced pork seasoned with salt and pepper. Cover with cold water and let stand overnight. Crust: 1 lb. flour, ¼ lb. lard, 2-3 pint milk, 1 teaspoon salt. Heat milk and lard together. Pour over flour and salt and mix. Keep pastry over a bowl of hot water. Line pan for pie. Drain pork and fill pan. Put lid on pie. Brush with egg yolk. Bake 1 hour in slow oven.

ANSWER: Thank you very much. I was at a complete loss for this. I hop Thais H. is familiar enough with English pastry customs to interpret your directions to her husband's satisfaction.

QUESTION: I do not know what is wrong with my cakes . . but they do not rinse much and have a doughy streak through them, just as though they required more baking. I used to bake under my mother's supervision when I was 10 years old, and had better successes then than I have now with the aid of (an electric mixer) . . I thought perhaps the machine is at fault, but have read and reread the directions and can see no mistake there. I have ingredients at room temperature. My stove gives good results with roasts, although I do find I have to keep baking in about 10 minutes longer than the average recipe suggests . . Rose S.

ANSWER: My first thought is that your oven thermometer is registering low. The simplest cake to bake that I know is Jiffy Cake. Would you be willing to make it twice? Once baked at 350 deg. by your oven. If it has the doughy streak you describe, make another and bake it at 400 deg. Fahr. If the second cake is a failure too, then we will have to start experimenting with other flours or using cold shortening. It may be that the bottom burner of your oven is not functioning all over. Could you inspect this or have it inspected?



JIFFY CAKE

In a bowl mix together in this order 4 tablespoons room-temperature shortening, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, ½ cup milk, 1-3 teaspoon salt, 1½ cups sifted flour, 1½ teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Beat with rotary beater until light and smooth—about 2 minutes. Pour into buttered-paper-lined cake pan. Sprinkle evenly over top ½ cup each brown sugar and fine cocoanut mixed together. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 35 to 40 minutes.

mittee, it is expected expenditures in that department will reach $72,000.93. The cost of garbage collections was estimated at $93,-312.85, but is expected to be $107,-436.81.

Expenditures in other departments are expected to be fairly close to the amounts budgeted, more or less.

The board of works, for example, for which $292,000 was budgeted, is expected to spend only $290,000. Although it was estimated it would cost $185,915.59 to operate the fire department, it is expected to cost $187,389.67. It is expected to cost $185,215.30 to operate the police department, instead of the $187,000 budgeted. Although council budgeted for $12,000 to be spent on property, it is expected $13,860.71 will be spent.

REVENUES UP

Revenues will be increased by payment of $14,890.53 by Ontario Hydro and the PUC instead of an estimated $10,000 in lieu of taxes. Similarly, payments in lieu of taxes on wartime housing total $14,679.68 instead of $10,000.

Additional revenue from the province in the form of grants for the fire and police departments is also assured. Grants of $24,000 were expected in each case, but will total $26,421.47 in the case of the fire department and $25,558.14 in the case of the police department.

Although city council budgeted for revenues of $34,000 from parking meters, these are expected to reach $40,586.23. Revenues from police court fines and traffic tickets were expected to be $25,000, but are expected to be $32,609.29.

Ti-Cats Lead Bombers 12-6 3rd Quarter

54-Yard Touchdown Puts East Ahead Early In Game

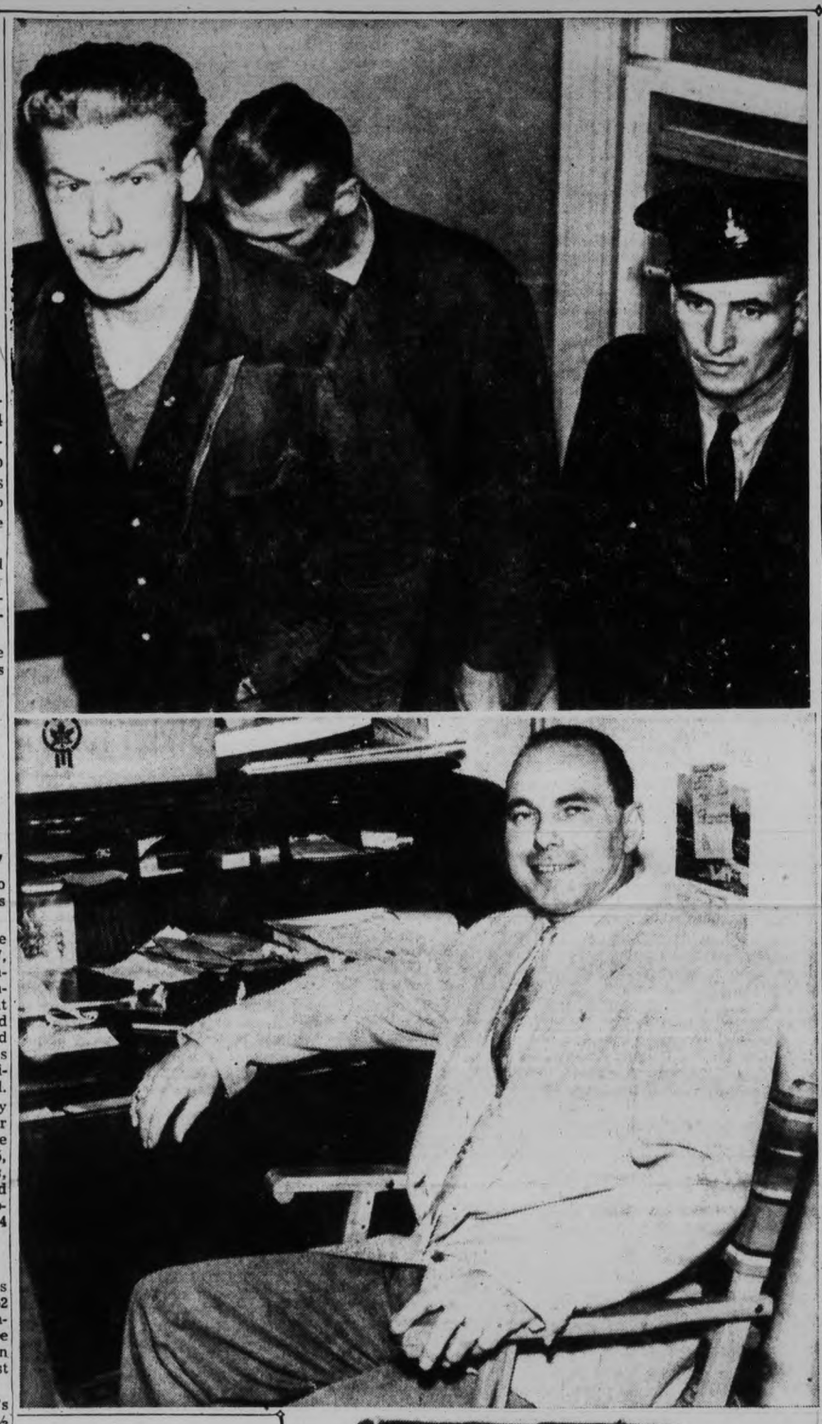
TORONTO (CP)—The Hamilton Tiger-Cats drove 54 yards for a converted touchdown in the first quarter to lead Winnipeg Blue Bombers 6-0 at halftime in the Grey Cup game in Toronto today before 27,500 fans.

Quarterback Ed Songin crashed over from the one-yard line for the touchdown. Tip Logan converted, his 81st consecutive convert.

Except for a brief period in the second quarter when the Bombers marched from their own five to the Hamilton 13, the Tiger-Cats had a big edge in play.

In the third quarter Ragazzo caught a 15-yard pass from Songin and went all the way down the sidelines for a touchdown for Hamilton. It was a 55-yard pass-and-run play and Logan converted. This gave Hamilton a 12-6 lead.

This was the first time since the memorable afternoon of Dec. 7, 1935 when Winnipeg defeated Hamilton 18-12 on the sensational running of fleet Fritzie Hanson that the eastern Big Four club had made the final. The yellow and black team, boasting the best pass defence in the East, was confident the result would be reversed.



This was Winnipeg's 13th Grey Cup final game and the 12th for Hamilton. Bombers had won the trophy only three times—in 1935, 1939 and 1941—and lost nine times, the latest in the now-famous mud bowl here in 1950 to Toronto Argonauts. Hamilton teams had a 7-4 won-lost record.

WEATHER GOOD

Weather for today's battle was almost identical to that of 1952 when Argonauts defeated Edmonton Eskimos 22-11. The sun shone brightly, the temperature was in the low 40s with only a light east wind fanning the field.

The Canadian Rugby Union's tarpaulin was lifted about 1½ hours before the kick-off to show a field in good condition with only a few slippery spots. The bright sun would improve it before game time.

A TWO-MAN HOLDUP at Cres Sproat's clothing store on George St. South was foiled Friday night when the owner surprised the men by grabbing the telephone and making a fake call to the police. In the confusion that followed Sproat caught one man while the other escaped, only to be captured a half-hour later. Today in magistrate's court Gordon Norman of Toronto was charged with assault with intent to rob and Edward Bishop of Vancouver was charged with armed assault with intent to rob. Norman and Bishop (top) are escorted into court by Constable Lou Rodrigue. Store owner, Sproat (middle) sits smiling in chair into which men forced him. The weapon used in the holdup was an air pistol (lower) which strongly resembled a German luger. —(Examiner Staff Photos)

Captures One Of Thugs After Chase

Fake Phone Call Upset Robbery; Police Get 2nd Man

A fake phone call and a dash for freedom foiled a holdup, the first in Peterborough in several years, Friday night at Cres Sproat's men's clothing store, 383 George St. south.

Held at gun-point by two holdup men, Sproat gambled on the element of surprise, and won so successfully that he personally captured one of the men after a short chase and wrestling match. He also supplied city police with enough information that the second man was arrested within minutes after the attempted holdup.

Appearing in magistrate's court this morning were Gordon Norman, 19, of Sherbourne St., Toronto, and Edward Bishop, 44, of Vancouver. Norman was charged with assault with intent to rob, and Bishop with armed assault with intent to rob.

They were remanded until Thursday without bail.

"I was putting a plaid tie on a display midway back in the store, with my back to the door, when they entered, just like two customers," said Sproat. "They made a remark about making Christmas displays and I answered, "yes, I'm trying to get them up."

PROSPECTIVE CUSTOMER

Then the taller man mentioned a station wagon coat and immediately Sproat thought, "I have a prospect." They apparently wanted to get Sproat to the back of the store where the coats were on a rack.

"They asked me what sizes I carried and walked over close to me. I was just going to check the coats for the tall chap to try one on when he moved close to me, one hand in his pocket holding a gun."

The tall gunman pressed the gun against Sproat and warned "We're not fooling."

Nominate Waddell, Graham As Mayoral Candidates, 15 Named For Council Seats

Community Centre To Start In Spring Waddell Announces

Mayor Hugh Waddell told Friday night's overflow crowd at the nomination meeting for the December 7 civic election that he expected the ground to be broken in the spring for the new Memorial Centre. "For the first time it does look as if it will be located," he said.

A site had been chosen for the centre and all that was required was the passage of a bill through the private bills committee of the Ontario Legislature.

"If the bill passes the committee in February, the ground will be broken in the spring," he prophesied.

Having served six years as alderman and two as mayor, His Worship said he appreciated many of the problems facing a city the size of Peterborough.

HAVE GROWING PAINS

"It's happening all over the country," he said. "We're having growing pains. Our problems today require an awful lot of study."

One of the problems already in hand was the proposed zoning bylaw, h. said. A specialist had been hired to draft a bylaw which it was hoped would be ready in six months.

"Another problem is that of holding down our budget," he said. "From the end of the war until 1951, expenses climbed at a fairly alarming rate; but it looks as though we'll be able to hold the line next year."

Another accomplishment had been the re-assessment of the city this year, he said. If the re-assessment had been the basis of this year's taxes, it would have meant a saving to home-owners, on the average, of five per cent of their taxes.

City Clerk E. A. Outram, who was elected chairman of the meeting, said he was quite confident it was the largest nomination meeting in Peterborough's history.

The crowd overflowed from the general committee room at city hall into the corridor and into the board room of the board of education. Mayor Waddell's opponent, ex-Ald. Norman Graham, started a lively session rolling with his promised attacks on certain departments of the city. But, apart from two sitting aldermen who will be up for re-election this year, none of the other

Grey Cup Highlights

TORONTO (CP).—Two hours before Grey Cup time it was impossible to get parking space near Varsity Stadium. Squads of police channelled fans' cars to parking space blocks away.

As the tarpaulin was removed from the field it was soggy from the light rain and snow of the past two days and from condensation. The students wrapped sections of it around boards to haul it off.

Prices for the parking space rose sharply around noon. Service stations within a block of the stadium unblushingly charged $2 for a space.

Scalpers couldn't make up their minds about their prices for tickets. One asked $50 for a seat. Another started off with $30, but indicated he could be bargained with. Fans without tickets held off, confident seats would be going at a dollar or two above marked prices at game time.

Bobby MacDonald, 22-year-old Hamilton Tiger-Cat halfback and a victim of poliomyelitis early this season, was in a box almost directly behind his team-mates. The youngster lay in a stretcher with a nurse at his side.

Two officials, umpire Harry Bowden of Toronto and judge-of-play Tommy Daley of Ottawa, inspected the field an hour before game time.

"Just about perfect," said Daley. "It's just soft enough for good football."

Some few fans, making sure their tickets were good, were in their seats an hour before game time. Speckled around the stadium, they looked like flies on a vast fly paper.

Splashes of yellow in the Hamilton yellow-and-black hats and streamers livened up the stadium stands. The Hamilton fans were not in a group but in all sections of the stands.

Tiger-Cats arrived at the stadium by bus 55 minutes before the kick-off. They looked grim and determined. No one smiled as they walked off the bus to their dressing room led by Coach Carl Voyles.

Policemen had to force a path through the crowd of about 200 who milled around. There were yells of encouragement for each player, but the biggest cheers were saved for all-star Vince Mazza and Cernie Curtis, the dipsy-doodling Negro half-back.

Three Tiger-Cats fans outside the stadium had probably the most novel costume seen at a Grey Cup game since the hoopla started in 1948. They were dressed in long, winter underwear dyed yellow. On their backs were the names of Hamilton stars. They were happy-looking, but really sad. They had no tickets.

Promised Attack Against Departments Unleashed By Graham

In what old-timers described as the liveliest nomination meeting since the "salary grab" of years ago and the controversy over the building of Hunter St. bridge following the First World War, two candidates were nominated for mayor and 15 for five seats on city council Friday night, amid the boos, applause and laughter of a crowd that overflowed the general committee room of city hall into the board of education board room and the second floor corridor.

Mayor Hugh Waddell, who has been the city's chief magistrate for the past two years, will be opposed by ex-Ald. Norman Graham, who chose the meeting to unleash his promised charges against "certain departments" of the city's administration. All 15 of the aldermanic nominees will be in the running on election day, December 7, including the five sitting aldermen whose two-year terms expire this year.

Thanking Mayor Waddell for the kindness he had shown when he was a member of council, ex-Ald. Graham said His Worship had been "a perfect gentleman at all times."

Referring to quotations published in the Examiner in which he had made his charges of carelessness, Mr. Graham said the carelessness had been going on at 4 p.m. Friday afternoon. Then, referring, one by one, to aldermen who had discussed his statements in a subsequent council meeting,

Strike Halts 6 Newspapers

NEW YORK (AP) — A strike today halted publication of six major New York City newspapers —all except The Herald Tribune.

Five hundred members of the International Photo-Engravers Union (AFL), the men who make metal plates to reproduce pictures in the papers, walked out demanding higher pay and other benefits.

Their action was given force when some 20,000 members of other unions—reporters, printers, telephone operators — refused to cross picket lines and did not report for work.

The Herald Tribune was not affected because it has a contract with a commercial firm for its photo-engraving plants.

Hit by the strikes were The Times, Daily News, Daily Mirror, all morning newspapers, and The Journal-American, World - Telegram and Sun, and The Post, afternoon newspapers. The afternoon newspapers were the first affected.

British Envoy Visits Malenkov

LONDON (Reuters) — Premier Georgi Malenkov today received Sir William Hayter, the British ambassador, at the Kremlin, Moscow radio reported.

Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslv Molotov was present at the interview, Moscow radio said.

This is believed to be the first occasion on which Malenkov has received a foreign ambassador since he succeeded Stalin in March.

Earlier this month Hayter had a 20-minute talk with Molotov. This visit to the foreign ministry was described as "purely a courtesy call" and no specific issues were discussed.

Hayter arrived in Moscow Oct 2 and presented his credentials Oct. 10.

30 Internes May Strike

KINGSTON (CP) — Thirty internes threatened to strike and cripple operations at Kingston General Hospital Friday in a protest against the hospital's stand on a suit by a patient against a doctor and a former interne.

Hospital Superintendent Fraser Armstrong said the internes were still on duty but had sent him a notice demanding "clarification" of the legal responsibility the hospital would accept for its internes.

Spokesmen for the internes said they don't want to work or take risks if the hospital is not going to back them up.

A Toronto lawyer representing the hospital said the institution was taking the routine stand in the patient's suit that it would ask recompense from the doctor and interne involved if damages were assessed against the hospital in the case.

The internes protested after the patient, a female United States citizen who was not identified, started action against the hospital, a Kingston doctor and a former interne. She claimed she has been paralyzed since a spinal tap was performed on her by the interne.

The interne has since graduated as a Doctor and now is practising in the U.S.

Experts Told To Draft Plan

THE HAGUE (AP) — Western Europe's foreign ministers today instructed a six-nation group of government experts to draft the basis for political, economic and military union of France, West Germany, Italy and the Benelux countries within the next four months.

Winding up their three-day conference here, the ministers agreed that their deputies should meet in Paris as soon as possible to write the constitution of a future continental "political community" to control the proposed European Defence Community.

These deputies, the ministers said, should finish their work by March 15 and report to another ministerial session in Brussels March 30. They are to base their work on agreements reached recently at Rome which won official backing in the sessions here.

French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault made a belated appearance at the conference today.

Queen Sails To Panama

PANAMA (AP)—Queen Elizabeth and her entourage sailed today toward the Panama canal aboard the British liner Gothic. The royal party is due in the canal zone Sunday as guests of the United States and Panama.

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh boarded the glistening white 15,902-ton Gothic in Jamaica Friday, two days after they arrived in the colony by plane from Bermuda and London via Gander, Nfld. The ship, carrying its usual pay load of British cargo, will take them on most of their six-month round-the-world tour of the Commonwealth.

Only in the 500-square-mile Panama canal zone will the Queen be under a foreign flag.

A split-second program of military honors, sight-seeing tours and receptions has been arranged by U.S. and Panamanian officials. The Queen will pick up the Gothic at midnight Sunday night on the Pacific side to sail early Monday for New Zealand and Australia via the Fiji and Tonga islands.

Soon after the Gothic docks at Cristobal Sunday mornings, the young monarch will receive Panama's president Jose Antonio Remon, the canal zone governor, John S. Seybold, and the U.S. Caribbean commander, Lt.-Gen. Horace L. McBride, aboard ship. Ashore, she will inspect an American honor guard.

Four Lane Speedways Create More Accidents

TORONTO (CP) — Highways Minister Doucett said Friday the province's four-lane speedways "have created as many, if not more, accidents than occur on the crooked roads."

He said drivers are to blame in 99 per cent of all accidents on the new speedways.

"The engineers can build all the safety devices there are into these new highways and they can straighten and widen them, but they can't change the human element."

Drivers have to be educated to the different type of hazard in driving on superhighways, he said.

Car Goes In River

MONTREAL (CP)—An automobile, believed to have been carrying at least two persons plunged into the St. Lawrence river early this morning off Laurier pier.

Police reported locating the car but have been unsuccessful in hoisting it out. No bodies have yet been recovered.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The United Nations General Assembly today called for new efforts to reduce the world's armaments and suggested this might be done by private talks among the big powers.

The Second Sir Raleigh

"My Coat, Your Majesty" Negro Re-enacts History

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP)—A middle-aged Negro threw consternation into the entourage of the Queen Friday when he spread his coat on the ground and shouted, "Step upon my coat Your Majesty."

A man in military uniform struck at the Negro with his sword, and a policeman grabbed him. He was booked by police for investigation. Police said he might be deranged. He gave the name of Warren Kidd.

The Queen, taken by surprise, jumped back. She then walked to one side to avoid stepping on the coat.

This occurred just before the Queen embarked at Port Royal, outside Kingston, for Panama. Wally Davis, photographer for the Miami Daily News, witnessed it from a balcony just above the Queen.

"The guy was doing a Sir Walter Raleigh as the Queen walked along and approached a slightly wet spot on the pavement of the military drill ground," Davis said.

"He peeled off his coat, threw it on the ground and said something, but I was too far away to hear what was said."

Nobody Gets Much Sleep In Hotels Before Big Game

TORONTO (CP)—Grey Cup Day dawned bright and clear in Toronto and for thousands of football-mad fans this was it—the day they've waited for. Festivities began early in the lobby of the Royal York Hotel where most of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers supporters were concentrated.

A corps of Bomberette girls in blue and gold skirts paraded out led by a drum and bugle band on their way to the big parade through the city. The parade started shortly before 10 a. m. with scores of floats and almost as many bands.

One Winnipeg bunch of paraders carried a sign reading "We are back with Indian Jack—come on Blue Bombers."

Several members of the Canadiens hockey club were around in for tonight's NHL game. Winger Floyd Curry stayed with goalie Jerry McNeil but they said they didn't get much sleep. People kept pounding on their door all night and the telephone kept ringing.

They resolved not to answer the phone and so Curry missed until this morning a telephone message from Montreal that his wife there had given birth to a baby daughter.

Some football tickets were bringing as much as $25—about five times the actual cost.

The crush of ticket-seekers at the Winnipeg club's office in the Royal York Hotel was so great that two women fainted and security officers threatened to close the office.

Scalpers were few in most hotels. One asked—but didn't receive —$75 for a $6 ticket.

In the parade itself, one float bore a huge gilt figure of a football player in action. On another

Should Study Commission Report

Needn't Question Gouzenko Says Senate Investigator

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — O. J. Dekom, who as a United States Senate investigator questioned Igor Gouzenko in 1949, today said U. S. spy-hunters can get about as much information by studying the 1947 report of a Canadian royal commission as by questioning Gouzenko again.

Gouzenko, formerly a code clerk in the Soviet embassy at Ottawa, tipped Canadian authorities in 1945 to a far-flung Russian spy network that reached into the U. S.

The Senate internal security subcommittee, headed by Senator William E. Jenner (Rep. Ind.), is seeking an interview with him in connection with its Communists-in-government probe. The state department has under consideration a sub-committee request that it try to persuade Canada to drop some of the conditions imposed on any such questioning.

Dekom said in an interview that, in his opinion, the Jenner group "would find it virtually as useful to study the report of the royal Canadian commission."

Dekom's interview with Gouzenko took place in the fall of 1949 in the headquarters of the RCMP at Ottawa.

Dekom said the report of the royal commission told "substantially the whole story" of the Soviet espionage apparatus.

Dekom said he is not at liberty to disclose Gouzenko's testimony.

A transcript of the interview was made by an RCMP stenographer, Dekom said, and the state department later forwarded this to immigration sub-committee with a request from the Canadian government that no part of it be made public. Dekom said there were deletions in the transcript which he considered unimportant.

In agreeing Wednesday that the Jenner sub-committee might interview Gouzenko, should he be willing, Ottawa officials attached the condition that any information obtained must not be made public without Canadian government approval.

First Victim Killed By Sound Barrier Bang

SHORNE, England (Reuters)— A 41-year-old ditch digger, killed at work near here Friday, is believed to be the first fatal victim of an airplane's supersonic bang.

John O'Sullivan was deep in a roadside drainage trench when two sharp explosions sounded. The sides of the trench collapsed and he was buried alive. It took rescue workers five hours to recover his body.

Police reported later that the explosions came from a jet aircraft hurtling through the sound barrier over the nearby Thames estuary.

Noted Playwright Eugene O'Neill Dies In Boston

BOSTON (AP)—The American theatre today mourned the loss of one of its greatest playwrights in Eugene O'Neill, 65, whose dramatic writings captivated audiences for two decades. He died quietly Friday night at his home of bronchial pneumonia.

The playwright, a Nobel Prize winner and three-time Pulitzer Prize winner in literature, had roamed the world for material until recent years when he was stricken by Parkinson's disease. That ailment, a form of palsy, gradually cut down his activities until writing became impossible.

High point in his long career was in 1936, when he was awarded the Nobel Prize in literature. The award committee did not cite any particular work, but O'Neill considered his play "Mourning Becomes Electra" a strong factor in the choice.

That prize was only one of the many honors won by the prolific playwright, who had more than two score plays produced. His Pulitzer Prizes were: "Beyond the Horizon," 1920, "Anna Christie," 1922 and "Strange Interlude," 1928.

BROADWAY MOURNS

O'Neill's death was mourned by Broadway performers, playwrights and producers.

George Jean Nathan, influential newspaper and magazine drama critic, said in New York that the American theatre has lost its greatest playwright and "I have lost one of my longest and dearest friends."

Nathan, one of the first to recognize O'Neill's talents, started to open Broadway doors for him in 1917. O'Neill's last Broadway play was "The Iceman Cometh" in 1946.

Other O'Neill plays included: "The Emperor Jones," "The Straw," "Desire Under the Elms," "Marco Millions," "Ah, Wilderness," "Days Without End," "The Fountain," and "All God's Chillun Got Wings."

And his one-act plays were equally famous. They included "The Long Voyage Home," "The Dreamy Kid," "The Rope," and "Bound East For Cardiff."

PRIVATE FUNERAL

He was known as a man who loved solitude. Funeral plans are in keeping with that characteristic—strictly private with no public announcement of the time or place.

O'Neill's private life at times was almost as turbulent as those of a character in one of his plays. He was married three times, the last in 1929.

His only daughter, Oona O'Neill Chaplin, is the wife of movie comedian Charlie Chaplin.

Farm Market Sales Decline

The weekly markets are slimming down to three major products. Apples, potatoes and fowl make up the big percentage of goods to be had, but these foods are in abundance. The brisk weather today has not helped the sale of the occasional vendor of garden vegetables. The season has passed for fresh green vegetables. Only the ones that thrive on the first frost, are of marketable value now.

The prices of apples are remaining quite constant. Bushels of Spys and McIntosh are selling at $4.50 to $3.75, while bushels of Sweets, Russets and Snows are selling for $2.75. Baskets of the fruit vary in price between 50 and 75 cents. The by-product, cider, is selling in jars of 95 and 65 cent value.

Fire Destroys Sixth Of City

PUSAN (AP)—One-sixth of this teeming port city of 1,000,000 population smouldered tonight after a 12-hour fire that scorched a 1½-mile swath, left at least three Koreans dead and levelled 6,000 homes and buildings.

Twenty Koreans were hurt and two Korean firemen were overcome by smoke. Police said two children and a 26-year-old man were dead.

The United States Army estimated damage to this refugee-chocked city at $20,000,000. It was one of the most devastating fires in Korean history.

Relief agencies rushed aid to the 45,000 left homeless. Many were given temporary shelter in U. S. Army warehouses, theatres and schools.

The blaze broke out in a jammed tenement section. Police said it started in a charcoal oven.

CGE Offer Planned By General Electric

TORONTO — General Electric Co., of Schenectady, New York, will shortly make an offer to buy up the few remaining common shares of Canadian General Electric held by the public.

While no details of the offering have been announced, a telegram to CGE common holders from H. W. Turner, president, said "it is anticipated that within a few days." The message further cautions against disposing of shares until the offering has been considered.

It is understood that only about 7,600 shares, or four per cent of the 188,845 outstanding common $50 par value shares are in the public's hands.

The stock has been selling at around $500, having climbed about $50 since early this month. Low price for the year was $416 in January on the Toronto exchange.

Warden Leeson Has Opposition In Havelock

HAVELOCK (ENS)—An election seems likely in Havelock village as Fred Pollock has been nominated to oppose Ernest J. Leeson, 1953 county warden, for the reeveship. And five have been nominated for the four council seats.

Here is the nomination slate as of late Friday:

Reeve—Ernest J. Leeson and Fred Pollock. One is to be elected.

Council—Bruce Curtis, B. M. Bell, Jack Davidson, Richard Sanderson, and Wesley Steenburgh. Four are to be elected.

School Trustees — Walter P. Nobes, Jr., R. B. Sayers and Lloyd Parnall. Three are to be elected.

Hydro Commissioner — George Kennedy, re-elected by acclamation.

FIRST ELECTED IN 1927

Mr. Leeson was first elected to council in 1927. Since then he has served seven years as councillor and eight years as reeve. He was warden of Peterborough county in 1953.

Mr. Pollock, a CPR locomotive engineer, was a councillor in 1941 and 1951 and he was reeve in 1946-47.

Four of the five council nominees held office in 1953. Mr. Sanderson started in municipal politics 31 years ago; in that time he has been reeve four times and councillor nine years. Mr. Bell has served two years on council and Mr. Davidson six years. Mr. Curtis, who was absent but filed his "consent" papers is also a 1953 councillor.

The newcomer is Wesley Steenburgh.

GOOD YEAR

At the ratepayers meeting Mr. Leeson said that Havelock had a good year financially. About $7,000 was spent on paving. He considered paving money well spent because it elmininated expenditures for gravelling, grading, calcium chloride and other maintenance work.

The county council this year took a number of village streets into the county roads system: all of George St., Quebec St. from George St. to Otonabee St., all of Ontario St., and Concession St. from Ontario St. to Highway 7.

Mr. Leeson said he would like to be back in 1954 to complete the work he started this year. And he thought he would be in a better position to look after Havelock's interests than in 1953.

Mr. Pollock promised that, if elected, he would see that 1954 was a year of "action and progress". He also said that he would try to get some new industry in the village. At present, he observed, there are many people living in the village but work elsewhere; they should have available employment in the village.

Warming to another election issue, Mr. Pollock said that if Havelock had carried out the waterworks plan he advocated in 1946, the waterworks could have been installed at half the present cost.

Mr. Sanderson said that the streets and sidewalks in Havelock were the best of any village in Ontario. He defended the decision to put mulch over old cement sidewalks on the grounds that this hard-surface covering cost only $300. Cement covering would have cost $1,500.

He said council hoped to make some arrangement this year with the province to complete the 900 feet of sidewalk on Concession St. south of the railway tracks.

FIRE PROTECTION

Mr. Bell spoke on fire protection. He suggested fire fighting equipment costing $1,500. If the fire protection area could include Seymour, Belmont and Asphodel townships, the cost of upkeep wouldn't fall on the Havelock ratepayers alone.

In reply to Mr. Pollock's description of Havelock as "a sleepy little village," Mr. Bell said that it had greatly progressed in the five years he had been a resident.

Mr. Davidson said he would like to be returned to council for another year to complete the projects undertaken in 1953.

Mr. Steenburgh asked for the support of the ratepayers. Mr. Curtis was absent.

Total hydro assets are now $18,315, said Mr. Kennedy. And despite an extensive changeover in the entire system, plus a considerable increase in the cost of power by the HEPC, the local commission were able to supply power at no extra power to the consumers.

James Calnan, chairman of the public school board, reported that there would be no letup in school costs. He praised the teaching staff and thanked the council and the hydro commission for eliminating the hazard to children having to cross the highway and the railway tracks.

The council provided police protection and the hydro started the blinker light working at the tracks.

Balance at the end of the year will be $56, Mr. Calnan estimated.

If there is an election it will be Dec. 7. An advance poll will be taken on Dec. 5.

Killed In Crash

TORONTO (CP)— Ronald Cullinan, 19, of Toronto was killed and three other Torontonians hurt when their car crashed into a pole in east-central Toronto early today. Driver of the car, Samuel Carrocetto, 21, was charged with manslaughter. He suffered head injuries.

REEVE PETER PEARSON

Peter Pearson Is Acclaimed

Once again there will be no election in Galway-Cavendish township. Reeve Peter Pearson and his 1953 council were all returned by acclamation at the nomination meeting Friday afternoon.

M. Pearson, who farms at RR 1, Kinmount, has now been returned for his ninth consecutive term of office.

The nomination meeting lasted two hours and was attended by 25 ratepayers in the Galway hall.

The four 1953 councillors, also returned for another year, are Ray Allen, Charles Molyneaux, Stafford Hickey and George Young. Molyneaux is the veteran councillor having been in office for 12 years.

Mr. Pearson was a councillor for 15 years before making his first successful bid for the reeveship, nine years ago.

Elections for a single trustee on each of the four school section boards will be held early in 1954.

"It was the first time I knew anything was wrong. To say the least I was amazed. I was bewildered. I didn't know what was happening then."

Forced at gun-point into the back room, a small office, the holdup men made Sproat sit down and the tall man "stood as close to the chair as he could." The other man was stationed at the curtained office entrance "to see if any customers came in."

"They asked me what time I locked up and I answered 'at six'". The taller man replied, "Tonight you're closing at 5:30." It was then 5:20.

THREAT MADE

Sproat was warned to "act sensible or this will blow a big hole in you." He was given a quick look at the gun which looked like a German luger (actually it was an air-pistol, now held by city police).

They then asked about the lights, the ones Sproat turned off when he locked up. Sproat said the window lights were turned off to which the smaller man said it wasn't the normal procedure.

"It's your store then," replied Sproat.

The holdup men then asked how Sproat generally went out, how he locked up and what coat he generally wore. He was told to put his coat on and give them the keys to his car, parked in a laneway along the north side of the store.

"I wouldn't give them the keys and they threatened with the gun."

To this Sproat said, "They hang you for murder."

ORDERED OUT OF OFFICE

With the smaller man leading the way, Sproat was ordered to move out of the office followed by the tall man.

"Just as we started to move, I made a grab for the phone, back of the door and pulled the receiver off, yelling "Get the Police!!! Robbery!!!!".

This sudden move surprised the holdup men and gave Sproat a chance to run for the front door.

"I made a dash for the doorway and luckily they hadn't locked the door and I got outside. I held the door and yelled, "Police!! Police!! Robbery!!" to passing motorists."

Meanwhile the tall man was inside trying to pull the door open to catch Sproat. The two pulled back and forth so hard on the door that the door-knob, lock and wooden frame suddenly came out. The window was shattered.

Just then a motorist stopped and the man inside the store fled to the back entrance.

"The big fellow made for the back door and as soon as he did that I went up the lane. He was just getting through the back door as I turned the corner of the building."

Spoat ran down the laneway, throwing off his coat as he ran.

"Unfortunately for him and fortunately for me he turned south. That was a dead end, 10-foot wire fence on two sides and the back of the store on the other."

Sproat, nearly six-foot and sturdily built, tackled the taller man, wrestled and finally made him give in.

"He wasn't so tough."

CALLED POLICE

Holding the man by the arm, Sproat led the man around to the front and back into the store. There with several friends guarding the entrance, Sproat called the police who had already been summoned and were on the way.

When Constables Ed Patterson and Art Beardsmore arrived the air pistol was lying on the floor about four feet from the door. The door knob and lock were on the floor halfway back in the store.

The policemen took the man, Bishop, to the station where he gave them a description of the second man. But this information was denied by Sproat who gave Detective Dennis Traynor and Constable Sherman Kelisle his description.

Working with that information the two policemen began prowling in the squad car, heading first east on Highway 7.

"We went out cruising after getting the proper description," said Traynor. "At about the same time Sherman and I saw a man answering that description walking between the gasoline tanks and the office at a service station near Downer's Corners."

The two policemen watched him enter the station and get a road map.

"As soon as we saw the road map, we knew he was a stranger and went in."

They asked him where he came from and he answered "Toronto." Kelisle asked when he arrived in Peterborough. The man, who turned out to be Norman, answered "today."

Half an hour before the kick-off some tickets were being sold by scalpers at $30 to $40 apiece. One man frantically waved a $20 bill, but couldn't get a ticket. On the other hand, one welldressed man sold two tickets on the 30-yard line at $6 each—the box office price, "I'm no scalper," he said.

One youngster fondled his ticket as he went into the stadium. "I wouldn't sell this for a million bucks," the bright-eyed boy said.

Bare-headed Lester B. (Mike) Pearson, external affairs minister, kicked off. The minister, a football player in his college days at the University of Toronto, kicked it only about six yards.

Pearson Says Still Friendly Towards United States

TORONTO (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson said Friday night that attacks on him in some sections of the American press hadn't affected his friendly feelings toward the United States. The current controversy over whether Igor Gouzenko, one-time cipher clerk in the Russian embassy at Ottawa, should testify before a U.S. congressional committee was just "an incident" which had been "blown up far beyond its intrinsic importance."

The minister's views on the Gouzenko case were expressed in a television and radio press conference at which he was questioned by four newspaper men. The program was carried on the CBC trans-Canada radio network, on the CBC television network and over NBC and CB in the United States.

JUST A RUFFLE

Mr. Pearson termed the case "just a ruffle" on the surface of Canadian-U.S. relations. He didn't mind being attacked in the press although "it's pretty hard to be called a Communist sympathizer when you've been vetoed twice in the United Nations."

His replies came promptly to questions by B. T. Richardson of the Toronto Telegram; Robert McKeown of Weekend magazine; Blair Fraser, Maclean's Magazine, and J. B. McGeachy of the Toronto Globe and Mail.

The CRU allowed both teams to dress 27 players, one more than last year. And, for the first time in the history of the final six officials were used — a referee, three umpires, judge of play and head linesman.

Both clubs were in fine physical condition. Bombers lined up without Lorne Benson, their six-touchdown kid who injured a knee in the second game of the western conference semi-finals against Saskatchewan Roughriders.

A network of 70 radio stations and the CBC-TV network linking Toronto-Ottawa-Montreal brought the game to an estimated 500,000 sit-at-homes.

Tiger-Cats were favored 7-5 in last-minute betting.

Engineers' Head Visits Branch

Ross L. Dobbin, president of the Engineering Institute of Canada, paid his official visit to his home branch, Peterborough, Friday night at ladies' night held at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club.

Decorations throughout the dining-room played on the good humor of their national president. Newspapers decorated one wall, and a few changes were made in the headlines and front page pictures.

Some of the headlines were: "Dobbin Admits Hoax," "Predict Dobbin-Whitton Nuptials," "Ross Dobbin Names President Community Chest," "Dobbin Marble Champion," "Dobbin Baby Grows." These drew more attention than other decorations such as the table place-cards (sketch of Mr. Dobbin and the national crest).

Speaking briefly to the 60 couples, Mr. Dobbin gave the observations of an engineer attending the recent coronation, stressed the demand for engineers in Canada and mentioned several large projects such as the iron mines and power plants.

Among the out-of-town guests was the national secretary Dr. L. A. Wright. Other guests included Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Whittemore of Deloro, chairman of the Belleville branch, Edgar Cross of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Heartz of Montreal, and Mr. and Mrs. John Hall, chairman of the Toronto branch.

The engineers, wives and girl friends then spent the evening dancing to Peterborough's newest musical trio, the Blue Blazers. Buffet supper was served during the dance.

Alfred O. Phillips Honored By Composing Room Staff

Retiring from the staff of the Examiner after twenty-four years of service in the composing department as a linotype operator, Alfred O. Phillips was presented with parting gifts Friday afternoon.

"You are leaving our Examiner team which I think is hard to beat," said H. L. Garner, general manager, in a grateful tribute to the ability of Mr. Phillips and his loyal interest in the Examiner. "We all hope that in your retirement you will be spared for a long time to enjoy the rest and leisure which you have well earned. We wish you godspeed in your trip to the south and-years of health, and that when you return to Peterborough you will come back to visit us."

Mr. Garner presented Mr. Phillips with a wallet and cash from the members of the composing room, on their behalf, and a cheque from the International Typographical Union No. 248, Peterborough, was presented by Harold Dormer. Mr. Garner's gift from the Examiner was a cheque.

Mr. Phillips could hardly find words to express his appreciation of the remembrance of his associates. He said he was taken completely by surprise. He thanked everybody for their kindness and said he would always remember the good relations which he had enjoyed with the Examiner and its staff.

Mr. Phillips is leaving in a few days for an extended holiday in the south. He began his experience in the publishing industry in Manchester, England, where he also attended a technical college for three years. Stock Market Groups Mixed As Industrials Some Stronger

By BOB JOHNSTONE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Stock markets were mixed this week as Toronto, Montreal and New York saw industrials generally stronger and mines weak.

In Toronto, industrials were higher although the index figures ran counter to this trend on three sessions. Papers strengthened although the sharply rising pattern of the last month was beginning to level off. Utilities also chalked up impressive gains, although Brazilian Traction, which had attraced attention for more than a month, dropped Friday when the company declared a stock dividend plus a nominal cash sum instead of the regular cash dividend.

Western oils closed a little lower as both federal and Alberta governments considered the gas-oil export and eastern pipeline questions. Base metals showed the biggest loss.

URANIAMS UP, DOWN

Uraniums leaped upward Wednesday, sparked by Lorado, a Beaverlodge prospect, which spurted from an opening 29 cents to 72 cents. Others followed with modest gains, and when Lorado dropped Thursday, they were down with it.

The Toronto Friday - to - Friday comparisons show industrials down .40 at 306.16, golds down .64 at 67.45, base metals down 2.19 at 144.05 and western oils down .70 at 88.14.

In Montreal, papers were stronger. Other industrials gained but mines were generally down. The week-to-week changes show banks up .35 at 35.62. Utilities down .90 at 93.40, industrials up .70 at 179.90, combined up .20 at 151.10, papers up 7.53 at 772.22 and golds down 1.27 at 48.85. More issues lost than gained, by a margin of 717 to 122.

New York activity showed an upward trend as distillers, aircrafts, motors and movies gained. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was $1.10 higher at $108.60. Mining and speculative oil issues were weak.

Nominations

TORONTO (CP) — Applications for the eighth Kemsley Scholarship awarded in Canada were invited from Canadian newspaper men in a circular distributed Friday by W. A. Craick, honorary secretary of the Canadian section, Commonwealth Press Union.

The scholarship gives the man selected a year's training and experience at offices of Kemsley newspapers in the United Kingdom, continental tours, and a chance to study phases of British life. The object is to encourage an exchange of ideas and experience between British and Commonwealth newspaper men and strengthen Commonwealth ties.

Candidates must be on the permanent staff of a Canadian newspaper, be under 35, have five years' experience and must undertake to return to their newspaper for at least two years following their year in Britain.

The successful Canadian candidate for 1954-55 will be selected by a committee appointed by the executive committee of the Canadian section, CPU, and headed by Frederick I. Ker. Applications will be received up to Dec. 31, 1953.

Community Euchre

WARKWORTH (ENS) — The first euchre party of the season was held Thursday night at Norham community centre. The following were winners: Ladies' high, Mrs. Hodgens, Brighton; ladies' low, Mrs. M. Skinkle, Warkworth; gentlemen's high, Claude Duncan; gentlemen's low, Gregory Towns.

Lunch was served and a social period followed.

TRAVEL: with Jean Stenton

Can Visit Corner Of France Off N.S.

Travellers need not cross the Atlantic to visit France or trade with francs. By crossing 175 miles of water by boat or air from Nova Scotia to the small islands of St. Pierre-Miquelon off the coast of Newfoundland, you can visit the last vestige of the once-great French colonial empire in North America.

The architecture, customs, cooking, language and everything else at St. Pierre-Miquelon are French, although many of the natives speak some English or understand it. Visitors need a visa from the French consulate to enter the colony, and also a passport.

This charming transported corner of France lies only 12 miles off the southeastern coast of Newfoundland. The archipelago consists of three main islands, including Langlade. The islands are summits of an undersea "banc" emerging from the water. Oceanographers call it the Banc de Miquelon. There are three centres of population—St. Pierre and the Bourgs of Miquelon and the Ile Aux Marins. (The villages of St. Pierre and Miquelon are 40 kilometres distant).

The villages are colorful and picturesque; the residents friendly, hospitable and clean; the weather cool, and invigorating, sometimes foggy. There is no hustle or bustle of the big city. You will find no skyscrapers, no noisy trains, street cars, or buses; no daily or weekly newspapers, no air conditioned theatres or night clubs. But astonishing as it may seem, the inhabitants thrive without them.

BEAUTIFUL CLIFFS

The island of St. Pierre is of volcanic origin and the cliffs colored in red, rose, mauve, green and brown shades are beautiful. Although this is the smallest of the main islands, it is the most important and has the capital. The north and northwest coasts are wild and hostile. The little wooden houses, however, are painted in a variety of colors and have a smiling aspect.

The town of St. Pierre with 3,500 people is not like ports on the Acadien side. It is more like a corner of Brittany and faces entirely on the sea. The streets run at right angles and are narrow without sidewalks and paved only with cobblestones. The roads are named mostly for ancient governors, and the exceptions are the Place de la Liberte, la Place Gambetta and la rue Sadi-Carnat.

The inhabitants know only their own quarter, and the town is divided into seven quarters: de l'Anse a Rodrigue, du Feu Rouge, de la Butte, de l'Abattoir, du Sud, du Port, and de la T.S.F. Le Grand Colombier is a fine excursion spot. There is a lovely rocky cliff 160 metres high from which there is a magnificent view of the islands. You can also see the white houses on the Newfoundland coast on a fine day.

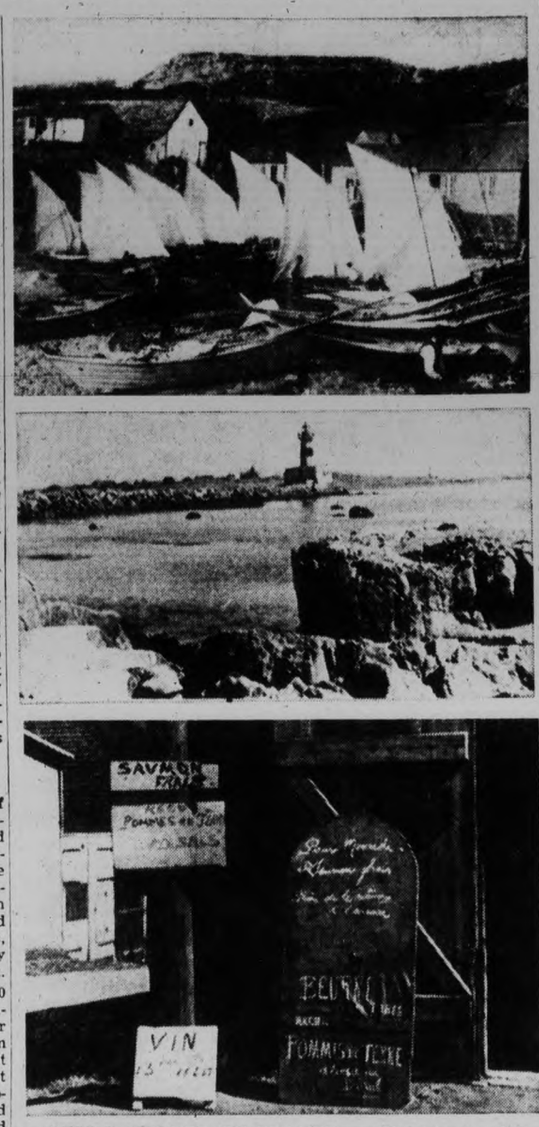
The south part of Miquelon toward St. Pierre has been reclaimed by dykes and carries the marks of ancient glaciers. There have been many explanations for the name of the archipelago, and one of the most popular is that St. Pierre-Miquelon was named by Portuguese navigators as San Pedro and Miguel, which were later translated into French. This is possible, but not proven. The Ile Aux Marins was called the Island of the Dogs until recently. The inhabitants were satisfied with the name, but a new cure thought it undignified and so it was changed.

WEEKLY TRIP

Miquelon is the biggest in the archipelago and the south has many wild, rocky bluffs. The 500 fishermen-peasants in the Bourg live cut off from civilization, distant even from St. Pierre. Most of the population is Basque, although there are some Normans and Bretons. Visitors can reach Miquelon on the government tug which makes a weekly trip, going and returning the same day with a four-hour stopover. This allows time for an interesting look around.

A very correct type of French is spoken by the inhabitants, some of the terms going back to the 17th and 18th centuries. Since it is a sailor community too, many sailing terms have crept in. For example, when you go to bed you "embark in your bed"; if you stop in the street for a little chat you "drop anchor"; if you are not gay, you "have the face of a headwind."

Many Canadians associate St. Pierre-Miquelon with rum-running and prohibition, and rightly so. The inhabitants had a golden age during that period, dealing with smugglers of three countries. Nearly everyone was involved.



TRAVEL BY BOAT OR AIR

The visitor can drive or go by train to Halifax or Sydney and take a boat which is a 32-34 run. Pickford & Black Ltd. are agents for the motor vessel Miquelon from Halifax, and Messrs. Joseph Salters Sons from North Sydney. There is no fixed schedule since it depends on the amount of freight booked between ports. The Miquelon makes at least three trips a month to St. Pierre from Halifax, and between regular runs goes across to Sydney for coal for the St. Pierre government. The fare is $30 one way from Halifax and $25 from Sydney. The return fare must be purchased at St. Pierre since many passengers prefer to return via Sydney. The Miquelon is small, but carries 16 passengers in fair comfort. There are two and four-berth cabins. There is no need to book in advance, but it is suggested that passengers contact the boat agents two or three weeks ahead of the time they expect to be travelling there.

The Miquelon purser will help passengers get hotel accommodation. This is one of the most reasonable of holidays. The two best hotels are Hotel Robert and the Hotel de France. The rates are $6 a day and include accommodation and three meals, also wine. Boarding houses charge $5 a day, including meals.

If you prefer to go by air, the Maritime Central Airways operates weekly flights from Sydney to St. Pierre during the summer. The air voyage takes an hour and costs $28 each way.

St. Pierre-Miquelon is a good buying spot, too. Visitors can shop for French perfumes, kid gloves, Swiss watches, silk scarves, pottery and other imported goods selling for about 50 per cent, less than in Canada.

LITTLE CORNER OF FRANCE — The islands of St. Pierre-Miquelon off the coast of Newfoundland, today is still a little corner of France, but easily accessible to Canadians. Top photo shows the dories at rest at Savoyard's Cove on St. Pierre. The Saint Pierrais is a man of the sea and in his veins runs the blood of Basques, of Bretons. The entrance to the Port of St. Pierre is shown in the centre photo; a typical grocery store on the island is shown in the lower photo. The streets have no sidewalks and the grocery stores are simple affairs. The signs outside the door tell shoppers that there is fresh salmon for sale and wine is 13 francs a litre.

2nd Peace Congress Opens In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—The second provincial peace congress opened a three-day meeting here Friday night with members of the Montreal anti-subversive squad in attendance.

The meeting is sponsored by the Montreal Peace Council, an affiliate of the Canadian Peace Congress, said an officer, adding members of every Communist organization in the province and some from Toronto were among the 200 persons at the meeting.

Supper Club Discusses Canada's Food Rules

NORWOOD (ENS)—The "Tasty Treaters" supper club met at the home of Miss Leona Gordon.

The meeting opened with the 4-H pledge followed by the Lord's prayer. There were 10 present.

It was decided that Audrey Gardner and her assistant, Irene Colby, supervise the food chart. For their home assignments the girls were to prepare cream soup and a scalloped vegetable. "Canada's Food Rules" were discussed, starting with milk and cheese.

The girls then retired to the kitchen where Leona Gordon demonsrtated the making of a cream sauce. Croutons, soup and scalloped parsnips were made by all of the girls. Lunch was served.

A Four-Power Conference

Russia has accepted the Western Powers' invitation for a Four-Power conference. This would have been very good news had the United States not taken the acceptance so suspiciously as to lead one to believe that it, too, like the forthcoming Bermuda conference, may be only a Three Power affair—the U.S., not the U.S.S.R., abstaining.

* * *

It is an alarming symptom of American policy that every move which the U.S.S.R. makes seems to be viewed with hostility by the U.S.A. Russia's acceptance of the invitation has the appearance of being reasonable. The suggestion that Berlin be the convening place is sound; it is central, it is neither within nor without the Iron Curtain. And in accepting, Russia proposed no embarrassing conditions, as had been contained in the previous Russian note. The central problem in Europe today is Germany. The U.S.A. should want a solution to it as earnestly as Britain and France.

* * *

The U.S.S.R. has agreed to discuss the German problem and other causes of world tension. The only rider seems to be that one of the first items it will introduce will be the need, as Russia sees it, of China being party to a conference to resolve world issues. This proposal is, of course, anathema to the U.S. although not to Britain. Yet it should not be taken as an excuse for not having a Berlin conference. The Russian note was peaceable. It is reported to have stated that "since it was clear from previous notes that all four powers are seeking peace, Russia therefore is glad to take up the problems in Europe which have been causing tension." Why should the U.S. find this "disappointing" and a threat to Europe?

Frontier And Factory

The Canadian economic scene has a characteristic unusual to a country of growing maturity. It contains a mixture of both a pioneering and an advanced industrial economy. Mr. Donald Gordon, President of the C.N.R., called attention to this unusual feature in a recent address in Detroit, citing on the one hand the concentration of industrial activity in the St. Lawrence valley (including Montreal and Toronto)—one of the world's greatest—and on the other the Northwest Territories, an expanse of little-known country half as large as the whole of the United States. He cited Kitimat, within the wilderness of the northern boundaries of British Columbia; and the iron mining project in the heart of almost virgin land six hundred miles north of the St. Lawrence Gulf. From it will be produced (as plans envisage) ten million tons of iron ore a year. Yet not one ton of iron was produced anywhere in Canada in 1945. There are prairies where oil is flowing from wheat fields. There is the tick of the Geiger counter in the north-west, the instrument which has replaced the prospector's sluice pan. In Canada today the frontier is never very far from the factory.

The development of industry in urban areas and of industry at the frontier has been sensational. Canada now ranks fifth among the western nations in production of manufactured goods. The national output in real terms has risen thirty per cent since 1945; the population has increased more than twenty per cent. In terms of population, real output and the production of each employed person, the rate of expansion has exceeded that of the U. S. Over the last five years 21 per cent. of the Gross National Product (the sum of goods and services produced) has been devoted to new fixed investment—a higher proportion than in any other nation in the Western World.

What does all this mean? It means not only that Canada has advanced materially but it is still advancing. The basis for the expansion has been soundly laid. Mr. Gordon made a conservative estimate that by 1980 Canada will have a population of twenty-five million people and a gross national income of $65 billion—three times as much as it was last year.

A reassurance that the foundation is solid is this: it is not all newly-laid. Canada has not stumbled into riches unawares. Mr. Gordon commented:

"Certainly the extent of our forest and farm resources has been known for decades and it was common knowledge even during the thirties that Canada possessed enormous potentials for hydro-electric power. As for production of mineral wealth, I remind you that Canada has been a leading supplier of nickel, asbestos, gold, copper, lead and zinc, to name only the major items, for more than a quarter of a century. What has happened is that resources, once submarginal, have been moved within the area of profitable development by two forces—first, a high level of effective demand supported by advances in technology tending to reduce costs and which have created new products—the manufacture of cellulose from forest products is an example; and secondly, the depletion of alternative sources of supply outside of Canada—the iron ore developments in Labrador, Ungava and the Atikokan-Steep Rock area, furnish this example."

Foundation and framework of the present prosperity and its future development have been well laid, but the future does not depend on that alone. Last year Canada exported about a quarter of the Gross National Product. Without freedom to export, the Canadian economy would be hamstrung, Canadian leaders in business, industry and government are therefore right in urging fewer trade restrictions, more freedom. (In particular it is hoped that the U.S.A., the world leader in trade and Canada's biggest supplier as well as best customer, will do nothing to restrain international trade further than it has done, and will indeed adopt a liberal attitude to foster the international exchange of goods and services.) It can be shown that American interests, as well as Canadian can be best served thus. Much of Canada's future depends on the accessibility of foreign markets to Canadian goods.

Don't Dismiss The Dawn Man

There appears to have been a rather widespread misunderstanding about the recent discoveries concerning the skull of the Piltdown Man, or Dawn Man; it is not the complete skull which has been found to be a fake, but only the jawbone. The skull itself still retains its importance as the earliest skull ever discovered which could have accommodated a human brain, thus fixing the period of man's habitation of the earth at about 50,000 years.

It now appears that the jawbone which was found with this skull is that of a modern ape, probably an orang-outan, which has been doctored with chemicals to make it seem old. We should like to know more about this than has yet been made public, for in 1948 careful fluorine tests were made of the Piltdown bones, under the direction of Dr. Kenneth Page Oakley, and the Keeper of Geology for the British Museum—neither of them careless or gullible persons. Fluorine tests are complicated, but trustworthy. Seventeen samples of bone matter were tested from the Piltdown skull, including matter from the jaws and teeth, and it was reported then that all samples gave the same result, and dated the skull at about 50,000 years of age. What has upset these tests?

The importance of this matter may seem obscure to the general public, but it is of great importance to those who seek to trace the appearance of a true man, as opposed to a man-like creature of inferior brain capacity, on the earth. The Piltdown skull was discovered by an English lawyer, Charles Dawson, in 1908; he was an amateur geologist, and picked up some fragments of the skull near a gravel pit on a Sussex common. Many eoliths—the stone implements used by the earliest inhabitants of Britain—had been found at this spot. Later, in 1911, Dawson found more skull fragments, and by 1912 a large group of bones had been found, which showed that in the Stone Age southern Britain had been inhabited by creatures resembling the modern hippopotamus, elephant and beaver, as well as by the thick-skulled human creature.

The story of the evolution of life on this globe is an enthralling one, and so far we have been able to read only a few fragments of it. The Piltdown skull is one of these. It is a mere 50,000 years old, and it is the oldest skull we have found which possesses a brain-case of modern size. There are much older skulls, of course, and one which was found at Swanscombe, also in England, has been shown by fluorine tests to be about 100,000 years old, but it does not suggest a completely human brain.

Who planted the fake jawbone with the Piltdown skull? If we follow the best detective practice and look for a motive, suspicion lights on Charles Dawson, who discovered the skull and gained fame from so doing. But so far we do not know enough about the matter to say that he did the deed.

Incidentally, there are good reasons to believe that the Piltdown skull, usually called Piltdown Man, is actually the skull of a Piltdown Woman.

Funny Coincidence

Igor Gouzenko, the Russian cipher clerk whose disclosures set off the spy trials, was living quietly out of the news for the last six or seven years. Then suddenly, last week, he erupted into the limelight again. He gave an interview to a Chicago Tribune correspondent, saying he was willing to talk to U.S. congressional investigators. This led to the hulabaloo in both the States and Canada which we have been witnessing the last ten days. The name Igor Gouzenko is once again back in the headlines of this continent. It is a curious coincidence that Mr. Gouzenko is about to publish a book, his first novel. Publicity is sweet to authors and their publishers.

RADIESTHESIA

Fantastic Camera

By CHARLES DAVY

THERE is a subject called radiesthesia which arouses strong feelings of partisanship and hostility. It is the study of radiations, different from those at present recognised by science, which are believed to be associated especially with living organisms. Nobody knows what they are, but nobody knows what heat or light radiations are. All we have to deal with are the phenomena. The phenomena of radiesthesia, it is claimed, can be detected by certain instruments, allied usually with a particular human sensitivity. One of these instruments is a peculiar kind of camera, invented by Mr. G. W. de la Warr, A.M.Inst.C.E.,G.I.Mech. E., formerly an assistant county engineer, which is now being demonstrated at the Delawarr Laboratories in Oxford

SINCE radiesthesia is often associated chiefly with "Abrams' Box," some people may assume that the de la Warr camera is just another version of it. Abrams, a gifted eccentric Californian doctor, was one of the early pioneers of radiesthesia, but the camera is quite unlike his "Box" and has been developed from a different approach to the subject.

Mr. de la Warr says that if a doctor sends him a blood sample from a patient, and asks for a given organ to be tested for the presence or absence of a named disease-process, the camera will "photograph" the state of the organ, with any disease-process showing up black on the negative. The patient need not be present.

THE PROCEDURE, which I have watched without understanding it is briefly as follows. The blood sample (picked from a finger on to a filter paper and allowed to dry) has to be placed in the camera at a particular angle to the earth's magnetic field. The camera is then "tuned" by a special method, said to use variations in electrical resistance, which cannot be intelligibly described here.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE CAMERA is a large, black box-like structure, with tuning dials on three sides and a much smaller box, the "focusing-chamber," supported above it on four metal rods. It is a fairly complex, well-finished job, with nothing of the home-made look about it. The filter paper is placed on the top surface of the lower box, and an ordinary photographic plate (Ilford fine-grain) is loaded into the focusing-chamber above.

FOR THE TAKING of the photograph, a condition of "resonance" is set up in the lower part of the camera with the aid of sound waves (audible as a low hum); this is said to release beams of radiant energy which pass up into the focusing-chamber and are reflected on to the plate. An exposure of ten seconds is given, after which the plate is developed in the ordinary way.

During the demonstration two photographs were taken — one of the appendix of a volunteer visitor, suspected of having slight inflammation in that region, and the second as a control, of the appendix of a person believed to be in normal health. The two plates were taken from a new, sealed packet, and initialled by the respective blood-sample donors. The first plate, when developed, showed a curved shape of intestinal appearance, white, with slight patches of black. The second photograph showed a similar, fainter shape, with no black patches. Other photographs, made by doctors during the last year or so and purporting to show various organs and disease-processes were available for comparison, with supporting medical testimony.

ALL THIS sound fantastic, and obviously before it could be accepted, extensive tests would be required. The initially surprising thing is that this camera should take photographs at all, for it appears to have no recognised means of producing a radiation capable of affecting a photographic plate, still less of creating a formed image there.

However, a much simpler experiment, designed to test the claim that the radiation from a blood sample is influenced by its orientation in the earth's magnetic field, can first be made, and was in fact made during the demonstration by a colleague of mine, who went alone into the dark-room to do it.

FOR this experiment plates sensitive to infra-red radiation are used. My colleague was given two such plates, again taken from a new, sealed packet; he scratched his initials on them. He was also given a blood sample from a member of Mr. de la Warr's staff. Alone in the dark-room, he unwrapped one of the plates, placed the filter paper with the blood sample in contact with the emulsion-side of the plate and enclosed both objects in a cassette, so as to shield the plate from stray light or heat.

THE TEST was to show that if both the blood sample and its donor are correctly orientated, the plate will be fogged by a release of energy from the blood sample; but that if either the blood sample or its donor is out of position, the degree of fogging is noticeably less. In this case, the correct positions were know in advance; from previous tests. My colleague was shown the angle at which to place the cassette on a table in the dark-room, and was told that the donor would take up his correct orientation in an adjoining room. My colleague was to move the cassette into position, leave it there for thirty seconds, and then move it out of position, thus terminating the exposure."

Exactly the same procedure was then carried out with the second plate, except that this time the donor did not take up his correct orientation. The two plates were then developed. The first was much more heavily fogged than the second. Yet the only apparent difference in the treatment they had received was that in the second case the donor of the blood sample—not the sample itself—had been aligned in a different direction.

THE EXPERIMENT could be tried by anyone with patience and a set of infra-red plates. If enough plates were used, the orientation angles of blood sample and donor could be searched for by systematic trial and error, with no resort to the special technique developed for this purpose by Mr. de la Warr himself.

If this effect could be convincingly substantiated, its interest would lie in its seeming to indicate some unrecognised connection between living organisms, represented by the blood sample, and the earth's magnetic field.

This article, however, is not written to support Mr. de la Warr's claims, but solely to suggest that they might be further investigated. Some medical tests, with hospital collaboration, are now being made, but the first thing is to establish whether the basic phenomena are genuine and, if so, how the camera works.

World Veterans Admit Germany

By COLIN LEGUM

FOR MORE than a year the 106 ex-service men's associations of the twenty countries that belong to the World Veterans' Federation (W.V.F.) have been hesitating over the application for membership made by the largest veterans' association in Germany. At the fourth general assembly of the W.V.F., which was opened by Holland's Queen Juliana, they decided to admit both the Germans and the Austrians.

It was not an easy decision, but only one delegation—from Israel—voted against. One delegation — from Luxembourg — abstained. And the rest voted in favour of admission—even the delegate from Denmark, a woman, a former underground leader whose seventeen-year-old son was shot by the Germans.

One of the Dutch leaders who declared himself in favour of admssion was Colonel W. Cha. Van Lanschot, who holds the Dutch equivalent of the British Victoria Cross. The citation that went with his award said that he had been tortured by the Gestapo for one hundred hours without respite during an interrogation.

"It is easy," said Colonel Van Lonschot, "to make peace with one's friends. What counts is the ability to do so with one's former enemies. That surely is what we have to do if we are serious about achieving peace with freedom."

Though hesitant, the French and Belgian delegates voted in favour. So did the Greeks, the Yugoslavs (led by one of Marshal Tito's close advisers), the United States, Britain, Canada, Brazil, Egypt, Pakistan, India, Turkey, Norway, the Philippines, the Gold Coast and Italy.

But the decision of the World Veterans does not give carte blanche to all German veterans' associations. The activities of the militarist groups led by the former Generals Ramcke and Kesselring have been condemned by the W.V.F.; and of the score or more veterans' associations in Western Germany, the W.V.F. admits that so far only one association meets all the requirements of a non-political and democratic veterans' groups. This is the V.D.K. (Verband Der Kriegsbeschaedigten, Kriegshinterbliebenen und Sozialrentner Deutschlands) which with its 1,200,00 disabled members, is the largest of the German associations.

A study of the present position of veterans' politics in Western Germany shows that—once again—veterans are being used to build up political power for opposing groups. With few exceptions (and the V.D.K. is the outstanding one) none of the veterans' associations devotes itself to promoting the interest of ex-servicemen.

Former high German officers like Guderian, Kesselring, Ramcke, Cruewell and Hansen are leaders in a number of bodies which are trying to unite themselves into an association of German soldiers. They refuse to recognize Allied action against war criminals; demand a general amnesty for war criminals, and their liberation as a condition of a German participation in a European Army; and the protection of German "military honour."

The emotional appeal of these groups has made it difficult for non-political associations like the V.D.K. to maintain its membership, and there is some indication the present struggle in veterans' politics is resulting in the V.D.K. losing members to extremist groups.

It is believed of the V.D.K. leaders that they can maintain their prestige by being the first German group to win international recognition through membership of the World Veterans' Federation—which enjoys the support of people like Britain's Sir Winston Churchill, America's President Eisenhower, the ex-President, Mr. Harry Truman, Marshal Tito, Queen Juliana, India's Pandit Nehru, Mr. Dag Hammarskjoeld, Secretary-General of the United Nations, and Leon Joulaux, the distinguished French Trades union leader and Nobel prize winner.

Representatives also indicate that the extremist German veterans' association are undermining the authority of prominent German leaders like Herr Blank, Chief of Service in the Ministry of the Interior. Because of his association in the plot against Hitler, Herr Blank is stigmatised as an "American stooge."

The V.D.K. leaders have responded to the confidence put in them by the W.V.F. by publicly admitting Germany's war guilt. This will help to strengthen their links in the international field; but it will equally certainly be used to discredit them by their opponents inside Germany.

There is no doubt that Herr Gerd Brinkman, a former corporal with a Panzer (armoured) unit, made a good impression on the veterans' assembly when he responded to the adoption of the V.D.K. membership by saying:

"In the recent past, grave mistakes have been made by irresponsible leadership in Germany; a misled people have been thrown into a war which has brought unspeakable misery over the world. The 4,500,000 German war victims know only too well its terrible consequences."

He spoke of the toll of German casualties: 1,600,000 war disabled who have lost their sight or one or both legs, or are otherwise incapacitated; 1,200,000 war widows and 600,000 war orphans.

"We ask you," he added, "to accept the assurance that those of our people who have suffered and will suffer during their lifetime, as a consequence of terrible wars, condemn, as you do, real war crimes committed by dishonourable elements claiming to act in the name of the German people."

The only excuse he offered was the "millions of German soldiers tried to do their duty at the risk of their lives, a duty imposed on them by law."

Mr. Elliot H. Newcomb, Secretary-General of the W.V.F., commented that the decision to admit the V.D.K. could have "far-reaching effects on the future influence of militaristic extremists in West German veterans' associations." Whether or not he is right, the fact remains that German democrats cannot complain of a lack of generosity on the part of their former enemies.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And Balak the son of Zippor saw all that Israel had done to the Amorites . . .

He sent messengers therefore unto Balaam the son of Beor to Pethor, which is by the river of the land of the children of his people, to call him, saying, Behold, there is a people come out from Egypt: behold, they cover the face of the earth, and they abide over against me: come now therefore, I pray thee, curse me this people; for they are too mighty for me: peradventure I shall prevail, that we may smite them, and that I may drive them out of the land: for I wot that he whom thou blessest is blessed, and he whom thou cursest is cursed . . .

And when Balak heard that Balaam was come, he went out to meet him unto a city of Moab, which is in the border of Arnon, which is in the utmost coast . . . And Balaam said unto Balak, Lo. I am come unto thee: have I now any power at all to say any thing? the word that God putteth in my mouth, that shall I speak. (Num. 22: 2, 5, 6, 36. 38.)

And he took up his parable, and said, Balak the king of Moab hath brought me from Aram, out of the countains of the east, saying, Come, curse me Jacob, and come, defy Israel. How shall I curse, whom God hath not cursed? or how shall I defy, whom the Lord hath not defied? . . .

And Balak said unto Balaam, What hast thou done unto me? I took thee to curse mine enemies, and, behold, thou hast blessed them altogether.

And he answered and said, Must I not take heed to speak that which the Lord hath put in my mouth? . . . Behold, I have received commandment to bless: and he hath blessed; and I cannot reverse it . . . Surely there is no enchantment against Jacob, neither is there any divination against Israel: according to this time it shall be said of Jacob and of Israel, What hath God wrought? (Num. 23: 7, 8, 11. 20, 23.)

The mighty God, even the Lord, hath spoken, and called the earth from the rising of the sun unto the going down thereof.

Out of Zion, the perfection of beauty, God hath shined. (Ps. 50:1, 2.)

Honour and majesty are before Him: strength and beauty are in his sanctuary. . .

Give unto the Lord the glory due unto his name: bring an offering, and come into his courts.

O worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness: fear before him, all the earth. (Ps. 96:6, 8, 9.)

Humble Pie

From the New York Times

OCCASIONALLY an editor's day will be brightened by an unexpected letter written, thoughtfully and well, on hotel stationery by a travelling salesman or someone who evidently was in town for the night, was lonesome and decided to write a letter to the local editor.

Editors also receive letters announcing weddings and engagements, obviously intended for the society department; they receive casually written requests for information that would take a team of researchers working in shifts a week to unearth; they receive (unfortunately) letters bearing no signature or address (few editors print such communications under any circumstances).

Every mail delivery has its surprises; an upstate editor once received from a correspondent a remarkable lemon, about the size of a volleyball. Somewhat skeptically ,he reports, he took it home, where his wife made from it a lemon meringue pie. Ignoring the opinion implied by the gift, he ate the pie and found it excellent, much better indeed than a letter beginning, "Dear Sir: Your Faulty and obviously uninformed analysis . . ."

Particular Local Interest In Handsome Volume About Stratford Festival

A book of unusual Peterborough interest has just been published. It is about the Stratford Shakespearean festival this summer, which hundreds of Peterborough people went to see. One of its three contributors is Robertson Davies of this city. In the collection of 24 drawings done by the noted artist Grant Macdonald are those of actors well known to patrons of the Peterborough Summer Theatre: Bill Needles, Robert Christie, Betty Leighton, Bill Hutt, Peter Mews.

The new book "Renown At Stratford" is subtitled "A Record of the Shakespeare Festival in Canada, 1953".

PRODUCING THE PLAYS

The first essay, running to 40 pages, is by Tyrone Guthrie, director of Richard III and All's Well That Ends Well, the two plays presented. The preface to the book says: "No one understands the nature and aims of the Festival better than Tyrone Guthrie, for it was he who gave it form and put the mark of his genius firmly upon it".

Dr. Guthrie's essay is a lively, humorous and interesting glimpse of the genesis of the Festival, the protracted preparations, the ups and downs, financial as well as in matters of costuming and staging. To undertake such a large venture from absolutely nothing except the enthusiasm of a few citizens of an Ontario town of 18,000 was audacious. To bring it through to the success the Festival achieved both artistically and financially, was stupendous.

Mr. Davies' esssay is modestly referred to as "notes" about the productions as they appeared to him. This section of the book, entitled "The Players" not only highlights individual actors in their roles, but recalls the atmosphere of the Festival theatre and the drama of the total production. It is a critical appreciation of many phases of the performance.

This section is interspersed with the drawings from the specially prepared folio done by Grant Macdonald. They are characteristic of the work of this Ontario artist, are in colour, and handsomely reproduced.

Mr. Davies says in his Preface: "In writing of these drawings I must make it plain that I do not look at them simply as pictures, but as powerfully evocative records of occasions which gave me keen pleasure. [Grant Macdonald] has the power to paint an actor in character in such a way that, even if we have not seen the actor play that part we sense the truth of the portrait, and receive a strong impression of what the performance was like".

"Renown At Stratford" is not a mere elaboration, with pictures, of a souvenir program. It is a souvenir book of a wonderful venture, and marks well and interestingly a great development in the theatre in Canada.

The book is unusual as a publication. It is the first book ever produced in Canada without type. It was composed photographicly in Toronto. The result of this process is a clean and handsome volume.

Algonquin's 2,700 Sq. Miles Unrivalled Provincial Asset

A provincial park of 2,700 square miles of forest and lake about 200 miles north of Toronto, Algonquin Park is the highest and most rugged part of the Highlands Region. Altitudes vary from 1,200 to 1,900 feet above sea level. Taking up parts of the District of Nipissing and the county of Haliburton, the Park is crossed in the southwest by Highway 60, and by the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways.

The Park area was a hunting ground in the early 17th century for the Algonquin Indians, who supplied French traders with furs. Intensive explorations of the area was made from 1818 to 1868 by British Army officers seeking transportation routes to bases on Lake Huron and Lake Superior, and by government and private surveyors. Concurrently, lumber interests were pushing further up the Ottawa and its tributaries in search of more red and white pine.

The pathways to the Park were soon cleaned out of the best timber. Settlers moved in after the lumbermen and it was expected that once the forest was cleared, the area would be valuable farming land. Settlers in the southeast established "depot" farms in patches of fertile soil and ran them in conjunction with work in the lumber camps. When the lumber companies stopped cutting and the railways were built, the depot farms lost their market for food and fodder grown for the camps.

PARK SUGGESTED

A Government scheme for settling the tract was relinquished during the 1880's as the lack of fertile soil became apparent and the suggestion was advanced that a "National Forest and Park" be established. An area would be set aside for the preservation and maintenance of the natural forest", to protect "the headwaters and the tributaries of the Muskoka, Petawawa, Bonnechere, and Madawaska Rivers", and to preserve fur bearing animals, some of which had been hunted so extensively that extermination appeared likely. Control of the region was to prevent a recurrence of the cycle begun in many parts of the Province when land was denuded of trees by new settlers and lumbermen, reducing the water supply.

The Algonquin National Park Act was passed by the legislative assembly of the Province of Ontario in 1893. By this Act, the territory lying near and enclosing the headwaters of the Muskoka, Madawaska, Amable du Fond, Petawawa and South Rivers was set apart "as a public park and forest reservation, fish and game preserve, health resort and pleasure ground of the benefit, advantage and enjoyment of the people of the Province." Since 1893, eleven full townships and large sections of eight others were added, almost doubling the original area.

FOR RECREATION

The main use of the Park at present is for recreational purposes. Travel permits issued in 1952 show over 197,000 persons admitted to the Park. There are about 400 private summer homes within its limits, together with boys' and girls' camps and tourist establishments. Summer homes and tourist camps are restricted to certain areas in the southern portion of the Park, the remainder being retained as a "wilderness area" free from settlement and accessible by canoe.

A sanctuary for wildlife, the Park has played an important part in helping to keep fisher, marten and beaver from disappearing in eastern Ontario. The increase of valuable fur bearing animals in the Park has resulted in an overflow of these animals into the surrounding area. Some of the best trapping ground in Ontario is in the regions bordering the Park. The Ontario Government has set up a system of zoned trapping along the Park boundaries in the Huntsville and North Bay districts.

Your Garden:

How To Grow Fruit Trees In Your Own Back Yard

BY HENRY PREA (NEA)

After paying 59 cents for six Delicious apples, the old gardener was reminded of the reason why more and more people are planting a few fruit trees in the back yard. However, the growing of fruits in the home garden is not as simple as it seems.

Purchasing and planting the trees is a simple chore—but all too often the venture is not successful because the home gardener failed to study their cultural requirements.

Home orchard difficulties can be attributed to one or all of the following pitfalls: Poor site, poor soil, lack of equipment and knowledge for insect and disease control.

Vernon Patterson, pomologist of Ohio State University, author of bulletin 335, "How to Grow Tree Fruits in the Home Garden," writes, "Insect and disease control is by far the most serious difficulty. Generally, it is the principal cause for failure. If pests are not controlled, fruit may be of little value or actually inedible.

"Equipment for spraying and dusting a small orchard is rather expensive considering its use. Also, home gardeners frequently do not have information or time to control pests. Perhaps this problem will be less serious as new and better spray materials and equipment are developed."

An elevated frost-free site, with a reasonably fertile, well-drained soil, is essential for high yields of fruit year after year. Growers who have back yards without these factors should refrain from planting fruit trees.

Otherwise they must be satisfied with lower yields and even crop failure in unfavorable seasons. If your back-yard garden is rather small, you probably will get more pleasure and produce by confining attention to berries, vegetables and flowers.

Standard apple and pear trees usually become too large to permit effective pest control by the time they are eight to 10 years of age. Then, too, limited space in home graden often does not permit planting standard - size trees.

Dwarf fruit trees are now offered by many nurseries in the popular varieties. They are much smaller, bear fruit earlier in life and can be sprayed satisfactorily with hand-operated equipment.

The dwarfing effect usually comes from the use of dwarfing rootstock. Standard varieties are budded or grafted to the rootstock at the surface of the soil. Because of the limited and shallow root system of the dwarfing rootstock, use a trunk support, such as a stake, post, or trells for the dwarf trees.

It is also important that the point of union between the dwarfing rootstock and the variety be just above the ground level. Otherwise if the union is below the ground level, roots may develop from the standard variety portion, and a standard-size tree will result. Most nurseries use a dwarfing rootstock called Malling IX for apple trees.

This is a true dwarf and well adapted to home gardens. For pear trees the Angers Quince is used for dwarfing. At the present time there are no satisfactory rootstocks for producing dwarf cherry, plum or peach trees. In fact, these fruits come into bearing at a rather young age, and there is less need for dwarf types than fo rapples and pears.

Gardening Questions

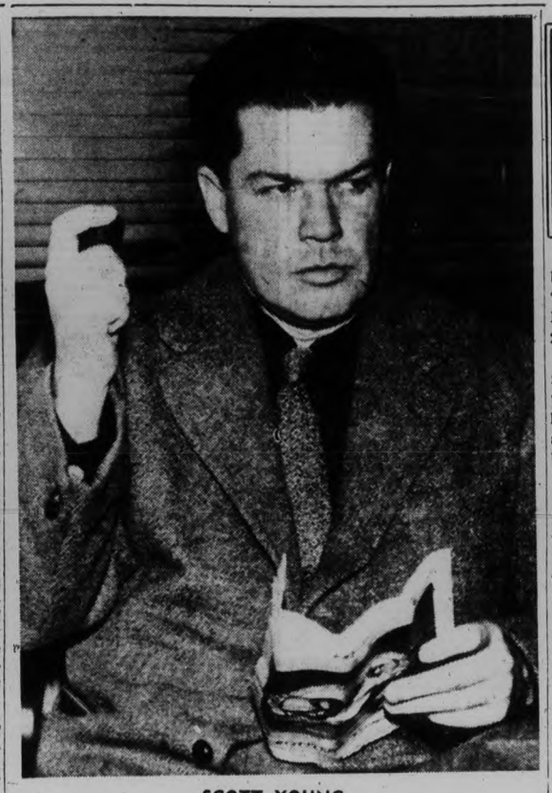
Q—Is there any easy way to get rid of tree stumps that are too large for one person to dig out? What about the various advertised chemical stump removers?

A—Tests made two years ago at the University of Illinois of many chemicals resulted in failure. The answer is "plenty of elbow grease" if you want to remove a tree stump.

Q—Should the evergreen foundation planting about our home be watered at this late date?

A—It is extremely important that broad-leaved evergreens, such as laurel, rhdodendron, etc., be given a generous watering before the ground freezes. All evergreens give off water in moisture form throughout the winter months.

Q—The periwinkle—also kown as Myrtle—ground cover planted this past spring has not spread as we had hoped. What can be done to green it up?



A—A mixture of equal parts cottonseed meal and a 10-6-4 fertilizer applied at a rate of four pounds per 100 square feet and worked into the soil should do the trick.

Dwarf fruit tree is excellent for people with very small yards.

GOOD-WILL

It is very difficult to gain good-will; but once you have it, it is easy to keep it.

SCOTT YOUNG

Omemee Writer S. Young Sells Stories World Over; Writes New Novel For Boys

BY A. J. THOMAS

When his "Basutoland rights" come in, Scott Young of Omemee fingers the small cheque whimsically and passes it on to his wife for new skates for one of the boys, or, if it comes in summer, perhaps swaps it for a new fishing rod.

What he means by his humorous reference to "Basutoland rights" are the offspring royalties from reprints of one of his short stories published perhaps in Austria, or in Rhodesia or perhaps in Pakistan. Scott Young's short stories have been published in half a dozen languages, and in magazines all over the world.

His main market is in the big American magazines. Cheques from these are substantial. But perhaps three years after a story has appeared in the U. S., and after it has been published also in England, some far-off magazine publishing in a foreign language will want to give the story to its readers. Mr. Young's New York agent authorizes its reprinting there, and in due course a cheque, translated from a depreciated foreign currency, arrives in Omemee. By this time the author of the story may have to search his mind to recall what it was and when he wrote it.

VARIED CAREER

Scott Young is one of Canada's best-known short-story writers. But this field is only one of many which he has ploughed in his short course. For instance, he is the author of two excellent juvenile novels. "Scrubs on Skates" was published first in the U. S. and later in Canada, last year. Its sequel is "Boy On Defence", published in Canada last month, and also in the States.

Scott Young has been magazine editor, war correspondent, sports reporter, newspaper reporter, Canadian Press foreign correspondent and an Ordinary Seaman.

How did Mr. Young get to Omemee? He started the journey in a small town in Manitoba called Glenboro, the grandson of a parson, 35 years ago. All his boyhood was spent in the West, in one part or another. During summer holidays from school he worked on farms. After finishing high school his first full time job was as a cashier in a tobacco wholesale in Winnipeg.

Here is his shorthand on that phases of his career. "After a few weeks in the business world I knew it was unreasonable to expect any human being to spend a lifetime at it, so bought a typewriter at $4 down and $4 a month and at the age of 18 began to write. Wrote very hard. Sold a 600-word semi-fiction piece to a newspaper weekend feature page for $3 and they also offered me a job as a copy boy. Took a cut of $8 a week from $22 to $14 and took the job". His writing and newspaper career burgeoned in Winnipeg and Toronto. He became known as a sports columnist.

IN NAVY

Scott Young joined the navy as an ordinary seaman, but by this time he was already featured as a war correspondent in Canadian newspapers. He resigned his correspondent's job in London, England, to come home to join the navy.

A few months later he was commissioned and he served thereafter on a cofvette in the Channel, on landing craft during the invasion of southern France, on torpedo boats off Yugoslavia, and in Greece and Newfoundland. He says: "I got to know many back streets in Rome and Naples and Ancona".

Before all this happened he married, in 1940, a young lady "whose great-grandfather's signature appears on many Confederate banknotes issued in Virginia". Mr. and Mrs. Young have two sons who go to school in Omemee: Bob, born in 1942 and Neil born in 1945. Scott Young's new book "Boy On Defence" is inscribed "For Bob and Neil, who have their big games ahead of them".

After returning from the war, Scott Young became an editor of Maclean's magazine. But his urge to write persisted and the demand for his stories was so strong that he decided to devote his full time to writing. This was in the summer of 1948.

He determined to get out of Toronto, and after some months of wayfaring and house-hunting, he and his wife discovered Omemee and a commodious red brick house in the village. They bought it and there the writer works on a self-imposed schedule, often seven days a week. During the past two winters he and his family have wintered in Florida, but the work continues there as in Omemee.

CURLING'S COST

Mr. Young says: "Like most writers I haven't time for hobbies. Every time I start liking something a lot I find that it is interfering with my work. I curled very strenuously in Lindsay one winter, won a dozen good prizes, and all it cost me was one winter's income, so I quit curling. I fish in a non-serious manner and enjoy hunting ducks, partridge and rabbits. Bought my wife a shotgun and many mid-afternoons in the fall we go out together and pop off a few grouse for the table. Fortunately we like game, for we eat a lot of it in the fall".

One week this fall no fewer than five of the most prominent sports writers, magazine editors and newspaper columnists in the country descended on the Young household in Omemee. Mr. Young is widely known by the writing fraternity who also delight in his cooking of Italian spaghetti and his wild game specialities.

Reckoned the most handsome man in the district, he is familiarly known to nearly everybody in Omemee and has in more than one story used Omemee as a background for his fiction. But it is as a sportsman and villager he is known locally. "I am listed in the voter's list as a gentleman, the inference being that nobody here really believes a man gets paid for writing".

He speaks in a deliberate fashion, enunciating each syllable with distinctive care. His wife has a colourful vocabulary which she uses with disarming pungency and independence. Mr. Young's conversation is vivid with anecdote, original similes and metaphors, and he delivers his oral observations on the quiddities of humanity and the foibles of statesmen and nations with quiet ease reflecting an alert, contemplative mind.

Scott Young is currently Ontario vice-president of the Canadian Author's Association and he is now engaged in writing two adult books, as well as keeping up his fund of short stories, some of which have appeared in the Examiner's "Weekend" paper, others in American magazines like Collier's and the Saturday Evening Post. His recent novel, intended for boys, is pleasant reading for adults as well, "Boy On Defence" is about a Winnipeg school and its hockey team. Expert in narrative, lively in action, its special quality is its fine and fresh delineation of a real Canadian school, real Canadian boys (its principal character is a 'new Canadian') and a spirit which is neither mawkish nor tawdry.

Housewife Invades Auto Industry

Women Dictate Color Of Car

By JACK FINN

The modern Canadian wife has invaded the automotive industry, at least insofar as the color scheme is concerned. The black automobile that held such prominence during the 1930's and early '40's, is fast becoming unfashionable, if not extinct.

In place of black, such colors as pale greens, blues, reds, and mixtures of all these colors are taking over. The thunder cloud color is changing to rainbow hues.

Local car dealers explain that the growing influence of women on the selection of the family car has a direct effect on the color selected. And Peterborough seems to be following the general trend toward pastel colors.

Another reason for the lighter and brighter hues is that dust and dirt do not show so readily on them. Black and even deep shades of greens and blues, pick up and intensify every speck of dust and dirt.

MOST POPULAR

Two-tone jobs are increasing in popularity, and many choose the light top type, which, not only appeal to the eye, but also shed the sun's heat, resulting in a cooler car interior.

The Atlantic Journal reports that 77 per cent of cars before the war, were black. In 1952 only nine per cent were black.

In a breakdown of colors during the first half of 1953, based on passenger car production, the following results were obtained:

Green, 31.5 per cent; blue 23.1 per cent; black, 10.8 per cent; ivory, 5.9 per cent; brown, 4.5 per cent; yellow, 3.6 per cent; beige, 2.9 per cent; bright red, 1.9 per cent; maroon, 1.2 per cent; blue-green, .8 of 1 per cent; and tan, .2 of 1 per cent.

A·F·I·E·L·D with NICK NICKELS

A news story in our Wednesday newspaper stating that Peterborough 'gets a paragraph in a richly illustrated article entitled "Ontario, Pivot of Canada's Power", in the December issue of the National Geographic Magazine', was well and decently buried on page 26.

We are not so naive as to suppose that the magazine's staff photographers could use all the shots taken on a tour of this nature but the time and trouble taken by city executives for the cameramen might have at least rated ONE picture of the city or district, or both. The attention given to Kingston, by comparison, shoves us right into the backwoods. Putting us in our place, you might say.

♣ ♣ ♣ ♣

A fisherman in the Bay of Quinte area recently strung out a 9½-inch net for the purpose of taking carp. During a three-day period the fisherman produced 700 fish that averaged 12 pounds apiece.

Everyone in these parts will immediately say that we should do the same thing to preserve our rooted-out wildrice beds but department biologists have news for us.

They admit that carp do destroy some wildrice and celery but the chief damage to these waterplants is caused by fluctuating water levels, especially low water in the late fall. That, and the free-loading of starlings and blackbrids when the rice has come to maturity.

Biologists point out further that in some carp-infested waters in the district whege the fish have rooted destructively, wildrice has come back more prolific than ever before.

It looks as though that theory, then, is knocked on the head by scientific study of the carp vs. wildrice.

No City Booster, He

My old friend and managing director of a French-Canadian airline, Art Senecal, entertained me one rainy September night at his home in Rimouski, P.Q. We had a field day reviewing old times in the Lower St. Lawrence River country and he told me more of his company's operations than I had ever hoped to hear at one sitting. It was wonderful and we talked for hours. Going through the usual motions of breaking up the evening Art said suddenly:

"So, you are working in Peterborough now".

Sensing some compliment, I agreed brightly.

"That's where they make those Peterborough canoes".

Here is where I can get in some city-selling, I thought. When Art told me that he had bought a new canoe two years ago, had never used it and had given it to his brother in disgust, it got my dander up.

This was Art's story:

He and a couple of companions planned a moose hunt two years ago in the Laurentian Mountains, back of the North Shore of the St. Lawrence River. It was an expensive trip by air and equipment was selected with great care. Art bought a new Peterborough canoe for the occasion.

It was the last item to arrive on the eve of their departure and had it been late, the whole plan would have been held up, for the canoe was absolutely necessary to carry the hunters over the wilderness lakes.

The seaplane was loaded and the canoe shucked of its hay-and-burlap packing and strapped to one of the floats. They took off.

After an hour of tooling along under ideal flying conditions—they saw several feeding moose in small ponds in the territory of their choice—the plane landed and taxied to a small beach. The pilot, a busy man, lost no time urging the hunters to land and unload; he personally unstrapped the canoe and floated it ashore.

"See you in two weeks, weather permitting," he yelled and slammed the cabin door shut, goosed his motor and took off.

Art and his pals were alone in the silent wilderness away from the cares of work and conventions of every kind. No one could reach them by phone or radio. What bliss! They sorted out their duffle, set up their tent and had a meal and a snooze and by late afternoon made plans for an evening shoot somewhere miles off down the lake.

They loaded the guns into the canoe and were ready to push off when they noticed a paddle missing. BOTH PADDLES WERE MISSING! The silent wilderness was blue with shouted curses when they suddenly realized that they were stranded on the small shingle beach for the next two weeks. No phones, no radio, eh? What they would have given for those modern conveniences right then. There was nothing to do but stick it out and they were a mighty happy trio when the pilot arrived to pick them up on the appointed day.

So, that is why Art Senecal got rid of his canoe right after the hunt. He could never trace who had mislaid the paddles but had two quiet weeks to explore all possibilities in his mind.

Petes Roll In Right Form To Beat Orillia, 8-4 In Tidy "B" Tussle

Returning to their proper puck from here last night, the T.P.T. Petes trimmed Orillia Pontiacs by an 8-4 count in a lively OHA senior "B" tussle before a fair-sized, happy crowd. After dropping several recent decisions, some of the fans apparently soured on the locals a little too early, as the classy TPT-ers showed once more last evening how they can roll when they're going right. They tightened their grip on third spot, just a jump behind Kingston, who are trying to overhaul Oshawa, and in front of the fourth-place Belleville Memos. The Pontiacs remain in the cellar, though they battled right to the finish in the Friday fray here. Petes play Oshawa in Bowmanville tonight.

IN ON FOUR—Chum Fryia was in on four markers in the Petes' 8-4 CHA senior "B" victory over Orillia here last night. The speedy local forward fired three tallies into the Orillia cage and aided on another in a smart puck showing.

MORE PENALTIES

This was a speedy, clean and open game. The Petes drew eight of the 13 penalties, but had only goal scored on them when a man short while Orillia suffered four markers when shy a man. Petes had one misconduct, when Denny Peterson too emphatically expressed his dislike on a call by the trigger-tempered Referee Maurice Walsh. The rugged Orillians kept to hockey and at no time did a real fight threaten during the tilt.

It was 4-0 for the locals in the first frame as the Redmond men really rolled, and well might have scored a few more but for sharp netminding by Bob Shropshire. Again in the second, the homesters had a good edge for a 4-1 margin to make it 8-1 going into the third. They relaxed a bit in the third and then couldn't quite hold the scrappy visitors who blasted home three without a return, one a screened shot which Goalie Jack Donlevy—who turned in a sparkling effort in the cage—never saw for legs of opponents and friends.

BACK IN FORM

From a home fan viewpoint, it was a grand game to see. The Petes were clicking for the first time in several scraps. They were solid all the way. The defencemen, and they had five in this tussle, were giving a good goalie lots of help, and the forward lines were clicking both ways. They tore in hard on good passing plays and they checked back well, being especially good when short a man. Bert Hill was a standout as a forward defensively all the way, and Bill Crowley and others sparkled in the checking department at times. Coach Eddie Redmon was a solid blue-line citizen all the way. So were the other defenders.

Two of the neatest goals of the night were scored by Chum Fryia and Bill Crowley. The former pulled his in the second period, a lovely rink-length solo, a smart swish at defence and a redhot angle shot that Shropshire hasn't seen yet. Crowley later in the period took a long pass-up from Hill and went in like a jet to smash the disc into the hemp and draw applause. There were other good plays, but these two stood out.

CHUM GOT THREE

Fryia set the pace in lamp-light for the locals with three nice markers, and he also helped on another. Toodie Greenlaw was right there in fast fashion to flip two into the twine and help on another. Bert Hill starred both ways and scored a goal and aided on two more. Bill Crowley was stepping fast to shoot one home and aid on one more. Ted Collins got a neat one, too. Gus Leonard was as valuable as ever, aiding one a pair, and Ed Redmond set two up as well as standing out defensively.

For the Pontiacs, a husky bunch who kept battling all the way and finished strong, Ab Bowen was top goal-getter with a pair; and he also assisted on one. Danny MacDonald and Bruno Favero each got a goal, and the latter looked good in setting up two more. Al Shewchuk and Clary Payne earned an assist each, and the whole team was tearing in desperately in the final minute of play though down four markers.

Orillia: Goal, Shropshire; defence, Pearsall and Grigg; centre, Bowen; wings, Richardson and MacDonald; alternates, Payne, Favero, Aiken, Nelson, Wood, McLeod, Desroches, Shewchuk and McCrone.

Peterboro: Goal Donlevy; defence, Redmond and McMaster; centre, Leonard; wings, Fryia and Greenlaw; alternates, Hill, Crowley, Collins, Belisle, Prentice, Peterson, Munroe, Montgomery and Armstrong.

Referees M. Walsh and D. Calhoun.

Green Shirts Sold To Canadiens

KITCHENER (CP) — Walter Weber, president of Kitchener Hockey Limited, operators of Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series announced Friday that the club had been sold to Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

The sale price was not disclosed, but Weber discounted rumors that it was $18,000. He said that figure was "too high." However, the Canadiens had paid "a very satisfactory sum."

Spud Russell, chief scout for the Canadiens, has been appointed manager of the Kitchener team. Curly Davis will remain as coach.

The Greenshirts have been affiliated with Canadiens since entering the Junior A series three years ago.

Remember When—

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Georges Vezina, rated by many experts as the greatest goalie in hockey history, took his place in Montreal Canadiens' nets for the last time 28 years ago tonight with a high temperature and pains that forced him out after the first period. He died a few months later from tuberculosis.

DONLEVY HOLDS THEM OUT — Goalie Jack Donlevy of the TPT Petes is shown holding out a side attack from playing coach Vic Grigg of Orillia Pontiacs here last night as the local squad roared to an 8-4 OHA senior "B" victory. Donlevy turned in a very solid effort throughout for Ed Redmond's men as the Petes returned to form to earn the puck decision.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Had a chat yesterday with Graham Ferguson of the Sanitary Ice & Fuel Co. on his proposal to build an outdoor artificial rink next to his plant on north Water St. The suggestion interested us as we discussed one like it four or five years oga with Pick Hines when he was planning one in Toronto. It is now known as Riverdale Terrace just there by the viaduct. They have eight such outdoor rinks with artificial ice in Toronto at present, four in Hamilton and one in several other smaller centres. They seem to be the answer economically to our milder open winters of recent years. As this type of rink seems to be the coming thing, folks might well consider the idea now as our city grows.

* * * * * *

Presently, the parks department here plans on eight outdoor natural-ice rinks, though there are several others petitioned for—and they do need one in the west end. Our guess is that each of these eight will cost at least $1,000 for probably less than two dozen days of good skating or hockey ice. Maybe only 10 or 12 days, depending on the mildness of the winter. Also, a man must be maintained to flood, sweep and supervise the rink. These rinks are a good thing for the citizens, particularly for the younger folk, but the weather sure cuts down on outdoor skating time. Civic Arena can't accommodate everyone wanting to skate and play hockey, and our Memorial Centre is at least two years away, we'd say. Even when it is built we believe there'll be the need of a few other rinks here, especially in the north and west sections. Ashburnham, too.

* * * * * *

Committee Said Ixnay

The parks committee turned down the Ferguson proposal of the northend outdoor artificial ice rink when he asked an annual rent of the city of $4,000 This would be on a 10-year plan and would be daily through the winter until six or seven p.m.; after that hour Mr. Ferguson would operate the rink for public skating He planned to build it, put in all necessary supplies—including ice-making machinery, boards, lights, music-box—and maintain it. The latter means keeping it in shape, sweeping off snow, supervising hockey or skating, etc. He claims that such a rink would give more people a lot longer season of skating, and that it could eliminate two or more civic rinks with their attendant cost, upkeep and supervisors.

* * * * * *

Mr. Ferguson tells us that he feels that parks superintendent, Armar Butcher likes the idea, and that Civic Arena officials say there is a need for such a project here. This writer rather likes the idea, too, though there are a lot of angles to consider. Perhaps stock could be sold in it. Unquestionably, we presently need more ice time and no one can bank on the weather. Winters lately haven't been kind to outdoor rinks or to skiers, and we don't know what the climate will be this year or next. Our only suggestion re this outdoor artificial ice arena proposal is that it deserves further study.

Redmond Squad Clicks

That was more like it, that 8-4 senior "B" puck win for the Petes over Orillia here last night. After dropping three straight decision at home, hockey fans were beginning to wonder when the TPT team was going to snap out of it. Folks knew we had a lot of puck talent on the squad but the boys just weren't winning. It's a strong group, of course, but the Petes should be right up there with the best of 'em. Well, they hit their true form last eve to wallop the Pontiacs, who came here flushed with an 8-3 victory on Belleville ice. The locals will lose some games from time to time, but they should win their share also from here in if they play as they did Friday. They have a firm grip on third slot not far back of Kingston, but have a toughie tonight against Oshawa in Bowmanville.

* * * * * *

Coach Eddie Redmond turned in a fine effort on defence and he had lots of blue-line help from the other defencemen. Goalie Jack Donlevy was in fine net form and looked for a time like he'd have a well-earned shutout. But Orillia fought hard to the finish and got three late goals. Chum Fryia, Toodie Greenlaw, Gus Leonard, Bert Hill, Bill Crowley and Ted Collins were all prominent on the attack, and checked back well. It was a good team effort before a fair-sized crowd, and the game was a crowd-pleasing display. Ab Bowen and Bruno Favero proved best for Vic Grigg's charges in a rather clean contest, though the victors drew more penalties. Kingston is here next Friday.

Two 'Hungry' Teams Meet In Cup Game

TORONTO (CP)—Two "hungry" teams meet today for the Grey Cup, the East against the West in a football battle that is the game of the year.

In most Dominion finals it is a contest of the rich against the poor, the team with a long-standing tradition of championships against the team from the other side of the tracks.

But this year the Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Hamilton Tiger-Cats background is different. Both teams have won this East-West final before, but their triumphs are so far in the past that no player on the field today can boast of ever playing with a Grey Cup winner.

WON 4 TITLES

Hamilton has won four Dominion titles, the last in 1943, by the wartime Wildcats, and has been beaten three times in the finals. Winnipeg's record is three victories in 12 tries, the most recent in 1941. They have split their only two previous Grey Cup clashes.

For a few of the Bombers the final is an added incentive. They are the survivors of the 1950 club that took a 13-0 drubbing in the mud-bath final of 1950 against Toronto Argonauts. Not a man on the Tiger-Cat roster has ever worn a uniform on Grey Cup day.

WINNIPEG "HUNGRY"

In addition, the western representative is "hungry" by tradition. Only four of 24 finalists from the Prairies have taken the cup.

Perhaps for this reason alone, Hamilton were quoted as favorites in the pre-game odds. Both teams played in-and-out football over their regular schedule, hitting their best form in the playoffs. On paper, there seemed little to choose between them.

External Affairs Minister Pearson, an old footballer with University of Toronto Blues, was on hand for the opening kickoff.

Jack Sharkey Referee

Whip-Montana To Tackle Layton-Atkins

One of the best wrestling cards ever presented at the Brock Arena will feature Whipper Billy Watson and Hombre Montana against Lord Athol Layton and Fred Atkins. Two referees will handle this important match, one of whom will be Jack Sharkey, former world's heavyweight boxing champion. A record crowd is almost a certainty next Wednesday, and the Brock management will add extra seats for this outstanding attraction.

Layton and Atkins are gunning for the tag team title and will go all out to drop Watson and Montana. The latter is a huge 300-pounder who is making quite a name for himself, being undefeated since coming to Canada. Mat fans don't have to be told about Watson's ability.

Layton and Atkins are a pair of rugged and ruthless matmen and they have quite an impressive record since joining forces. There will be plenty of fireworks in this match, although Sharkey and another referee, to be appointed later, should be able to keep the boys in hand.

To round out this stellar card Hi Lee clashes with Johnny Harmon in the semi-final, while Al Costello and Bill Stack are in the opener. Hi Lee looks better—and meaner, if that's possible—every time out. He's a tough customer and Harmon will have his hands full to win this one.

Hawks Call Up Gelineau To Take Nets Against Wings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The "vacancy" sign was removed from Chicago Black Hawks' net Friday. The new tenant is Jack Gelineau, netminder of Quebec Aces for the last two seasons. Gelineau was called up by coach Sid Abel against Detroit Red Wings for a home-and-home National Hockey League series this weekend.

Abel ejected the last tenant, Jean Marois, also of the Aces, after an unsatisfactory performance in which he let in 11 goals in two Hawk losses to Toronto and Montreal.

Gelineau, voted the league's outstanding rookie in 1949-50 when he played for Boston Bruins, is filling in for the Hawks' regular goalie, Al Rollins, ill with chicken pox and complications following two teeth extractions.

TRAIL RANGERS

With only three wins and three ties in 26 starts, Hawks trail New York Rangers by six points.

The Wings have boosted themselves into second place, three points behind the leading Canadiens.

However, the Canadiens, with two games scheduled—against Toronto tonight and New York Sunday—appear slated to stay ahead of the pack.

The largest crowd of the season is expected to jam Maple Leaf Gardens tonight as thousands of persons in Toronto for the Canadian football final plan to take in the hockey game.

Band To See Game On TV

TORONTO (CP)—An ex-Winnipegger, Dr. E. M. Howse, minister of Toronto's Bloor Street United Church, has come to the rescue of the Winnipeg police band and the 28 Blue Bomberettes who can't get into Varsity Stadium to see the Grey Cup final.

The girls and the band will be able to watch the game by television at Dr. Howse's church, two blocks from the stadium. The band and Bomberettes have no tickets for the game.

Dr. Howse, a minister in Winnipeg for 13 years before coming to Toronto in 1948, has a 27-inch TV set ready in the church hall.

Dr. Howse also said he is attempting to get two or three other television sets so the general public can join the Winipeggers in watching the contest.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Those that persevered in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series Friday night met with success.

Toronto St. Michael's College Majors, Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts and Barrie Flyers all came up with victories and in each case moved a notch up the standings.

St. Mike's edged Guelph Biltmores 5-4 in overtime to slide into second place, four points behind the first-place St. Catharines Tee-Pees. The Greenshirts moved into a third-place deadlock with Galt Black Hawks with a 5-3 win over Hamilton Tiger-Cubs in overtime.

BARRIE WINS

Barrie broke its three-game losing streak by defeating first place St. Catharines 8-3. It was the Tee-Pees fifth loss in 18 outings.

Brian Anderson scored St. Mike's overtime winner with Jim Logan, Less Duff, Bill Colvin and Jack Caffery getting the others. Bob Attersley tallied twice for Guelph and Ed Shack and Irv Scott each added singles.

Bruce Jones scored the Greenshirts' winner and Buddy Horne added the clincher a few minutes later. Beryl Klinck tallied twice for the winners and Claude Boileau came up with the other. Bob Robinson, Ed Louttit and Connie Burton were the Hamilton marksmen.

Three Die In Fire

LISBON, O. (AP)—Three children were burned to death in their upstairs bedrooms Friday as their father tried in vain to battle his way through the flames and save them. Joseph Sayre, 42, dozed off after the children went to bed. He was awakened by the sound of the blaze, believed to have started in a defective chimney, but could not get them out.

Executes Self

LYON, France (Reuters) — A young bankrupt electrician, held on a false-cheque charge, sentenced himself to death in the electric chair and served as his own executioner today. With his own hands, Jean Fauvart, 27, built the device, equipped it with a metal helmet and arm bands, then sat down and pulled the switch.

Rugby Stalwarts Honored By CRU

TORONTO (CP)—Two men long active in Canadian football were honored Friday night by the Canadian Rugby Union for their part in the development of the game.

The two, who were presented with commemorative plaques at the annual Grey Cup dinner, are Dr. Harry C. Griffith, retired headmaster of Ridley College of St. Catharines, and Frank J. Hannibal of Winnipeg, one of western Canada's most active football executives.

Dr. Griffith played football for Ridley in 1895 and later became coach at University of Toronto. His Toronto Varsity team won the Grey Cup in 1909 and 1910, the first two years it was up for competition, before the trophy became emblematic of an East-West clash.

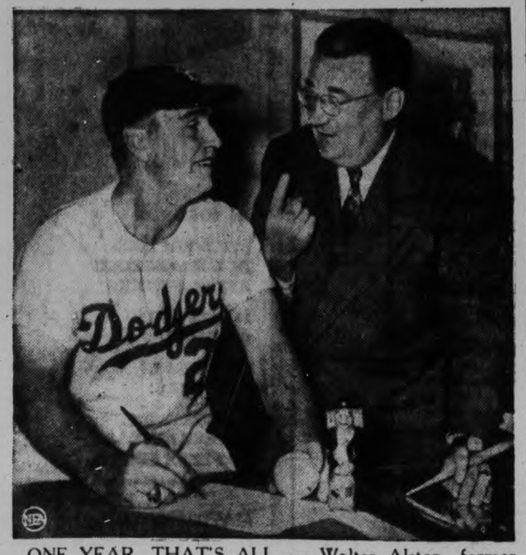
Hannibal was one of those instrumental in the formation of the Western Interprovincial Football Union. He was president of the Winnipeg teams that won the Grey Cup in 1935 and 1941.

Penalties: Redmond (2).

OHA Executive Clears Manager

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Hockey Association executive Friday cleared Hap Emms, manager of the Junior A Barrie Flyers, of any responsibility in the recent ejection of a Toronto Marlboro goal judge from a game at Barrie.

The OHA ruled the incident was beyond Emms' jurisdiction as coach and manager of the Flyers. However, it will ask all junior A clubs to appoint mature and experienced goal judges in the future.



The hearing was prompted by a Marlboro protest over the ejection of Bob Duncan, one of their subs who was acting as goal judge during the game at Barrie. Police escorted Duncan from the arena after they said he tried to climb the end screen to get on the ice and got in an argument with Barrie fans.

Attacks Some Dogmas

MANILA (AP)—Dr. Julian T. Huxley, prominent British biologist, said Friday night that "in many cases scientific truth is incompatible with what various religions say is true." Huxley, member of the British delegation to the eighth Pacific Science Congress, called certain religious dogmas "ridiculous and utterly impossible."

UEL Descendant Dies

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Walter C. Lundy, hotel chef and member of a pioneer United Empire Loyalist family which gave Lundy's lane its name, died Friday night. Lundy's lane was the scene of an inconclusive all-night battle between the Canadians and the Americans in the war of 1812.

ONE YEAR, THAT'S ALL — Walter Alston, former manager of the Montreal Royals, signs a contract to manage the Brooklyn Dodgers baseball team for one year. Walter O'Malley, the club president, holds up one finger to make sure everyone understands that it is just for one year.

Here And There In Sports

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

BIG JAWN RELEASED

NEW YORK (AP)—Johnny Mize who hit 359 home runs during his major league baseball career, was made a free agent Friday by New York Yankees at his own request.

George Weiss, Yankee general manager, said the action was taken now to permit Mize, who has expressed the desire to coach or manage a minor league team, to find such a job at the annual baseball meetings starting in Atlanta, Ga., Monday.

Shortly after Yankees won their fifth straight world series last month, Mize said he did not intend to play next year. However, that merely was a repetition of an announcement he made a year ago and little stock was placed in it.

The heavy-hitting first baseman will be 41 Jan. 7. He broke in with St. Louis Cardinals in 1936 and later played with New York Giants, also of the National League before he joined the Yankees in 1949.

GALLARDO SCORES UPSET

NEW YORK (AP)—Davey Gallardo of Los Angeles, floored highly favored Lulu Perez twice in the fourth round and led all the way Friday night to win an upset 10-round decision over the Brooklynite. The defeat broke Lulu's two-year, 23-fight winning streak.

Perez, who had won an eighth-round technical knockout over Gallardo because of eye cuts Sept. 4, was a 17-to-5 favorite to repeat.

At 129½ pounds, three more than he weighed the last time, the swarthy Californian carried more authority in his punches. Perez weighed 126.

SCORES EASY WIN

PARIS (AP)—Percy Bassett, the interim featherweight champion from Philadelphia, outclassed Lou Carrara of France in a 10-round, non-title bout Friday night. There were no knockdowns.

Carrara closed Bassett's left eye in the second round and that handicapped the Philadelphia Negro the rest of the way.

AUTO RACER DIES

CINCINNATI (CP) — The brief career of Herbert Borchers, 24, as a professional auto racer ended Friday.

Borchers crashed into a guard-rail in his first pro auto race Aug. 9 at Mt. Vernon, Ill. He was in hospital until Friday when he died of the injuries suffered in the race.

Erskine, Parnell Among Top Pitchers

NEW YORK (AP) — Brooklyn's Carl Erskine and Mel Parnell of Boston Red Sox, two of major-league baseball's 20-game winners last season, moved well up among the lifetime pitching leaders as a result of their fine performances.

Erskine, who finished with a 20-6 record for the Dodgers, shows an over-all slate of 71 victories and 34 setbacks (.676) for his six years in the National League. He ranks second to the Giants' Sal Maglie's .699 (72-31), figures compiled by The Associated Press showed today.

Parnell now is second in the American League to the Yankees' Vic Raschi. Mel, with 21-8 during the last campaign, has 111 wins and 59 defeats for .653 while Raschi, 13-6 last year, shows a gaudy .706, with 120 triumphs and only 50 losses.

Four Rinks Take Top Hamilton Honors

HAMILTON (CP)—Calgary, Ottawa, Quebec and Illinois rinks carried off top honors in the centennial bonspiel of the Thistle Curling Club.

Peter Gilbert guided his Chatham rink to an 8-7 victory over Howard Wood's Saskatoon foursome to win the William Vallance Memorial Trophy.

Howard Palmer led a Calgary rink to a 12-6 win over Perry Hall's Kitchener finalists for the William Southam Memorial Trophy. The R. G. Harstone Trophy was won by C. B. (Tiny) Herman of Ottawa who scored a 10-4 win over Walt Limerick's Fredericton quartet.

Fourth main event prize, the Thistle Cup Past President's Trophy, was won by a rink from Illinois skipped by L. T. Hill which defeated R. M. Allan's Kingston rink 10-5.

Brides Canada-Bound

OTTAWA (CP)—About 100 German cold-war brides will be heading for Canada within the next two months. The army announced that the first shipment of 65 German wives of soldiers in the 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade will arrive at Halifax Dec. 10. With them will be some 20 babies born before the brigade was rotated home on leave.

Canteen Manager Slain

ISMAILIA, Suez Canal Zone (Reuters)—The mutilated body of Costa Panzarras, Greek manager of a British Army canteen, was found Friday. The body had a stab wound through the throat and another in the back, and the face had been bludgeoned. The slaying followed numerous anti-British incidents in the Suez canal zone.

Psychiatrist Dies

TOPEKA, Kans. (AP) — Dr. Charles Frederick Menninger, 91, chairman of the board of Menninger Foundation, world - famous psychiatric centre here, died early today. Menninger was associated in the clinic with two sons, Dr. Karl and Dr. William C. Menninger, who also have achieved world renown in psychiatry.

FOOTBALL FEVER—Jeanette Lambert brings along a toy panda, a Winnipeg Blue Bomber pennant and club button as she arrives with a contingent of Winnipeg fans for the Grey Cup game at Toronto.

Pearson Mixes Gouzenko With Grey Cup Dinner

TORONTO (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson Friday night kidded the top men of Canadian football and, with witty barbs, found laugh-provoking parallels with the latest United States-Canadian political developments that have thrust him anew into international focus.

Mr. Pearson spoke at the Grey Cup dinner—the annual get-together of football men from across Canada as a prelude to the East-West game for the national title.

Mr. Pearson said he was happy to be present for "this non-political occasion and if anybody mentions the word Gouzenko I hope he will be thrown out of the room for unnecessary cruelty."

And again, in unmistakable reference to efforts in the U.S. to have Igor Gouzenko, one-time clerk in the Russian embassy at Ottawa, tell again before a congressional committee what he knows of Russian spy activities:

NO INQUIRIES PLEASE

"As minister of external affairs I have a great interest in football and in wanting to keep it amicable. It might be that some Senator from Ohio may ask the Canadian government for permission to interview John Kissel to see if he has some information about a reported intention of the Cleveland Browns to change their names to the Cleveland Reds."

Kissel is an American player with Ottawa Rough Riders and formerly played with Cleveland.

HAVE PLAYED GAME

"We owe a lot to the American coaches and players for coming up here, and they have played the game in every respect," said Mr. Pearson.

"That relationship is more important now that we are playing in an East-West game in which there are no rules, no good feeling of sportsmanship as will be shown tomorrow, and no penalty for unfairness."

With the United States, he said, team work is essential and "it is our desire to work with them."

Mr. Pearson said he felt Canada's football code is good, although there is a tendency to over-specialization.

Parole Board 'Ambling Along'

TORONTO (CP)—Members of the Legislature's select committee on reform institutions Friday spoke in favor of a full-time parole board for Ontario. The present board operates on a part-time basis.

The suggestion came following a statement by committee chairman W. J. Stewart (PC—Toronto Parkdale) that the board shows a lack of organization and leadership.

"The members are splendid as individuals, but as a board they are just ambling along," he said. "They have neither chart nor compass."

Mr. Stewart and committee members again expressed opposition to the removal of women from the board. They said they felt there should be an increase in the number of women members.

A bullet from a high-powered rifle tore through the tree against which Crosby was learning, then penetrated a mackinaw, sweatshirt and outer shirt before tangling in Crosby's underwear.

Lanark MP Warns House Textile Industry Precarious

OTTAWA (CP) — Dr. William Blair (PC—Lanark) said Friday in the Commons that Canada's textile industry is so "precarious" that it might not be able to reach top production in time to help in an emergency.

Dr. Blair, whose riding contains many textile mills, said the industry's troubles could be traced to government import regulations during the last 15 years, particularly the last 2½.

"During the last 15 years the volume of imported textiles into Canada has been increasing because the Canadian government has been steadily encouraging imports largely by lowering tariffs and relaxing customs administration," he said. "Today duties are much lower than even 25 years ago and on the surface it certainly would seem that the process has gone too far too fast."

"DUMPING WRONG

Dr. Blair said it is wrong to have United States textiles "dumped" in Canada when the price at which they are sold may easily represent only a fraction of the sales in the American market. Laws were necessary to prohibit the sale of imported goods at below fair market value.

Transport Minister Chevrier speaking later, recalled that the government has promised the industry to study the anti-dumping laws to see how they can be tightened.

He said the Canadian industry is not alone in its difficulties. The New England states of the United States were in a much worse position.

He was sure no one wanted higher tariffs or import quotas to protect the industry.

URGES LAWS REVAMPED

Dr. Blair urged revamping "outmoded" customs laws to give customs officers greater authority to deal with dumping of textiles.

"The creation of a better international understanding is an objective to which we all subscribe," Dr. Blair said. "Unclogging the channels of international trade is a step towards that objective. However, to destroy a large segment of our economy in the pursuit of that objective is not in the interest of international understanding. Different standards of living and lower wage levels in other countries must be considered."

Lively Election Fights Shaping Up In Ontario

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Lively municipal election fights are shaping up in a number of Ontario communities which held nominations Friday.

Qualifications today will fix the list for the voting, Dec. 7 in most of the centres.

Acclamations given on nomination day put some 1953 mayors and reeves back in office and brought new chief magistrates to others.

Donald Weber, 34, a councillor in Kitchener since 1948, moves up to the mayor's chair to succeed Bruce Weber, 36. They are not related.

Waterloo also gets a new mayor, with Frank Bauer going up from a council seat. He will take over from Don Roberts, retiring after two years.

BY ACCLAMATION

By acclamation, N. J. Naylor became mayor of Oshawa and W. Anderson Mayor of Galt.

The northwestern Ontario town of Fort Frances retruned Mayor Joseph Livingstone by acclamation for his third term. Timmins re-elected Mayor J. Wilfred Spooner by acclamation, but voting for the town's other municipal offices will be held Dec. 5.

Qualifications today are expected to narrow the field in North Bay, where 10 men, including the present mayor, were nominated for the Dec. 14 contest. Other communities with two or more nominations for the top civic job include Sudbury, Stratford, Cochrane, Peterborough, Teck township which includes the gold-mining centre of Kirkland Lake, St. Thomas, Chatham and Ingersoll.

Nominations in some municipalities will be held Monday. Qualification deadline is 24 hours later.

In some localities, voting will be Dec. 2. In others polling will be New Year's Day.

Deacon Convicted

Jury Rules On Victim

LISTOWEL (CP) — A coroner's jury Friday ruled that bones, found in a Wallace township farmhouse ruins after a fire Nov. 4, were those of Samuel Gamble, 66, owner of the house. Police discovered the bones during a search for Gamble after the fire. A watch also found among the debris was identified by Herbert A. Hammond, Palmerston jeweller as the one he sold Gamble last August.

Malenkov May Be Reporter's Neighbor In Moscow

By BILL BOSS

MOSCOW (CP) — Georgi Malenkov, the Soviet prime minister, may be my around - the - corner neighbor.

My room is in the Metropole Hotel, by the Kremlin whose brooding red-brick walls dominate the heart of Moscow. But no one seems to know whether Malenkov, like his predecessor Stalin, lives in the Kremlin or has an apartment elsewhere in the city.

The Metropole is on one side of Svorlov square, Moscow's theatre district. The square's main building is the 130-year-old Grand Opera House, known to Russians as the Balshoi theatre and national home of opera and ballet.

Other buildings facing the square are the Little theatre, the Children's theatre and Kaganovich underground station. Just off it are the palace of the trade unions (a gambling casino in the old days) where earlier this year Stalin's body lay in state, and the building of the Soviet ministries.

COSMOPOLITAN FLAVOR

The Metropole should have a cosmopolitan flavor. Its guests are of all colors and represent most of the political groupings in the world.

It is one of the three hotels which the state uses for transient foreigners and a few foreign residents. The others are the modern Hotel Moscow, and the National Hotel where Lenin lived briefly before moving into the Kremlin.

The Metropole's only claim to fame apparently is that Mao-tse Tung, president of Red China, once entertained Stalin there. It is stuffy and drab, like a large-sized "family hotel" in London's Kensington district and no more exciting.

A sitting room 20 feet by 25, the ceiling 18 feet high, with a small alcove for sleeping costs 45 rubles a day ($11.25 at the official exchange rate). There is a large carpet in the centre of the inlaid hardwood floor. In one corner, my room has a large desk with a green baize top under heavy plate-glass, enormous marble book ends, four inkstands and a desk lamp.

NO SPECIAL CHARGE

The telephone dials into the Moscow system without going through a hotel exchange. There is no special charge for calls which are part of the room rate.

In another corner are a gilded mahogany sofa wide enough for five, two arm chairs and five straight-backed chairs to match, all upholstered in green damask and arranged around two carpet-covered occasional tables.

By the curtained alcove is a mahogany wardrobe with built-in drawers. Inside there is a marble-topped night table, a low easy chair and straight-backed chair. The bed is German style with mattress on the bottom, feather tick on top.

The bathroom is off the alcove. It has a bath and shower, wash basin and toilet.

The room is heated by radiators below four big windows. There are no pictures.

FLOOR MANAGERS

At the head of the stairs, on each floor, a woman floor manager sits behind a huge desk and under a portrait of Stalin. She watches over the comings and goings of her guests, takes their messages and keeps their keys.

Room service operates from 8:30 p.m. until 10:30 p.m. and a cafe downstairs is open from 9 a.m. until midnight. A restaurant is open until 3 a.m. It has a rock garden and fountain of spurting cupids, and an orchestra which plays modern Russian music, plus some pre-revolutionary offerings of the "Merry Widow" type.

Godfrey's Mother Writes March

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Kathryn Godfrey, 75-year-old mother of radio and television star Arthur Godfrey, stood in the first balcony at Massey Hall Friday night and blew kisses to orchestra conductor Andre Kostelanetz after he led the Toronto Symphony Orchestra through her composition, "Marine Boys' March."

The performance before a near-capacity crowd of 2,500 coincided with Mrs. Godfrey's 51st wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Godfrey's march was warmly applauded by the audience.

She said in an interview she wrote the march several years ago. Friday night's performance was the first given it publicly in Canada or the United States.

Mr. Kostelanetz, the internationally-known guest conductor, earlier described her composition as a "real good march."

Natives Of Sudan Begin Trek To Polls

By EDWARD POLLAK

JUBA, Sudan (AP)—The naked men of southern Sudan are going through a modern election.

They have flocked by the hundreds down the steep hills of Equatoria, out of the bushes of Bahr El Ghazal and Upper Nile provinces, to the polling places where they are to cast their ballots.

It is not an easy affair to explain to those men the significance and the mechanism of an election. For months officials appointed by the Sudan's mixed electoral commission trekked through the equatorial wastes, teaching tribesmen how to drop a ballot into a box. There were several full-dress rehearsals before the election actually started early in November.

The tribesmen are selecting 22 members of a 97-seat House of Representatives, and eight senators for the 50-member upper house. Sudan's first Parliament will decide by 1955 the country's final status — independence or unity with Egypt. Britain and Egypt jointly govern Sudan now.

FESTIVE EVENT

For the great majority of the tribesmen the polling is an occasion for ritual dancing and noisy and gaudy gatherings.

Candidates are not designated by their names or their party affiliation but by tokens. These include objects familiar to the tribesmen like trees, a pipe, a cock, a bamboo hut, an open hand, etc.

Candidates represented by a pipe are envied by their opponents. Many voters believe that by dropping a ballot in the box marked with a pipe they will get a pipe as a gift.

In the Zande area an unlucky candidate drew a rooster as his token. The Zande have nothing but contempt for the male bird.

In another area, tribesmen ran away from the box marked with a locust. "If we vote for the locust, our country will be ravaged," they shouted.

Queen's Debaters Too Good For McGill

The Ontario students, speaking for the motion, won on the argument that it would be possible for Quebec to survive "as a country," "but the rest of Canada would be divided and indefensible."

For Parents Only

Selecting Toys For Child Usually Found Quite A Task

By NANCY CLEAVER

Do you find it easy to choose your child's playthings? Most mothers and dads find shopping for toys quite a task. This is one part of the family budget which cannot be looked after in a hurry.

Christmas is approaching and parents are beginning to wonder about which toys they will buy for their children. Toys from many places, far and near, are once more appearing on the store counters. The great number and the wide variety are often confusing. The high price of many toys, the hasty construction of others, also makes it difficult to select wisely and well. Before going shopping for playthings, parents do well to become familiar with the following questions which form an excellent "Test for Toys."

"Is this toy safe?" A little child who is cutting teeth is bound to put articles into his mouth. Will the paint come off and will it be injurious? Are there sharp points which might hurt the child or rough edges which might cut him? Are there small parts which might be detached by exploring fingers, such a wheel off a little truck, and put in the child's mouth and swallowed?

"Is this toy durable?" Toys, particularly those for small boys must be sturdily made to stand rough handling. Part of the fun of playing, is freedom to play hard, without too much adult supervision. If the toy is so fragile that the child must be constantly warned to be careful, it is an annoyance rather than a pleasure o both parents and child.

A toy which will not stand up under use, which breaks or falls apart, is a poor investment. Children become very fond of individual playthings and they feel badly about a favorite toy which must be discarded before long because it has failed to meet this test.

"Is it a practical toy for our home?" Parents who are living in crowded quarters must consider whether a toy is too large to be conveniently put away on the toy shelf or in the toy cupboard. A family which includes an elderly relative or where there is sickness makes a toy such as a whistle or drum unsuitable.

If there is no cement sidewalk or level path with a hard surface, a child with a tricycle or a scooter has not much chance to use these toys for outdoor play, in muddy weather. Sometimes it is possible to pedal a "trike" in a shed or barn if there is a safe area for play there.

"Is it suitable for my child at his present age and state of development?" Up to the age of two the majority of children play most of the time by them selves The first toys, a rattle, a rubber animal or doll or ball, are very simple. Shortly after a little tot starts to walk he is fascinated by small wooden wagons or cars or an animal on wheels which he can pull on a string.

After the second birthday, a child begins to need the companionship of other children. He now needs play material not only for solitary play, but for social play with other youngsters. It is difficult to find a better plaything than blocks, for construction play. Little girls have great fun playing with their dolls, dressing and undressing them, and taking dolly out in a carriage. A small boy loves a teddy, a soft cuddly doll, and stuffed animals too.

These four simple tests for toys are helpful for parents as they enter the Christmas month. An outstanding leader in child education has pointed out: "Play is a child's work"—and so your choice of his toys, which are his 'tools for work,' is important. Best luck to you with your shopping!

Flier Decorated For Gallantry In Saving Plane

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian naval flier has been decorated for outstanding service in saving a jet fighter twice after its engine had conked out.

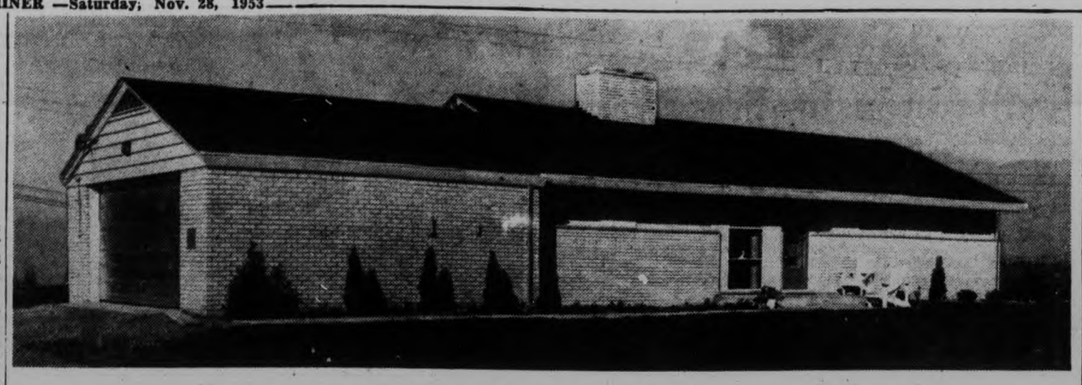
The defence department announced Friday that the Queen had approved the award of the Queen's Commendation to Lieut. Alan John Woods, 31, of Vancouver. He is a former war-time pilot with the RCAF.

Last spring, while Lieut. Woods was flying a British Attacker jet aircraft from Namao, north of Edmonton, to Shearwater, N.S., the plane's engine cut out over Lake Superior. The nearest airport was 60 miles away at Sault Ste. Marie.

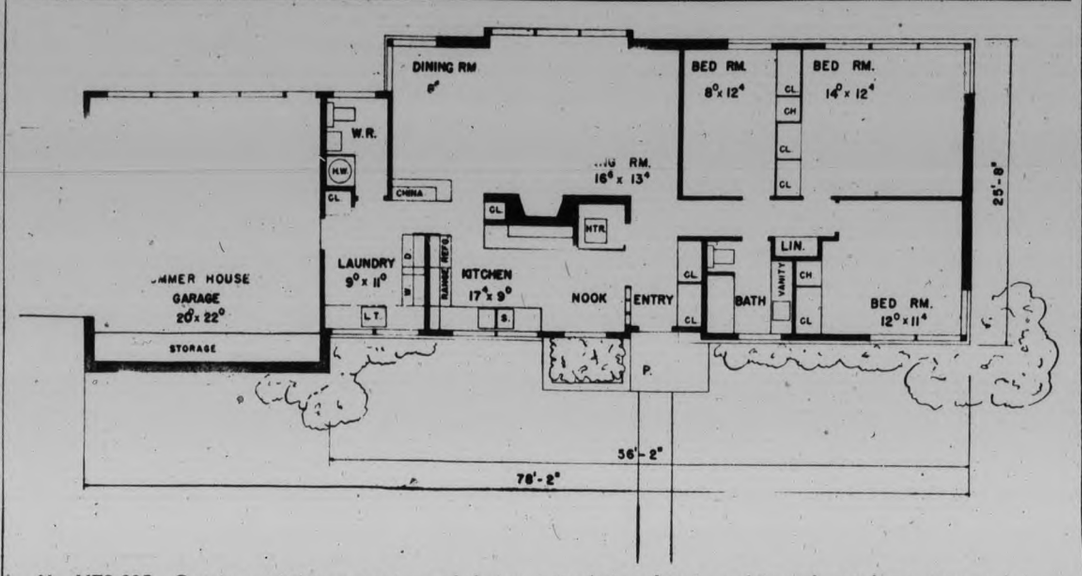
"DEAD STICK LANDING"

Through thick cloud and a low ceiling, he glided his plane the 60 miles to make a "dead stick" landing at Kinross field in Sault Ste. Marie. After repairs, he again took off for Nova Scotia.

Nearing Arnprior, the motor again cut out and Lieut. Woods had to glide another 60 miles to Uplands airport in Ottawa. Further repairs rectified the situation and the flier was able to complete his flight to Shearwater, "despite a few more sputterings."



The announcement noted that by pushing a button, the pilot could have safely ejected himself and allowed the aircraft to crash.



Canada Still Ranks 3rd Trading Power

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada still ranked as the world's third largest trading power in the first half of 1953, but the "most striking feature" was the rapid growth in volume of imports, the bureau of statistics said today.

Reviewing the first six months of foreign trade, the bureau observed that even though import prices had dropped, the value and volume of imports established a post-war high.

Imports rose to $2,216,600,000 from $1,950,300,000 last year, while exports dropped to $2,019,700,000 from the 1952 peak of $2,121,700,000. The exports decline was attributed mainly to falling prices.

No. HFS-297—Certain restrictions promote good design, whether it be houses or tea-kettles. The pioneers had few tools, yet many early Canadian homes look remarkably like the home pictured here. The Victorians were much better equipped, but their fretwork facades look quaint to our eyes. Now we have come full circle. High material and labor costs (our own restrictions) have no doubt contributed much to the emerging. With the "Timeless Look" of modern home design, this home boasts many features often desired but seldom found, including: 1. A delightful combination of vertical and horizontal siding and brick veneer. 2. An interesting panel window treatment. (Ventilation is provided by hinging the desired number of panel sash. Flexible screens for these are applied on the inside. Because double pane insulating glass is used in each panel, no storm sash is required.) 3. A solid brick-to-ceiling fireplace wall is the interior focal point of interest. The brick shows through on the kitchen side between the counter top and the bottom of the overhead cabinets. 4. All kitchen cabinets are slanted so that they are deeper at the top than at the bottom for plenty of toe and knee room. Plywood sliding doors on all cabinets and wardrobe closets. 5. Attic ventilating fan for quick summer evening cooling; and disappearing attic stairs in the hall for attic storage. 6. Built-in chests in bedrooms and a china cabinet in the dining area. 7. Convenient cheerful laundry and washroom. 8. And a combination storage garage and summer house. For working drawings, write Home Building in Canada, 2842 Bloor St. W., Toronto.

The Movie Column

New TV Event May Change Movie Future

By BOB THOMAS

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Tonight this desert resort will witness an event that could possibly settle the future of the movie industry.

Amidst the usual Hollywood hoopla, Paramount will hold a premiere of "Forever Female" at the Plaza Theatre.

At the same time, 50 to 75 local residents will be able to put $1.25 into a coin box atop their television set and see the same picture on their home screen.

The pay-as-you-see TV is operated by Telemeter, of which Paramount owns half the shares. The gadget's sponsors hail it as a means of saving the beleaguered film business. They argue that if even a couple of million TV owners would pay $1 to see a new movie at home, the producers could reap a handsome profit in one night.

Palm Springs was chosen because mountains block reception from Los Angeles Tv stations. So Telemeter ran TV wires into the town, charging an installation and monthly fee for local users. Since TV comes to Palm Springs via wires and not by air, Telemeter can conduct the test without seeking approval by the Federal Communications Commission.

COINS BRING CLARTITY

How does Telemeter work?

A scrambled picture comes over the channel. A "barker" tells the set owner the picture he can see, the stars in it and the price. If the owner wants to see the film, he puts coins in a box atop the set. When the correct amount is inserted, the picture unscrambles.

Other attractions during the 90-day Palm Springs test may be pro football games and championship fights. The sponsors also envision quick payoffs for opera and Broadway show telecasts.

The coin boxes would be emptied monthly.

Telemeter can't be installed in ordinary sets until the FCC makes a ruling that the consumer can be charged for a broadcast. Telemeter hopes that the Palm Springs test will be the convincer.

Adjourn Hearing Until January

BRANTFORD (CP)—Hearing of this city's application to annex 7,900 acres of adjoining Brantford township was adjourned Friday night.

Chairman Lorne Cumming of the Ontario municipal board said the hearing might be resumed late in January.

Ewart Biggar, township clerk-treasurer, presented the township's proposed alternative to annexation. It is unification of municipal services for all Brant county municipalities and creation of a consolidated council with representation from the city of Brantford, the town of Paris, and the townships of Brantford, Burford, South Dumfries, Oakland and Oondaga.

The city seeks to annex only part of the township.

Santa Claus To Visit Bancroft For Parade

Children in the Bancroft area are anxiously awaiting December 19. That is the date that Santa Claus makes his public appearance there as a guest of the Bancroft Lion's club.

In addition to the Santa Claus parade, the children are treated to free movies and sweets.

Treat Your Home Properly It's A Lifetime Investment

A home is usually a lifetime investment and it will give you greater dividends if you treat it the proper way . The better care you take of it in the early stages the better it will wear and look.

The first impulse of almost any couple moving into a brand new home is to build a roaring fire in the fireplace "to take the chill out of the house." Next day the ambitious housewife may give the floors a good, old-fashioned soaking and scrubbing—making sure to use plenty of abrasive and elbow-grease on the linoleum or floor covering. Her intentions are perfectly good, but what a beating the house may take! Following are some suggestions the new home owner should follow carefully:

The most important thing in breaking in a new home is to heat it slowly, to avoid excessive temperatures particularly during the Winter months, and to keep it at a fairly even temperature not over 70 degrees. This will give your new home a chance to dry out thoroughly and will minimize cracks in wood and plaster. Paint used in the home will stand up better too if not subjected to extreme cold, heat or dampness.

The same thing that goes for warming up a home slowly during the winter months goes for your fireplace. Build a small fire in the fireplace and let it burn for many hours slowly until the chimney has had a chance to dry out thoroughly. A large, hot fire during the first trial, if it is cold, may cause and expansion and make cracks in the chimney.

LIGHTING A FIREPLACE

Most cold fireplaces will smoke when you first light your fire. To help prevent this, light a piece of paper and hold it up so the heat will draw up the throat of the fireplace. Then light your kindling. If your outer hearth is waxed, the fireplace will be much easier to take care of. Keep a screen in front of your fireplace always to protect your floor and rugs.

Much housekeeping time is spent in keeping floors clean, particularly if you have a family which is prone to minor domestic rioting or to playing host for the jamboree of all the neighboring jitterbugs. Regular waxing and polishing is the secret of keeping an attractive floor and reducing its maintenance. Wax preparations are on the market today which require a minimum of rubbing. Wax should always be applied thinly.

Kitchen linoleum will look better and last longer if it has a protecting coat of linoleum varnish and is then waxed. To clean linoleum do not use an excessive amount of water when scrubbing. Scrub only a small area at a time and then wipe it dry as soon as possible behind you. Do not use harsh abrasives. Good treatment will double the life of your linoleum.

Practically every owner will eventually be confronted with a stubborn door caused by such conditions as contraction and expansion during cold and hot periods, settling, etc. Sawing off the top, bottom or side of the door should be a last resort—and a carpenter's job. A door can be ruined by planing. If you know how to plane without slivering the wood, take off only enough to permit the door to close.

If the sticking is due to natural swelling, during the damp season, avoid planing the door edge if you possibly can. When the dry season returns, the door will shrink back to normal. It's better to contend with a slightly sticky door than to have light showing around the edges.

LITTLE OIL HELPS

If your doors creak, a little oil will work wonders. Slamming doors doesn't help the doors fit. And don't jerk the handle or knob of a stuck door. You may crack the door or break the knob. For sticking sliding closet doors rub surfaces where the sticking occurs with paraffin which wil not make oil spots on the clothes and will solve many of such problems.

At least twice a year an inspection of your home from foundation to rooftop. See that no cardboard, paper, wood and leaves have accumulated under any part of the building and that vents provided in the outside walls are kept clear.

Inspect and clean gutters and drains at least once a year after the leaves have dropped and before the snow begins to blow. It will prevent leaks and avoid unsightly stains. Check up every year on your exterior paint.

If the porcelain in your plumbing becomes chipped by accidentally dropping a sharp-edged object against it, you can repair the damage quite simply. Buy a small bottle of liquid porcelain at your hardware dealer. Apply the material to a perfectly dry surface, filling in the chipped spot.

Make Aluminum Storms Yourself

BY MR. FIX

Ordinarily aluminum, being a metal, is treated like one. To work with it craftsmen employ metal-working tools. For although aluminum is "soft"—compared to steel—wood chisels, planes and saws are no match for it.

A new development has changed that. Now there is a so-called "do-it-yourself aluminum" that can be worked with ordinary wood - working tools to the advantage of both the work and the tools, and the detriment of neither, according to the manufacturer.

Not the least of the many home-workshop projects for which the newly introduced material was designed is the making of storm windows. And this is a right proper time of year to be thinking of storm sash, too.

There are only 15 steps involved in making the new aluminum storm windows. They are simple steps, and easy to follow even for the least handy home owner.

Novel extruded aluminum storm-window frame strips are among 36 different "do-it-yourself aluminum" mill products introduced by the manufacturer. The frame strips, glass, aluminum screws or rivets, and friction or plastic tape are all that are needed to make the windows.

The only outdoor work required is the measuring of window frames before the work begins and the hanging of windows when completed. The aluminum can be painted, lacquered or finished in a variety of ways.

Each window-frame strip is a single length of aluminum having a "U" channel and an offset leg." The strip is first cut into pieces that form the top, bottom and sides of the frame. The "leg" portion of each piece is then cut to overlap at corners of the frame. The extent that the leg is offset from the channel allows for the overlap, making it possible to keep channels in line all around the frame. The channel portion of each piece is mitered for 45-degree corner joints.

Next, the edges of the glass are taped, for a tight fit, when the glass is slipped into the channels. Putty or glazing compounds are not necessary. After the glass is installed the frame becomes a unit when screws or rivets are driven through the overlapped "legs" at the corners.

The simplest method of mounting the windows is outside the existing window casing. The manufacturer suggests several alternate methods, including an inside-the-casing installation for double-hinged windows. All directions are given with purchased materials at hardware dealers, lumber yards and other building material outlets.

Storm windows six square feet or more in area should be divided into more than one panel, depending upon their size. Cross members can easily be made of the same material used on the rest of the frame.

The field for storm windows that can be custom-built at home appears to be wide open. In view of the relatively high cost of manufactured storm sash, you can be sure you haven't heard the last of "make-them-yourself" storm windows.

...ALUMINUM strips that can easily be cut and made into rigid storm window frames are illustrated above.

Social Credit Member Defends "McCarthyism" Minor Uproar In House

OTTAWA (CP)—John Blackmore (SC—Lethbridge) Friday night in the Commons described as a "sordid smear" the attack Monday on "McCarthyites" by David Croll (L—Toronto Spadina).

He withdrew the words "sordid smear" at the insistence of Speaker Rene Beaudoin after several Liberal and CCF members protested.

Mr. Blackmore also claimed Mr. Croll had been "vilifying outrageously" U.S. Senator Joseph McCarthy. This time, he withdrew the remark after Elmore Philpott (L—Vancouver South) protested and without the Speaker making a ruling.

"I withdraw; I don't want to waste any time," Mr. Blackmore said. The House rocked with laughter.

The Alberta Social Crediter was still talking at the 10 p.m. adjournment and the usually quiet Friday evening sitting ended in a minor turmoil.

NOISY OUTBURST

Mr. Blackmore asked whether Mr. Croll had read a speech prepared for him outside the House and handed to him. He also asked whether Mr. Croll was speaking for the Liberal party.

Mr. Beaudoin, finally obtaining order after the outburst this brought on, said he hadn't heard what Mr. Blackmore had said because of the noise.

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) said Mr. Blackmore alleged that Mr. Croll had his speech prepared for him. Unless Mr. Blackmore could produce evidence, it must be assumed that Mr. Croll had delivered his own speech "and I trust that the honorable member for Lethbridge is reading his own."

The House adjourned at that point. Mr. Blackmore will be able to continue his speech Monday in the continuing throne speech debate.

READ BOOKS

Earlier, Health Minister Martin asked Mr. Blackmore if he had ever met Senator McCarthy.

"Never," said Mr. Blackmore. He added that he had read books by persons who had met the Wisconsin senator.

Starting off, Mr. Blackmore said he didn't intend to defend "McCarthyism" or "McCarthyites." He didn't know such a thing or persons existed.

Mr. Blackmore said Senator McCarthy is a "gentlemanly, patient, patriotic young fellow, distinguished veteran of the Second World War who faithfully offered his life in battle against fascism and nazism. . . now devotedly offering his life once more—this time in a fight for America against communism abroad and particularly at home."

There was laughter from both sides of the House.

IDENTIFIES WITNESSES

Mr. Blackmore said his two "witnesses" for his description of McCarthy were Igor Gouzenko and a Roman Catholic priest who had written an article about McCarthy.

Mr. Blackmore said Mr. Croll had said things about "McCarthyism" which were a "positive disgrace." Mr. Croll was not in the House.

He said there had been "outrageous propaganda" in Canadian newspapers against McCarthy. He was "amazed" that Canadians could be "carried away by such untruths."

Serving Alcohol To 'Teen-Agers At RCAF Dance

OTTAWA (CP) — Magistrate Glenn Strike Friday criticized RCAF authorities at Rockcliffe air station for permitting 'teen-agers to consume alcoholic beverages at dances in the station's drill hall.

The magistrate said RCAF officials were "only looking for trouble when they allow young fellows to go in there and consume quantities of beer. . . .

"I'm certainly critical of those in charge of this so-called dance hall."

CONVICTED OF ASSAULT

He made the comment after Bernard Guertin, 19, of Ottawa was convicted of assault causing grievous bodily harm to Gerard Wolfe, 21, of suburban Eastview last Nov. 7. Guertin ws fined $50 and costs.

In commenting, one RCAF spokesman said, "We try to make sure anyone receiving alcoholic beverages is over 21 but it is difficult to tell sometimes."

At 70, Albert The Clown Still Makes Them Laugh

By ROSETTE HARGROVE

PARIS—(NEA)—"I love every bit of it. The sawdust, the smells, the people of the circus. But best of all, I love to hear the children's laughter."

At 70, Albert Fratellini is not only the oldest clown in Europe, but he is also the most famous. And he can boast of having been in the circus business 65 years.

It was at the turn of the century that Albert, with his brothers, Paul and Francois, started the "musical clown" act which delighted generations of children and their parents in every European capital until the outbreak of the Second World War. When peace came, only one was left—Albert. But the Fratellini tradition did not die out.

With a nephew, Max, and the latter's two sons, Luigi and Nino, Albert Fratellini carried on. The same old gags, the same slap-stick comedy made Big Tops everywhere in Europe echo with the youngsters' laughter and applause.

Two years ago, in a London circus, a paralytic stroke laid Albert low. For months he hovered between life and death. He recovered, only to be confined to a wheel chair, having lost the power of speech and the ability to walk temporarily.

Then he explained, "The doctor said to me, 'Albert Fratellini, get up and walk.' 'If I do, I'll surely fall.' 'You'll pick yourself up, Albert,' said the doctor. 'Besides, haven't you been doing just that all your life?'"

Albert stood and fell many times. But he persisted and now every night he can be seen at the Cirque d'Hiver (Winter Circus) going through the old routine. None of the spectators realize that, beneath the grotesque disguise and the absurd wig with the hair that stands on end and revolves madly from fright, is the bald pate of a man whom show people call the "Lazarus" of the circus.

In his tiny untidy dressing-room—"a clown's dressing-room," he calls it—Albert Fratellini said, with a twinkle in his merry old eyes: "People say that make-up is bad for the complexion. Look, I have the skin of a baby."

He is proud of the fact that it was he who invented the grotesqque make-up which has made him famous. And he was the first clown to wear the ridiculously baggy clothes and the web-foot shoes which make him look like a scarecrow. It was also the Fratellini brothers who created the sparkling bespangled costumes which have now been handed down to the grand-nephews.

"When we Fratellinis started," Albert recalls, "we were paid 15 francs (gold) or about $5 each per performance. With this we lived like kings, ate chicken every day. I even saved enough to buy a couple of houses outside Paris." Today's salaries would not permit such luxuries.

So famous did the Fratellinis become between the two World Wars that they had as many outside engagements as they could fill. They appeared at the Folies Bergere, the Casino de Paris, even at the austere Comedie Francaise, home of the classic theatre. But the circus always remained their first love. For a time they also ran a "clown's school".

The Fratellini dynasty runs no risk of dying out. Right now it counts 57 members, includes a celebrated troupe of nephews, the Craddock Brothers.

CLOWN IN MUFTI is Albert Fratellini, at 70 Europe's Oldest.

CLOWN IN UNIFORM is Fratellini with the make-up he devised.

Regard Report As Exaggerated

MONTREAL (CP) — Shipping men here said ocean passenger traffic is increasing through Canada's eastern ports, but not at the expense of New York

They described as exaggerated a New York report Thursday that Canada's immigration boom had lured a large number of passenger ships from New York, resulting in a "significant" loss to that port in the last number of years.

Experts Peeking At Fish By Television

By JOHN VAN DUSEN

OTTAWA (CP)—It used to be that life in a goldfish bowl was the ultimate in lack of privacy. But now the experts are peeking—by television—on piscatorial affairs in Canada's lakes and streams.

The scientific scanning is being done by an underwater TV outfit developed by the National Research Council. The set is in such demand that the NRC can't get it back to its laboratories for overhaul and improvement.

Officials of the Canadian wildlife service say the uses of the new device in the study of fisheries "are limited only by the imagination."

ELIMINATES GUESSWORK

For instance, it is taking much of the study of lake fisheries out of the guesswork area. Limnologists—the men who study freshwater fisheries—used to have to content themselves with taking fish and chunks of riverbed to their laboratories for observation.

Now, they can sit in a boat and, looking at a TV screen, watch the fish as they breed and go through the other life processes.

The NRC's television, which took a year to develop and was first put to practical use in 1951, consists underwater of a barrel-like and waterproof unit that is lowered under the surface.

A cable connects it to viewing screens in a boat on the surface. Observers watch one screen, while another may be hooked up to a movie camera that records the sights.

The idea of using such a unit in fishery research occurred to Dr. V. E. F. Solman, chief biologist of the wildlife service, after hearing of the Royal Navy's success with a similar device in locating the sunken submarine Affray in September, 1951.

CLEAR PICTURE

The Affray sank in the Thames estuary, and the Royal Navy and private enterprise co-operated in developing underwater television to separate it from other wrecks on the bottom. On the navy's TV screen, the Affray's nameplate was readable.

Since the Canadian unit went into operation, it has been used in a wide variety of studies. Last fall, the limnologists operating in Lake Minnewanka in Banff National Park were able to study spawning of lake trout in areas as deep as 80 feet.

There have been tests in Lake Ontario, and a study was made of the bottom of Kingston, Ont., harbor. Other studies were made in the Rideau river and the Rideau lakes in and around Ottawa.

TO MAKE DEBUT

Arrangements have been made to have the unit make its debut this month on the NBC television network in the United States.

While the machine is opening up vistas previously closed to the human eye, the NRC scientists are not satisfied with it. For one thing, the unit is too bulky and heavy and requires a 30-foot vessel on the surface to handle it.

The NRC officials are hoping to streamline it as to weight and ease of handling, and they also want to improve the underwater lighting and other facilities. They wish the people using it would let them get it into drydock for a while.

FISH AND GAME

There are a variety of game fish in the Park. As part of its scheme for managing angling waters, the Department of Lands and Forests has instituted a plan for resting certain heavily fished lakes. The lakes are chosen in pairs, with two lakes of each pair in the same area. One lake of each pair is closed in alternate years, so that there is always an open lake in each area every year.

Algonquin Park also provides a laboratory for study and research to natural science. Headquarters for fisheries research for the Province as a whole is at the Fish Laboratory on Opeonogo Lake, the largest lake in the Park. There is also a wildlife research centre on Lake of Two Rivers. Research facilities in the Park have also been used by other institutions. Forestry practice camps were held in the Park by the University of Toronto until 1935. Today, commercial logging, restricted to undeveloped areas away from waterways, is carried on in the Park.

Ask Up Fish Limits

BELLEVILLE (CP)—The Belleville District Game and Fish Association Friday asked the Ontario department of lands and forests to extend the legal length of pike to 20 inches and that of brook trout to nine inches. Legal length for pike is 18 inches and brook trout seven.

Few Of Many Who Heard Responded To Jesus

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

I suppose we have all at some time sung that familiar and pleasant hymn:

'I think when I read that sweet story of old,
When Jesus was here among men,
How He called little children as lambs to His fold,
I should like to have been with Him then."
I wish that His hands had been placed on my head,
And His arms had been thrown around me,
And that I might have seen His kind look when he said:
'Let the little ones come unto Me."

It is a very natural wish as one reads the "greatest story," yet I think the hymn strikes a note of more practical realism when it says: "Yet to His footstool in prayer I may go, and ask for a share in His love."

After all, there is no assurance that, had we been among the throng that surrounded the Master in His earthly life, He would have been the Master to us.

The common people heard Him gladly. Jesus complained that they followed Him for the loaves and fishes, rather than for His teaching and the spiritual power of His miracles. Apparently only comparatively few of the many who heard Him responded to His teaching, accepting Him as the Messiah and as Lord and Master.

Would we have been among the few or among the many?

Jesus did not make discipleship easy. He called it a matter of bearing the cross and coming after Him, though I judge that it was not until later that the full significance of these words was revealed to the disciples.

It was not then, nor is it today, an easy thing to be a Christian—that is a true Christian.

The late Sylvester Horne, whose pulpit in the famous old Whitefield's Tabernacle in London I once occupied, entitled a little book of his sermons "The Life That is Easy." I have often referred to that little book, but its title may easily be misleading.

Horne thought of the Christian life as easy, only after the great decisions had been made and the life wholly committed to Christ.

The sentiment of the pleasant hymn, with which I began, can very easily have its test in our lives. What is our attitude toward the Christ today? How earnestly and effectually do we respond to His call?

As a mater of fact, we can "be" with Him in the pages of the New Testament even more really than those of His own earthly time were with Him, except perhaps the nearest of His disciples, those who became the Apostles.

We have the whole range of His life and teaching there set forth; we may see Him in all the fulness of His life and redemptive mission, and not only in single incidents or partial views.

We have the added help and incentive of the revelation of those who Knew Him, and of St. Paul, in many respects the greatest interpreter of Christ and His gospel.

So, the richest reality of Christian faith and experience is not found in some wish that we had known the Master in the past, but in the sincerity with which, through the Gospels and the New Testaments, we know and love Him today; and loving Him keep His commandments (John 14:15).

Candidates Meeting

Because of the extreme interest in the forthcoming civic election in Peterborough, the place of the candidates' meeting Tuesday evening next has been changed to the Queen Mary auditorium. The meeting is sponsored by the women's Study Group on Civic Affairs and offers each candidate for Mayor, City Council, and Board of Education, an opportunity to speak to the electors. They are scheduled to commence at 8 p.m. December 1st.

Dave Kerr Buys Windsor Tavern, Leaving City

Dave Kerr's period of leisure since his retirement as a gentleman farmer in Smith and manager of the Empress Hotel ends Tuesday, December 1, when he assumes proprietorship of the Drop Inn Tavern, Tecumseh Boulevard, Windsor. The transfer was approved by the Liquor License Board in Toronto Thursday.

The story of his sale of the 200-acre farm on the Peterborough-Lindsay Highway was told several months ago. That property and the herd of purebred Hereford cattle based on Wyoming Hereford Ranch stock imported by John Stuart, Jr., were purchased by Clarence B. Neal, president of Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co. About the middle of October, Mr. Kerr sold his stock in the Empress Hotel at the time of his retirement as manager.

He still owns a half interest in the Wellington Hotel, Barrie, located at what is known as the five corners, in the centre of the town. He acquired that partnership in 1945.

PLAYED FOR BULLDOGS

Mr. Kerr is not a complete stranger in Windsor. He lived there during the winter of 1931 when he played hockey with the Windsor Bulldogs, a farm club at that time of Montreal Maroons.

"I was hurt in the groin playing 'pro' lacrosse in the previous summer, and the Maroons sent me to Windsor until I fully recovered from its effects", Mr. Kerr said today.

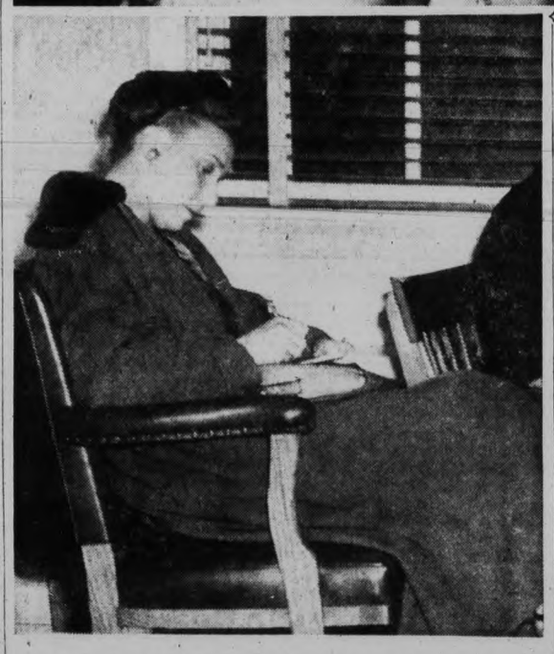
"Really it is not easy to leave Peterborough. I have made a lot of fine friends here, but I don't think retirement is as attractive as it sounds. It is better to keep interested in things and business. So, I am hoping to find Windsor as pleasant a place to live as Peterborough. My wife and family will join me there as soon as I can secure a suitable house".

Mr. Kerr is widely known for his career in professional hockey. He played goal with the New York Rangers, when they won the National Hockey League title in 1939-40 under the management of Lester Patrick and Frank Boucher. Previously he was with the Maroons from 1930 to 1934, then with the Rangers from 1934 to 1941, and earlier was with MAAA (Montreal) "more or less a Maroon farm".

The MAAA team won the Allen Cup in 1929-30. "I always remember that team as probably the best balanced I ever played with—Paul Haines, Earl and Deese Roche, Brydson, Huggins, Wilson, and on the defense Johnny Gallagher and Owen O'Hearn. In the final series we first won from Hamilton and then defeated Port Arthur".

Mr. Kerr said he had dreams from away back of some day becoming a farmer. Then in his many seasons of travel with the Maroons and Rangers, living at hotels, "I got the idea that when I was through with hockey, I might perhaps like hotel management and make good in it".

BOTH AMBITIONS REALIZED



Eventually both those ambitions were realized, and for the last five years Dave Kerr was living on his Smith township farm and managing the Empress Hotel. But, as related when he sold the rural property, his daughter was allergic to some irritant in the country, and the family physician advised her parents that the only remedy appeared to be return to the city. He has been living here since 1945.

Articles Returned

Theoretically, the Club Aragon was Peterborough's best-guarded building Friday night in its role as the site of the police athletic association dance. One police officer was quite shaken, therefore, to find that during the dance someone had jimmied the window of his car and helped himself to a cigaret lighter, two floor mats and a blanket. While he made veiled threats and puzzled over a motive today, fellow officers gleefully showed up with the missing articles which they "recovered" close to noon.

THERE WERE SPIRITED township and city nominations on Friday afternoon and evening. At the town hall in Keene (top) rural citizens almost filled the place listening to Otonabee nominees outline municipal platforms. In the group (front row, left to right) are N. D. McIntyre, township clerk James McCarthy, reeve Richard R. Stewart, who announced his retirement, and road superintendent Mac Short; back row are Galvin Shearer, Jr., former reeve Peter J. Maher, William Edwards and township assessor Don. Deyell. In (centre) is a scene at the city hall, Peterborough, where the committee rooms and hallway were jammed with citizens and (lower) is shown one of the women candidates for alderman Mrs. Maurice Holt, who discovered, when she got to the nomination meeting that she would be called upon for an address. She hurriedly scribbled some notes. —(Examiner Staff Photos)

962 More Citizens Have Vote In City Elections

The total number of names on the voters' list for this year's municipal election is 21,920, which is 962 more than last year.

The list includes 10,197 property owners who are public school supporters, 2,249 property owners who are separate school supporters, 4,178 tenants who are public school supporters, 998 tenants who are separate school supporters and 4,298 municipal franchise voters (wives or husbands of owners or tenants).

TWO DIVISIONS

As usual, the list is divided into two parts. Part 1 contains the names of those eligible to vote for candidates for civic office. Part 2 contains the names of non-residents who are entitled to vote on money plebiscites.

In the following summary by wards, OP stands for an owner who is a public school supporter, OS—owner who is a separate school supporter, TP—tenant who is a public school supporter, TS—tenant who is a separate school supporter, MFP—municipal franchise voter who is a public school supporter, MFS—municipal franchise voter who is a separate school supporter.

Water From Great Lakes Once Flowed Through Trent

Nature lovers were treated to a diverse fare of birds, flowers and even fish, of the Erie Lake district, in a film presented by G. Howard Orians, at Queen Mary auditorium Friday night. The film opened with the viewing of the numerous geological shores of former Lake Eries, after the great ice age. Once the flow of water from the upper Great Lakes passed through the Trent Valley system, but eventual change caused the flow to be diverted over Niagara, by way of the Detroit river.

Included with his shots of bird life were a few pictures of Devonian fossils, including a perfectly formed Trilobite.

Views of water fowl were prevalent in the movie, and one shot showed how thick oil layers in the water will cause the death of water fowl. If they cannot ruffle their feathers to let air in, they will freeze to death. As many as 20,000 ducks have been known to die at one time because of this.

One of the special shots of the movie was the arrival in Lake Erie of the great whistling swans. These birds remain in the area about 10 days and then take off in a group and head for the Arctic circle, where they breed and raise their young.

A frequent haunt of the film was the Erie marshes and Mr. Orians has packed his film, not only with swamp birds, but also reptiles and insects, and a few mammals.

Woodlot Prize To Be Studied

A prize for the best woodlot of more than five acres in Peterborough county will be considered by the 1954 county council.

The 1953 council, at their closing session, thought that a similar competition in Hastings county was worth considering. So the recommendation will be passed along to their successors.

In Hastings, entries are received from resident land owners in the country who have five acres or more in woods. The purpose is to encourage conservation and reforestation measures.

The county already has demonstration woodlots.

"It would be a good thing if this county council could establish something along the same lines," said Reeve Rork Ferguson of Norwood. "It would stimulate interest in reforestation."

Reeve Charles Flynn of Harvey township supported Reeve Ferguson's motion.

Board Certifies Electrical Workers

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario labor relations board announced Friday that it has certified the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL-TLC) as bargaining agent for employees of Peterborough Electric at Peterborough; Ont., formerly Grant and Loucks.

The board has ordered a vote of employees at G. T. Green Limited, Ottawa, to decide on a bargaining agent. United Construction Workers is seeking certification.

Find Cattle Facilities Poor

Lavatories are needed for patrons of the produce market on Rink St., county council have decided. And there are not adequate facilities for weighing cattle.

Both these matters will be taken up with the city when the ctiy-county liaison committee meet next time.

The need for lavatory facilities—both for patrons and vendors—is obvious the councillors said. At present garage washrooms, privately owned, are being used.

While there are scales on the market, there are no yards or ramps for unloading cattle and other livestock. Livestock, which is considered a "moving load," has to be taken off the trucks to be weighed.

"I think we should go into this thoroughly," said Deputy Reeve Robert McAdam of Smith township.

"I'm surprised to hear that there is no place to weigh cattle in Peterborough," said Warden Ernest J. Leeson.

Acclamation For Fred Hills To Utilities Commission; Board Of Education Vote

Six Names Placed In Nomination For Board of Education Seven For Separate School Board

Fred Hills, 12 years a member of the Peterborough utilities commission and this year's chairman, was the only name received when nominations closed at a meeting in the city hall Friday night. He was proposed by James Hamilton and seconded by John V. Baird. Sitting members on the commission are Dr. G. R. Langley and Richard Raine. Mr. Hills' acclamation comes after contests in the past two years which saw the retiring commissioner failing to get re-elected.

An acclamation was given the separate school board when only six of the seven candidates nominated intimated today that they would qualify. Nominated were: C. L. J. Rowatt, Harry Bartlett, Fred Shine, Dr. John Epping, William H. Toal, Ferguson P. O'Connor and Frederick J. Whaley. Mr. Whaley did not qualify.

Mr. Rowatt, Mr. Bartlett and Mr. Shine are new members of the board and will replace Victor Mattucci, R. S. Hull and Donald Hull who did not seek re-election.

With five to be elected this year to the board of education, six nominations were forwarded. Standing chairman Stanley Adamson announced earlier that he would not be seeking re-election. Those nominated were:

Ernest McWilliam, Charles H. Huffman, Mrs. Ann Rowell, Arthur Pitchford, G. Wilson Craw and Clarence A. Corbett.

ACCLAMATIONS

Mr. Pitchford told the meeting that the number one problem facing the board was accommodation. In recent years enrollments had increased considerably although the situation was well in hand. The board needed a large amount of money for its activities, but voters could be assured that it was spent in the best interests of the children and the community.

Mr. Pitchford compared the manner in which Toronto was getting new industry to Peterborough's failure and intimated that perhaps labor costs were too high.

This immediately drew protests from the audience and one member asked if he considered labor costs to be on a par with prevailing labor rates in Toronto. He replied that while not as high as in Toronto, the rates here were nevertheless greater, than in other cities of comparable size.

Citizens were congratulated by Mr. Craw who said that it was the largest nomination meeting he had attended in Peterborough.

Mrs. Rowell emphasized a live interest in the workings of the board and asked voters to support her not because she was a woman but on her past qualifications.

Other nominees asked the support of voters and assured hard work and interest, if elected.

RETURNED by acclamation at the nomination meeting Friday night Fred Hills will start next year serving his fourth term as a member of the Utilities Commission. Mr. Hills is chairman this year.

Nine Homeless After Fire Burns Apartment

KINGSTON (CP)—Nine persons were made homeless Friday when fire swept through a combination apartment house and garage in nearby Pittsburgh township.

Damage was estimated at $10,000. Lost in the blaze were two cars and the furniture and personal belongings of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Hamilton and their four children, Mr. and Mrs. Armand Isebelle and A. McNish.

The fire razed an old structure that had been a landmark on the Big Cataraqui River since the 1920's when the site had been a seaplane base.

COULDN'T GET HELP

Mrs. Leslie Hamilton discovered the fire but the Kingston city fire department said it could not answer the call because Pittsburgh township, in which Barriefield village is located, has refused to enter into a fire protection agreement with Kingston. The fire, which left homeless Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton and their four children, Archie McNish and Armand (Frenchie) Isebelle, was half-a-amile from the Kingston city limits at the La Salle causeway.

An appeal to the fire department of Vimy barracks at the nearby Royal Canadian School of Signals was successful and a pumper manned by soldiers was dispatched.

The army pumper played water on the burning building, but it collapsed a few minutes after the soldiers reached the scene. The building was a total loss and damage was estimated at $10,000.

All other surrounding townships except Pittsburg have agreements with the city of Kingston for fire protection in return for an annual fee.

New Deadlock Threatens On Trieste Issue

By JOHN SCALI

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new Yugoslav - Italian deadlock is threatening to end Western hopes for a quick five-power conference to settle the Trieste crisis.

United States officials acknowledged today that last week's optimism now has faded in view of the latest conflicting Yugoslav and Italian stands.

Behind the scenes, state department diplomats are concentrating on arranging a so-called "pre-conference" to bring Italian and Yugoslav officials together with Big Three representatives. They would discuss on what basis a higher-level parley could be held later.

Yugoslavia originally suggested this approach several weeks ago, but the Western Big Three brushed it aside in favor of a diplomatic effort Nov. 13 to set up a formal conference before the end of the year on the future of the disputed territory.

ANNOUNCED PLANS

The United States and Britain several weeks ago announced plans to turn administration of their zone over to Italy, withdrawing their troops. Yugoslavia's president Tito threatened to oppose forcibly any military occupation of the zone. Plans for a conference then were advanced.

Tito's objections now appear to have ruled out any early high-level conference.

His government has in effect rejected a U.S.-British-French proposal that Italy be permitted to appoint 14 officials to study administrative duties in the Allied zone of Trieste before the conference is convened.

Negro Soldiers Fined $1,573

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — A whole busload of Negro soldiers, driven en mass to jail after one of them sat beside a white girl, were fined a total of $1,573 on disorderly conduct charges Friday.

Police said they arrested 50 soldiers, including Lieut. Austell Sherard, when they were called to investigate a disturbance on a bus Thursday night.

John I. Rice, city judge, said the white girl testified she asked the Negro soldier to move when he sat by her. He refused, she said, and other soldiers joined in the discussion. The bus driver called police.

The officer was fined $200 for disorderly conduct and for interfering with police. Forty-five soldiers were fined $25.50 each for disorderly conduct, one was fined $125.50 and the other one $100 on the same charge. Charges against two were dismissed.

South Objects To Ban On Segregation

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Many southern political leaders have taken prompt issue with Attorney-General Herbert Brownell's recommendation to the United States Supreme Court to ban racial segregation in public schools.

Representative E. C. Gathings (Dem.-Ark.) declared that the justice department, through the 188-page brief which Brownell filed with the high court Friday, is attempting to skirt "the will of the people."

Gathings continued that the American constitution does not give the federal government any jurisdiction over educational systems of the states, and that the states alone have the right to exercise such jurisdiction.

Governor Herman Talmadge of Georgia described Brownell's brief as backed by "radical elements" and "wholly political." He predicted that the South will be "lost forever" to the Republican party because of it.

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain and Burma will begin negotiations in Rangoon Monday for a new defence agreement, it was announced here today.

The foreign office said the two governments have been examining the replacement of the Anglo-Burmese defence agreement which came into force Jan. 4, 1948, with Burma's independence. Burma gave a year's notice last January to terminate this agreement. Concerned with transitional stages arising from withdrawal of British troops from Burma, it now is considerably out of date.

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — The Masonic Temple was packed to capacity Thursday evening when the Campbellford Lions club was officialy launched with the presentation of the club's charter by District Governor Victor Frederick of Peterborough. HALF MILLION LIONS

Mr. Wylie said there are nearly half a million Lions in 56 countries of the world. He predicted a great future for the club in Campbellford, exhorting the members to keep in mind at all times the ideals and implications of Lionism.

He stressed the fact that the club does not take place of the church or other organizations. It supplements them and has the effect of enriching one's life because of the unselfish endeavour. The Lion movement enriches not only the individual but the entire community, the nation and, ultimately, the whole world, he said.

Dr. Atkinson introduced the district deputy governor of Region 10, Larry McCarthy, who advised the members of the new club of their duties and welcomed them to his jurisdiction.

District Governor Victor Frederick, in presenting the charter, stated that a charter is an evidence of faith that those who received it would abide by the rules and regulations of the organization and nourish the principles of brotherhood and unselfish service. It preserves the high moral and ethical standards assumed by the giver.

HERE TO SERVE

President Vern Rose received the charter, saying he believed the club would bring something to Campbellford. "We are here to serve; we have no other cause for existence," Mr. Rose stated.

Gifts of club equipment were received from many district clubs. The Peterborough club presented the new club with a framed picture of the Queen; Keene donated a Union Jack; Millbrook, the Stars and Stripes; Lindsay, a framed code of ethics; Bancroft a framed "Aims and Objects of Lionism"; Whitney, a president's jewelled button; Madawaska, a secretary's jewelled button; Frankford, a treasurer's jewelled button; Coboconk, a fine box; Belleville and Trenton, dinner badges; Norwood, bell, gavel and road signs; Napanee, books.

Joseph Poulton of Campbellford presented the club with an antique walnut chair, beautifully hand carved, and Bud Davidson, president of the Campbellford Rotary club, presented a Lions speaker's stand.

Dr. Atkinson turned the gavel over to President Vern Rose, who acknewledged the gifts and introduced the guests of the club. He tendered a vote of thanks to Roy Smith, chairman of the charter night committee, who made the arrangements for the evening. Mr. Smith, in turn, thanked the club members for their co-operation.

A draw for 35 prizes and a dance concluded the evening.

Foolhardy Try To Rob Bank

NEW YORK (AP)—Trying to rob a bank on an island army base bristling with military police —and depending on a ferry boat to escape—proved as foolhardy as it sounds.

Two University of Florida students, Paul Goldhagen, 21, and Stewart Deutch, 27, allegedly made such an attempt Friday on a branch bank of thhe Manufacturers Trust Co. on Governors island, located off the tip of lower Manhattan.

They were quickly seized, but only after they had blackjacked the bank's lone employee, whose cries brought MPs rushing to the scene.

United Church Members Asked To Oppose All Fund Raising Forms Of Gambling

Members of the United Church of Canada are urged to forego all forms of gambling for the purpose of fund raising for social clubs and other organizations.

The committee of evangical and social service made this announcement at the Peterborough Presbytery of the United Church of Canada. Church members were referred to the "Record of Proceedings" of the 15th general council, which refers to "such schemes as morally decadent and un-Christian."

Evangelists Dr. and Mrs. Charles Templeton Have been invited to preach in Peterborough by the committee, but due to a filled schedule, they will not be able to attend until the fall of 1955.

The program of the church is not something optional, said the Rev. G. G. Connolly, field secretary of Christian education in the Bay of Quinte area. It is something for all members and requires active, daily participation. "We must get the young people committed to the faith. It is our task in the field of Christian education to teach everyone to know, love and serve God as He is in Jesus Christ."

Dr. George Little, Toronto, commented on the success of the campaign to get the United Church Observer (a church newspaper) into every home. The Peterborough Presbytery is just beginning its campaign.

Tragedy Shadows 22-Year-Old Texas Love Story

ORANGE, Tex. (AP)—The 22-year-old love idyll of Betty McCuddy and Tom Buntin was shadowed today by tragedy after their second grandchild, a girl, was born dead.

Tom and Betty, who became Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Palmer after they disappeared in 1931 from their homes in Nashville, Tenn., and Russelville, Ky., had feared it would happen.

Ever since their secret love became public knowledge Thursday, they had tried to protect their pregnant daughter, Elizabeth, from the excitement of publicity.

"Please," Betty, now a court stenographer, had told reporters, "don't ask me questions now. Come back in a few days and I'll talk gladly, but now now."

"Give us time to think things over," Tom, a television salesman, had said.

SECRET WAS BARED

The man who had been a prominent Nashville insurance executive and the pretty young woman who had been his secretary—both long declared dead—only Thursday emerged as a happy couple with six children in this little Texas refining centre.

Tom decided Friday they wouldn't talk any more about their life. And when expectant Elizabeth, 21, was taken to hospital, police chief Raymond Sanders asked reporters and photographers to "leave them alone."

Then came the tragic still-birth and Mrs. Palmer, bitterly blaming the publicity of the last few days, was taken to hospital in extreme shock. Elizaabeth was reported in good condition.

Security Talks Asked By Rhee

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—South Korea's president Syngman Rhee called tonight for a security conference of anti-Communist southeast Asian nations and hinted that his government and Nationalist China may sponsor such a conclave.

Rhee addressed a joint session of Nationalist lawmakers shortly after he and Chiang Kai-shek announced in a joint statement that they "stand firmly united" in the fight against communism and called for a united Asiatic front.

"Unless we are united and organized just as our enemy is united and organized we cannot be as strong," the South Korean president said in his speech. "The only way to fight it as you would cholera, smallpox or any other contageous disease."

The joint statement issued by Chiang and Rhee did not say flatly that a formal alliance had been agreed upon.

To Hear Unusual Divorce Case

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate divorce committee, for the first time in parliamentary history, has decided to hear a divorce petition on grounds of incurable insanity.

Hitherto, the committee has heard only petitions claiming adultery. However, the committee will consider the peitition of a Quebec man for a divorce from his wife who, he says, is incurably insane.

After several discussions, the committee is understood to have reached decision because the man has no other recourse in law since Quebec province has no divorce court.

Divorces for Quebec and Newfoundland residents are handled by parliament.

Beer Sales Too High Judge Tells Veterans

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Judge W. T. Robb, chairman of the Ontario liquor licence board, warned 11 district veterans' organizations Friday that their beer gallonage sales were too high for their memberships.

"You pay no gallonage tax and it is not fair to hotel owners that you serve the man off the street," he said.

The rule of one guest a month had to be enforced.

Among units called before the board were Imperial Veterans and Polish Legion here, Mepritton Legion, Port Dalhousie Legion, Thorold Canadian Corps, and groups from Brantford, Cayuga, Chippewa and Niagara Falls.

West European Ministers Meet For Talks

THE HAGUE (AP) — Foreign Minister Georges Bidault of France joined five other West European foreign ministers here today in talks on a political community framework for German rearmament under the European Defence Community.

Fresh from his government's narrow parliamentary victory in Paris, Bidault arrived while ministers were discussing economic and military integration of France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

The French minister told reporters he will meet with the West German chancellor, Konrad Adenauer, on the Saar basin dispute. Andre Francois-Poncet, French high commissioner in Germany, also is due to sit in on the Saar talk.

SAAR STUMBLING BLOCK

A Saar settlement would considerably advance other plans for West European integration.

France and West Germany have long been at odds on the question. The West Germans regard the Saar as part of Germany, while the French insist the valley must be detached from Germany and linked economically with France.

Solution of the Saar question is one of the conditions France is demanding for eventual ratification of the EDC treaty.

British Expert At Bermuda Talk

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain disclosed today that she will send her top expert on Germany to the Bermuda Big Three conference in a last-minute switch of personnel.

The foreign office said Sir Frank Roberts, a deputy undersecretary, will replace his junior, P. F. Hancock, on Prime Minister Churchill's team for the talks with President Eisenhower and Premier Laniel opening next Friday.

Roberts has been Britain's chief representative at three-power meetings of experts this year. He helped draft the Western notes to Russia in the current exchanges.

His inclusion in the British delegation clearly indicates that Russia's agreement Thursday to a four-power foreign minister's conference will be a top item on the Bermuda agenda.

Marmora Reeve, Council Unopposed

MARMORA (ENS) — Reeve Irwin McCoy and his veteran council were returned by acclamation Friday afternoon at the annual nomination and ratepayers' meetings for Marmora and Lake townships.

Only 24 ratepayers attended the meetings in the Marmora village hall.

Here is the 1954 slate:

Reeve—Irwin McCoy.

Council—John Wilkes, Arthur Sheridan, Gordon Jones and George Fox.

School Area Trustees—Wilbert Jones, Percy Carman and Raymond Bonter. They are in for a two-year term of office.

Mr. McCoy has held office for the last two years. So have councillors Sheridan, Jones and Fox. Mr. Wilkes is beginning his ninth year on council.

SHORT MEETING

The ratepayers' meeting lasted just 19 minutes. Thomas J. Bateman, township clerk, was chairman.

The mill rate has been slashed from 65 to 34 mills. At first the reeve thought he would only be able to reduce it to 40 mills. The county rate has been cut a mill and a half.

Marmora and Lake townships also had their road appropriation cut this year by the department of highways. It was reduced from $18,000 to $16,000.

Mr. Jones, although wishing for a better turnout of ratepayers, said it was an apparent indication that they were satisfied.

Mr. Jones said that he would just as soon have stepped down this year; but there was nobody else willing to take the job.

TEACHER SHORTAGE

He emphasized that it is difficult to get qualified teachers for rural schools. They were fortunately able to make an arrangement with the Toronto board of education to get seats for the school re-opened at Tiffin.

Reeve Ritchie Wells, of Marmora village, congratulated council on their acclamation and on their bank balance of more than $14,000.

Reeve McCoy said the available supply of rock at the Bethlehem mine had reduced the price of rock for road purposes by 40 cents a cubic yard. The Bancroft power grader had also been useful.

He also said that council are considering putting a hard surface on the road from the Cordova turn, near Lorne Gray's home, to the village.

Order Inquiry Into Detroit Union Locals

DETROIT (CP)—An order for a federal grand jury investigation into affairs of the Detroit locals of the AFL Teamsters' Union was issued Friday shortly before James Hoffa, second most powerful man in the international union, took the witness stand to answer charges made by some 24 previous witnesses.

Hoffa told the congressional subcommittee hearing that receipts of local 299 often approached $500,000 a year but all financial records up to August, 1952, had been destroyed.

Committee counsel William McKenna said financial records of any non-profit organization must be kept, under law, for as long as they are of possible interest to the internal revenue department.

FEDERAL INVESTIGATION

The order for a federal investigation resulted from testimony given during the subcommittee investigation which is continuing, officials said.

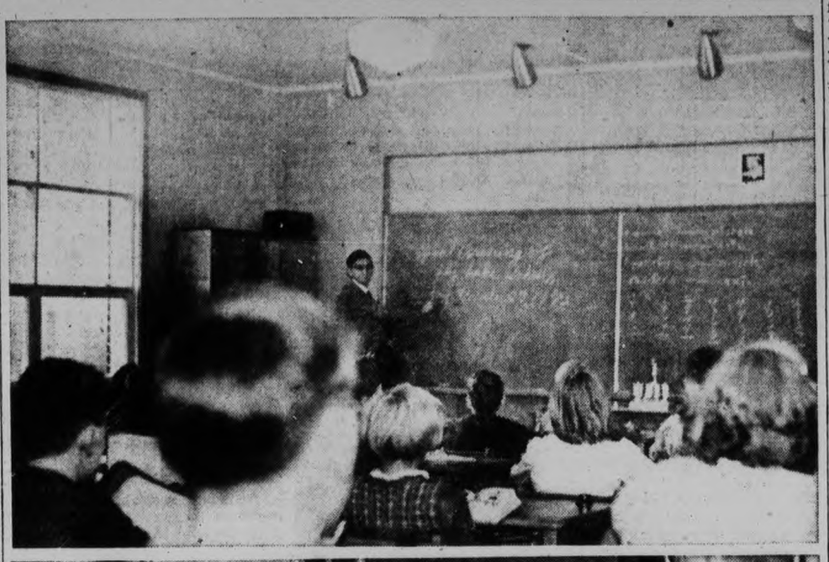
Clare Hoffman (Rep. Mich.), a committee member, said he expected the internal revenue department will make a check on the financial activities of Hoffa.

A spokesman said the grand jury also will look into possible violations of the federal anti-racketeering law under which it is a crime to interfere with interstate commerce by threat of violence.

Hoffa played a prominent part in Windsor, Ont., during the six-week strike of some 5,000 truck drivers throughout western Ontario last summer.

Wurlitzer Organ Best Of Electronics Says Thure Fredrickson

At an interview with Thure Fredrickson, organist of Hennepin Avenue Methodist Church, during the American Guild of Organists Convention held this week at the Curtis Hotel, Mr. Fredrickson indicated that he is particularly impressed with the advancement made by Wurlitzer in the field of Electronic organs.



When asked for details, he stated that, although interesting effects are available on most electronic organs, Wurlitzer is the one instrument that most nearly equals a pipe organ. He explained that the Wurlitzer system of tone production is based on the traditional use of wind-activated reeds. In the Wurlitzer organ these reeds are used, not as a direct source of tone, but to produce electrical frequencies for each note in the equally tempered scale. These various frequencies and the natural harmonies developed by the Wurlitzer reeds are translated by an ingenious electronic system into perfectly proportioned organ voices having the pure tone associated with true organ music. With standard specification for keys, stop controls, and pedal board, which the American Guild of Organists endorses, the organist is completely at home. The ability to add one stop to another as in a pipe organ gives the Wurlitzer the ensemble that all organists need, particularly for church music.

Mr. Fredrickson says that he has used an Orgatron, the predecessor of the Wurlitzer, for eight years and, although he has found it completely adequate, he is appreciative of the great tonal and mechanical advancements that have been made by the Wurlitzer Company. "Wurlitzer," concluded Mr. Fredrickson, "is a renowned manufacturer of organs and I heartily endorse their new Wurlitzer Organ."

OFFICIAL OPENING OF LILY LAKE SCHOOL, S.S. 1, Smith township, took place on Friday evening; the Hon. Harold R. Scott officiated. Exterior of the $25,000 structure, UPPER, is mostly window space on the south side which liberally lighted classrooms; CENTRE, a second classroom, where studies have carried on from September until three weeks ago, is in the spacious basement. Lily Lake School children are noted for their singing at musical festivals and they have won 13 certificates and two awards in the past few years. The teacher, William J. Anderson, is shown in the BOTTOM photo examining the collection with Jacqueline Yelland, 14, and Donald Middleton, 12. Students sang several numbers on Friday evening.—(Examiner Staff Photos).

Lily Lake School Opened

With an exceptionally large gathering of former teachers, pupils and friends, together with ratepayers of the section present, the new school at Lily Lake, SS 1, was officially opened Friday evening by the Hon. Harold R. Scott.

Mayor E. C. Anderson, public school inspector, was chairman. Seated on the platform were Mr. Vanden Burgh, guest speaker, J. C. Doyle, inspector of separate schools, and L. Birkin inspector of public school.

Mr. Anderson said the occasion marked the completion of a project under consideration for some time, and for him personally, a very happy one. Throughout the various meetings everyone had shown the utmost co-operation and desire to provide for their children the best they could.

Mr. Scott said he did not know he was to have the honor of opening the new school until he had read it in The Examiner.

RARE EVENT

He remembered that, in cities, the opening of new schools is a common thing; but in the country it only happens once in a generation.

Driving by the school in the afternoon, he thought it was a splendid landmark in the community.

"But" he said, "they have made one bad mistake by not having a woodshed. There is such streamlined education today there's no such thing as spending half an hour to go for a pail of water!

"This school and site will be a landmark a beacon in the community. My greatest hope is that the boys and girls who attend this school will become as good citizens and will serve in as good a manner as the older generation in the educational annals of this community.

"I am sure that those who are here tonight and do not live in the section will join with me in congratulating the trustees and ratepayers of this school and now declare it officially opened."

At this point the wide red ribbon across the front of the school room was cut by Mr. Scott.

W. Curtis, music director of PCVS choral club, sang two numbers, accompanied at the piano by Bob Turner.

Mr. Anderson called attention to a special feautre of the school room—the place where the teacher speaks condidentially to his pupils with the doors closed, and used as a stage when the doors can be opened. He had inspected this school 17 times and never needed to correct any of the children.

Pupils of the school sang two numbers, directed by their teacher, Mr. W. Anderson.

Mr. L. Birkin, inspector of public schools, extended to all who had any part in building the school his personal congratulations. He also introduced the guest speaker, W. C. Vanden Burgh of the department of education, Toronto.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mr. Vanden Burgh said: "When we attend the opening of a new school, it is hard to go backwards and compare it with the old; this one is no exception. We expect children of today will be given discipline meted out by firm parents and teachers. We notice there is less truancy than ever before—in fact it is almost non-existent in Ontario.

"When we came out of Grade I, we had mastered one book and now they have mastered 20 books.

"There are many changes in school buildings. Notice these new schools of one storey, with many windows to let in the sunlight, good floors and heating systems, fireproof, functional and friendly, to attract teachers. We don't need to attract pupils—they come in waves. Children nowadays are encouraged to put their own art work on display.

"The interest parents take has changed; no doubt the presence of this new school will have great influence in building new homes in this school section. Parents always ask 'where is the school?' This is a wonderful advertisement for SS 1.

"We have meetings, such as Home and School, at which parents and teachers discuss the education of children. They may never reach perfection in this relationship; but we must strive for close co-operation.

MADE PROGRESS

"We have made reasonable progress in keeping happy, making a living and continuing to pay attention to good citizenship, all of which are important steps along the road of progress. These marks of good citizenship we must have to be morally strong in this great country.

"I would like to think that this school depends on the people inside and what they think and do. This new school is an example of the interest the trustees and ratepayers of SS 1 take in education. "It will be a pride to the community and the large attendance tonight indicates the interest in the welfare of the children, he said.

"I wish to extend best wishes for the future and to move a vote of thanks to Mr. Vanden Burg," he concluded. "I trust, too, that the children of this school will always be worthy of the interest taken in providing this beautiful new school."
